

Spanish Prince Speaks At Agnes Scott Thursday

Subject, "Woman and Civilization."

For the first time in its history, Agnes Scott has received a visit from a prince of the royal blood. The visitor was Prince Alfonso Louis de Bourbon, half brother of the King of Spain. Prince Louis spoke at Agnes Scott on last Thursday evening at eight o'clock in the chapel to the student body, his subject being "Woman and Civilization."

On both sides of the house Prince Louis has very distinguished ancestors. He is directly descended from Henry IV, of Navarre, Louis XIV, of France, and Philip V, founder of the Bourbon house in Spain.

We were indeed fortunate to have Prince Louis speak here. Although of pure Spanish blood, he speaks English perfectly, and it was in our own tongue that his lecture was delivered Thursday. His presence here was secured through Miss Finlay, of the Spanish department. The telegram he sent accepting her invitation to lecture here is as follows:

"His Royal Highness, Prince Louis de Bourbon, begs to thank you for your invitation which he gladly accepts and he will deliver a lecture in English, subject, "Woman and Civilization."

During his stay in Atlanta, Prince Louis and his friend, Mr. Gutzon Borglum, are stopping with Mr. Venable in Druid Hills.

MR. DODD WRITES TO AGNES SCOTT.

Enjoyed His Visit to The South.

The following paragraphs are excerpts from a letter received by Miss Hearon from Mr. Dodd, which he wrote upon his return to Chicago. Mr. Dodd is greatly admired and liked at Agnes Scott, and his lectures are regarded as being among the best treats that have ever come to our college. It is very gratifying to us that he liked Agnes Scott, and took the trouble to inform us of it in such a pleasing, straight forward way.

Professor Dodd's Letter.

"I wish to express my admiration for your institution, its spirit, its teachers and its students. President Gaines impressed me as a solid, earnest, liberal-minded man who has done a vast work and who still dreams of greater things for the College and its members. I confess that I envy him the constructive part he has had in the re-building of the broken and ruined South of his young manhood. Besides my work of teaching and writing and criticism it stands out as a real and lasting thing, mine as passing and evanescent.

"And I must not fail to say that Dean Hopkins seemed to me to have contributed very greatly to giving the young women of Agnes Scott the fine tone and manner that marked them. I wish there were more like her, and more schools like Agnes Scott.

"And you and McCain and Miss Stevenson and Miss Gooch, how well do you seem to pull together and to have for your reward the earnest and admiring support of the students! Nor have I ever met with more promising or serious young women, working always to higher and better ends than we, their predecessors, have attained. And there in the heart of the old South they have gathered to work and think. I only wish I had been able to remain longer and see more of it all.

"Now my part of those two days' work looks small as I think it. They gave their thought and time-long

Dr. Rosalie Morton Addresses Agnes Scott

Speaks On Serbians Educated In Colleges.

On Monday, January 10, Agnes Scott had the great pleasure of hearing Dr. Rosalie Morton. For three years Dr. Morton was in war work in America, France and Serbia, a representative of six thousand women physicians. Dr. Morton before beginning her lecture expressed her great appreciation of the scholarship which Agnes Scott offered to the Serbian girl who was to have attended the college this session. Dr. Morton explained that our prospective fellow student became ill in France and much to the disappointment of all had to return home. Agnes Scott was the only college, Dr. Morton told us, which planned to take a Serbian girl without having been given a lecture previously.

"The sweetness and loveliness of your spirit shown in your welcome to my Serbian girl was an inspiration to the hard-working committee," were her words of thanks to Agnes Scott.

Dr. Morton related her experiences on the hospital boat, "La France." Later she worked on the Salonica front with French doctors and nurses in caring for the French wounded. There were many queer incidents in connection with the big semi-barbarous Madagascar negroes. On arrival at a hospital one of these Ethiopian heroes was persuaded with great difficulty to check along with his gun and other possessions a string of German ears which he wore around his neck. This war trophy was to prove his prowess to the "folks back home" (in the African jungles.)

During her lecture Dr. Morton paid a tribute to President Wilson, which received enthusiastic applause. "Even if the peace table were not advanced enough to accept Wilson's plan he has registered ideals for America." This led the speaker to express her disappointment on her return to find an absence of high ideals of dress and of diversions in America. She turned with gladness to the thought that this was not true of the American college and that conditions are becoming better everywhere.

Dr. Morton brought with her many interesting slides taken from pictures obtained in Europe. After this interesting talk she was ready to show these stereopticon slides. The lantern, however, was not quite so ready. It behaved indeed badly. The first slide, a map of Europe, appeared with east at the west and north at the south and every time an explanation was begun the maps disappeared.

"Yes, it takes a little time to get adjusted," Dr. Morton told Dr. Gaines, "but it's lots of fun!" Between the antics of the lantern and Dr. Morton's sense of humor the audience was nearly convulsed with laughter.

"Now you see this line on the map," began Dr. Morton (darkness), "now you don't" she concluded with a laugh. While seeing these pictures we realized the culture of the Serbs—their art, poetry and beautiful architecture. The Serbs are a poetic imaginative people, the average man six feet tall. Each tills his own bit of soil. The pictures of prominent Serbian men looked like "half the club members you know," Dr. Morton told us. Then followed pictures of German atrocities. At the end came lovely photographs of some of Dr. Morton's fifty boys and girls whom she has brought to America to be educated at colleges all over the land, and then to go back with the idea of bettering conditions in Serbia. Other countries are educating hundreds. There are over three thou-

WELCOME.

Unknown! Untried. If folk are somewhat coy

'Tis just because they do not know thy way;

They wonder whether thou hast tears or joy

Within the mystic chalice of thy day.

I share the foible of my fellow men,

'Tis human, but I do not fear thee. Your

Eternal love has sent thee and again

His servant, Time, must Heaven's largess bear;

And should I tarry here till thou art old,

And see thee stretch thine aged wings for flight,

I pray that I shall not have missed life's goal,

Yet hid by gloom but more by garish light.

Come To The Y. W. C. A. Today

Social Committee Hostesses During Exams.

By this time all the girls have visited the new Y. W. C. A. room, and have marveled at its "hominess"—not "hominess"—and beauty. In order that every girl may learn to feel that the Y. W. C. A. room belongs to her, as well as to make girls forget such distracting things as exams, the Social Committee has planned something really delightful. Girls, here's the plan!

Today, in the "Y" room, promptly at five o'clock, the social committee is giving a tea, and every one is invited, not only are the girls going to be treated to tea and cakes, but a roaring fire—the cheerful kind that you like to poke, and hear crackle and day dream by—is going to be built, and you can talk and laugh with a bunch of merry girls who have come to forget exams for an hour just as you have.

This tea is just the beginning of entertainment that is going to last every evening during the examination time. A member of the social committee will preside, and will see that you are provided with a new magazine, a good book or interesting conversation. Girls can't think of study all the time, and this hour of rest a day will certainly prove a blessing to those who are wise enough to make use of it. You will find that you can work all the better for it.

You're welcome in the Y. W. room. Just make its acquaintance and then you'll have it, and visit it every day for two weeks.

ELEANOR CARPENTER SPEAKS ABOUT AGNES SCOTT.

Large Louisville Audience.

During the holidays, Eleanor Carpenter was given the opportunity of speaking about Agnes Scott to a large audience of more than two thousand people.

The High School of Louisville, Ky., in order to inspire the pupils to continue their education into college, had a meeting in which the leading colleges of the country were represented. Eleanor was our representative, and spoke of Agnes Scott not only to the High School pupils, but to the Board of Education and to many citizens of Louisville.

On account of this speech, Eleanor was a day late in arriving at college, but a wire from Dr. Gaines assured her that she would be excused from classes on that day, in order to represent us before this audience.

Party Arranged For Trip Abroad

Miss Stevenson to Chaperon A. S. C. Girls.

Just imagine visiting all those places that we've studied about, and read about, and heard about all our lives! Paris, and Nice, and Pisto, where the leaning tower is, and Naples and Venice, and Flanders fields, and Rome and London—and other places that are just as wonderful that we haven't heard so much about.

Now the opportunity for seeing all these places, and many more, has been offered to Agnes Scott girls by the Temple Tours Company of Boston, Mass.

This company gives tours for nominal prices—for prices for less than the expenses of a person traveling alone would be, besides the added attraction of seeing all those places in company with ten or fourteen other girls and chaperoned by one of our own instructors, Miss Stevenson.

The duration of the tour that would be most desirable for A. S. C. girls is about 72 days, beginning June 18 and lasting until August 29. Within this time those on the tour would travel in France, Alsace, Lorraine, Italy, Switzerland, Belgium and England with stop of from one to six days in the various main cities en route.

The trip includes a visit to Versailles and the famous Hall of Mirrors, excursions to Chateau Thierry, Belleau Wood, Ypres, Vaux, Buresches and Rheims, motor trips on the Riviera, steamer trips to Toronto and Capri and on various lakes; such as Lake Geneva, Thuv, Luverne, etc., drives along the wonderful Ruralf Drive and the top of Simplon Pass. Then too, who hasn't dreamed of going to Venice and Pompeii, and Florence, Naples and Rome? And the tour includes all these places.

The prices for these tours include first class passage on the steamer, transportation of good class in Europe, automobile and carriage trips to the battlefields and cities, sight-seeing, i. e. admission to museums, galleries and other points of interest. Also hotel accommodations, all necessary fees at hotels and elsewhere, except on Atlantic steamers; transfers between stations, docks and hotels, and the services of the conductor. The price does not include tips on Atlantic steamers, extras at table (and extras are not in any sense necessary) personal expenses—such as laundry, postage and expenses; and passport expenses averaging about thirty dollars; and transportation from your own home to New York and back.

We are urged to make up the A. S. C. party as soon as possible so that reservations can be arranged. This is truly an opportunity that ought not be regarded as a fancy.

HOASC TAKES IN NEW MEMBERS.

Landres and Newton Receive Honor.

At the last meeting of Hoasc two new members, Anna Marie Landres and Charlotte Newton, were elected. This honor could not have been conferred upon any girls more fitted to receive it, for they have always been loyal upholders of the highest ideals and aims of Agnes Scott, and their loyalty has been expressed in many ways.

They have both taken part in most of the student activities, debating, Student Government, Y. W. C. A., Athletics, and in every way have shown themselves worthy of all that membership in Hoasc stands for. We congratulate Anna Marie and Charlotte upon their election, and are proud and glad for the spirit they have shown during their years here.

A. S. C. Member Association American Universities

Only Woman's College Admitted South of Lynchburg.

Agnes Scott has had a very great honor conferred upon it, in admission to the Association of American Universities. This is a recognition that we have long coveted, and we have the honor of being the only woman's college south of Lynchburg to belong to this Association.

Dr. Gaines made the announcement of this new distinction to Agnes Scott at the first chapel service, and the news was received with great joy. This honor is largely due to the untiring efforts of our President. He has worked long and faithfully to keep our standard high, and has spent his vacations traveling around to procure our able faculty. We rejoice that as the crown of his labors comes this announcement of recognition awarded to Agnes Scott.

Following is the text of the letter received by Dr. Gaines:

David A. Robertson,
The University of Chicago.

Chicago, Ill., Dec. 17, 1920.

Pres. F. H. Gaines,
Agnes Scott College,
Decatur, Ga.

My Dear President Gaines:

It gives me pleasure to inform you that at the Twenty-second Conference of the Association of American Universities, the Agnes Scott College was placed on the list of colleges and universities approved by the Association.

I enclose the list of institutions approved by the Association. At the 1920 meeting the following institutions were approved. These do not appear on the printed list.

Agnes Scott College, Denison University, Hamline University, Illinois Woman's College, California Institute of Technology, University of Idaho, University of Nevada, Western College for Women.

Very truly yours,
David A. Robertson.

NEWSPAPERS HONOR AGNES SCOTT.

Margaret McLaughlin Most Representative.

Following Agnes Scott's admission into the American Association of Universities, comes an invitation from the Newspaper Enterprise Association for Agnes Scott to send in a picture of her most representative girl to appear in their "College Types" series. Some of these pictures have already come out in the Atlanta Journal. They are of girls from the leading institutions of higher learning in the United States, most of them from big northern colleges. It is no mean honor for Agnes Scott to be included, since the pictures will be run in all the biggest newspapers of the country. It will probably bring wider publicity to Agnes Scott than anything has done before.

It was impossible to pick the most representative girl in all the student body; but from a host of girls who are worthy to personify the spirit of Agnes Scott, the president of Student Government has been selected, Margaret McLaughlin. During her three and a half years here she has taken part in almost every phase of college activity—athletics, dramatics, musical festivals, and has done creditable academic work. In addition to these things she has had time to make friends, and has in every way upheld the ideals for which Agnes Scott stands. The student body has already shown its appreciation of her career by electing her to the highest executive office on the campus. Her picture will probably be published in the "Journal" soon.

EDITORIALLY SPEAKING

EXAMINATIONS AND YOU.

Examinations and all that they bring with them are upon us. For those who have skimmed through their work all year, they mean worry and much cramming; the more conscientious girls who have done their work faithfully can accept them more placidly.

Every girl wants to do her best on these tests. In order to do so, it might be wise to consider how you may really do yourself justice, by following a few simple rules.

In the first place, take the usual amount of exercise during examination week. When you stay in the library all day, cob-webs collect on your brain, which a short brisk walk might wipe away.

Don't stay away from meals. The little bit you might learn during the meal hour will not compensate for the bodily weakness the lack of food would cause you.

Forget examinations and worry while you are in the dining room. Crack jokes and laugh, and you can digest your food more easily.

Don't sit up too late at night, or drink stimulants to keep you awake in order to study. Any physician will tell you that stimulants will cause you more harm than good, and a fresh mind is worth more than a little bit of extra knowledge.

Be considerate of other people, as you want them to be considerate of you, by observing their busy signs, and by keeping quiet in the halls when others are trying to concentrate.

Above all, cultivate a philosophical attitude toward your examinations and don't worry. Do the best you can, and be contented in the fact that angels could do no more.

THE NEW SEMESTER AND ITS OPPORTUNITY.

The old semester is practically at an end, and we are soon to begin on the work of the new. What are we going to make of the next half of our year's work?

There are some of us who may look back with pride upon the accomplishments of the last four months; there are others who doubtless would like to forget some sins of commission and of omission. Whether we feel that we have done well or have failed; there is always room for improvement, and the new semester is an inspiration for increased endeavor in our college life.

There are so many ways we can improve—our record, both as students, and as members in our college community for whose advancement we are responsible. Let's determine to make this coming semester a telling one for its inspiration, its work, its pleasure and its accomplishments.

CHARLOTTE BELL HONORED AGAIN.

Agnes Scott has had more than one honor bestowed upon it in the last few weeks. In addition to the fact that our College has been admitted to the Association of American Universities, it has been honored by having one of its students asked to serve on the executive committee of the North American Student Movement, an organization which is composed of representatives of the Y. W. C. A. and Y. M. C. A. of the United States, Y. M. C. A. of Canada, and the Student Volunteer Movement. Charlotte Bell has received this honor, which is especially great because there are only two undergraduate representatives from the Y. W. C. A. in all America.

Charlotte has been very prominent in Y. W. C. A. work and has had several honors conferred on her. She has always had her college at heart in every step she has taken in this field of work and because of this she regrets having to refuse this greatly appreciated invitation. It was necessary, however, because the date of the meeting in New York is such that it will be impossible for her to serve on this committee and also attend the meeting of the Student Committee of the National Board of the Y. W. C. A., of which she is an undergraduate member.

1920 PROGRAM.

The aim of the Y. W. C. A. prayer meetings between now and Easter is going to be to help us all to live as true followers of the Lord Jesus Christ. If every one will keep that thought constantly in mind, the following program will mean more. The subjects as planned are:

Jan. 16—Beginning to follow Him on the campus.

Jan. 23—Following Him through music (song service).

Jan. 30—World Fellowship meeting—to follow Him through other nations.

Feb. 6—Best Guide Book for finding the way; how are you interpreting the gospel?

Feb. 13—Following Him into the church.

Jan. 20—Following Him through friendships.

Feb. 27—World Fellowship meeting.

March 6—(Open).

March 13—Education's highways:

1921'S SOPHOMORE SISTERS.

The custom of each Senior choosing a Sophomore sister is a very old one at Agnes Scott and such a well-beloved one that it will not soon die out.

The appearance of the new Senior rings on their Sophomore sisters' fingers has made us think of this custom more within the past few weeks. Perhaps all of us do not know exactly "who is whose," so for the convenience of the student body, the Agonistic is printing the following complete list:

which goal is yours?

March 20—World Fellowship meeting.

March 27—Easter.

The World Fellowship department has charge of one meeting every month. One of their meetings last semester was the pageant which every one remembers. There will be another pageant some time this spring, and the other meetings will be interesting programs of various kinds. This department's problem is merely one of selection; for its field is a large one, and unworked.

WHAT WE STAND FOR.

The weeks before and during exams are often so full of necessary work and study that we really don't have time to think very much; so the Y. W. has thought for us about one thing—honor during exams. Student Government has urged us to heed its rules, and has taken them up in detail, so that there need be no mistakes. But the Y. W. just wants to point out the worth-while-ness of supporting the honor system. Honor is not a question of law; it is a question of right. Signing your name to work that is not strictly yours, no matter what the urgency of the case, shows a lack of moral discernment, a yellow streak in your character. And integrity means more to a citizen than an education ever can mean; for without it, education degenerates. The Agnes Scott ideal will mean nothing if we disregard it in times of stress.

The old girls have already proven themselves worthy to uphold it, and Freshmen should value this their first opportunity.

The high soul climbs the high way

And the low soul gropes the low;

And in between, on misty flats,

The rest move to and fro.

But to every man there openeth

A high way and a low,

And every man decideth

Which way his soul shall go.

Anna Hart—Rhea King.

Vienna Mae Murphy—Myrtle Murphy.

Martha Stansfield—Mary Stewart McLeod.

Amy Twitty—Virginia Burum.

ATTENTION, FRESHMEN!

February 14 is an easy date to remember because it is Valentine's Day. But this year at A. S. C. it is something else also; it is the day for Folio tryouts to be in. That is why you are called upon to remember another date when history I is already taxing your brain. When the Sophomore members become automatically excluded at the beginning of the second semester, there will be only two left; so about a half a dozen will have to be taken in. Those who are already in say they enjoy Folio more than anything else at Agnes Scott. The club meets with the different members on invitation, and usually in addition to the "feast of reason and flow of soul" there is some really substantial nourishment. It meets every two weeks; half have stories one time and the other half the next, so that each one has to write only one story a month.

If you like to write, or like to talk, or like to eat, just use some of your spare time between now and Valentine's Day in writing a story. Maybe the one you had to write for English I will be all right. And it doesn't even have to be typewritten. Just hand it to any one who is a member of Folio now.

GIDDIE GOSSIP

My Darling Aggie:

Guess you thought I'd strayed from the path like a lot of these other susceptible jeunes fillies and succumbed to the wily smiles of a man while at home. Well, Christmas is a dangerous season withal, as the poets say, but Martha and I were constantly chaperoned so we are back again, although Carolyn and Ellen and just heaps of others aren't. Of course I meant to write to you as soon as I reached here, but I've been so busy doing secret service work that I haven't had a minute to spare. So many folks came back with rings and other amatory evidences that Exec. asked me to sorter tactful like look into these affairs and find out if they were really dangerous or not. I'm a cat when it comes to lovers—just get 'em confidential you know—and they tell me all about it.

Elizabeth Perry let me on to who gave her that ten pounder of Whitman's and Hazel described to me the little bungalow they looked at on something or other avenue. And Pou confided in me tremendously—why, she told me exactly what he said when he gave her that gorgeous solitaire. He's a humdinger! Wish some other fellows I know would take dots from him. Mildred McFall says she wishes so, too. Her fellow came all the way from Texas to see her while she was at home and then had the nerve to go back without so much as hinting at her going with him. Guess he thought she was keen on these old B. A.'s and M. A.'s and Ph. D.'s.

Talking about degrees—you ought to see Ruth Hall's little D. D. He's swell and so serious. Preachers usually are, they tell me, when it comes to women. He writes darling letters and they aren't at all religious. Susie Reid says they can't beat Adam's, though, that she got twenty from him in less than a week. But personally I don't believe she could have gotten that many unless some of them were her old letters he was returning.

You knew Blanche Ryan was going to commit matrimony in February? Yes, and—this is strictly confidential—Mildred told me she would too, if the family could afford two trousseaus at once. Pete told her it was foolish to let a little thing like that stop her, that men don't care anything about swell clothes. Guess she ought to know. Have you heard who he is? That's one thing I can't find out to save me.

Returning to Christmas, though. Rachel got fifty pounds of candy!

Yes! That's why she hasn't been very well since she got back. Of course Cap sent some of it, but they tell me he'd better watch his step. He's not as spry as he used to be on account of his busted knee, and somebody down in Montgomery—a Yale fellow—nearly beat his time while Rachel was at home.

From all accounts the train is a mighty good place to make acquaintances. Elizabeth Brown says it certainly proved her opportunity, and Dot declares that the next best thing to a Pullman car is a vacated observation platform. Virginia Burum doesn't lay much stress on trains, though, she says that her one "I-Deer" is of a little yellow roadster.

But this is the biggest news of all, Aggie. The Prince of Spain has been to see us! Yes, we are hobnobbing with the royalty now. They say he's married, but then you know they said Mr. Painter was, too. And Margaret declares that he isn't. Well, I'd better stop and study for my exams. Really, Aggie, I am not going to bother about them very much, though if I am automatically excluded I can go back home and carry my Christmas campaign to completion.

Your designing

than that of standing examinations. In a way, it is a sort of challenge, class of '24, and we are waiting to see how the chivalrous spirit of your ancestors will crop out as you pick up the gauntlet.

But what of the other twenty-five per cent. who have no weighty opinions to uphold, and who consequently go moping about with lugubrious faces, voicing sentiments prophetic of certain disaster, who write desperate letters home, and crack bitter jokes about packing trunks, catching trains, etc. A few words of wisdom, based on rich experience, will we hope, suffice to brighten their drooping faces.

First, there are fifty-six Seniors. Up to this time each of them has undergone the severe grilling of thirty or more examinations and lived through it. None of them are nervous or physical wrecks, and several are still younger, prettier and more frivolous looking than many a Freshman; second, many a Freshman will make better grades this year than she may hope to make in the remaining part of her scholastic career; and third, there is an old adage which it would be well for every one to repeat when hard pressed in this vale of carking care—
"For every evil under the sun
There is a remedy, or there is none—
If there be one, try and find it,
If there be none, never mind it."

sand in France, and in Glasgow thirty-five. When Dr. Morton realized this she felt that she could not answer that she would bring only twenty back to the states. Out of the bigness of her heart she brought fifty. Dr. Morton has appealed to Hoover for aid in their support. She was not helped because the Hoover fund goes to relieve the children of Central Europe, the children of Germany and Austria-Hungary. In Vienna Dr. Morton saw great luxury, beautiful clothes and theater-going, which were necessary to make the people forget that they had lost the war. They seem to have forgotten also that they have a duty toward the hungry children of Austria.

By helping the Serbian students it is our privilege and our great opportunity to show our appreciation in a very small way of Serbia, who for seventeen months held the Germans back from the Serbian front unaided. The earnestness and lovely spirit of this war-worker and the worthiness of the cause made its way to our hearts. We thank Dr. Morton for bringing us knowledge of heroic little Serbia and for giving us a small part in her wonderful work.

MR. DODD WRITES TO AGNES SCOTT.

lectures they were—and I feel as if I had not half stimulated and stirred them. I know I did not do my full duty on the last night. My mind simply did not work well that night and I felt so, but I could not help it. But it is past and may not be recalled—spilt milk."

WHAT DO YOU THINK OF EXAMS?

Some say opportunity knocketh but once; others that it batters at the door daily with the hectic persistency of a woodpecker. This latter opinion is the one which is hurled at the Freshman simultaneously with her white course card, and she is informed in divers ways that the snatching of one's opportunities is the secret of "a life well spent." Being a docile creature a ready receptacle for good advice and open to conviction, she does not wait for the timid rat-a-tat-tat of opportunity; but greets him on the threshold with a welcome smile. Comes the opportunity to become a reporter, an authoress, an athlete, an actress, and with the inevitable theme writing of English I, the opportunity to air her views.

It was on an occasion like the latter that Miss Laney made the gratifying discovery that about seventy-five per cent. of the Freshmen expounding on the subject "Are Examinations valuable?" gave sound arguments in the affirmative. Our faith in human nature will not allow us to question the motive that lay back of these opinions, or to doubt that they were sincere, and not expressed with a view to A + marks.

But there are some who have not this sweet and untainted belief in their fellow men, and now to each Freshman comes the opportunity of proving to these sceptics that she meant what she said when she intimated that without that unparalleled institution of giving examinations, every student on the campus would be a spendthrift of time and a bonehead.

Now in the strenuous weeks to come there are two ways in which she can prove her unwavering faith in her opinions; first, by adopting a Douglas Fairbanks smile which will illuminate the whole campus and put the power house out of commission; second, by adopting a look which seems to say "This is the greatest event which has ever happened to me in the whole course of my varied career on this globe of wonderful opportunities. Life could not hold a fairer paradise." By thus turning herself into a little sunbeam of cheer, the Freshman will convince herself and others that next to graduation there is no greater sensation in life

EVERY WOMAN delights in the coming of Spring, and the first harbingers of this charming season are the Suits and Frocks rather than the Robins, for now, before the north wind has ceased its blowing, before the Robin would dare venture into our midst, some of the most delectable and wonderful creations of the New Mode have come to us bringing visions of blue skies, green leaves and the fascinating colorings with which Mother Earth clothes her world.

Platinum and Copper reign side by side as monarchs of the color card, combined with darker colors and the shades these two, especially Platinum in a variety of soft grey shadings are decidedly charming.

In one Suit in particular the platinum strands have been cunningly fashioned into an embroidered motif that gleams against a background of Navy Blue.

Most of the new Suits are strictly tailored. Some have deep sashes after the Spanish fashion and are very smart. Many are braided in a unique and effective cross bar fashion, narrow braidings that give a swagger touch. And instead of the Vest, Dame Fashion decrees for Suits this Spring a Camisole waist. Very simple and easy to wear and very chic.

Gabardines in the soft, Platinum Shadings are to be seen in the Suits as well as tricotines and twills and there is a Plaid Velour, for sports wear, and for practical street wear as well, which is very charming.

In Dresses! Well here we falter, for the creations of Lanvin and other master designers seem beyond expression this Spring. Groping back into the past for inspiration one designer has caught the spirit of the 60's and has made a frock in Changeable taffeta that might have been worn by any Southern Belle at some stately dance.

A Copper and Black Frock has about it an exotic suggestion of the Orient, and yet it is seemly and more than smart. Uniquely embroidered and with applique designings it has a lure for the woman who dares to wear something distinctive and different.

A Dainty Grey Dress, the motif of which is Forget-Me-Nots, is also different, but very demure. A wonderful Frock for a dinner dance.

Taffetas with Crystal and Bugle Beads, one with a Front Pannier of applique net in medallion designs has too, a touch of the Orient and is fascinating.

An Ultra Smart Dinner Gown for the Matron. Heavily beaded with long, bugle beads, a Lanvin Model combining Lace Net and Black Charmeuse to excellent advantage.

All in all this advance showing of Spring styles is quite complete. All of the moment's moods are here in one form or another, in Suit or in Frock.

You will be delighted to see these manifestations of Fashion and you will be very welcome.

ATHLETICS

TAKE EXERCISE DURING EXAMS.

Examinations are not usually regarded as a blessing by the student body at large, but they certainly do give the athletic side of college a chance to catch up with the season's work and to develop itself generally. Gym classes are suspended and there is no lab. So afternoons are free for tennis, that is, if a next day's exam is not impending, and, with the tennis tournament coming in the early spring, a lot of practice is necessary. The courts have been newly-lined and rolled and are in excellent condition. So sign up early on the bulletin board in Main Building, and play tennis lots during the trying period of exams.

Then too, there are basket-ball practices from twelve-thirty to one-thirty every day during exams. These practices are not for any special class, but for everybody, so that all the girls can get a chance to recreate after a hard examination or after a morning's hard study.

And, whatever happens, don't forget the dancing classes which are held every Tuesday night. Everybody is urged to try out for May Day this year, as the festival is going to be unusually beautiful and elaborate and many types, sizes and kinds of girls are needed to take part in it.

If you like long walks, there are the hikes to give you recreation and exercise. As soon as the weather stops being so uncertain, the hike manager is going to have regular hikes, and nothing is more fun than a long tramp with a crowd of Agnes Scott hikers.

Last is the swimming pool which is kept filled during exams, so that anybody can fool herself into thinking she is spending the season in Florida by taking a short, snappy swim in the frothing breakers of the Agnes Scott natatorium.

Remember that by keeping alive physically, you can keep awake mentally during mid-year exams, and take plenty of exercise during our two weeks of concentrated effort.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT NEWS.

Students are asked to be especially observant of quiet rules during examinations.

It has been decided best to put a ban on the Rabbit Hole for the present. Girls are asked not to go there unchaperoned.

Girls are not allowed to go to the hotel when dining out, without special permission from the Dean.

Students are reminded that they cannot meet men in town without permission from Miss Hopkins.

Time limit is five-thirty.

ALUMNAE NOTES.

It will be of interest for the many friends of Juliet Foster to know that she has moved from her home in Anderson, S. C., to Winston-Salem, N. C. Juliet graduated from Agnes Scott last year, and still has a host of friends here.

Last Sunday's paper carried the announcement of Lois MacIntyre's engagement. Lois, a member of the class of '20, is to marry Mr. Frank Roscoe Beele, of Atlanta. During her Senior year here, Miss MacIntyre was president of the Agnes Scott Athletic Association.

Lulie Harris, another popular member of last year's graduating class, was married on Tuesday, January 11, to Mr. David George Henderson of Guntersville, Ala. Mr. and Mrs. Henderson are spending their honeymoon cruising in the South Seas.

They will make their home in Guntersville.

Girls' Father: "Young man, you'll have to leave this house."

Young Man: "I hadn't planned on taking it with me."

Woman has been thwarted of one of her favorite amusements. She can no longer drive men to drink.

THE MORNING AFTER, ETC.

In the dark last night

I met her,

And from her took a kiss.

Oh, the sweetness of the nectar,

Fair o'er swept my soul with bliss.

But, today I have a feeling—

A taste that's clear and keen,

Which tells me that the nectar

Was cold cream and glycerin.

MY GARDEN FLOWERS.

Along my garden wall

There blooms in hues so rare,

The daintiest kinds of flowers,

Whose fragrance scents the air.

The mocking birds seem all to come

To my garden sweet and fair,

And perch upon the willow boughs

And warble sweetly there.

When my flowers have had their morning bath,

And the sun steals away the dew,

They lend their fragrance and beauty

To a world once more made new.

At evening when the sun has set

And the west begins to gray,

I fancy I see my flowers nod

And send the bees away.

WANTED.

150 tons of flour, 2,680 cases of condensed milk, 15 tons of cocoa.

Sounds like an appeal for supplies to feed another expeditionary force! Well, it is an appeal for food to feed an army of our fellow students who are starving not only for knowledge but for actual necessities of life that we daily complain about. While we are studying in warm comfortable buildings, and eating good wholesome food, there are thousands of university students in Central Europe who are trying to live on two scant meals a day, studying by the flickering light of one candle and sleeping on boards. To quote from an authentic report:

"Students are trying to live on two meals a day, one of which consists of black bread and very thin soup. They are coming home at night to study in a room without heat, and no lighting facilities except a candle. They are trying to keep warm with their clothing in rags. Two authentic cases are known of two students who had gone to bed from hunger and exhaustion only to be found dead some days later."

Such are conditions in Europe where learning is now more difficult even than warring was in years past. Let us not forget these struggling students when our opportunity comes to help them.

Grand Opera Program Announced

CARUSO AND BORI TO APPEAR.

Three Matinees and Four Nights.

It will be of great interest to Agnes Scott students to know that the program for this year's Grand Opera has been announced. The season will begin on April 25, and last through Saturday night, April 30. There are to be three matinees and four night performances with four of the operas in Italian, and two and probably three in French.

Many of the stars with whom we are already familiar will return this year among them Caruso, Scotti, Ponselle and Bori. There will be a number of new stars with whom to become acquainted.

The program this year is especially pleasing. It is as follows:

The Program.

Monday Night, April 25—Umberto Giordano's "Andrea Chenier."

Tuesday Matinee, April 26—Giacomo Puccini's "La Boheme."

Wednesday Night, April 27—Arrigo Boito's "Mefistofele."

Thursday Matinee, April 28—Jules Massenet's "Manon."

Friday Night, April 29—Giuseppe Verdi's "Aida."

Saturday Matinee, April 30—Verdi's "Rigoletto."

Saturday Night, April 30—Puccini's "Tosca."

Girls are advised to get their tickets early, since the auditorium will not seat all the Grand Opera lovers of Atlanta and the surrounding country.

AGNES SCOTT ORGANIZES DEBATING CLUB.

Other Colleges to Be Asked to Join.

The latest organization at Agnes Scott is what is known as Pi Alpha Phi which, being very freely translated, means "honor to whom honor is due."

Because Agnes Scott believes in recognizing valuable work done by any student, she has organized this honorary society as one means of expressing her gratitude to those who have distinguished themselves in the debating world. The fact that all the good debaters cannot be chosen to go to other colleges to represent Agnes Scott, has led to this organization, which includes ten of the most faithful and efficient debaters. They have by their persistent efforts meant a great deal to their respective societies and have had an invaluable part in keeping up the spirit of the work. Out of this number the inter-collegiate debaters will be chosen.

The following girls are the present members: Cama Burgess, president; Anna Marie Landress, secretary; Frances Charlotte Markley, Charlotte Bell, Eleanor Carpenter, Quenelle Harrold, Nell Buchanan, Ruth Scandrett, Martha Stansfield, Caroline Agee.

This society has originated at Agnes Scott and plans are being made to make it a national society by getting other colleges to form the same society. Only A grade colleges will be asked to join.

Each member of the present society is to debate twice in the preliminaries for the inter-collegiate debate. Out of the ten, six girls will be chosen to go to Randolph-Macon and Sophie Newcomb to the debate to be held in April.

Student Conference To Meet Here April 12-15

Plans For Entertainment Already Proposed.

The annual conference of the Woman's Inter-Collegiate Association for Student Government of Southern Colleges will meet at Agnes Scott from April 12 to 15. Last year it met at Greensboro, North Carolina. Agnes Scott, as a member of this association, sent the two delegates to which she was entitled, Margaret McLaughlin and Jean McAllister. Among the colleges represented are Hollins, Converse, Sophie Newcomb, Greensboro, Woman's College of Alabama, Randolph-Macon, Agnes Scott, Shorter, Mississippi State College, Sweet Briar, Woman's College of Florida and Westhampton.

The purpose of this association is to discuss the interest of the different colleges, for mutual help and suggestion. It gives each college a wider view-point and many helpful ideas from other colleges, a result of a meeting of this kind is the inspiration which comes from meeting together with girls who are interested in the same problems, and who are trying to work to better the faults which they may find in their respective associations.

We, as students of Agnes Scott, should bear in mind that last year when the representatives of the various colleges voted for the place of the 1921 meeting, Agnes Scott received two-thirds majority of the votes. The vice-president of this association is one of our girls, Margaret McLaughlin. It is our duty to welcome these delegates and make them feel that each girl at Agnes Scott is pleased to have the conference meet here. The way in which we may do our part is by learning the songs, and singing to the girls. In doing this, we shall show our appreciation and uphold the spirit of our Alma Mater. The alumnae have done their part by offering their automobiles to take the delegates for a ride through Druid Hills, Piedmont Park, and other beautiful places of Atlanta. It is not too early for us to begin to think about our part in the entertainment of the guests, for the impression that they will carry away will be the impression that we, the students, will make upon them.

NATIONAL BOARD OF Y. W. C. A. MEETS IN NEW YORK.

Charlotte Bell Undergraduate Representative.

Charlotte Bell has again left for New York to attend a meeting of the Student Committee of the Y. W. C. A. National Board, on which she is undergraduate representative. Charlotte was accompanied by Janef Preston, who is going to attend the meeting, although in no official capacity Janef is getting a holiday trip from her father, after the strenuous exams.

This meeting of the National Student Committee lasts from the sixth to the tenth of February. Besides the representative of our South Atlantic field, (composed of Agnes Scott, Randolph-Macon, Hollins, etc.) there will be ten other student secretaries. The conference will be particularly notable since this is the first time that undergraduate members have met with the National Committee. The purpose of the conference is to consider phases of the National Student Movement and to make plans for the year's work.

At the same time there will be the Industrial Conference of the Y. W. C. A., which will probably hold joint sessions with the Student Staff Conference. The Industrial Conference will have one Industrial girl representative from each of the eleven fields in the United States, and is expected to add much interest to the meeting of the National Committee.

The Lessons Of Nature

Of this fair volume which we World do name
If we the sheets and leaves could turn with care
Of him whom it corrects, and did it frame,
We clear might read the art and wisdom rare:
Find out his power, which wildest power doth tame,
His providence extending everywhere,
His justice which proud rebels
doth not spare,
In every page no period of the same,
But silly we, like foolish children, rest
Well pleased with colored vellum, leaves of gold;
Fair dangling ribbons, leaving what is best,
On the great writer's sense ne'er taking hold;
Or if by chance we stay our minds on ought
It is some picture on the margin wrought.
—Drummond.

A. S. C. Welcomes New Students

Eleven New Enrollments.

With the beginning of the second semester Agnes Scott has enrolled eight new girls. Three of them have been here before as students—Annie Sue Banks of Social Circle, Ga., Sue Cureton of Moreland, Ga., and Clara Johns of Corinth, Miss.

The five new girls who are entering Agnes Scott for the first time are Elizabeth Carson of Bristol, Tenn., Kate Higgs of Charleston, W. Va., Ruth Price of Bessemer, Ala., Flora Wheeler of Hot Springs, Ark., and Ruth Williams, of Atlanta.

Two more late arrivals who have not come yet, but who are expected before long are: Clara McIver of Greenville, S. C., and Walker Fletcher of Jackson, Tenn.

The new students are settled now, most of them in White House, and gladly "at home" to the old girls. Many were the visits paid Sunday night, and White House, for a wonder, received an extra share of calls which were not paid at the first floor dining room.

Another welcome came at the sing after the Student Government meeting Tuesday night, when all the old girls serenaded the new ones. Ruth Scandrett was on hand afterwards to provide all the new girls with our little purple and white hand-books so that they can become familiar with the rules and regulations, and the way we do things.

By this time we are hoping these girls are not feeling "new" any longer, but perfectly at home, and just as glad to be here at A. S. C. as A. S. C. is to have them.

IRREGULARS PLAN VALENTINE PARTY.

Date Set For February 12.

We Agnes Scott girls always wonder what is going to happen on the next Saturday night, for something nice is usually planned. There is a treat in store for us on the twelfth of February, for the Irregulars are going to give the students a Valentine party. Of course the gym will be decorated to suit the occasion. An orchestra from town is coming out and dancing will be the chief feature, although other things are being planned for those who do not dance. An entertainment committee is hard at work and they are going to give us a great time. The college community is cordially invited.

Alabama Glee Club Here Saturday Night

Entertained At a Reception After The Program.

On Saturday night, February 5, Agnes Scott had another musical treat in the Glee Club from the University of Alabama which gave a most pleasing program in the chapel. The platform was beautifully decorated with ferns and potted plants, but the best decorations for the Agnes Scott girls were the several rows of dress suits seated on the stage, upon whom every eye was centered.

The music was splendid, and the entire program was most effectively rendered. The boys were generous with their encores, and were called back again and again. Especially enjoyable were the selections by the "string band."

The Alabama Glee Club is one of the most popular music clubs that has ever been here. It has had sixteen successful seasons and is more in demand every year. We were fortunate in having it at Agnes Scott this year.

After the entertainment, the Agnes Scott Glee Club and Orchestra held a reception for the boys in the society halls, to which girls who had friends among the visiting boys were invited. At this informal reception the boys and girls became acquainted over their coffee and sandwiches, and had a most enjoyable time.

Already, we are anticipating a return trip from the Alabama Glee Club for next year, and hope they will not disappoint us.

SILHOUETTE TO BE COMPLETED BY APRIL.

All Articles Ready For Press.

One thing that Agnes Scott girls have been hearing about ever since they arrived here last September is the new Silhouette. Work was begun on the annual during the very first week of last semester. The hour of the day Mary Anne Justice could be seen, kodak in hand, collecting for a snapshot, now a small group of frightened Freshmen, now a band of Sophomores, and less frequently a number of Juniors and Seniors. Then, after this had been done, a photographer from McCrary's in Atlanta frightened the gym classes and the tea-room visitors with the loud report and the cloud of black smoke which accompany the taking of indoor pictures. Then, the constant click of Frances Charlotte Markley's typewriter and her frequent visits to town have aroused the interest of the entire student body. In fact, everybody is eager to know when the annual is coming out.

Frances Charlotte Markley brought the welcome news this week that the publishers will be able to complete the annual by April. The cuts for the pictures and the subject matter have been handed in and both are now ready for the press. The early publication of the annual is due to the fact that it is the first annual to be printed by the publishing company this year.

Some of the best efforts of our Agnes Scott authors and artists are in the 1921 annual. Rachel Rushton wrote the history of the Senior class and Martha Laing the prophecy. Student Government is ably represented by Margaret McLaughlin. Anna Marie Landress, one of our student volunteers, is the author of an interesting article on the work of the volunteer band at Agnes Scott. The French Club is brought to notice by its president, Eleanor Carpenter. Janef Preston, Ethel Ware, Frances Charlotte Markley and Frances Harper also contributed articles.

The Freshman class is represented, too. Margaret Powell is the author of the history of the Freshman class. Janice Brown's article is "The Thrills of a Freshman." Minnie Allen and Dell Bernhardt have lent their artis-

Debate Subject Chosen

A. S. C. Battles S. N. Here—Another Team Goes to R. M. W. C.

Agnes Scott again feels the thrill of approaching inter-collegiate debates. The question for the triangular debates in April has been decided. Randolph-Macon, the latest member of the triangle, chose the subject. It is Resolved: That a federal board should be appointed with powers of compulsory arbitration between capital and labor.

Our debating societies are eager to begin work immediately on the question. Preliminary debates will be held and from these debaters a group of eight or ten will be chosen. The first inter-society debate determined some of the members of this group. Another inter-society debate will be given February 9.

From the group of eight or twelve best debaters the debating council with the aid of the faculty members will choose two teams. The teams of Randolph-Macon, Sophie Newcomb and Agnes Scott will meet each other as follows:

Aff. S. N. vs. Neg. R. M. at Sophie Newcomb.

Aff. R. M. vs. Neg. A. S. at Randolph-Macon.

Aff. A. S. vs. Neg. S. N. at Agnes Scott.

This system certainly multiplies and complicates the thrills. One thing we feel sure of, though, that a victorious affirmative team will be at the gate to greet a home-coming, victorious, negative team.

Come out to the society preliminary debate, girls, and show your enthusiasm and loyalty from now until the debates in April.

BLACKFRIAR TRYOUTS FEBRUARY 14.

Banquet At East Lake.

The mid-year try-outs for Blackfriars have been announced for Monday, February 14th, to be held in the chapel. They will be open only to those girls who entered Agnes Scott during the 1920-1921 term, and to such other students as shall be approved by the committee on admission. This is the first opportunity given Freshmen for displaying their dramatic ability, and it is anticipated that they will make a remarkable show of talent which has previously had no opportunity for being displayed. The list of plays from which selections may be made for the try-outs is posted on the student government bulletin board in Main Building, and is as follows:

Twelfth Night—Act I, sc. 5, lines 169-300. Olivia and Viola.

Merchant of Venice—Act I, sc. 2. Portia and Nerissa.

Merchant of Venice—Act II, sc. 2. Launcelot and Old Gebbo.

As You Like It—Act I, sc. 3. Rosalind, Celia, and the Duke.

Much Ado About Nothing—Act IV, sc. 1. Benedict and Beatrice.

Much Ado About Nothing—Act III, sc. 1. Hero and Ursula.

Midsummer's Night Dream—Act II, sc. 1. Demetrius and Helena.

Much Ado About Nothing—Soliloquy. Act II, sc. 3. Benedict: "This can be no trick—"

It will be of great interest, no doubt, to those who aspire to membership in this active branch of college life, to know who compose the committee on admission to Blackfriars. The faculty members are Mr. Stukes, Dr. Armistead, Mr. Johnson, Mr. Cunningham, Miss McKinney, Miss Laney, Miss Alexander, Miss Wilburn, and Miss Gooch. The student members are the officers of Blackfriars: Rachel Rushton, Marguerite Cousins, Sarah Fulton, Sarah

DID YOU FLUNK AN EXAM?

Examinations are now over and reports have been sent to our respective parents. Those of us who failed on some of our subjects naturally don't feel as elated as those who sent home a golden report of merits, but after all, at rock bottom the mere fact that we failed an exam doesn't amount to much. If we did our best, if we worked conscientiously and fairly, we have derived more benefit from our work than our neighbor who crammed all night, and then happened to get the questions she had studied at the last minute—and merited the course. The thing that really counts is the honest fight we put up.

Girls, if you flunked, don't mope and be discouraged and let it ruin your college year. Show everyone that you have the grit and the perseverance and the courage to win out, and to triumph during this semester over the subject that downed you during the last. You can make of your failure a real success, if you let it strengthen your determination instead of weaken it.

DEBATING SPIRIT.

Now that the subject for the inter-collegiate debate has been offered, there is much enthusiasm and excitement among the Agnes Scott debaters over the approaching preliminaries. Agnes Scott must win this year, must win the debate both here and at Randolph-Macon.

Our debaters are all right. They have enthusiasm, ability and willingness to work. All that they need is to know that the students are heart and soul back of them, pushing them on with a never failing spirit.

Debates aren't always won by the work a few girls do. Debaters must have inspiration, must be made to feel that there are people who care an awful lot about the issue, people whom they can really depend on for help and loyalty. We can't all debate and make the varsity team, but we can supply the enthusiasm that our girls need to help them to win in the end. Let's offer our services, help collect material if we can, and above all show a vital interest in the outcome. That must be our share in winning the debates for Agnes Scott.

EXCHANGES

Fifteen men of the different schools and of different activities of Emory University have founded an organization known as the "Pyramid," to develop a university spirit which will cause the school spirit to be concentrated for a bigger and broader spirit which takes in the whole university and causes all students to pull together as one.

The first public concert to be given by the Glee Club this year will be on Friday next at Druid Hills Methodist church. The same program will be given at a later date at Agnes Scott, Brenau, and Wesleyan.—Emory Wheel.

The record will appear sometime this month.—Technique.

THE Y. W.'S BEST FOR AGNES SCOTT.

'Describing Miss Conde to those who have never known her is like trying to describe the Rockies to one who has never seen a mountain! She, more than anyone else in the world today probably, understands students and student movements, and catches the student's viewpoint. She is better known in the colleges and universities of the United States than anyone else in Christian work. She is not a stranger to Agnes Scott, but has deeply influenced the lives of students in the past. The last time she was here was when the present Seniors were Freshmen, when she was in war work and gave one talk.

This time, however, she is to be here not for one lecture, but for a whole week of them, long enough for girls to get acquainted with her, and imbibe some of her wonderful spirit. She will be here from Monday, February the fourteenth, through the following week-end.

Agnes Scott is extremely fortunate in getting Miss Conde, as she is more in demand than any other speaker the Y. W. has ever had. Our local Association has been trying all this year and last to secure a visit from some nationally-known talker. Miss Conde says that Agnes Scott is

ORDER OF TRIANGLE FORMED AT AGNES SCOTT.

Charter Members Sine, Tangent And Secant.

There are triangles and triangles; equilateral and right; human and otherwise, but always there are triangles, and certainly there is nothing amazing or particularly interesting about just triangles. But when the triangle comes to be the symbol of a very new and clever club like one we have just lately heard about at A. S. C. the word takes on a new meaning. Especially when we learn that the name of this club is "The Order of the Eternal Triangle," and that it is a very exclusive organization, and that it is going to publish a paper every once-in-a-while or so—and that all persons who have ever flunked Trigonometry are eligible for membership if they're approved—well doesn't Triangle begin to be a mysterious word, a word to conjure with?

But what is this club, what is the purpose, and who's in it, and—well, the document which explains all this is the Constitution and By-laws, and for the enlightenment of the general public some choice bits of the above mentioned constitution are here given:

Whereas, we, the following students of Agnes Scott College, desire to promote the welfare of those who flunk Trig. hereby organize ourselves into a group—(but the names signed below the foregoing resolution must remain a deep dark secret for the time being. Suffice it to say that they are the names of the three charter members, the Sine, Tangent and Secant.)

Motto: They shall not pass.
 Article I. This group shall be called the Order of the Eternal Triangle.

Article II. The purpose of this organization shall be to stimulate interest in Trig. Interest shall be shown by repeating the course.

Article III. The three charter members, the Sine, Tangent, and Secant, shall choose from those girls who have flunked Trig. three girls as their co-named functions and soul-mates, to be called the cosine, co-tangent and co-secant, respectively. Invitations of membership shall be extended at the discretion of the or—the only Southern college that she has had time to visit in recent years.

She has given up her connection with the Y. W. C. A. now in order to do special work in colleges and universities. She was formerly Senior Student Secretary of the National Board of the Y. W. C. A. In this capacity she was sent on several pioneering expeditions, one into Bulgaria to make a survey, preparatory to taking the Y. W. there; and another recently into South America. She was the first to investigate these for the Y. W., and was instrumental in sending out the first secretaries.

She is the author of two charming books, "The Business of Being a Friend," and "The Human Element in the Making of a Christian." Both of these will be put on the table in the cabinet room, so that all who can may read them.

The subject of the week of talks she has promised us is Christian fundamentals; but really you don't know what that term means until you hear Miss Conde.

STUDENT VOLUNTEER CONFERENCE IN MARCH.

Agnes Scott is planning to send fifteen delegates to the Student Volunteer conference which meets at Piedmont College, Demerest, Georgia, March 4-6. There will be more than a hundred and fifty Georgia students present who have signed the Association's card. There will be as many or more who are merely interested non-volunteers. Of Agnes Scott's delegation only about seven are pledged.

We are especially interested in the fact that Miss Julia Lake Skinner, an executive board member who has been the chief inspiration of many a student volunteer and who is looked forward to as one of the best speakers on the program, is an old Agnes Scott girl. Mr. J. Foster Barnes is known to a number of Agnes Scott girls, too, who realize what it means for him to have charge of the music. He has promised a generous number of solos. There will be in addition several returned missionaries, and of course, Student Volunteer secretaries. Worthwhile talks by them are assured.

The opening night is to be given over to a great missionary pageant to be presented by Wesleyan College. Those who know say that it is truly an impressive spectacle, presenting graphically the present situation on the mission fields in general.

At every session there will be a gigantic poster display, calculated to impress indelibly upon the minds of the delegates the facts given out during the conference. These posters have been made by the Student Volunteers during the fall and winter, and have been very carefully selected. After the convention they are to be sent to all the schools in Georgia on an exhibition tour, so that even those who cannot go to Demerest can get some of the spirit of the conference.

During the whole time from Friday to Sunday there are to be denominational literature tables covered with vital, up-to-date, and reliable information. Another source of information will be the members of the Methodist, Baptist, and Presbyterian mission boards who will be present.

GOOD NEWS.

The little corner of home which the Y. W. C. A. established in the cabinet room during examinations will be there every afternoon until school is out. For an hour or two before supper there will be a merry fire in the grate. During exams there was a cozy roomful every day, and the Y. W. feels sure that there will always be a few who will like to come and read or talk.

But in addition to being a room for everybody to enjoy, the new cabinet room is a haven where committees can meet in peace. An "engaged" sign is going to be printed to be hung on the door when there is a meeting going on inside. Everybody is asked to notice before entering, and not to interrupt.

GIDDIE GOSSIP

My Dearest Aggie:

I haven't written sooner because my mind has been occupied by more serious subjects than letters, namely, French, Latin, History, English, Math., Philosophy, Greek and all the rest. Yes, they were horrible and even yet the agony is not over, for grades are just coming in and until everybody finds out what she made in everything and then finds out what everyone else made in everything, there won't be any peace for anyone!

But some lucky folks got through early last week and went home. That was too good to be true—for me anyway, for as you may have noticed I didn't come. Grace Boone and Mary Mann both took visitors home with them and from all their accounts Newnan must be a regular town and they must have had some time.

M. E. Arnold went home too. She couldn't bear to leave Margaret here alone to finish her exams, but Margaret said that was all right, because Bob's daily letter took up all her spare time to read it and she really wouldn't be lonely one bit, so M. E. went home with a clear conscience and had a grand time.

We were all so sorry that Sarah Bryan decided she loved home better than A. S. C.—not that she loved home better 'cause we all do of course, but that she loved A. S. C. less and went to Rome (Georgia y' know) to stay. Susie went with her for the week-end and added several scalps to her string.

Elma Swaney has decided that it is quite romantic to look like someone else—when you look so much like said person that an elderly(?) gentleman on the train says you look exactly like his daughter. The fact that the "elderly" gentleman is very handsome and has coal-black hair, has absolutely nothing to do with it of course.

During exams, Agnes Scott has welcomed several new girls. They're all so attractive that we are awfully glad they decided to come, even if it did take them a whole semester to make up their minds.

Flora W., one of our new girls, seems to have begun her stay here quite "auspiciously" (it's in the Dictionary, I think, Aggie) for as she stepped off of the train a man took her in charge and assured the college girls who had come to meet her that he would see her to the college, after he had taken her to lunch.

If you could have a date with a cute boy or go to the picture show with some girls, which would you do, Aggie? Date? Well, so would I, but Catherine Denny preferred the movies the other day. I think she's the eighth wonder of the world, don't you?

Ruth Laughon is feeling mighty good these days since he called her up over long distance all the way from Philadelphia and goodness only knows how long he talked. Gee, he must have a mint or a gold mine or something like that.

You know Mary Robb Finney? Well, she went over to University of Georgia the other day and I don't know what his name is, but she certainly did fall hard. And you see she finishes this year, so that makes it awfully nice.

Every Sunday now right after dinner all the Seniors have to go to "Senior coffee" (just like the faculty) and I suppose the Juniors go to "Junior tea." First thing you know the Sophs will be having "Sophomore chocolate" and the "rats" will be having "Freshman malted milk."

Last Saturday night the Alabama Glee Club came and, Aggie, they are the cutest boys you ever laid your two eyes on. The music was simply wonderful and, although Valentine Day is still about ten days off, Cupid was busy as usual and many new conquests were made. The reception afterwards was as big a success as ever and honestly you never saw so many adorable evening frocks in all your life, and flowers! Well, corsages are still in style. Martha McIntosh says carnations are her favorite and she doesn't need any card enclosed to tell her who they're from.

Well, I'll have to stop now and go see if I've got a flunk slip in my mail box. Here's hoping against fate.

Lovingly,

 3. Milk not good for drinking.

- A. Unless one sits straight, it is impossible to get the right amount of exercise.
- A few startling statements made on the Hygiene exam were:
- The mosquito is an instinct.
- Pyorrhoea is a disinfection of the gums, which is very harmful.

NEW HOASC MEMBERS TAKEN IN.

Banquet Given Landress and Newton.

The two new Hoasc members were formally initiated into that society on the night of February the second, when a banquet was given for them by the present Hoasc girls.

Charlotte Newton and Anna Marie Landress, the two new members, were elected right after Christmas, but such things as term papers and mid-term examinations were claiming so much time then that their initiation had to be deferred several weeks.

ganization to such girls as have flunked Trig. at least once. These members shall be called flunkies.

Article VII says: There shall be a publication to be published at the will of the Editorial Board, which shall consist of the Editor, Business Manager and Assistant Editor and Business Manager. The name of the publication shall be called the "Sines of the Times."

Among the By-Laws are these three which will possibly prove of general interest.

1. All Math. faculty, and students taking higher Math. shall be treated with cold and haughty disdain.

2. The new members shall be initiated as the others see fit.

3. Girls who have flunked other subjects may be invited to meetings of the Order at the will of the organization.

We hear that this organization held its first meeting Wednesday night. The Sine (Pres.) and Tangent (Secty.) entertained, and the occasion was one of the most sumptuous feasts of the season—a veritable banquet, one symbolic feature of the menu being red peppermint triangles. Other courses were sandwiches and tea, peanut butter and crackers, and Hydrax cakes. And they say that the brilliant affair was concluded by a most appropriate inaugural address by the President Sine, which ended something like this: "Eat, drink, and be merry, for tomorrow you flunk!"

And now you know almost all—with emphasis on the almost—so you who are eligible be not ashamed, but publish abroad the fact that you are, in hopes that the news may fall upon the sympathetic ears of the Sine, Tangent or Secant, and who knows, you may yet be a co-named function and a soul-mate—or at any rate 'twould be a glorious honor to be even a flunkie!

CUPID'S BOW.

"If Cupid's Bow on Valentines Can't turn your steady head Then shake the same and truly say,

"For me Romance is Dead."

A frilly crimson postage stamp said with a sticky sigh, "While I sweet words of love convey romance can never die." And this in spite of cynics, all who gloomily do deem that everything's a foolish farce and life's an empty dream. Perhaps with this deluded throng you readily agree, and think that life is void of all its zest and vim and glee. But if you think that Cupid shuns the doors of Agnes Scott, just peel your eye and you will see he's strictly on the dot. Just keep your senses all alert as you go down the hall and pass the 'phone and special pad that flutters on the wall. To think that every line inscribed stands out from all the rest to cause a thrilling flutter in some happy maiden's breast! And as you wade between the lines that wait to use the 'phone, you'll see most students' aim is not eternally to bone; that every type from fluffy blondes to dashing, tall brunettes, from social belles and butterflies to shrinking violets, hold hope eternal in their hearts, contentment in their eye. You never could bring them to think that sentiment will die.

And though romance comes every day from Autumn until Spring, there is, as some old sage has said, a time for everything. A time for hate, a time for love, and if your brain you rack to recollect this latter time, drag out the almanac. Yea, Valentine's is in our midst, such an auspicious day, we wonder why the faculty won't grant a holiday. The darts of Cupid seem to fill the very atmosphere. The flutter of his golden wings falls sweetly on the ear. And many a wound-proof maid may be the victim of his bow, for love oft comes unsought for, as many of us know. Watch out that you with all your care, O steely hearted friend, meet not this common fate in which many careers do end. But if at the decline of this most golden sunlit day your heart beats on unhurriedly in quite the same old way, and if no words of tender love have turned your steady head, then shake the same and truly say, "For me Romance is dead."

NEW BEAUTY PARLOR OPENED FOR AGNES SCOTT.

In Miss Sturges' House on S. Candler Street.

One of the most interesting and attractive of the innovations at Agnes Scott this year is the new Beauty Parlor which Miss Philo Sturges is fitting out in the basement of her house. Miss Phi lives on South Candler street, on the corner of the campus, in a most convenient location for a Beauty Parlor. It will be a great advantage to the girls not to have to go all the way to Atlanta for their shampoos and manicures, for Miss Phi offers all the conveniences of the Marinello.

Miss Sturges has obtained the services of an expert to run the establishment, and she solicits the patronage of the Agnes Scott girls. Girls can get shoe shines and all kinds of toilet articles in the new parlor, and quick service is assured.

The details will be given in the next Agonistic.

FRESHMEN ANSWERS ON HYGIENE EXAM.

Dr. Sweet is seriously considering the immediate publication of a new book on Hygiene, to be compiled from the examinations submitted by the class of '24. Some of the questions and their answers are here printed.

Q. Why is public hygiene more important than individual?

A. In public hygiene we learn just the same thing as in individual hygiene, and is therefore just as important. In public hygiene we might learn some things that might have been omitted in individual hygiene.

A. If public hygiene is not looked after and cared for then it spreads easier than individual hygiene. Teeth hygiene is important because it can spread just the same as typhoid or any other disease, but not hardly so quickly.

Q. What do we mean by catching cold?

A. In catching cold we mean that the head is stopped up as well as the nose. And forces one to breathe through the mouth instead of through the nose. And oftentimes that awful habit is formed in that way. The throat becomes irritated and causes one to cough, and very often goes on down into the lungs and causes pneumonia.

A. We catch cold through the nucleus of our skin.

Q. Why is good posture important in hygienic living, and what are three evils resulting from faulty posture?

A. Good posture is important in hygienic living because the cows eat the food that grows in the pasture and if it is not good, it causes the

BASKET-BALL SEASON BEGINS.

Seniors and Sophs Victors at First Game.

To see everybody flocking to the gym Wednesday night, one might have supposed that a party was in progress. But it was not a social activity, but an athletic one, for the first basket-ball game of 1921 was played. The Sophomores beat the Freshmen 30-23, and the Seniors beat the Juniors 27-17. The line-ups were as follows:

Sophomore-Freshman.

Sophomores.	Freshmen.
McClain, c.	Meade, c.
Hoke, s. c.	A. Thomas, s. c.
Pou, g.	D. F. Smith, g.
Moriarty, g.	Oliver & McAlpin, g.
McClure, f.	Peck, f.
Hay, f.	Evans, Spruell, McDowell, f.

Senior-Junior.

Senior.	Junior.
Brewer, c.	Stevens, Virden, c.
Johnson, Agee, s. c.	Murchson, c.
McAllister, g.	Malone, Stevens, g.
Floding, Johnston, g.	Love, g.
Wayt, f.	Ware, f.
McLaughlin, f.	Harper, f.

At the end of the first half the score stood Freshman 17, Sophomore 10; Senior 23, Junior 6. By their excellent team work the Sophomores raised their score to 33. In particular, Eugenia Pou's guarding was extraordinary, and most of the Freshman goals were made by Weenona Peck. The Seniors played very well together and were 23-6 at the end of the first half.

There will be several other basket-ball games soon.

BLACKFRIARS TRYOUTS FEBRUARY 14.

Till, Mary Knight, and Helen Hall. Unanimous acceptance of the entire committee is necessary for admission.

The Blackfriars will have their annual banquet, which was postponed from before Christmas until early March, probably at East Lake Country Club, after the new members have been taken in. The past has proved these to be always gala occasions, and the prospect of participating in the grand affair this year should be an added incentive to those girls who hope to "make" Blackfriars.

Already, one earnest aspirant has selected the role in which she is to appear before her first critical audience, and has begun work on it. Wisely evading the inevitable protests of friend room-mate, she picks her most advantageous moments and steals stealthily out on to a secluded corner of the roof where she is free to raise her arms heavenward and protest in well modulated, yet tragic tones, against the ill fate of unrequited love. This is proof positive that genius is burning in our midst, and with such encouragement, Blackfriars are looking forward to a number of valuable additions to their membership in the course of the next few weeks.

CLASS OFFICERS ELECTED.

The new semester is well under way by this time. We have all forgotten, or are endeavoring to forget, flunk slips, and are working together to make the last semester of 1920-21 a most successful one.

Class officers have been elected and under their leadership, it looks as if we will attain our goal. The officers are:

Senior.

President—Aimee D. Glover.
Vice-President—Mary Louise Green.
Secretary and Treasurer — Eula Russell.

Junior.

President—Cama Burgess.
Vice-President—Ruth Virden.
Secretary and Treasurer — Julia Jameson.

Sophomore.

President—Beth McClure.
Vice-President—Caroline Farquar.
Secretary and Treasurer—Quenelle Harrold.

Freshmen.

President—Victoria Howie.
Vice-President—Wenona Peck.
Secretary and Treasurer—Cornelia Archer.

In addition to their regular class officers, the Freshmen have just elected their two members to serve on the executive committee the remainder of the year. They are "Dick" Scandrett and Lillian McAlpine.

Would a female spook be a spuchess?
And if a male goose is a gander,
Then would a male moose be a mander?"

Would the plural of wild be wildren?
If a number of cows are cattle,
Would a number of bows be battle?"

If a man who makes plays is a playwright?
Would a man who makes hay be a haywright?
If a person who fails is a failure,
Would a person who quails be a quailure?"

If the apple you bite is bitten,
Would the battle you fight be fitten?
And if a young cat is a kitten,
Then would a young rat be a ritten?"

If a person who spends is a spend-thrift,
Would a person who lends be a lend-thrift?
If drinking too much makes a drunkard,
Would thinking too much make a thunkard?"

But why pile on the confusion?
Still I'd like to ask in conclusion,
If a chap from New York's a New Yorker,
Would a fellow from Cork be a Gorker?"

A. S. C. Attends Meeting Of National League Of Women Voters

BRANCH TO BE ORGANIZED HERE.

On Wednesday evening, February 9, at Wesley Memorial Church, Agnes Scott had the pleasure of attending a session of the convention then being held by the National League of Women's Voters.

Miss Eleanor Raoul, chairman of the Atlanta League, came to the college last week, made a short talk in chapel, and offered to reserve seats for as many Agnes Scott girls as cared to attend Wednesday's meeting. The Sociology classes were especially interested in going.

In her address to us that morning, Miss Raoul briefly stated the purposes of the League. They hold that since woman has now gained the vote, and since her help is greatly needed for good government, she should feel the responsibilities of citizenship and be taught how to bear its burdens efficiently. Education of women for their citizenship duties is the aim of the League.

The Wednesday evening session opened at eight o'clock with Mrs. Pattie Ruffner Jacobs, treasurer of the National League of Women Voters, presiding. The first speaker was Miss Catherine Waugh McCulloch, whose subject was "The Unification of Laws." Miss McCulloch is one of the most distinguished women of America and proved especially interesting to Agnes Scott since she is a personal friend of Mrs. Fitz-Hugh, of our faculty.

The second speaker was Miss Mary McDowell of Chicago, whose topic was "Government and the Garbage Question." Miss McDowell is chairman of the committee on Women in Industry, and she has perhaps done more than any woman to better the garbage conditions in Chicago.

The third speaker of the evening was Mrs. Maud Wood Park, of Washington. Mrs. Park is chairman of the National League of Women Voters. Her subject was "Co-ordination of Work of Women Voters and Other Women's Organizations."

After hearing the lecture, Agnes Scott will be interested in knowing that Miss Raoul has asked permission to come out and organize a branch chapter of the Atlanta League, of which we can all be members. Miss Raoul will probably be with us next week for this purpose.

SIGNS OF SPRING ON THE CAMPUS.

Spring is here at last. At least it is safe on the way with no danger that the train will break down, and little possibility that it will be late. The signs of the weather are infallible; the onlooker sees too many to be mistaken.

New spring hats are always irrevocable proof. Quite a good many are seen in the crowds turning churchward, or Atlanta-ward, or date-ward. Beautiful, stiffly starched, white middy suits, the decided reappearance of cheerful-looking gingham, the absence of coats and wraps, except perhaps springy white sweaters—these all point to one delightful conclusion.

As nature herself could not afford to appear behind the times, a hike in her woods or just a wide-awake view of things around the campus will show the presence of numerous twittering birds and budding spring-time flowers. But even more emphatic still have been the almost incessant April showers! The touch of rather unusual heat is another undeniable witness of the new season.

But Agnes Scott girls have their own ways of keeping up with the times, in this case approaching spring vacation. That tired uninterested look in recitations, that dreamy glancing out of the windows into out-of-doors' freedom, that careless whiling away of hours with story books of Cinderella and Sir Knight, are an unerring sign of returning spring and much-looked-for holidays.

Agnes Scott Suggests Change In Inter-Col- legiate Question

NOW AWAITING APPROVAL OF THE OTHER COLLEGES.

At last the question for the inter-collegiate debates has been passed on by Agnes Scott. Randolph-Macon sent in a suggestion for the question, as it was her privilege to do so.

The question as submitted was considered rather vague and ill defined, so the Agnes Scott Debating Council has taken the privilege of revising it and sending it back to Randolph-Macon. This suggested change must be approved by both Randolph-Macon and Sophie Newcomb before it is final.

The question with its suggested change stands thus:

Resolved: That in every railroad controversy threatening the public convenience, the Railroad Board, as constituted in the Transportation Act of 1920, be required to make an investigation of the case and render a decision binding on all parties to the dispute.

Of course, it is understood that this question may not stand in this way. It is only a suggestion and may not be changed from the original. However, work upon this question as defined by the Debating Council will be begun by the ten members chosen by the Council.

Although this is a new question and different from any ever given, it is extremely clear and easy to define, and promises to make an interesting debate.

FACULTY PLAY TO BE PRE- SENTED.

Date About Feb. 26.

We are soon going to have the opportunity of again seeing a faculty play. What the production will be has not been fully decided, but it's sure to prove interesting and entertaining. The date for the presentation of the play is also uncertain, but it is now thought that it will be about the 26th.

All the girls who have ever seen the plays in which the faculty took part know that a faculty play is one of the never-to-be-forgotten occasions of the year, and all the girls who haven't seen one will know this when the anticipated play comes off.

The faculty are always sure of a large and appreciative audience at any of their presentations, and this year will prove no exception to the rule. This will be especially true if the cast contains the names of certain faculty stars who have already made their name at Agnes Scott, among them Mr. Stukes and Miss Torrence, Dr. Armistead and Miss Alexander. The year would not be complete without a play by the professors, and we anticipate the twenty-sixth with a great deal of pleasure.

DR. GAINES AND DR. McCAIN RETURN FROM NEW YORK.

Report Satisfactory and Pleas- ant Trip.

Dr. Gaines and Dr. McCain have recently returned from a trip to New York where they went to make arrangements for next year. They left Feb. 1 and returned last Thursday after having completed all arrangements for next session. The trip is an annual one for Dr. Gaines, as he makes it about this time every year for many purposes concerning the college, such as supplying vacancies in the faculty, and transacting business with the National Board of Education, which has recently made liberal offers toward our Endowment Fund.

Dr. McCain accompanied Dr. Gaines in the interest of the endowment campaign which we hope soon to close satisfactorily.

WANTING IS—WHAT?

Wanting is—what?
Summer redundant,
Blueness abundant—
Where is the blot?
Beamy the world, yet a blank all the same—Frame work which waits for a picture to frame:
What of the leafage, what of the flower?
Roses embowering with naught
they embower!
Come then, complete incomple-
tion, comer,
Pant through the blueness, perfect the summer!
Breathe but one breath,
Rose-beauty above,
And all that was death
Shows life, grows love,
Grows love!

Mrs. McCulloch Speaks At A. S. C.

Talks on Woman's Place in Politics.

Agnes Scott has been especially fortunate this year in hearing many gifted speakers. One of the most prominent of these was Mrs. Catherine Waugh McCulloch, who addressed the student body at the chapel hour on Thursday morning with an interesting lecture.

The theme of this lecture was primarily concerning woman's place in politics. The subject is a vital one, and should be of especial interest to those students of Agnes Scott who have the privilege of exercising the ballot, small though that number may be. Mrs. McCulloch is well versed in the subject, and is a person well fitted to deal with it. She is a staunch advocate of woman suffrage, and has held many important offices in connection with it.

Mrs. McCulloch is a graduate of Rockford College, Illinois, and it is interesting to note that she was a classmate of the famous Jane Adams. She is a lawyer of national repute, and has figured largely in public affairs. She is one of the few women who have been admitted to the bar of the Supreme Court. Agnes Scott considers itself both honored and fortunate in having been permitted the privilege of hearing Mrs. McCulloch, and getting the benefit of her broad views on the vital question of woman suffrage.

BLACKFRIARS TO PRESENT TWO PLAYS FEB. 21.

One of the best of the many treats which February promises to bring to Agnes Scott is the presentation by Blackfriars of two plays. These are entitled, "Our Aunt from California" and "Everybody's Husband," and are to be given on the night of February 21. The casts for the plays have already been selected and rehearsing has begun under the supervision of Miss Frances Gooch, teacher.

"Our Aunt from California," the first of the two, is a farce comedy by M. D. Barnum. The plot is a very amusing one. Three girls are expecting a visit from their wealthy aunt whom they have never seen. The object of the aunt's visit is to choose one of her nieces as a companion for a journey abroad. Each of the girls directs all her energies toward charming the wealthy lady and each thinks that she will be chosen. The aunt arrives, looks the girls over, and ———. The Blackfriars will tell you the aunt's choice. In the cast for this play are Mary Knight, Jeanette Archer, Ruth Pirkle, Polly Stone, Marion Cawthon and Beth McLure.

"Everybody's Husband" is a fantasy which deals with the modern conception of marriage. In it the girl dreams of what marriage has been to the woman in the Nineteenth Century and of what it may mean to her in the Twentieth Century. One of the charming features will be the appearance of the heroine in bridal attire. Frances

Chorus From Agnes Scott Sings At Kiwanis Club

BANQUET HELD AT PEA- COCK'S.

A special chorus picked from the Agnes Scott Glee Club sang at the banquet of the Kiwanis Club last Tuesday, Feb. 8. The chorus was composed of Lucile Smith, Charlotte Keesler, Lilian McAlpine (sopranos); Romola Davis, Elizabeth Lockhart, Sara Matthews (second sopranos); Caroline Moody, Nell Eslinger and Margaret McLaughlin (altos).

The chorus rode gaily to town in three big cars, driven by members of the Kiwanis Club. The banquet was in progress on the third floor of the Peacock's cafe when they arrived. The end of a long table, simply groaning with good things to eat, was reserved for them, and the girls enjoyed every minute of it. The Kiwanians filled at least six long tables, extending the whole length of the room.

Presently the president of the club arose and rapped loudly with his gavel. A little business took place, then the chorus sang one or two selections, beginning with "Kiwanis, Kiwanis, we greet you with our song," which seemed to please them greatly. Again business was in order, and two or three members made some very humorous speeches. Interspersed with this were various selections by the chorus or the string quartet. Mr. Johnston stood behind and directed and Mrs. Johnson's accompaniments were lovely, as usual, so everything went off smoothly.

Three big pots of flowers, with dozens of cut roses, suddenly appeared on our table during the program, and afterwards the men begged us to "just help ourselves." That's why the chorus startled a few loiterers at A. S. C. Tuesday afternoon by motoring home in state, laden with their "spoils," lovely pink and white roses.

Then, hark ye, all ye maidens who love flowers. Hasten to develop a "voice," and ye shall also ride to town, and have flowers given to you, too.

K. U. B. RAISES MONEY FOR DR. MORTON.

Donations Solicited.

As none of the other organizations on the campus seemed able to do so, the K. U. B. has undertaken to take care of the money which is being raised for Dr. Rosalie Morton's Serbian Student Fund.

To start the ball of charity rolling, K. U. B. sacrificed its engraved stationery and subscription to a magazine on journalism to give the money, in amount twenty-five dollars ($25), to Dr. Morton. No appeal was made to the other organizations for aid, but it is expected that the Y. W. C. A. will wish to join K. U. B. in its donation. Several contributions from both faculty and students, have been received and more are expected.

Anyone wishing to send money to Dr. Morton is requested to see Eleanor Hyde as soon as possible.

Markley, Sarah Fulton, Charlotte Keesler, Frances Oliver and Eleanor Hyde will have ample opportunity to show their dramatic ability in this fantasy.

As an added inducement for a large attendance Miss Gooch has announced that a real man will play a leading part in "Everybody's Husband." Who this is to be is a secret which will be disclosed only on the night of the performance. The suspicious glances which are already being thrown on every man who comes on the campus prove that a lively interest is being shown in the matter.

All the productions which the Blackfriars offer are good, but these two promise to be especially attractive and will afford a fitting beginning for the holiday on the twenty-second. Everybody should plan to go to the chapel at eight o'clock and settle down for a few hours' enjoyment.

A. S. C. Establishes Branch Of International Relations Club

ANNUAL CONFERENCE OF ALL BRANCHES HELD.

It will be of interest to Agnes Scott to learn of a new organization that has been formed here—the International Relations Club. The object is to be the scientific study (in a thorough, non-partisan spirit and devoid of any propagandist aim) of the current international problems that confront us. The interest in the foreign problems of the United States is already waning throughout the country. This situation will continue since it is almost inevitable that in a great democracy like ours only a comparatively small minority of the people will be deeply interested in international affairs. It would seem natural that the colleges and universities of the country should provide the necessary instruction, and so these clubs have been organized all over the country under the supervision of the Institute of International Education.

The local clubs are to be under the supervision of a member of the faculty of the college who will be responsible for guiding the reading and discussion of the members. Miss Hearon is the supervisor of the club here, which is made up of the members of History 9 class. It is required that the club have certain officers and the following have been elected: President, Roberta Love; vice-president, Dorothy Allen; secretary and treasurer, Sarah Harrison.

The Institute provides the club in each college with the syllabi, bibliographies, books, magazines and literature generally for the study of the problems. Already quite a number of books have been received and are to be placed in the Library. They are all concerning questions about which we should be interested.

The club will be visited from time to time by distinguished foreigners or American professors who are authorities in the field of international relations and who will address the members of the club and the student body upon their special subject. A letter has just been received in which we are promised two speakers. Bishop Nicholai, of the Greek Orthodox Church, is to speak on Serbia, March 3, and Professor William Kimball, of Smith College, will be here March 30 to discuss with us the Mexican situation. There will be held an annual conference of representatives of the various clubs to consider in the light of the year's experience ways and means of increasing the efficacy of the work.

A deep interest has been aroused among the students, and a great many colleges all over the country have joined. Among the institutions that are members are:

Amherst College, Amherst, Mass.
Allegheny College, Meadville, Pa.
Barnard College, New York City.
Davidson College, Davidson, N. C.
Drake University, Des Moines, Iowa.
Monmouth College, Monmouth, Ill.
Mount Holyoke College, South Holyoke, Mass.

EDITORIALLY SPEAKING

CLEANER CAMPUS CAMPAIGN.

The campus here at Agnes Scott belongs to each of us, and we are responsible for its appearance. When visitors come to see the college it is often quite embarrassing to have them see orange peelings, papers and even tin cans that the girls have carelessly thrown from their windows, scattered around on the grounds. It reflects discredit on us as individuals as well as the college, and yet we do clutter up the campus so thoughtlessly.

It's very easy to throw a piece of scratch paper out of the window instead of walking across the room to put it in the waste basket, and you may think that such a little bit couldn't possibly hurt anything. But when you multiply that piece of paper by four hundred, and then realize that there are about two hundred and seventy days in which girls can clutter up the campus, you can understand why the grounds under the dormitory windows sometimes look like a back alley.

If every girl would take it as her personal responsibility to think about beautifying our college instead of impairing its beauty, the problem would be solved. As college women, we should be sufficiently old and thoughtful to consider that we have that responsibility. Let's start a campaign for a cleaner campus—and let's start it today.

OBSERVE TELEPHONE RATES.

The telephones at Agnes Scott belong to the students as a whole, and in order for them to derive the most benefit from them, it has been found necessary to make certain rules and regulations. The girls evidently forget these rules, for complaint after complaint has been made because of their non-observance.

In the first place, girls are not supposed to use the students' phone in main building for more than three consecutive minutes if someone is waiting on it. This rule has been published and announced, and yet it is repeatedly broken. Each student realizes the inconvenience that she is put to when she is waiting on the phone, but if she happens to be using it, she often forgets the girl who is waiting her turn. Let's try to put ourselves in the other fellow's place, and be as considerate of them as you want them to be of you. When a girl stays in the booth more than three minutes, it is a direct violation of the student government rules, and should be punished by a knock.

Another way that girls have been violating the telephone rules is in not awaiting their turn to use the phone. If you come down late, it is only right that those who have been waiting should use the phone before you do, and it is not only a breach of rules for you to take somebody's place, but a decided breach of etiquette.

These telephone regulations may seem of little consequence, but they are necessary, and the principle which underlies them is as important as any of the student government rules we have.

In upholding or breaking these rules, we show the light in which we regard our entire self-government association, and we also show whether we are willing to think of the convenience of others or not. Let's realize that it is important to observe telephone rules, and let's not talk over our allotted time.

HABITS.

It is just as easy to form good habits as it is to form bad ones. Right now, while we are in college, we are passing through a very telling period of our life, when the habits which we form may get a good hold upon us. Before we let ourselves get used to doing things the wrong way, it would be well to try to get into the habit of doing things right. Here are a few things we ought to practice on until they become habitual:

1. Promptness.—Get to chapel and to lectures on time. Don't always be the last one to straggle into dinner, or into church. Be on time for engagements in town.
2. Friendliness.—Speak to everybody you meet. You'll feel all the better for a cheery "Hello" and a smile.
3. Interest in College Life.—Don't become so wrapped up in your work

Y. W. C. A. NEWS

Y. W. C. A. LIBRARY.

What book did you enjoy most during the holidays? Can you give it to the Y. W. C. A.'s new library?

Cabinet, deciding that Y. W. cannot have a reading room without books, wants to fill the book shelves in the new committee room. But the Y. W. must offer good reading only, hence the books most desired are those which some have read and liked. Probably a great many other girls would like your favorite book. Can you write home for it, or buy it in town, and give it to the new library? Think of a library where, instead of taking required notes, you sit and toast your toes by a grate fire, and, curled up in a big chair, read a good new book.

If you have a book to contribute, give it to Janef Preston or to Mary McLelland.

GIRL RESERVES.

Our Y. W. C. A. has no direct connection with the Y. W. in Atlanta, but many of the student body are unofficially connected with it, and it keeps us conscious of the breadth of Y. W. work to think every once in a while of what they are doing.

Last fall Miss Brace, Girls' Work Secretary of the Atlanta Y. W. C. A., came out here and gave everyone a chance to be advisor for a club of Girl Reserves. Those who took clubs have been repaid in good times and in wider interests.

Last Friday night the Y. W. gave a mother-and-daughter banquet which a number of Agnes Scott girls attended with their clubs. The delicious supper was followed by an entertaining program of stunts which smacked loudly of Agnes Scott gym parties.

Work with grade school girls and high school freshmen is beyond question interesting, because every week you see yourself as you were two or three years ago. But aside from the present enjoyment—which is not unmixed with drudgery—there is the valuable experience in dealing with people. It will be a help to you if you ever teach, or if you are looking forward to Y. W. C. A. or welfare work in the summer or after you get out of school. If you can plan some Girl Reserve work with your course next year, you will not regret it.

QUIET IN CHAPEL.

Shoo-oo-oo! When Miss Agnes goes to Y. W. meeting on Sunday evening, she is reverent and quiet; and yet when she goes to chapel in the very same place, she is gaily talkative, and carries her worldly interests right in with her. Of course, the Y. W. realizes that chapel comes at a busy time, that it is a very brief interruption to a morning of classes. But just in so far as we forget classes and think the thoughts of Him who knows all things, will chapel do us the good and give us the strength it is intended to. He says, "Be still, and know that I am God."

DO YOU GO?

Some girls go to Evening Watch, but just about the same group goes every time. After all it is largely a matter of habit whether you go or not. But there are many girls who never have been, and consequently don't know at all what Evening Watch is. All of these should go at least once, or they will miss one of the experiences of an Agnes Scott girl. Evening Watch is the most informal of all the services held here. It is a time when girls get together and see the really serious side of each other's natures. You can admire almost any girl a little when you know her best. If you haven't come yet, you can't claim the excuse that you hate to stay dressed until lights are out; just put on your kimona, and bring someone with you next Friday night when the whistle blows.

ALUMNAE VISITORS

Among the alumnae visitors at Agnes Scott recently have been Clara Cole and Eugenia Pou. Sarah Davis spent a few days with us not long ago, and Ruth Crowell was at the college during the greater part of last week.

Margaret Bland and Lois McIntyre run out real often to pay the college a short visit, and everyone is always mighty glad to see them.

Marion Park was back not long ago, and stayed a week with Pearl Lowe Hamner.

It's always mighty good to see the alumnae, and we hope they'll come often.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT

Juniors and Seniors may go to town on Sunday for other purposes than church, at their discretion. They are reminded not to take advantage of this privilege and forget the sacredness of the day.

Girls are not allowed to study in the room of a Fellow after lights. Fellows are not considered as faculty.

Students are asked to observe quiet rules more carefully.

The rule allowing girls to come in with their dates as late as 6:20 has been repealed. Time limit must be observed with date as well as alone.

Time limit is six o'clock.

BIOLOGY DEPARTMENT TO PRESENT JULIUS CAESAR.

On Saturday evening, February 19, the Biology Department will present a play for the benefit of the Biology Museum. The play is our well-known Julius Caesar and will be interpreted by our talented actresses, Miss Curry, Miss Wilburn, Miss Rothermel, Frances Charlotte Markley, Margaret McLaughlin, Rachel Rushton, Marion Cawthon and Fannie McCaa. A small admission will be charged, and a large audience is greatly desired.

BLACKFRIAR TRYOUTS POSTPONED.

To Be Held February 28.

The Blackfriar tryouts have been postponed until February 28 in order to give everyone an opportunity to do her best. They will be held in the chapel, and selections for tryouts have been posted on the Students Bulletin Board in Main Building.

The rules for applicants are as follows:

- I. Any applicant may be coached by members of the Blackfriar Executive Committee.
- II. The posted list of Shakespearean selections may be supplemented by any selection, chosen by the applicant and approved by the coach or some member of the Executive Committee.

III. Each applicant must reserve a time for tryout, by signing on the Bulletin Board. Also, each group must file with the secretary before 5 o'clock, on February 28th the name of its selection and the characters in the selection.

"What is a mountain pass, Johnny?" asked the teacher.

"Well, it's a pass the railroad gives folks so they can go to the mountains," responded the railroad man's son.

B. O. Z. TRYOUTS.

Due Monday, February 21.

On Monday, February 31, all tryouts for B. O. Z. must be handed in to Frances Charlotte Markley or to Althea Stevens. The manuscripts must be typewritten, and the name must be attached in a sealed, closed envelope.

Girls can get more help, fun, practice and inspiration from B. O. Z. than from almost any other organization on the campus, and every advanced student who can write is urged to try out.

GIDDIE GOSSIP

My Dearest Aggie:

Business is dull around here; everybody's sleepy, and it has been raining—it is raining, and from all appearances it will continue to rain indefinitely. We feel "kinder" let down after the excitement of having a "full dress-suited" glee club here with all the thrill of the reception and dates afterwards. You know I told you the Alabama Glee Club came last Saturday night; well, so did Selma's "true love," and from all appearances they were mighty glad to see each other. That old saying, absence makes the heart grow fonder, may be true, but Jimmy doesn't take any stock in it for nearly every night he comes out to see if Nelle Frances looks the same as she did the night before. Yes, he has a mustache now, but Nelle Frances does not like it, so I don't suppose he will have it any more.

Annie E. received a thrill when she received through the mail a picture of "Him" with the loving inscription, "With love, Jimmy." (Oh, he's a different Jimmy.) Marguerite said, well, she had plenty of pictures, but a big box of pink roses was different. You know, that girl gets flowers all the time. I'm going to ask her if he has a brother who isn't spoken for.

Guess what Margaret C. got the other day? A telegram! And a little friend of mine happened to see what he said: "Received your special; glad to get it. Bob." Now, Aggie, I ask you, did you ever hear of anyone getting a telegram to let one know that he had received a special? I never heard of such attention before in all my life. Ain't life and telegrams and—love grand?

Alice Carr's father came Sunday and made his daughter happy for the day. Of course, Alice hated to see him leave so soon, but it is "better to have come and gone than never to have come at all."

Now, Brooks and Jeanette wanted to see how other colleges do the trick, so they spent last week-end at Shorter. Said they had a grand time, but Agnes for them every time!

Lucy and Margaret are certainly the lucky dogs! They went to town the other afternoon with two darling Emory boys. Two K. A.'s, gee! Don't you know they were thrilled to death! I would be, wouldn't you, Aggie? But I'm afraid they never would take me but once.

Did you hear about Billy H.? Well, he was one of the cutest men on the A. Glee Club and more girls fell for him—flat, too, at first sight. Um-huh! Dorothy sighed rapturously whenever he gazed her way and was stricken speechless (an unusual happening) after he had concluded his second encore.

The little new cabinet room was the most attractive thing you ever saw the other night when the Social committee had their party for the new girls. They toasted marshmallows over an open fire and E. Hyde played college tunes on her guitar. Hot chocolate and sandwiches were served and all the new girls seemed to be enjoying "their" party to the fullest.

I wish I could tell you what happened to Gertrude S. the other day. It's "sorter" mysterious—something about getting behind a screen in her room and hollering "come in" and—well, she wouldn't tell me the rest, and you know me, I'm simply dying of curiosity now!

Well, I must stop now and make my costume for the Irregular Valentine masquerade ball. Wish you were going to be here.

As ever,

GIDDIE.

in the singing heretofore, because we didn't know the words. Now that we have our song books there's no excuse for our not taking part. If we come to the sing every Tuesday night we will have more college spirit and enthusiasm, and as one of the songs says, our little brains won't go back on us. Let's all come out next time and fill it full of pep!

ENDOWMENT CAMPAIGN NEARS END.

Subscriptions Due.

It has been found necessary to remind ourselves to pay our pledge for the endowment fund, and at the same time explain to those who do not know the importance of getting the money in as soon as possible.

Mere subscriptions, although they have their value, bring no direct profit to Agnes Scott, for no money is actually given Agnes Scott by the Educational Board unless we can collect the pledged amount.

If we collect the money from the subscribers the money from the board comes directly to us and can be invested immediately, whereas if we are slow in getting the money we are retarding the income from the board.

Owing to financial conditions of the country, the money is coming in very slowly, but Dr. McCain and Mr. Lockhart are working steadily and with certain success and are trying to end the campaign within a month or two.

If we have been thoughtless before let us remember that on us depends a little part of the success, and let us help end the campaign with success as soon as possible.

APPLIED ANATOMY.

Where can a man buy a cap for his knee?

Or a key for a lock of his hair? Or can his eyes be an academy Because there are pupils there?

In the crown of his head, what gems are found?

Who travels on the bridge of his nose?

Does the calf of his leg become hungry at times

And devour the corns on his toes? Can the crook of his elbow be sent to jail?

Where's the shade from the palm of his hand?

How does he sharpen his shoulder blades?

I'll be hanged if I understand!

MNEMOSYNEANS HOLD MOCK DEBATE.

"Is Love at First Sight True Love?"

"Is love at first sight true love?" What are your sentiments on the subject?

If you have none you should have been present at the Mnemosynean debate last Saturday night. The affirmative was ably upheld by Miss Eula Russell and Miss Mary Louise Green, while the negative enthusiasts were Miss Eleanor Hyde and Miss Frances Harper.

The arguments were most convincing, especially those given by Miss Green, who, sacrificing her own personal feelings to the cause, exposed the deepest feelings of her innermost heart convincing most of us absolutely and without reserve that love at first sight is the only true love.

But upholding the negative was an equally strong argument to the contrary, and Miss Eleanor Hyde, fittingly gowned for the occasion, assured us that only after one has known the other party for many months, or better for many years, could one rightly judge of her sentiments.

Miss Russell and Miss Harper also gave us many strong points upholding their respective views and only after a long and heated argument was the decision rendered in favor of the negative by a majority of one vote.

So, fair damsels, if you do not make the impression you might wish on first acquaintance, take heart, for only after many meetings may you hope to become kindred souls.

IRREGULAR CLASS ENTERTAIN SATURDAY NIGHT.

Masked Ball Huge Success.

The valentine masked ball given in the gymnasium by the Irregular class was pronounced a wonderful success by every one. The costumes were lovely, and in the half light, the different colors in the dance made a beautiful scene.

An orchestra had been engaged from town, and the girls enjoyed the good music very much. The floor was crowded with couples. Early in the evening, favors were distributed, the girls who led getting little arrows, while those who followed were given cupid. During the evening different solo dances were given for the enjoyment of the guests.

The decorations were beautiful, red hearts being strung around, and the entire hall looking very "valentiney" and inviting. One of the most attractive features of the evening was the little cupid that ran around among the guests, much to the delight of everyone. A prize was given to the girl who had on the most attractive costume, the successful one being Ruth Price.

Lovely refreshments were served at a late hour, and soon afterwards the orchestra played "Home, Sweet Home." The girls told their hostesses good-night and thanked them for a very lovely time.

The party was a great success, and the Irregular class made lovely hostesses.

TEDDY TEA-HOUND.

Mr. Tea Hound is back on his old job again after an extended tour over Georgia and Alabama, where he has been assisting Mr. Non de Script in his interesting lectures to struggling young authors. Mr. Tea Hound will be only too glad to answer any questions which are put in Box 21 before noon on any Wednesday.

Dear Jennie:
No, I don't believe I would accept the frat pin if you had heard the young man in question say you'd never get his to wear, or anyway I wouldn't "accept" it until he asked me to. Best luck in bringing him to your viewpoint!
TEDDY TEA HOUND.

Dear Mabel:
There would be no harm in enjoying a friendly glass of coca-cola with the young man after the movies. He's from Emory, you said, didn't you?
As ever,
TEDDY TEA HOUND.

NEW SONG BOOKS OUT.

Contain Many New Songs.

Our last sing had more pep than any we've had this year. It's because our new song books that we've been looking forward to so long, have come. They are very attractive, have a purple cover, and in them are many clever songs—old and new.

The book is dedicated "To Althea who plays and everybody who sings." We found some lovely surprises when we examined it further for there were many original songs that we had never heard before, as well as our old favorites.

Althea wrote the words for one and composed the music for it, too. This song made a big hit. The one to the tune of "Alice Blue Gown" was also quite popular. There are numerous others, including "Yawnin' in the Mawnin'," which we all love and understand so well; "What's the Use?" "Hot-tentot," etc. Of course, our Alma Mater is on the front page, followed by "Purple and White."

FRESHMEN BEAT IRREGULARS 35-23.

Last Friday night the Freshmen beat the Irregulars 35-23, in the basketball game. Both teams played very well indeed, and there was a lot of pep in the rooting, as well as in the playing. The line-up was as follows:

EVERYBODY TRY OUT FOR MAY DAY.

Work Started on Music and Dances.

We don't realize how near spring is until we know that plans for May Day celebration are under foot. Our Agnes Scott May Day crowns the spring for us; not one of us old girls that doesn't love it and not one of the Freshmen that won't love it after seeing and taking part in it first.

On that day Agnes Scott is before the public eye in a charming way. People flock from Atlanta and Decatur and through our beautiful green campus, delighting in the appropriate celebration which our clever girls present.

Miss Wade, in spite of the hard work it means for both Miss Wilburn and herself, is quite anxious for practices to begin; and she says that May Day this year is going to be "perfectly marvelous." Rachel Rushton wrote the scenario. Mr. Dieckmann is working now on the music for the subject, and maybe you've heard Mrs. Dieckmann going about the campus saying to herself, "Theme for Pandora!"

Try-outs for the cast will be held on the fifteenth of March. Long or lean, short or fat, blond or brunette, be sure to try out. Very many girls are needed and it is everybody's absolute duty to try out. You may have an undiscovered genius for toe dancing or beautiful posing and could thus be valuable for the cast. Whether you can dance aesthetically or not, let the May Day committee decide after you have proven your interest by trying out.

WHY A B.A. DEGREE IS BENEFICIAL.

The following article is a defense on the part of a Sophomore at Agnes Scott of the present system of education in the modern colleges. It was occasioned by an article, "A Crack At College," written by F. J. Haskinn, and as a defense of our educational system at Agnes Scott it is well worth reading:

WHY I AM AN APPLICANT FOR A B.A. DEGREE.

I have just read and re-read the article by Mr. Frederic J. Haskinn entitled "A Crack at College," which appeared in the Journal on January 6th or 7th. It is an unjust accusation of the candidate for an A.B. degree which rightly incurs the indignation of any real student who reads it. I cannot but believe, judging by the ideas expressed in this article, that Mr. Haskinn is not familiar with the state of affairs that really exists in a modern liberal arts institution of the highest standard.

Mr. Haskinn belongs, quite evidently, to that group of people who believe that special training ought to Emory is to organize a swimming team and thus hopes to add another inter-collegiate sport to her list. She also has prospects of having a Phi Beta Kappa Chapter soon. A new Wesley Memorial Hospital plant is being erected just off the campus at a cost of $2,000,000, and this marks a decided turning point in the history of Emory University and especially of the Medical School.—Emory Wheel.

The 1920 volume of "Poets of the Future" edited from poems appearing in the college literary magazines during the past year, contains seven poems by Mt. Holyoke students. be sought by the college generation of today rather than the broad, general culture of a liberal arts education. He takes the position that a liberal education, because it requires "A little Latin, a little Mathematics," etc., from all students who are candidates for an A.B. degree, molds us all according to the same pattern and destroys any individuality or originality which might belong to the different students. On the other hand, worth-while originality is always eagerly sought, accepted, and given credit for. In requiring "a little" of a number of subjects, the institution seeks to give its students a firm foundation of general knowledge and culture which will prove an unending and illimitable blessing to them in their later work of specialization. I agree heartily that everyone of us should be fitted to do some definite thing well and efficiently, but to succeed in this attempt we need all the information we can derive from any of the other branches of learning. There is no danger that what we learn from the "variety of subjects" studied in college will prove a drawback to that special line of work in which we find ourselves most interested. As for originality, a broad field of knowledge accentuates and develops it—certainly it does not impede or destroy that which is in us that savors of individuality.

Mr. Haskinn further claims that the college course nowadays is too easy; that it does not require enough work on the part of the student. He makes so bold as to say that "any one not a moron can get a degree from any American university." The dullest student, he claims, can absorb the contents of the course in the time allotted to its study, and the "bright boy postpones his acquaintance with them until the night before the examinations, then makes a hasty digest in about three hours and passes with ease." This is either a very great slam or a very great compliment heaped on the shoulders of the majority of college students of today. In either case, however, it is not merited. The student who achieves a degree from any liberal arts institution of recognized standing, deserves it and need not be called stupid because it took him nine months to complete a certain course. And as for the boy who waits till examinations to acquaint himself with the contents of his textbooks, he finds himself, in most cases, sadly left behind the happy throng who succeeded. He most likely passed by the skin of his teeth or was rewarded by a "funk-slip." Our courses are not what Mr. Haskinn evidently thinks they are. I would refer him to a more detailed and honest investigation along this line.

He also asserts that too much time is left the student in which to participate in college activities such as athletics, politics, etc., which he ironically terms the "real business of college life." It is true that some students spend most of their time with such affairs, but they are not those students who walk away with a diploma. In most cases, I believe, students take a fairly active interest in such things because these are matters which will later be encountered in the outside world, and after all, that is what a college is for—to prepare boys and girls for the battle of life. A moderate course, although not the real business, has always proved beneficial. It is the man who has shown his executive ability at college, or has proved his capability along any one of these lines of college activities, that rises, after graduation, to be a responsible leader in the business world. This participation in things other than textbooks, coupled with our lessons as well, keeps us from being book-worms, and makes of us men and women of a broad culture and the knowledge necessary to meet the real issues of life. Besides, it is generally conceded that some recreation is essential to the welfare of human beings, and these affairs of college life help fill that important office. And it is here that we practice Mr. Haskinn's idea of specialization in the subject which holds our interest. A student interested in athletics devotes his moments of recreation to sports; to the development of his body which is co-important with the development of the mind. Most boys will tell you that after a brisk track-practice, or something of the sort, their minds are keener and clearer and they are better students because of this feature of their college life. It is time gained, after all, not lost, which is spent in some health-giving sport. Then again, the boy or girl who has executive ability or power of leadership, or force as a speaker and debater finds the school societies and debating clubs the places in which to train this tendency. Here, again, originality grows. It is seldom that any one tries to have a part in every school organization. He merely chooses the thing in which he is most interested and for which he is best suited, and goes in for it. Thereby, he gives whatever talent he has for the benefit of the entire student body while at the same time he himself is growing stronger of body, keener of intellect, and nobler of soul.

As to the fact which Mr. Haskinn brings out, that because a liberal arts education does not fit a student for any special line of work it is, therefore, not the best sort of college training, I would like to refer him to an article by President Woodrow Wilson.

Mr. Wilson takes the opposite side of the issue because in this progressive world of ours, a man, knowing only one certain branch of work, although he be an expert at his profession, may wake some morning to find that a new invention or a recent discovery has made his specialized knowledge of no use. He is out-of-date and having no foundation of general information from which to draw in time of need is in a pitiable state, indeed. Whereas, a graduate from a school of liberal arts who has been taught the art of applying himself to any need which may arise and who has learned the art of versatility, is enabled, in a short time, by reason of his general knowledge to take upon himself new duties, and to adapt himself to the constantly changing methods of the world. This then, is the worth of a B.A. degree from a liberal arts institution and it is not acquired as easily as some people seem to think.

Sincerely,
A Candidate for an A.B. Degree.

Miss Conde Visits Agnes Scott

College Community Enjoys Her Talks.

Again, because Agnes Scott is Agnes Scott we have had the pleasure of hearing a very noted speaker, Miss Bertha Conde. Miss Conde has for a number of years been National Student Secretary for the Y. W. C. A. Now she is visiting the foremost colleges and as she says "I am seeking new ways of bringing Jesus Christ to other people"

Everyone of us have enjoyed her talks which have taken the place of our regular Evening Prayers. They were interesting, instructive and spiritual and all who heard her felt that they have been able to know Jesus Christ better. How refreshed we were when we went back to our work because we had felt something pure true and grand from Miss Conde's talks.

True friendship was one of Miss Conde's strongest points. She has written several books about it and so we felt as though we were listening to someone who knew her subject. The college community has received a benefit from her talks which will be lasting. We were drawn in our friendship with God and thus with our fellowman.

We were most especially glad to have Miss Conde now while everyone is interested in our Fellow Students across the sea. She has done "Y" work in numbers of the European countries among the students there.

We feel that we owe a debt of gratitude to Dr. Gaines and the Y. W. C. A. cabinet who have been working since last fall to secure her for us at this time. We hope that Miss Conde received half as much pleasure and lasting good from her visit to us as we did and that she will think it worth her time to come again. We assure her a cordial welcome at any time that she may come back to us, which we hope will not be far off. Our best wishes go with Miss Conde on her tour through the American colleges, and we hope that she may find in them all that she desires.

AGONISTIC CONTESTS BEGINS.

Who's Who On the Campus.

It has been the custom at Agnes Scott to have an Agonistic contest, in which every girl is given the opportunity to "speak up and 'spress herself"—and say who in her opinion is who on this campus. Boxes have been placed in each of the dormitories, and girls are urged to put their ballots in the box as soon as possible. No votes will be received after March 1st.

Founder's Day Celebrated At A. S. C.

George Washington and G. W. Scott Alike Honored.

Down the broad stairway they came—the reality of our great-grandmother's photo albums—in powdered wigs and rustling silks, and great wide skirts that revealed mere tips of dainty slippers beneath. They were not, just for one brief evening, Seniors at Agnes Scott, but fair ladies and courtly gentlemen of the Colonial period. George Washington himself bearing Martha on his arm, graced the occasion and led the way to the dining room, which was decked and draped for the festive affair in flags and national colors. Everything was reminiscent of those early days of America, yet mingling with this representative Colonial society were maidens equally fair and representing equally well the twentieth century with their diminutive skirts and high-puffed coiffures.

At one long table sat the Seniors, and along side them at another table were the Sophomores, while the Juniors and Freshmen found their places at other tables scattered around the room. Miniature cherry trees formed the central decorations and for favors there were tiny hatchets and figures of George Washington and Uncle Sam, posing on marshy plains of grape-fruit. Welcoming addresses were tendered by George Washington and his lady, who were represented by Margurite Watkins and Cora Connett respectively in Rebekah Scott and by Rachel Rushon and Marguerite Cousins in White House. The delicious four-course dinner was interrupted and prolonged by sparkling toasts offered by the members of Washington's cabinet. The Secretary of State (Frances Charlotte Markley in White House and Aimee D. Glover in Rebekah) toasted the Faculty.

Among the distinguished visitors of the evening were Daniel Boone, Betsy Ross, and Alexander Hamilton.

After the dinner, a grand ball was held in the gym which was transformed by red, white and blue bunting and gay flags. One of the most delightful features of the evening was the minuet dances by eight couples of Seniors.

Along side the spirit of the Father of our Country, every girl sensed the presence of George Washington Scott, the founder of Agnes Scott. Always on the twenty-second of February, we are given the opportunity of paying tribute to him who has played such an important part in the lives of each of us, because it was he who made possible our "Greater Agnes Scott." Far beneath the mere outer surface of gay jests and merry laughter, the reverent hearts of Agnes Scott paid homage to George Washington and to his namesake, George Washington Scott.

EARLY SPRING.

I heard a thousand blended notes,
While in a grove I sat reclined,
In that sweet mood when pleasant thoughts
Bring sad thoughts to the mind.

To her fair works did Nature link
The human soul that through me ran;
And much it grieved my heart to think
What man has made of man.

Through primrose turp, in that green bower,
The periwinkle trailed its wreaths;
And 'tis my faith that every flower
Enjoys the air it breathes.

The birds around me hopped and played,
Their thoughts I cannot measure;
But the least motion which they made,
It seemed a thrill of pleasure.

The budding turfs spread out their fan
To catch the breezy air;
And I must think, do all I can,
That there was pleasure there.

If this belief from Heaven be sent,
If such be Nature's holy plan,
Have I not reason to lament
What man has made of man?
—Wordsworth.

Blackfriars To Present Plays Feb. 28th.

"MY AUNT FROM CALIFORNIA" AND "EVERYBODY'S HUSBAND."

Several New Stars.

Who isn't glad to hear that the famous Blackfriars are going to have a play? Much to our delight they will again appear before the public on Saturday evening, February the twenty-sixth. This time two delightful plays will be presented. Under the expert directorship of Miss Gooch they could be nothing but excellent.

One interesting feature of these plays is that most of the parts are to be taken by the members of the Blackfriars, but lately admitted, who have never before shown their dramatic ability to the entire public. (Of course we know they have this ability or they could not bear the name of Blackfriar.)

These girls with their first experience behind the footlights will need a large audience for encouragement and they are sure to have it.

The first of these plays is called "Everybody's Husband" and is unusually good. There is a girl in it who is to be married on the next day and, contrary to our expectations she does not favor the idea! More might be said about it, but then where would be the joy of seeing it if you knew all about it beforehand? The cast is as follows:

- Girl Charlotte Keesler
- Mother Frances Oliver
- Grandmother ... Frances C. Markley
- Great-grandmother ... Sarah Fulton
- Domino Mr. Johnson
- Lisette, the maid ... Eleanor Hyde

The second of these plays is as charming as the first. In "Our Aunt from California," each of the three girls, Sally, the practical, Felicia, the melancholy, Rosalie, the lazy, desires to be in the good graces of the rich aunt. A great deal of confusion arises—the aunt is mistaken for——but there again! that's tell-

Juniors Choose Sophomore Sisters

Invitations Given Valentine's Day.

Perhaps just a year ago Valentine Day, certainly not more than two or three years ago, our Freshmen friends were thrilled to find a Will-you-be-my-Valentine request beneath the front door. And now that they have come to college these girls continue to receive Valentines.

In Freshmen mail boxes last Monday, February 14, were found various kinds of valentines. There were little verses on the valentines which asked not only "Will you be my valentine?" but also "Will you be my Sophomore sister?" The Freshmen cherish these valentines because of the honor they bestow. The Juniors feel equally as honored to have such lovely Sophomore sisters. The Senior-Sophomore sisters are as follows:

Interest In Debating Increasing Daily

VARSITY TEAMS TO BE CHOSEN MARCH 8.

Intercollegiate Debates April 8.

Now that the debaters have begun work on the intercollegiate subject, they are invested with a new enthusiasm, interest, and desire to work. Under the supervision of Dr. Armistead they are rapidly getting at the bottom of the question, and there is a steady improvement noticeable bestowed by the excellent criticisms of Miss McKinney, Miss Hearon, and Miss Gooch.

On March the eighth the four girls for the varsity teams will be selected, and two substitutes also. The real intercollegiate debates will be held on April eighth, one at Randolph-Macon and one at Agnes Scott.

The subject as it stands now is, "Resolved that in every railroad controversy threatening the public convenience, the railroad Labor Board as constituted in the Transportation Act of 1920, be required by law to make an investigation of the case, and to render a decision binding on all parties to the dispute." This question was submitted by Agnes Scott, and we are now awaiting the approval of Randolph-Macon and Sophie Newcomb. If there are no objections made, the question as stated above will be the subject for final debate on March the eighth.

All our attention must be turned now toward putting up a good fight against our opponents, and winning the decisions. Everybody can help by their enthusiasm and loyalty and interest, and by signing up for the society debates. Every bit of work that any one does counts, and the debaters solicit your help and interest.

FOLIO ANNOUNCES NEW MEMBERS.

Six Freshmen Make Club.

Six of the fifteen enthusiastic Freshmen who tried out for Folio won a notable honor in the shape of a "letter of acceptance." Minnie Allen, Mary Colly, Mary Green, Lillian McAlpine, Winona Peck and Isabelle Sewell will be taken into membership Monday, February 21, at the next regular meeting. For their stories to have won out among so many good ones makes victory that much more worthy of praise and congratulations.

The tryouts were some of the best, if not the very best, ever handed in. There was much interest shown as proved by the unusually large number of applicants. Both an afternoon and a night session of the club were needed before Folio could determine the lucky six. Those were very busy, interesting, exciting and pleasing sessions, too, with uncertainty as to the final decision until the very end.

That was the last meeting for the Sophomore members, for with the coming of the new members they were automatically excluded from the club. The new members will be in Folio from their initiation the twenty-eighth until this time next year, when the incoming generation of Freshmen will again oust their elders. But Folio joyfully welcomes six such fine additions to its membership.

EDITORIALLY SPEAKING

AGNES SCOTT'S OPPORTUNITY.

Shall Agnes Scott be the first woman's college to have a chapter of the National League of Women Voters? That is the question—we hope the answer will be yes, for Agnes Scott is ready to support any movement of such nation-wide interest and benefit, especially a movement which so vitally concerns the college woman. In the college woman, we see a voting citizen of a near tomorrow, with powers so developed and intellect so trained as to enable her to sense true values and to place the emphasis on the right side. Such women the League is anxious to enroll in its membership.

The purpose of the League has sometimes been misunderstood and therefore criticized. Attacks have been made to the effect that the League is seeking to break down the two great political bodies of our government, which is not the case. The League seeks a thorough understanding of the aims and platforms of each party with the idea of voting for the man less dominated by personal ambition and motivated by higher ambitions of public welfare and good for the greatest number of people. Particularly are women voters interested in legislation protecting women and children in industry, for in years past such laws have been often neglected or willfully disregarded. The drafting and rigid enforcement of such laws and the amelioration of many other evils, hitherto unnoticed, are the principal aims of the National League of Women Voters. Will we support it?

If Agnes Scott hastens to organize a chapter of the League in her student body, she will be the first college in the United States to take part in this movement which, it is prophesied, will be a potent factor in the government of our country.

LIBRARY BOOKS AND RULES.

The library belongs to the students, and the rules which have been made for the library are for the good of the student body as a whole. Announcements have been made in Student Government meetings several times about the observance of library regulations, but even now girls take books out of the building without permission, fail to return their book to the desk when the period is up, or leave their book carelessly on the table when they are through with it. All other things, however little they may be, causes confusion and inconvenience, and work against having a thoroughly up-to-date successful library.

Again, girls fail to bring books back on time, forgetting that other people may need those certain books very urgently. If we would only put ourselves in the other fellow's place, and think about his inconvenience, we wouldn't be nearly so selfish and thoughtless about library rules.

An unwritten rule that every girl should observe about the books in the library is to keep them in good shape. It may help one girl to underline sentences in a book, but it hinders another. Let's not throw the books around and tear out the leaves, but let's help Miss Longshore, by our co-operation, to have the best kind of a library possible.

EXCHANGES

PALE PREVARICATIONS.

Oh, yes, I saw you last night.
The alarm didn't go off.
I tried to get you but the line was always busy.
Your face seemed familiar but I couldn't place you for a minute.
Why, I was only two minutes late.
Oh, I enjoyed it immensely.
I'd just as soon, in fact I had rather.

That is so becoming to your type.
I've just had a wonderful time.
No, I am not a bit cold.

WHAT WORLD FELLOWSHIP MEANS.

The World Fellowship Department of the Y. W. C. A. had a departmental meeting the other night to discuss what had been accomplished of its great task. The present committee are almost ready to turn over their work to new ones; and in looking over their efforts they feel that only a little bit of their great purpose has been accomplished. But the World Fellowship Department is a new one, not well known at Agnes Scott; and its scope is so large as to be almost indefinite. The Department, therefore, has decided to talk to the student body about what it has tried to do, in order that the girls may more sympathetically appreciate the meaning of what has been done.

The object of the World Fellowship Department is to make every girl a conscientious Christian and world citizen. No one can be a conscientious world citizen without knowing something about world conditions. The object of the pageant, of the bulletin in the mail room, and of the voluntary study classes is to make information available. But one cannot be a Christian world citizen without a great love that responds to the ap-

STUDENT VOLUNTEERS MEET MARCH 5TH.

Convention To Be Held at Piedmont College.

The Student Volunteer State Convention will be held at Piedmont College on the 5th and 6th of March. It promises to be the best state conference that has ever been held because of the many interesting plans.

There are at present about a hundred and thirty Volunteers in Georgia. All of these are expected to attend the conference besides about ten others from each school. Some of the best young people's leaders have been secured among whom is Miss Julia Lake Skinner, one of our Alumnae whom a great many Agnes Scott people know.

One special feature is a pageant to be given by Wesleyan College on the first night. Each school is to furnish a part in the poster campaign, or rather exhibit, which will take place Saturday afternoon.

The Agnes Scott delegates will leave here Friday, the fifth, and it is hoped that our full number will get to go. The delegates are as follows: Margaret Bell, Victoria Howie, Aimee D. Glover, Jean McAllister, Ruth Scandrett, Ruth Pirkle, Janef Preston, Anna Marie Landress, Ruth Hall, Edith Kerns, Josephine Logan, Lillian McAlpine, Eloise Knight, Frances Gardner, Mary Goodrich and one delegate to be chosen by the Y. W. C. A.

MORTE D'OYSTER.

Did you ever
Go to A Party,
A Dinner Party
Where the silverware
Glowed
And the Chinaware
Glimmered
And some were Well dressed—
Others in Evening Dress—
And it was a Very Course Affair.
With oysters,
Big oysters,
Big, raw oysters
And you had Flapped them down
One by One
And then came
The Last
And it wasn't an oyster,
It was an Elephant—
A White Elephant.
And first
You were afraid
You'd choke to death
And then
You were afraid
You wouldn't,
And it seemed to be Fighting
For life
And so were you
And then—
It passed on.

peal which knowledge makes. And to awaken this sympathetic interest is the object of the monthly Y. W. C. A. prayer meetings conducted by the World Fellowship Department.

By making yourself a fully awake Christian citizen of the world, you are making yourself the biggest thing that a college woman can become.

IS YOUR NAME IN THIS LIST?

Peggy Bell, Edith Kerns, Mary Goodrich, Lillian McAlpine, Ruth Scandrett, Ruth Hall, Victoria Howie, Josephine Logan, Eloise Knight, Frances Gardner, Jean McAllister, Anna Marie Landress, Aimee D. Glover, and Janef Preston are going as delegates from Agnes Scott to the Student Volunteer Conference at Demerest in March.

Miss Julia Lake Skinner in her open letter to Volunteers says this: "Have you ever felt the peculiar inspiration which alone can come from a mingling together of young people who are united in the great purpose of bearing witness to the light of the world in places of total darkness?"

"Have you ever been thrilled with the joy of listening to and being in the presence of those who have already been used mightily of God in the bringing in of His kingdom upon earth and who are telling you from their own personal experiences of the opportunities waiting for you as soon as you are ready to go?"

"Friend of mine, if you have not had that experience you have missed one of the joyous blessings that God gives to His workers."

JULIA LAKE SKINNER.

In order that those who were not here two years ago may know who it is whose very name inspires Agnes Scott volunteers now, we quote from the "Georgia Student Volunteer":

"Miss Julia Lake Skinner will be remembered as one of our most enthusiastic Student Volunteer workers in Georgia previous to her graduation from Agnes Scott College two years ago, and her subsequent removal to Knoxville, Tenn., where she now holds the position of Young People's Worker in one of the large churches there, preparatory to her departure for the foreign field. We rejoice to learn that she is planning to attend our conference this year. Her presence is always an inspiration in such gatherings."

IF SO, BE QUICK.

Do you want to be a part of a great active body of young people, the world's best, who have found the secret of happiness in dedicating their lives to service? Any one who wants to go to the conference at Demerest may, if she is passing all her work, get permission from Miss Hopkins, and then notify either Edith Kerns or Anna Marie Landress right away. Of course going implies nothing except that you are interested in the work of Christ on earth, and in the great Student Volunteer movement.

HAVE YOU SEEN THIS?

The current issue of "The Georgia Student Volunteer" is the second one which has been published. It is put out by the Executive Committee of the State Union and other members of it. The paper is small yet, but well planned and full of news. The Y. W. C. A., whose "Association Monthly" is well established, ought to extend every encouragement to this similar magazine. The following poem is from the February number of "The Volunteer":

God has His best things for the few
That dare to stand the test;
God has His second choice for those Who will not have His best.

There's scarcely one but vaguely wants

In some way to be blest;
'Tis not Thy blessing, Lord, I seek,
I want Thy very best.

And others make the highest choice,
But when by trials pressed,
They shrink, they yield, they shun
the cross,
And so they lose the best.

GIDDIE GOSSIP

Giddie, Darling:

"Spring has come," tra la! tra la! Gingham dresses and tennis supplant wool middies and tam-o'-shanters. "In the spring a young man's fancy may turn to thoughts of love" but a girl's turns eagerly to the visions of her new spring clothes. A beruffled taffeta and an adorable little hat with many flowers—these are the loves of a girl in the spring.

Ain't that a grand paragraph, Aggie, so sweet and poetic-like? I'll develop into a great poet yet, if I dine long enough.

Since Valentine's Day this college has looked like a flower garden. Honestly Aggie, you've never seen so many lovely bouquets in all your young and unsophisticated life—and they were all accompanied with tender "Valentinish" notes too.

Bettie Sue told Alice she was glad that he'd sent her roses but Alice said, "Well, flowers were nice, but a crate of grape-fruit, if sent from the right person, can mean just as much and last lots longer." Beth Flake didn't mind staying in the Infirmary with all those wonderful pink rosebuds to help her get well. Hester Stephenson, Eunice and Sara M. all were made happy by flowers, and Rhea blossomed forth in a perfectly gorgeous corsage.

And candy? Don't mention candy to me for three weeks, Aggie, for every time you poke your head in anyone's door they offer you candy and when you have a box of your own, you are not so anxious to have some. Everybody in school got boxes from home or from beaux and as a result, the day after, the Infirmary was full and it was like "the morning after the night before." But the best Valentines of all were those sent out by the Juniors to the lucky Freshmen chosen to be their Sophomore sisters for next year. Wasn't that a sweet way for the Juniors to tell the Freshmen? It was a love message, sure enough, for who wouldn't love to be a Sophomore sister to one of these dear old Juniors of ours, who will be the "dignified Seniors" next year.

I expect with these warm, sweet evenings we will begin to have serenades again—uh-huh!!! I've heard the Dec boys tuning-up several nights but we haven't had many real serenades yet.

Some people can be the luckiest and at the same time the most unlucky of anything you ever heard of. Now take Theresa, she has four dates for this week and now she's in the Infirmary and has had to break two already—and in breaking the dates, no doubt two hearts have been broken, aussi. Isn't that the limit? Now me, I keep well and have no dates to keep, oh! it's a very sad world sometimes. All the girls have been going to see "Romeo and Juliet" and this is the most sentimental place you ever saw! Girls sigh and write nineteen folders to one person. Girls get letters twenty-six folders long and blush sweetly. Girls sing "If you could care for me, as I could care for you" and put their whole soul into it. I tell you it's the spring in the air and it's so contagious that there's no escaping it.

Don't you catch it and elope or somepin' like that.

Lovingly,
Giddie.

B. O. Z. TRYOUTS MONDAY.

Monday, February the twenty-first, is looked forward to with great expectation by many girls because that is the night of the B. O. Z. tryouts. Twice every year these tryouts are held and certain rules are adhered to. The short story is required to be typewritten and the name of the writer is sealed in an envelop and attached to the manuscript. The girls, who are fortunate enough to have had the gift of writing bestowed upon them, await breathlessly to see if their manuscript will find its way to the waste-paper basket or will meet with the approval of the judges.

The B. O. Z. organization has been flourishing since 1915 under the diligent guidance and tutelage of Dr. Armistead. This club meets semi-monthly and the members are now very enthusiastic over the thought of increasing their number and gaining new ideas for the still further advancement of the society. The present members are Janef Preston, Elizabeth Wilson, Elizabeth Enloe, Mary Anne Justice, Althea Stephens, Rhea King, Frances Charlotte Markley, Eloise Knight, Laura Oliver, and Polly Stone.

To the girls who are trying for the honor of being a member of the B. O. Z. we, the student body of Agnes Scott, extend our interest and wish for you all luck and success.

BIOLOGY PLAY HUGE SUCCESS.

time, and the cast was admirably chosen. We will not soon forget the ridiculous scene between Caesar and Calpernia, and the accompanying sob song, nor yet the really admirable acting of Brutus and Portia.

The success of the play was due in large part to the untiring efforts of Miss MacDougal. Miss Sutphen was the musical director for the play, and Fanny McCaa was in charge of the stage properties. The cast was as follows:

Julius Caesar Miss Wilburn
Brutus Miss Curry
Antony Lucile Smith
Tepidus Ruth Pirkle
Octavius Rachel Rushton
Cassius Frances C. Markley
Casca Miss Rothermer
Trebinius Sarah Till
Portia Margaret McLaughlin
Calpernia Caroline Moody
Soothsayer Marion Cawthon
Pandarus Aimee D. Glover
Cato Rachel Rushton
Citizens—Jean McAlister, Alice Jones, Dot Allen, Ruth Keiser, Margaret Wade, Fanny McCaa.
Roman Dancers—Miss Wade, Ruth Keiser.

The proceeds from the play which were large, although the price of admission was relatively small, went toward improving the Agnes Scott museum for the Biology Department.

DEBATING NEWS.

Girls Debate On Doughnuts and Love.

The debate's the thing! Yes, really, it's getting to be quite the fashion either to be debaters, or to hear debaters, at every opportunity. There was a time in the past when we thought of a debate as a very clever, efficient and never failing method of torture, but somehow we are changing our minds, and are beginning to think that debates aren't "so worse" after all—in fact, that they're mighty interesting things—and instructive, too, of course.

Two organizations that are especially glad to welcome this new fashion are the Mnemosynean and Propylean Societies, because they have as their especial functions the guardianship, and fostering of the Debating Spirit. So lately there have been some unusually interesting debates in both of these societies.

On February 5th the Mnemosyneans held a mock debate at their regular meeting and the subject was, "Resolved, that love at first sight is the only true love." On February 12 this society had another mock debate, "Resolved, that the hole in the doughnut is an essential part of the doughnut." In this debate Tilley Spence and Sarah Harrison argued for the negative, while Virginia Burum and Margaretta Womelsdorf upheld the affirmative. The negative side was judged as victorious in this debate by one vote. This is a question, as well as the one of February 5 that has bothered us for a long time and we are certainly grateful to have them selected for us in such a safe, sane and interesting way.

On February 12 the Propyleans had a debate, (not a mock debate in this case) "Resolved, that a federal board should be appointed with powers of compulsory arbitration between capital and labor." Ruth Pirkle and Mary Stewart McLeod debated on the affirmative side, while Selma Gordon and Mary Ann Justice debated on the negative. The negative was decided victorious.

Saturday night, the 19th, the Propyleans will have a mock debate, while the Mnemosyneans will hear a regular debate. The subject of the mock debate is "Resolved, that Nero was justified in fiddling while Rome burned." On the affirmative Rachel Preston and Emily Guille will argue, while their opponents will be Ruth Hall and Ruth de Zouche.

Whether you are a Prop or a Mnemos turn out and hear the debate, and then won't you volunteer to do your part, for the debate's the thing.

VANITY FAIR BEAUTY PARLOR.

Located in Basement of Miss Sturgess' House.

Just so long as there are girls in the world there will be a mission for a beauty parlor. Then surely no one can deny that A. S. C. is a most appropriate place for such an establishment. For even "college" girls, however absorbed in their pursuit of learning, are still girls. Miss Philo Sturgess has realized that most important fact and supplied for us right here on our very own campus, in her own house, one of those ever-popular institutions.

If you happen to be ignorant and go to Miss Phi's front door and ask rather shyly for "The Beauty Parlor" you will be led down a dark and winding stair which reminds you of the approach to a dungeon rather than a place of adornment. But your fears are dispelled when at the foot of the stair you realize that you should have come in by the back door and that your dungeon is really Miss Phi's basement.

You are still further surprised then, when you open a little door and the professional adorer shows you into a little white room, where the walls are lined with instruments of marvelous sorts and kinds. They are strange and new to some of us, quite familiar to others, but surely interesting to most, we must admit. Yes, there is every conceivable appliance and concoction there for supplying in some of us what nature has lavished upon some fortunate others—waving locks and rose petal cheeks and lily hands, for instance.

Everything is not yet finished, for if it were no doubt the winding stair would lead us into a cozy little waiting room. But then the beauty parlor proper wouldn't be such a pleasant surprise, so let's go in now, girls, those few(?) of us who are not among the fortunate ones.

THOSE TERM PAPERS AGAIN!

Term papers—where have you heard those words before? Do they bring before you fond memories of a maddening struggle to produce a minimum of twenty pages of fairly intelligent material, based on one page of information, or are you some poor unsuspecting Freshman, who thinks they are some special form of amusement offered the upper classmen as a reward.

If you are of the latter class, my child, you have something to which you may look forward, for if you did not have the pleasure of English I under the protecting care of Dr. Armistead, you are doubtless enjoying that privilege at this moment, and by the end of the term will be fully and adequately prepared to discourse on any subject assigned to you.

Maybe you are one of those poor hard-working souls who have the burden of five or six of these rewards weighing you down, but take heart, for others have come through unscathed, without even the scars of the battle remaining. Do not feel left out in the cold and very much neglected because all your professors have thoughtlessly refrained from even mentioning such a subject. You may well recover your spirits for beyond a doubt some of them, will before many days, have a pleasant surprise for you in the way of nice short paper in which you are to show a thorough and comprehensive grasp of the whole course condensed into not more than twenty pages.

DAY PUPILS ORGANIZE FOR HIKES.

Helen Hall, Hike Manager.

At a recent meeting of our valiant band of day pupils, it was decided that they had been down-trodden long enough and that they wanted a better chance to win athletic glory. And so one bright day pupil suggested that hikes would be a good place to begin.

The president of the Athletic Association consented to the arrangement which the day pupils wished, namely, that a numeral should be awarded to any day student who went on eight out of their ten hikes. Helen Hall was made hike manager for the day students, and there have already been two hikes. The day students are enthusiastic over their hikes, and are planning to walk to Atlanta some fine day and visit the Doughnut Shop for reinforcements for the inner lady.

It's awfully nice for the day pupils to have their own hikes, because everybody knows how hard it is to give up a Saturday afternoon in town for a hike anyway. The day students have their hikes any day and about the same percentage of them attend as the percentage of boarding students. Long live athletic pep and enterprising dispositions.

ATLANTA ALUMNAE HOLD MEETING.

Program Furnished By A. S. C. GIRLS.

The Agnes Scott Alumnae of Atlanta held their monthly meeting last week. Mrs. Paul Potter, who is president, asked that the Agnes Scott girls give the program. Three of them went in to take part, Margaret McLaughlin, Betty Brown, and Martha Taliaferro.

There were about fifteen members present as usual. The business meeting was held first, in which they discussed chiefly the raising of a memorial fund for Miss Young.

Then the meeting was turned over to the Agnes Scott girls. Margaret McLaughlin sang "It Was a Bowl of Roses" and a negro spiritual entitled "I Stood on the River of Jordan." Betty Brown accompanied her on the piano. Martha Taliaferro then read "Bud's Fairy Tale."

At the close of the meeting delightful refreshments were served. The program that our girls gave was very good indeed and the Alumnae enjoyed it. The girls say that it was an inspiration to see how much interest our Alumnae are taking in Scott.

GLEE CLUB TO SING AT FIRST PRESBYTERIAN NEXT SUNDAY.

On next Sunday, the Agnes Scott Glee Club will sing at the morning services of the First Presbyterian Church of Atlanta. They will sing "The Oratorio."

It is quite an honor, and a recognition of our Glee Club to have them asked to sing at this church, and it is the first time that they have ever consented to do anything of this kind.

A LONELY FLOWER.

In rebuttal to the poem, "A Lonely Flower," which the Agonistic printed a short while ago, a prominent Decatur citizen has offered the following parody:

Her mother told her, "Please the boys,"
She did.
"Paint and powder—make a noise,"
She did.
"Have no standards, show your knees,
Dance and kiss just all you please,
And on occasion let them squeeze,"
She did.

Years rolled on and still she played,
She did.
She noticed though, her beaux to fade
She did.
Good men left her to choose a mate,
A maiden sweet, demure, sedate—
While she drank deep the vampire's fate,
She did.

LOIS McINTYRE MARRIES.

It will be of great interest to Agnes Scott students to learn of the marriage of Lois McIntyre to Mr. Frank Bell, on February 19. The wedding was a very quiet one, there being only relatives and intimate friends present. There were two attendants, both sisters of the bride, Mrs. John Gates, as matron of honor, and Margaret McIntyre, a student at Hollis College, Hollis, Virginia, maid of honor.

Lois is one of the most popular girls that has ever attended Agnes Scott, and her many friends out here wish her every happiness in her married life.

TEDDY TEA HOUND.

Dear "Goldenlocks":

So your father says that the young man can't marry you because he makes only $18 a week and you think that is no obstacle because time flies so rapidly when two people are fond of each other? Dream on, fair infant, when love is blind, 'twould be folly to receive clear eyesight. Here's my blessing!

If you want to assure your lover of the naturalness of your complexion, just weep on his shoulder, the proof of a girl's complexion is her tears. Let me know if it works.

AGGIE'S FUNNY BONE

"Professor," said Mrs. Newich, to a distinguished musician who had been engaged to entertain her guests, "what was that lovely selection you played just now?"

"That, madam, was an improvisation."

"Ah, yes, I remember now. I knew it was an old favorite of mine, but I just couldn't think of the name of it for the moment."

A man who was having trouble with his flivver hailed a passing car. It was a very expensive looking car, and the chauffeur looked unapproachable.

"Say, friend, do you know anything about a 'flivver?'" asked the owner, hopefully.

"Nothing," he replied, "but a couple of funny stories."

It was at a revival meeting. An old darkey rose to his feet.

"Brudders an' sisters," said he, earnestly, "you knows and I knows that I ain't been what I oughta been. I've robbed hen roosts and stole hawgs, and tol' lies, and got drunk an' slashed folks w' ma razor, an' shot craps, an' cussed an' swore, but thanks de Lord dere's one thing I ain't nebbber done—I ain't nebbber lost ma religion."

A foreman, badly in need of workers, approached a tramp. "Are you looking for a job?"

"What kind of a job?" asked the tramp.

"Can you do anything with a shovel?"

"Yes," replied the tramp, "I can fry ham on one."

An English sportsman had been introduced to the young girl, and he was told that she was extremely interested in athletics. So, thinking he would be on familiar ground, he began talking of athletics. He exhausted every sport as a subject and she had told him that she was "crazy about them all." So, to relieve the monotony he changed the subject.

"How do you like Kipling?"
"Oh," she gushed, "I just adore to kipple."

Whatever else may happen
When our country has gone dry,
The sailor still will have his port,
The farmer have his rye;
The cotton still will have its gin

HARRIET MONROE COMING MARCH 16th.

WILL ADDRESS STUDENTS ON MODERN POETRY.

Third Number in Agnes Scott Lecture Series.

Miss Harriet Monroe, poet, critic, editor, will be the guest of Agnes Scott for several days in the near future. On the evening of March 16th, at eight o'clock, she will speak on "The New Movement in Poetry," and her address will be illustrated by particular reference to the Chicago poets. After the lecture, Miss Monroe will be the honoree at a reception given in Rebekah Scott lobby, and every girl will have the opportunity of meeting and talking with her, who is known in Chicago as "the autocrat of all the poetries." During her stay on the campus we will also have the pleasure of seeing her in the role of poet, when she will read us some of her own poetry.

Miss Monroe is an advocate of individualism; and her views on the subject of modern poetry as expressed in her own magazine of verse, "Poetry," are most interesting and give us a clear insight into the nature of her work.

Miss Monroe herself has done a thing unprecedented in giving poets a place of their own, where theories of craftsmanship may be discussed. "Poetry," a magazine of verse, founded in 1912, was the first of our "poetry magazines," and Miss Monroe has carried it triumphantly through the first few years of its life. As an editor, she has shown a rare Catholic taste, and because of her inspiration and encouragement, many young poets have "come into their own."

Agnes Scott is anticipating with an unusual amount of interest the coming of Miss Monroe, and it is likely that our enthusiasm will be shared by the people of Atlanta and Decatur who will take advantage of the opportunity of hearing her speak.

GLEE CLUB, AS IT WILL APPEAR IN 1921 SILHOUETTE.

Gamma Tau Announcements Made

Preston and Landress New Members.

Gamma Tau Alpha, the highest honor society at Agnes Scott, held their first open meeting of the year in the chapel, February 26, and announced the new members from the class of 1921—Janef Preston and Anna Marie Landress.

The meeting opened with an impressive academic procession, composed of those members of the faculty who belong to similar honor organizations in the colleges from which they graduated. Those in the procession were: Dr. J. D. M. Armistead, of Washington and Lee; Miss Lillian Smith, of Syracuse University; Miss Cleo Hearon and Miss Catherine Torrance, both of the University of Chicago, and the following Agnes Scott graduates: Miss Augusta Skeen, Miss Frances Sledd, Mrs. Dieckman, Miss Janet Newton, Miss Emma Jones, and Miss Alice Cooper.

Dr. Armistead told the story of the origin of Gamma Tau Alpha, which was formed here in 1914 by the faculty members of the national honor society, Phi Beta Kappa, and explained the standards which members of the Senior Class must reach before they may be admitted. Scholastic attainment is the primary, but not the only consideration, for besides having proven herself capable of philosophical thought, a girl must have shown a loyal college spirit and proved her willingness and ability by taking a prominent part in college activities.

The fact that only two members were chosen for Gamma Tau from the class of 1921 by no means reflects upon the class. Every class in every college always brags of its achievements, but the entire student body and faculty unite in saying that this present Senior Class has really done more for the college and accomplished more in the line of student activities than any other class in all the history of Agnes Scott. By throwing themselves so wholeheartedly into the work of the various college organizations and giving so freely of their time and energy to furthering the good of their Alma Mater, there are members of '21 who have given up Gamma Tau. All honor to them.

As is their usual custom, Gamma Tau will hold another election later on in the spring, when several new members will be announced.

Another treat the Society has in store for the college community is the promised visit of President Mary Wooley, of Mount Holyoke College. President Wooley will speak in the chapel some time in April, the exact date to be announced later.

Dr. Angell, President of Yale, Visits A. S. C.

President of Carnegie Corporation of New York Congratulates Agnes Scott on Its Student Body.

Agnes Scott was honored on Monday, Feb. 25, by a visit from Dr. Angell, the president of Carnegie Corporation, of New York. Dr. Angell has also recently been elected to the position of president of Yale University, and is a man who has had wide experience in the educational world.

In honor of Dr. Angell's visit, chapel was held at eleven-thirty, and after the services were over, he made a short, impressive talk to the student body. Dr. Angell congratulated us on our college, which he said is adjudged among the foremost colleges for women in the South. He emphasized the necessity and importance of higher education for women, and stressed the value of the opportunities offered in such institutions as Agnes Scott.

Immediately after chapel was over coffee was served in the faculty parlor, and the members of the faculty, and the Senior Class were given the opportunity of meeting Dr. Angell.

Mrs. Samuel Inman, who is known by every student of Agnes Scott, and who is a member of our Board of Trustees, accompanied Dr. Angell on his visit to us.

MAY DAY PLANS PROGRESSING RAPIDLY.

Try-Outs March Fourteenth.

Some time ago all the aspiring young writers on the campus at Agnes Scott were busy reading up on mythology, and were racking their brains for a scenario for the May Day program. The honor of writing the best try-out was won by Miss Rachel Rushton. The name of this scenario, as has been previously announced, is "Pandora." The story deals with the opening of the urn which Pandora, a maiden on whom all the gifts of the gods had been bestowed, had been given by Tris and which she had sworn to keep closed. At the opening of the urn, Sin and Sorrow, hitherto unknown, enter the world. The dances of Aurora and her maidens, of the Dryads, and of Tris and her companions, and the carnivals of the Flowers and of the Fruits and Grains add a pleasing and fanciful touch to the program.

Cotillion Club Formed

Backed By Hoasc and Faculty.

On Wednesday evening, March 2d, a Cotillion Club was formed here, in order to give more pleasure to the girls who dance, and to give Agnes Scott more of the social life, of which she has recently felt the need. This Cotillion Club has a charter membership of about twenty girls, others to be taken in from time to time. The Club is backed by Hoasc and by the faculty, and it is expected to add greatly to the social life of the college by planning dances and by keeping up an interest in that side of our college life.

The Cotillion Club is not yet fully organized, having had only two meetings. At the last meeting, on Thursday night, Nell Buchanan was elected temporary chairman, and the permanent officers will be elected at the next meeting. The charter of the Club will also be drawn up at that time.

The charter members are Charlotte Keesler, Caroline Farquhar, Amy Twitty, Lois Moriarty, "Jack" McIvor, Geraldine Goodrow, Nell Buchanan, Quenelle Harrold, Margaret Hedrick, Frances Stewart, Sarah Till, Margaret Yeager, Nancy Evans, Emily Hutter, Ruth Brown, Helen Way, Alice Jones, Winona Peck, Jeanette Landrum, Theressa Newton, Lollie Johnson, Eugenia Johnston.

B. O. Z. ANNOUNCES NEW MEMBERS.

Little and Stansell Elected.

At their last meeting B. O. Z., the short story club, elected Lucile Little and Sarah Stansell to membership. The stories of these two girls won out over five more which were submitted as try-outs to the Club.

B. O. Z. now boasts of twelve members. They are Frances Markley, Janef Preston, Elizabeth Enloe, Mary Ann Justice, Althea Stevens, Elizabeth Enloe, Sarah Stansell, Rhea King, Lucile Little, Laura Oliver, Polly Stone and Eloise Knight.

BLACKFRIAR TRY-OUTS SHOW MUCH TALENT.

Eight Girls Taken. In.

Much original talent was shown in the Blackfriar try-outs which were held in the chapel on March 28. This try-out was the first that has been opened to Freshmen this year, and the Freshman class may be justly proud of the talent it displayed.

Out of a large number of contestants, eight were chosen for Blackfriar membership—Elizabeth McCarrie, Sarah Pappenheimer, Lollie Johnson, Margaret Powell, Mary Ben Wright, Roberta Swaney, Valeria Posey, Frances Ames.

ELECTIONS TO BE HELD MARCH 18th.

NOMINATIONS DUE
THURSDAY.

Who to Vote For and Why.

Elections for next term will take place Friday, March 18. Perhaps some of the old girls recall a lost feeling which they experienced as the student body assembled in the chapel for the purpose of voting. In order not to have this lost feeling or indecision as to whom to vote for, we might seriously consider elections beforehand. Few of us have been to the polls, but we will shortly be casting our vote with father's and brother's. Here is a chance to learn to do it as intelligently as they.

Elections are not only important to each individual, but to each class. The Freshman Class, who has proved its intelligence in academic work, can now do so in a political way, so to speak. The Sophomores can put to practice their experience gained last year. To the Junior Class elections are most important, because most of next year's officers will be chosen from that class. Then the Senior Class realizes the importance of elections, and wishes to leave her Alma Mater in the best possible hands.

It is to our college that elections are most important of all. Each of us has a part in giving to our college the ablest leaders. To do that we must think seriously and reach our own conclusions. It is so easy to let the opinion of one's roommate influence us, or be governed by little personal likes or dislikes. It is said that many ignorant immigrants vote for the man, but the true American votes for the principle.

It is well to think of the offices to be filled and of the kinds of girls needed to fill them. First there are the offices of Student Government. For that position of high honor, the Presidency, we want an ideal Agnes Scott girl, one who stands for the best in the college. She must be unselfish, must have judgment, poise, and the welfare of the college at heart. She must be representative of the student body—the very best that Agnes Scott can find.

The President of Y. W. C. A. holds an office of no less importance. We want first of all a girl who will be a leader in upholding the highest Christian standards, both in our religious life and in every day college affairs. She must be a girl whose influence is always of the best—tactful, popular and with executive ability.

For the publications we need girls with originality, and the ability to work. For the editor of the Silhouette we need a girl with an especial amount of originality, and a big sense of responsibility. On the Aurora, the editor should have the energy to seek out people who have literary ability, and inspire them to contribute their works, while on the Agonistic we need an editor with a nose for news. She should be able to write one thousand words about nothing on a minute's notice, and should have discretion to pick out the right kind of lieutenants. Also she should have the ability to make others work.

In athletics, we want a girl who has won athletic fame and who has enthusiasm and pep, and the Student Treasurer should have "stick-a-bility" and a head for business.

It is not necessary to go into details as to the qualities necessary for the successful business managers, nor for minor officers, for girls are asked to use their own discretion.

These elections must be taken seriously, and girls are expected to use thought and time before they vote.

EDITORIALLY SPEAKING

ELECTIONS AND YOUR RESPONSIBILITY.

There are only ten more days before elections, and every girl should use the time that remains for real concentrated thought concerning her vote for next year's officers. The importance of these elections cannot be overestimated, for upon next year's officers depend to a large extent the success of the entire college year, and the girls are responsible for the kind of leaders they elect. Therefore, think well before you nominate, and weigh and consider before you cast your final ballot, because the name of Agnes Scott depends in a large degree upon the selections we make.

Now in considering the various offices, it is a good plan to go over a list of all those who are eligible, checking off those girls whom you deem capable of filling the position which you have in mind. When these are narrowed down to two or three, form your own opinion as to which is the best girl for the place. It is well to discuss the possibilities of prospective officers among yourselves, especially with those students who are in a position to know a girl's ability, but in the end it is always best to form your own opinion, unbiased by the views of anybody else.

In considering a student for one of the offices, it is well to think first of all of the character of the girl and of the character of the office. A girl might be the very best kind for President of Student Government, but not at all suitable for President of Y. W. C. A. Then it is well to take into consideration ability, popularity, (that means the influence she would be able to exert over others), experience, poise, record in other things, and sincerity. Make your standard high, and vote for the girl who best measures up to it.

One of the principal things to be avoided in casting your vote, is favoritism. We are so apt to want a girl whom we like personally to hold an office, and it is very easy to forget the real interests of the college in upholding the interests of one's own friends. Let us be big enough and strong enough to forget self in the interests of Agnes Scott, whose success is our success and whose good name is a priceless possession to each of us.

Girls, let's take these elections as one of the most serious responsibilities in our college year, and let's put our whole heart and our highest ideals into the election of next year's officers.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT NEWS.

The regular open discussion meeting of Student Government was held Tuesday night. New proctors were appointed for the next two weeks. The students were asked to be more careful about being quiet between 7 and 9 and after lights in the evening.

When under-classmen spend the night with Seniors they cannot use the Senior's light after ten o'clock for studying.

In the open discussion the question of fixing up the two little front rooms of Rebecca Scott as parlors was brought up. It was also suggested to fix up the front room in Inman. These suggestions met with general approval.

The next matter discussed was having dinner in the evening and having a social half hour afterwards. It was moved and seconded that this question be brought up before the College Council.

EMORY STUDENT VOLUNTEERS LEAD Y. W. C. A.

The Y. W. C. A. service which was held on February 27th was one of especial interest to Agnes Scott students. This service was conducted by Student Volunteers from Emory University, in the interest of the Student Volunteer movement.

The four Emory students who led the service were so sincere and filled with their message that they were a real inspiration to everyone present. They told something of the duties and ideals of the Student Volunteer Band, and each student told in a delightful personal way why he was a Student Volunteer. One of the most delightful things about the service was the beautiful music which the boys sang, and we all would like to thank these students for the inspiration they brought to us.

STUDENT VOLUNTEER CONVENTION.

The Student Volunteer Convention for the State of Georgia this year was held at Piedmont College, Demorest, Ga., from the 4th of March to the 6th. The seventeen girls who represented Agnes Scott returned Monday. Not only do their enthusiastic words testify to the enjoyable time they had, but the inspiration they received at the Conference shines out in spite of them.

Besides Agnes Scott nearly all the colleges in Georgia were represented: Emory, Brenau, Bessie Tift, Georgia University, Wesleyan, Georgia Tech, Georgia Normal and Industrial School, Piedmont College, The Athens State Normal, LaGrange Female College and Shorter College. Of course having so many present added greatly to the variety of the ideas and to the interest of the Conference. The University of Georgia lent its valuable display of missionary relics, which were greatly enjoyed; on Friday night Wesleyan College presented a most interesting and beautiful missionary pageant; and then all the colleges combined in making the display of instructive and effective posters as attractive as possible.

A reception was given the entire Conference on Saturday afternoon, and this pleasant affair gave the needed opportunity for the delegates to meet and know each other.

Indeed the Conference was most successful from every point of view. The speakers were splendid, and did their full share by their earnest, helpful talks in supplying the inspiration and courage and the new measure of spirituality that came at this time. The music, too, led by Miss Spencer, of Piedmont, and Mr. Barnes, of Emory, was a source of much pleasure. The whole occasion was one that will not soon be forgotten.

The girls who went from Agnes Scott were Edith Kerns, Anna Marie Landress, Josephine Logan, Lillian McAlpine, Frances Gardner, Mary Goodrich, Frances Charlotte Markley, Janef Preston, Juanita Kelly, Ruth Pirkle, Victoria Howie, Ellen Wilson, Ruth Virden, Margaret Bell, Mary Calwell, Charlotte Smith, and Jean McAlister.

GLEE CLUB SINGS AT FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

Lucile Smith Elected First Soprano of Regular Choir.

The First Presbyterian Church, of Atlanta, held its monthly Praise Service Sunday, Feb. 27th. This service usually has a full musical program, with a short address by the pastor, Dr. J. S. Lyons. At the last meeting the Agnes Scott Glee Club assisted with the music. There were several voluntary numbers by the regular choir of the church beside the numbers given by the Club from Agnes Scott.

Miss Nell Esslinger, as contralto member of the Club, gave one of Mendelssohn's solos entitled "But the Lord is Mindful of His Own." In the double trio, Misses Lucile Smith and Margaret McLaughlin took the duet part, while the rest joined in on the choruses of "I waited for the Lord," by Mendelssohn. The last number was Mendelssohn's motet, "Hear My Prayer." Miss Smith was soloist in this also. The program for the service included two organ solos by Dr. Sheldon, who is the organist there, and who is very competent in managing the wonderful instrument that the church has.

We feel that it is a great honor for the Glee Club to be asked to sing at this church, which is noted for its good music. Mr. Johnson spent much time in working up the music, and he deserves credit for his untiring efforts. As a result of the Club's appearance there, Miss Lucille Smith has been elected first soprano of the regular choir. This is another honor for the Club and signifies good work in the voice department.

BOOKS THAT YOU WOULD LIKE IN OUR LIBRARY.

Magazines, and What They Contain.

Do you know that the library is just chock full of the most delightful books for Sunday reading? There are magazines for those who like short stories, such as the Good Housekeeping, which of course you know isn't about housekeeping at all. It is full of interesting stories and usually has a fine serial by James Oliver Curwood. Harper's, Scribner's and the Century all contain interesting short stories. Temple Bailey, whose books are being read so much lately, writes for Harper's, and there is a serial running in there now by Margaret Deland. The stories in any of these magazines would make a long Sunday afternoon seem shorter, and make you forget your troubles entirely.

In addition to these the library is fortunate in having some of the late fiction. The newest books that it has acquired along this line are three could be taken in at the present time.

K. U. B. has proved itself to be a good, live organization, with the interest of the college at heart, and it deserves much credit for its faithful and unselfish journalistic work.

books by Conrad, one of which, "Romance," is especially delightful. There are also some of Hugh Walpole's works, "The Green Mirror," "The Golden Scarecrow," and many others. A new book by Booth Tarkington, "Ramsey Milholland," one of his inimitable stories about young people, would be of especial interest to the readers of "Seventeen." A treat is offered to the readers of O. Henry in a complete set of his works. His stories are delightful, and so varied that they are suited to the tastes of everyone.

The "Patty" books, by Jean Webster, are concerning the amusing episodes in the college life of a very original and charming girl, and make delightful reading. A book by Thos. Nelson Page, "Pastime Stories," by its very name invites you to read it.

Besides these books mentioned, there are more equally good. Try getting one for Sunday, and see if you don't like it.

GIDDIE GOSSIP

Dearest Aggie:

I've so much to tell you I hardly know where to begin; it's been so long since I have written to you, but you see, Aggie, holidays come very seldom here, and when one does come, it takes the whole school a week or more to recuperate (I learned that word in the Infirmary, Aggie.) Of course we all had a grand time on G. W. Scott's birthday and the "Colonial Seniors" were too dear for words. All the other girls wore evening dresses; and honestly, Aggie, it's the queerest feeling to wear an evening dress here—it's so long in between times that you feel very unnecessary when you put one on. I reckon if everyone could wear a gorgeous corsage of pink rosebuds sent from a devoted at V. M. I. it would help out a lot—but then that was Barron's exclusive privilege.

They've been having some sort of basket-ball championship meet in Atlanta and teams from Georgia, Mississippi, Tech, Tulane, Kentucky and others competed. That means that the campus Sunday afternoon was full of boys, "out-of-town," y'see, and Jeanette and Margaret, Lib R. and Dorothy were seen strolling around with several Kentucky boys. Now, Aggie, this is what I want to know. Jeanette and Margaret already knew their two, because Jeanette's from Kentucky, but why did Lib R. and D. Luten blush when someone asked them what church they liked best in Atlanta?

And, Aggie, that's not all the excitement that's been pervading the ancient "walls" of our institution of learning (we don't have walls, but it sounds so literary-like to say we do—we have a hedge). The other afternoon about fifty men, in nine cars, drove up and—that is the cars drove up with the men inside—and they got out and walked all over the campus. There were men of all ages—from the cradle to the grave—you ought to have been here, Aggie. I guess you are wondering what they were here for. Well, Aggie, I'm not real sure myself, but someone told me they were boosting a town or something and were looking for some good-looking girls to persuade to help boost the place by making out like they lived there, too. But I don't believe that, because they drove off without a single girl!

Lucy W. is the most popular girl you ever saw in all your life. Four of the cutest boys—regular Arrow collar type—were out here to see her the other afternoon, and every girl in school had to stroll by and look 'em over.

We've had several visits from mothers this week, "we" is figurative, for the happy girls they came to see monopolized them every minute. Frances Gilleland's mother has been here and Frances and her roomies have had a perfectly wonderful time. Emily Guille and Sara Stansell have had their mothers with them these last few days and it makes us all wish our mothers were here.

Well, when wires are put up to save the new grass, the peach trees bloom and the college trips forth in pink and blue and yellow and green and lavender (and all the rest of 'em) frocks and Decatur youths sentimentally sing of love n' everything, we might remark, "Spring is coming," and get away with it.

Yours 'till the potato chips, again moved onto the location it now occupies—the car line having changed and the land which is now athletic field having been bought by the college.

It was originally intended that West Lawn should face the Infirmary, when the latter was moved to its present location over the tennis courts, but at the critical moment when West Lawn was to be swung about in the planned position the ropes that held it broke, so West Lawn today faces just as the Library does. For a like reason East Lawn faces west—it was to have faced College street.

Main building used to be the scene of all activities, but it used to be larger than it is now, for it had at each end a wing extending to the rear. The room that is now Miss LeGate's class room was the dining room, and the wing back of it was the kitchen. The wing to the rear of what is Miss McKinney's class room was the power room, and Kame Economics Building was the laundry and science hall in one.

The Library, Science Hall, Rebekah Scott Hall and Inman Hall are all of comparatively recent date, and the college now owns from Sturgis cottage on up Candler street to one block beyond the turn in the car line, across to McDonough stand, and up College Street to East Lawn. The piece of property just across the car line from the athletic field is a rather new addition and a very promising one.

So it is undeniable that the campus has changed a lot in past years, and no doubt in so many more years it will present quite a different appearance from the one it does to-day, at least we are hoping for a greater Agnes Scott with a larger campus and more buildings.

THE GENTLE ART OF BLUFFING.

Bluffing is the ingenious device of a few brilliant minds to avoid hard work and save the family pride. Bluffing requires the utmost genius, for anyone can study her lessons and thereby make good grades, but only a favored few have the heaven-given talent for making good marks without study. In the foreign language classes one has great opportunity to cultivate this rarest and most precious of arts; great blame can be attached to pronunciation, vocabulary and enunciation, or one can stutter through the unfamiliar passage in such perfect agony and evident torture that the teacher out of the kindness of her heart, calls on the next in the next History or Psychology value and here bluffing almost receives its death blow—but recovers letter of the alphabet and saves the day. In Math and Sciences, imagination and originality are of little value.

Bluffing becometh the crowned king better than his throne; it is mightiest of the mighty—but the quality of it is sometimes strained.

On these sad occasions, when it is strained, and when the instructor sees through the bluff of the struggling pupil, then woe is she! Then art starves for appreciation, and dies a cold death in some neglected garret.

Bluffing will never reach the greatest height of its possibilities because it receives no encouragement, and cannot thrive of itself. If one master mind should some day realize its enormous latent potentialities, its true value, and cultivate it to the greatest extent of his ability, then the zenith would be reached and the world richer by far than it had ever been heretofore.

EXCHANGES

The first international debates in which United States students participated were in 1908 and 1919, between Bates College, Maine, and Queen's College, Canada, at which time each institution won one debate. Recently a debate has been held between the University of Washington and the University of British Columbia.—Mississippian.

Columbia University is now the largest educational institution in the world, having a registration of 35,000 students.—Exchange.

The aviation unit, organized in January at the Georgia School of Technology, began work lately. After two years of basic work the advanced course will begin. At present there are about one hundred and seventy-five students enrolled.—Technique.

There is a movement on foot at Salem now to exempt Seniors from examinations in any subject in which an average of 80 per cent. has been made during the entire semester.

This movement has been approved and passed by the student council and is now in the hands of the faculty.—Davidsonian.

The plan to establish Student Government at Queens College is arousing great interest on the part of the students. The matter is now in the hands of a faculty-student committee.—Queens Blues.

The Tulane Hullabaloo is the latest member of the Intercollegiate News Bureau. Tulane now receives news reports from the colleges and universities of the country every night by wireless.

The station has been under construction for several days and is near completion. The sending and receiving rooms are in the Y. M. C. A. building and the aerial has been strung between the water tank and the Academic Dormitory.—Davidsonian.

JUNIOR CIRCUS COMPANY COMING MARCH 12.

The college community is very fortunate in receiving on March 12th its annual visit from the Junior Circus Company. The scene of its activities while in our midst is a well-known meeting place—the straw be-decked gym. The first feature of interest will be the parade, destined to be so interesting that it will insure for the company a large audience at its big performance.

The main ring is, of course, the center of interest. There will be the usual master of ceremonies—the ring master, well-known and strange wild animals, the tumbling, joking clowns, the short lady and the tall man, and even tight-rope walkers. The best spectacle of all will be the Wild West Show with the famous Buffalo Bill. The main ring promises plenty of interest, diversity, and wild excitement.

The side shows, too, will be sure to draw the crowds. There will be Gwendolyn, the Four-handed Wonder, Madame Ze Vetch, the Spider-Lady, The Trail of the Faultless Faculty, The Fish Pond and other attractions. The circus managers are planning a merry-go-round as a special added feature.

Come, see the fun! Balloons and confetti (aptly called shrapnel) will add to the excitement of the spectators. Lemonade, popcorn, peanuts, and ice cream will give many smiles to hungry people. Give yourself a good time for a little money! The Junior Circus Company promises a fine entertainment to all comers. Be early March 12th or you may be too late to get in!

THE CAMPUS AS IT USED TO BE.

Would You Recognize Agnes Scott?

Have you ever wondered how the Agnes Scott campus used to look before it looked as it does to-day?

The college—then the Academy—was begun in White House, which stood where Main building is now. The White House building was moved to its present location and rented as a private home when Main was built.

A street then ran along in front of Dr. Gaine's home and in front of where Inman Hall and White House now are, and that part of the campus was not college land at all, but private property, belonging to various people. The present Infirmary stood next to Dr. Gaine's house, about in the middle of the path that now leads from Science Hall to Candler street.

West Lawn originally stood about where Rebekah Scott Hall now is, but was moved to where the Library now is and the car line ran just back of it and turned down the street in front of the Infirmary and Dr. Gaine's home and ended about in front of the White House. It was in the next few years that Inman Hall and Rebekah Scott Hall were built and in 1910 the Science Hall was erected.

When the Library was realized as a future building West Lawn was

JUNIOR BASKET-BALL TEAM.

ATHLETIC SITUATION IN GENERAL.

Though Agnes Scott College is not in a basket-ball association, she has been having a very interesting series of inter-class games. The class standing so far is, Seniors 1,000, Sophomores .600, Freshmen .600, Juniors .200, and Irregulars .000.

The Irregulars have a plucky team and have put up a hard fight for every game. The lack of average by no means registers failure. The Juniors have a hard-fighting team, too, and have never lost a game with a landslide. The Sophomores and Freshmen are about evenly matched, as percentages show, both having good team work. The Seniors, however, have perhaps the best team Agnes Scott has ever seen. The team work is excellent and has been the means of their perfect record. They have already secured such a lead that first place is inevitably theirs. This means ten points for the class athletic club given every year. This victory, added to the ten points gained in hockey, puts the Seniors on the road toward winning the athletic cup, too.

There is some wonderful individual players, as seen in the basket-ball contests. Peck as Freshman forward is a wonderful goal thrower. Thomas from the same team is a fine side center. McClure is a great Sophomore forward. Stevens is a fine asset to the Junior team as jumping center. McLaughlin is a marvelous Senior forward. Gene McAlister is a fine guard. When the time comes to pick the six best players for the honorary school team, some of these girls will be sure to receive this signal tribute.

The last basket-ball game to be played next week will be an unusual affair. A team picked from players residing in Rebekah Scott and Main will be matched by one taken from Inman, the cottages, and the Day Students. Necessarily evenly matched teams, they will have a difficult time determining upon the victor. Everyone is looking forward with much pleasurable anticipation to the contest, which will end by far the best basket-ball season Agnes Scott has ever had.

SENIORS DEFEAT IRREGULARS.

Larger Attendance at Games Urged.

On last Friday night the basket-ball devotees gathered in the gym to witness the Senior-Irregular game. Both classes put forth their best players, who were:

Seniors.
H. Wayt F. C. Agee
A. Twitty C. A. Brewer
B. Floding G. C. Newton

Irregulars.
Ruth Brown M. McFall
M. Kelly C. J. Alexander
J. Landrum G. M. Neal

The first half of the game was evenly divided but in the last half the Seniors "walked away" with everything. After the final quarter, the score was 45-26, favoring the Seniors. Since the season is nearing its close, everyone is interested in the final outcome.

The crowds that watch the games are not very large. There would be much more class spirit and much better playing if the players felt that the entire class was behind them. Everybody come out to the next game. It's going to be a dandy.

MAY DAY PLANS PROGRESSING RAPIDLY.

ful background to the main ideas of the story.

Miss Wade and Miss Wilburn, who have charge of the program, have begun work in earnest on the dances. All of these are to be new and promise to be more beautiful than ever before. The music for the dances was written for the occasion by Mr. Dieckmann, the head of the music department, and is of such a nature as to charm the audience and give inspiration to those taking part. The costumes also will add much to the beauty of the various scenes. Alice Jones, as chairman of the committee, is planning for many beautiful and artistic costumes for Pandora and her Companions.

One of the best features of the May Day festivities is the fact that all the Agnes Scott girls will have a chance to try-out for the dances. One hundred and fifty girls are to be chosen at the try-outs on the fourteenth of March. Two hundred and fifty girls were applicants for the honor of dancing in last year's May Day festival, and it is hoped that as many or even more will take an interest in the affair this year. Those who are to take the principal parts have not been selected yet, but will be announced soon. The election of the May Queen is another event looked forward to with interest.

All in all, May Day promises to be better this year than ever before. Great interest is being taken in the affair by the students and members of the faculty. With such a scenario, such dances, music and beautiful costumes, the festival cannot fail to be a success in every way.

SPOKEN ENGLISH DEPARTMENT GIVES RECITAL.

We are indebted to Miss Gooch and the Spoken English Department for a delightful recital given in the chapel last Saturday night. This is the second recital given by the pupils of the Spoken English classes this year. Some of the students on the program were reciting for the first time in public, and by their performance we judge they experienced no qualms of stage-fright on making their first appearance. Some were more experienced, having previously taken parts in Blackfriar plays. Most of those who recited were upper-classmen, but there were a few Freshmen on the list.

The numbers were all interesting and well rendered, and were greatly enjoyed by those fortunate enough to be present.

The program was as follows:
"In Pursuit of Old English"—Jean Webster—Frances Amis.
"The Gipsy Trail"—Jean Webster—Frances Oliver.
"The Reformation of Kid McCoy"—Jean Webster—Virginia Pottle.
"The One-Legged Goose"—F. Hopkinson Smith—Roberta Love.

AGGIE'S FUNNY BONE

"Now, boys, said the Sunday school teacher, "our lesson to-day teaches us that if we are good, we will die and go to a place of everlasting bliss. But if we are bad, what do you suppose will happen to us?"

"We'll go to a place of everlasting blister," said the bright little boy.

A little girl was talking to her doggie: "Now, Bingo, stop following me everywhere. You know I'm tired of being watched. There's nurse and the governess, and if I escape them, there's always my guardian angel!"

ZOO LOGIC.

A dog with a fine pedigree Was anxious to go to Paree. "I could go any day," He would frequently say, "But my bark isn't rigged for the sea."

A rabbit was caught in a gale, Accompanied by lightning and hail. "I wonder," he said, "How long I'd be dead, If my life was as short as my tail."

A lion, exceedingly vain, Took a walk on a palm-covered plain; "I am certain," said he, "I could climb up a tree If I tried with my might and my mane."

An elephant, visibly shrunk, Sat down on a pile of old junk, "They may say I am weak," He said with a squeak, "But I am able to carry my trunk." —"Black and Blue Jay."

Teacher—"What did the reign of Charles I teach us?"

Pupil—"Please, Sir, not to lose our heads in moments of excitement."

"Gollie saxa in muro ponebant et hostes fugiebant."

"I'll bite. Why?" "Because it would be nothing above 10 cents."—Pingle Cow.

She nodded sweet permission. So they went to press, and I rather guess, They printed a whole edition.

ELECTIONS TO BE HELD FRIDAY.

"In the spring a young man's fancy"—yes, we know where it turns, but in the spring a young girl's fancy—well, maybe it does turn in the same direction, but, anyway, we know another direction in which Agnes Scott girls' minds turn, and that is to spring elections. About the first of March every year we begin to hear whispered about on the campus, "Who do you think will make a good president of Student Government?" and "Who are you going to nominate for editor of the Agonistic?" and remarks of like significance, for election of officers for Student Government, Y. W. C. A., publications, etc., come off about the middle of the month. There are so many and such different kinds of offices to be filled, that the elections include every type of girl. For this reason, a whole week elapses between the time nominations are posted and the date set for elections, to give the students time to carefully consider each nominee and be sure of voting for the one best fitted for the position. FIVE GIRLS MADE FULL MEMBERS OF BLACK- FRIARS.

Miss Sutphen Honorary Member.

At the last meeting of the executive board of Blackfriars it was voted to make the following girls full members, in view of their excellent work in the organization: The girls are Ruth Pirkle, Frances Oliver, Polly Stone, Eleanor Hyde and Margaret Hay.

It was also decided to ask Miss Sutphen to be an honorary member of the organization. Miss Sutphen has done a great deal to make Blackfriars successful, and has never been too busy to lend her help in any need. Blackfriars recognizes her service by asking her to become an honorary member.

Chapters To Be Established At Other Colleges.

There are ten young ladies on the campus who are "silver tongued orators," and the wonders that their brains can perform are not surpassed in the least by their tongues. These young ladies, realizing that "in unity there is strength," have organized themselves into an honor society, with the impressive name, Pi Alpha Phi.

The purpose of the organization can be stated in no better form than their own charter does: "The purpose of this organization shall be to form bodies of representative women who shall by their influence and their interest in debating in the true sense of the word, uphold the highest ideals of liberal education; to furnish the highest reward for conscientious and meritorious efforts in furthering the best interest of argumentation by election to membership in this organization." These ideals are in accordance with all the ideals of Agnes Scott, and it is therefore a natural result of the spirit that is prevalent in the college.

The members of the society desire to take the organization into other standard colleges of the South and then later make of it a national organization. The founders of the local organization wish especially to organize other societies in Randolph-Macon and Sophie Newcomb as a means of reward for the intercollegiate debaters.

The ten girls who have been chosen for membership are Cama Burgess, president; Quenelle Harrold, vice-president; Anna Marie Landress, secretary; Caroline Agee, Charlotte Bell, Nell Buchanan, Eleanor Carpenter, Frances Charlotte Markley, Ruth Scandrett and Martha Stansfield. They were chosen for membership by the faculty members of the Debating Council, from the preliminary debates as the ten best debaters.

From these girls four speakers and the alternates are to be chosen for the intercollegiate debates. All of these students, whether chosen for the team or not, are doing a great service to the college. In the future the membership of the society is not to exceed twice the number in the debating teams, thus making a society whose membership will be a real honor.

The pins are lovely. They were designed by Frances Charlotte Markley. The background of the pin is

Cora Connett Chosen May Queen

Elected By Large Majority.

The really big question of the spring term—who is to be May Queen—has been decided. After the ballots had been counted Cora Connett was found to have been elected by a large majority.

There are so many attractive girls among the Seniors with queenly traits, that we had to put our thinking caps on in order to decide just which one was the most beautiful and possessed the largest number of these queenly traits.

It is not a hard and fast rule that the queen shall be a blonde, but most of us associate the two together, and this spring, as has happened for many springs past, a blonde has been chosen.

Cora is really the embodiment of all that the queen of our May carnival should be, and we are all looking eagerly forward to that day and to witnessing the pageant which will be given before Cora.

JUNIOR CIRCUS COMPANY SCORES AGAIN.

Large Crowd Watched Big Three Ring Show.

All the old girls were quite excited over the arrival of Junior Brothers Circus Company at Agnes Scott Saturday night. They saw it last year, so knew how good it was going to be. They talked so much about it that the Freshmen became interested, too. The consequences were that the "gym" was overflowing last Saturday night.

Crowds began coming in at about eight o'clock. The main entrance was the side door. From there the people went down the side and in the first corner was the ticket booth. The gym was transformed into a real circus tent, with straw over the floor and every kind of animal imaginable.

As at most circuses, before the performance began, ice cream, peanuts, pink lemonade, and pop corn were sold. Cries of the side shows could be heard on every side, and while eating the peanuts and candy everybody took in at least one of these. Some of the most fascinating and marvelous ones were Gwendiline, the four-handed prodigy, Sibylina, the spider lady, Madam Zeirtch, the fortune teller, and Winnie, the snake charmer. Each of these wonderful performances could be seen for only a nickel.

At about eight forty-five the main circus began. The parade was the first feature. There were numerous animals, including giraffes, lions, tig-

Intercollegiate De- baters Chosen

Landress, Buchanan, Markley and Bell.

On Thursday the intercollegiate debaters were chosen from the members of the Pi Alpha Phi, the honorary debating club of Agnes Scott. The debaters were chosen by the faculty members of the Debating Council, Dr. Armistead, Miss McKinney, Miss Hearon and Miss Gooch. The girls who have been selected are A. M. Landress, N. Buchanan, F. C. Markley, and C. Bell. The alternates are Q. Harrold and E. Carpenter.

Everybody is behind these girls who have been chosen as our representatives, and we are certainly proud of them.

Unusual enthusiasm combined with splendid effort has made it particularly hard for the judges to decide on the intercollegiate debaters this year. All during the fall both Propyleans and Mnemosyneans spent much time at the library in Atlanta as well as at the college, and some exceedingly warm and highly entertaining discussions were held on Thursday afternoon.

The question for the intercollegiate contest is, "Resolved, That in every railroad controversy threatening the public convenience, the Railroad Labor Board as constituted in the Act of 1920, be required by law to make an investigation of the case and render a decision binding on all parties to the dispute." The date of the debate is undecided, but expected to be either the eighth or twenty-second of April. Agnes Scott will meet Sophie Newcomb here and will send one team to Randolph-Macon to debate on the same evening. The debaters are looking to every member of the student body for loyal support, knowing that with all of Agnes Scott back of them the victory can not fail to come their way.

DR. KIMBALL TO LECTURE ON MARCH 25TH.

Subject Will Be Mexico.

We have had the pleasure of hearing several distinguished speakers at Agnes Scott College this year, because of the efforts of our Lecture Association. Again we are to have a noted speaker with us to lecture in the chapel. Dr. Emmett Kimball, professor of education in Smith College, will lecture on Mexico on March 25th.

Dr. Kimball is sent out by the Institute of International Education. At this time when there are so many changes taking place in Mexico, and there has been so much discussion about the progress and development of that country, we will find this lecture very interesting and instructive. Dr. Kimball is very noted for his work in the study of Mexico and has a great number of things to tell us. We are looking forward to his coming with pleasure.

Because of the subject of his lecture and his ability as a speaker he will be welcomed at Agnes Scott by a large audience. After the lecture there will be a reception in Rebekah Scott lobby, when an opportunity will be given to all outsiders and Agnes Scott girls to meet Dr. Kimball and talk to him. This is not one of the series of lectures provided by the Agnes Scott College Lecture Association, but it is arranged by the Class in History IX.

THE ETERNAL FEMININE AND SPRING CLOTHES.

Picture, if you can, a room at Agnes Scott where books and studying are thrust out of sight to give way to the more important things of life. More important? Yes, it is but another case where the combined forces of springtime and that beset-

EDITORIALLY SPEAKING

HOW THE CLASSES FEEL ABOUT ELECTIONS.

Elections is the all-absorbing topic of the day now at Agnes Scott, and their importance cannot be stressed too much. Every class should feel its responsibility in voting for the right girl—from the most dignified Senior to the greenest Freshman of them all.

Below are a few words for the girls from the representatives of every class:

FROM THE SENIOR.

Since it is a common error to confuse a girl's popularity with her ability to hold office, it is necessary to think very carefully before taking part in the elections. While it is the usual case that most college officers are popular, a girl's qualification should be taken into consideration. It is often very hard for us, who have a certain wonderful friend, not to put that friend up for some office. At the same time, perhaps, there is a girl who would fill the position admirably, but we don't care much about her and therefore we won't vote for her. Is this the attitude of a college woman? If we are not big and honorable in politics in college, how will we help politics in later life. Can you not rise above prejudice and dislike of a girl and give her the square deal when she should have the office? Don't vote for your roommate just because she is your roommate. Don't put up a girl for office just because she is in your crowd.

Then if there is no prejudice on your part and perhaps some doubt, select the girl who most thoroughly represents her Alma Mater as well as fits all the requirements. Let's remember that a great deal of our college life depends on its leaders, and that every leader should have the very highest standards of qualifications.

THE JUNIOR'S OPINION.

Elections bring a distinct challenge to Juniors, and consequently we approach them with a realization of our responsibility and a determination to shoulder that responsibility well. It is our first year, as upper-classmen, and remembering how much we were influenced by the attitude of Juniors when we were Freshmen, we know that the way we think about elections and talk about elections will play its part in the outcome. And we are aware of the importance of the outcome. In the three years we have been here we have seen what the success of each organization means to the college as a whole and to each individual in the college community. Now, whether or not our organizations are to be successful next year depends, to a great extent, on the girls who are to be at the head of each one. And so we are giving much of our time and thought to possible officers, trying to determine which girl will be best for each place.

Elections challenge Juniors, also, in that they remind us of the fact that we are soon to be Seniors, that out of our class come the girls who are to influence the lives of all of us next year, that to our entire class comes the privilege and the responsibility of carrying on. We know that each Junior is meeting the challenge fairly and that the outcome will be well.

WHAT THE SOPHOMORE THINKS.

"The Sophomore Class is the grandest class in school to-day." We have sung this song with enthusiasm, now let us act in accordance with it.

Last year, when we were Freshmen, many of us voted in the elections as we did, because of suggestions from the "old girls." However, this year, since we are familiar with the school, the girls, and our needs, let us take the elections seriously and put much thought into our decisions. Since we are a large class our vote will be of great importance. Let us choose the worthiest and most efficient girls for the places. We realize the importance of each office, so we must give each due thought. Now is our time to show Agnes Scott she can always depend on us to do the right thing. Many of us have our special friends among the student body for whom we would like to vote or feel compelled to put into office. But the Sophomores must rise above this; let us remember that because a girl is a good friend it doesn't necessarily mean she will fill an office well. Each office has its peculiar importance, yet there is a girl on the campus fit for each office. Let us find her.

Remember your votes, Sophomores, determine the happiness of Agnes Scott for next year!

AND NOW THE FRESHMAN.

Now with the coming of spring, there comes one of the most important events of the college year, the election of officers for the coming year. This will be the first election in which we Freshmen will take part. Let us show how much we have learned of the Agnes Scott spirit by our interest in this election. We all realize its importance, for upon the leaders we choose at this time will depend the sort of Agnes Scott we will have next year.

Y. W. C. A. NEWS

PAY YOUR PLEDGES.

Now is the time to pay all that is due on your Y. W. C. A. pledges. Elections are nearby and a new treasurer will soon go into office. It would not be fair to her to give her old business to attend to, or unbalanced books; so help her by filling the treasury now and by doing away with overdue pledges.

Y. W. C. A. SERVICE ON MARCH 6.

The service on March 6th was unusually attractive. Beth McClure presided and the trio of the Choral Society gave a selection. Miss Emma Jones gave a very interesting talk as a follow-up talk to Miss Conde's meetings. She told us how different our lives would look if we could see them from a distance and from a new point of view. She told us again

SILHOUETTE OUT FIRST WEEK IN APRIL.

Many New Features Will Come As a Surprise.

Not much longer to wait for our annuals now—and won't that be a grand and glorious feeling when we get them and proudly display to admiring friends and relatives our becoming countenances on its pages!

Of course some of us will be rather a minus quantity, not being athletic enough to be in the picture of the hockey team, or literary enough to be in the picture of K. U. B., or dramatic enough for Blackfriars, but at least we have the consolation of knowing that we'll be in the pictures of the classes, and that's better than not being in at all.

And then won't it be great fun to read all the class histories and things, and see the sketches by these noted artists of ours! Although we may not have our own names signed to these, when we go home we perhaps can point to one or two of them and say proudly, "Uh-huh, my best friend did that," and then our families will be so proud of us to be discriminating enough to choose geniuses for friends.

And we can have the pleasure of reviewing our annuals and eagerly perusing them the first week in April. Everything about it seems to be a secret, but they say there are going to be lots of surprises, and of course everybody likes surprises. It's a mighty good thing we haven't much longer to wait for our annuals, for curiosity killed a cat, and we are all mighty curious about them!

LAST BUT NOT LEAST—IRREGULARS.

Girls, our chance has come at last! All this year we've been trying to show A. S. C. that we Irregulars know how to show our college spirit. Well, Friday is the day to "put to," so to speak. It's the "big" day, and we want to show how much we have in us.

What is it? V-O-T-E! We are all going to vote, and then vote some more, if necessary. Of course you all going to vote, and then vote some but perhaps you haven't realized how much it means to us. Lots of folks on the campus think we're just "Rambler's Recks," with just "enough" to make it a "dangerous thing." Perhaps we can't succeed in making them realize the vast capacity of our cranium, but we can show them that those who exhibit the "Better to Be an Irregular at A. S. than a Regular Somewhere Else" slogan know how to vote.

Another little thing that we are going to make some regulars do is to change their minds if they happen to hold a certain opinion, which opinion is that we do not know what girls to vote for and why.

Come on, girls, we'll all be seeing each other with thoughtful countenances next Friday.

But perhaps we do not realize our own importance in the election. We have been here less than a year, but we have been here long enough to learn to appreciate the Agnes Scott spirit. We should realize our individual responsibility in upholding this spirit. Our vote is as important as anyone's. We must consider the nominees carefully and decide which is best for each office.

Freshmen, let us uphold our reputation and show our college spirit by voting fairly and intelligently on election day.

some of the things we have heard in different ways that will make our lives more worth while. Everyone felt helped by the suggestions made by Miss Jones. After the service was over Miss Carrie Sue Campbell, of Richmond, Va., who has just returned from a trip to the Orient, gave a short talk. Miss Campbell has visited practically every Southern Presbyterian mission in Korea, China, and Japan. She wore an elaborate Chinese suit and told us some of her experiences in traveling and some of the things she had found the girls of the Orient lack.

CABINET TRAINING COUNCIL.

It is time for the present officers and cabinet members to go out of office and new ones to be elected. Immediately after elections a new Cabinet will be chosen. These girls will find that there are a number of things they want to know. The place to learn those things is at the Cabinet Training Council at Wesleyan College, in Macon, April 1-4. The entire Agnes Scott Cabinet will attend this Training Council in preparation for next year's work.

NATIONAL SECRETARY COMING SOON.

The Y. W. C. A. has been informed that if enough girls were interested in doing Y. W. C. A. work after leaving college, a National Secretary would come to interview them. It has been found that at least eight of our girls are thinking of taking up this line of work, and are anxiously awaiting their appointments with the National Secretary, who has agreed to visit us soon.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT NEWS.

The regular Student Government meeting was held after supper last Tuesday evening. Time limit is now 6:15.

Girls were asked not to order things from the drug stores to be charged to the account of other girls, because confusion about accounts has come up in that way.

The question about having dinner in the evening will be decided by college council soon.

It was decided at the last meeting of college council to allow the Sophomores to have one other date a week besides Saturday.

SONG MATCH BETWEEN INMAN AND REBEKAH.

Which has the most vocal pep, Inman or Rebekah Scott? This all-absorbing question has been settled once for all. Tuesday, March the 15th, the regular Student Government Sing was turned over to the pep-contest. Dell Bernhardt was the Rebekah Scott song leader, and Eleanor Hyde was the Inman leader. The rafters fairly shook when the wave of song broke forth. No sing has ever been so vociferous, so enthusiastic, perhaps because for the first time a spirit of rivalry was given a chance to display itself. Several new songs were rendered, some of which were enough of a success to warrant being written in the blank pages in the back of our new song book.

Ruth Hall says she had the time of her life watching this sing, and that she may let us have other song matches soon.

GIDDIE GOSSIP

My Dearest Aggie:

I'm just so full of romance that I don't know whether I can come down out of the clouds long enough to write you all about it or not. My romance? Why, whatever gave you that idea? You know it isn't!! Really there are several people on the campus who just act so dreamy-like 'till there's no doubt that they've been hit hard. Now there's Helen C., for instance; she's rushing around having dates with her fiance every day—well you see, Bobbie's here on a visit and you can see out-of-town men "oftener" than others. Well, I wouldn't say Elbert hadn't a chance, that would be putting it too strong, but if he did lose out there are many maidens who would be willing to be the target of his attentions. And speaking of romances, Ruth P. can't be satisfied with being noted as the cutest girl in the school—no, sir! She has to be popular, too! Oh, yes, she hears from Jack every day and he sends her more candy. It's the real thing, Aggie, but no less so than Cora F. M.'s affair. His name is Joe and she wears his pin and it's awfully serious, Aggie. You ought to hear her speak of him, so sweet and shy kinder.

Mary M.'s was very thrilling, too. He came riding, riding, riding (on the train) from the hills of far New Hampshire with hope in his heart and a smile on his face. (I think this is better than Shakespeare, don't you, Aggie?) But now he's wended his way wearily west—I mean northward, his hopes crushed and the ring in his pocket. After all, sometimes the course of true love doesn't run smoothly.

Catherine W. wasn't going to let anyone get ahead of her, so she promptly vamped a Tech man and had an afternoon date and went to town with him the other day. And that's not all! He was so captivated that he's coming again this very week.

I told you I had lots of news, didn't I, Aggie? But you ain't heard nothing yet—anyway I've just begun!! Have you heard about how sentimental the Emory boys have been acting lately? Well, the other day J. J. had a letter in her box addressed to the secretary of the Junior class, and it was from some boy at Emory. He said he picked out the secretary because secretaries were supposed to answer all correspondence promptly. Now Aggie, you know that was cute, wasn't it? And Susie Reid had about twenty-five calls from one Emory boy in one afternoon. He was anxious for that date, wasn't he? And have you heard about Ruth H.? Well, her brother's a K. A. at Emory and all the boys in the chapter call her "Little Sister," and they're so nice to her; they come to see her and even write real often, too. Now, Aggie dear, between you'n me'n the potted plant, I'd be willing to let them call me "Great Uncle" if it brought such popularity with it.

And speaking of popular people—well, L. D. S. came strolling nonchalantly out of Main the other day with a perfectly huge box of flowers under her arm, reading the enclosed note so calmly that it proved flowers were an everyday affair with her. But Aggie, if a man ever sent me one dandelion I'd dance all over school and let everybody know it, and that's the truest word I ever spoke!

And Liz—! One man's coming from the University of Virginia to see her and another one from Jacksonville, Fla., in the same week. Here's hoping the rivals don't appear on the same day. That would be hard on Liz.

And say—did you hear how popular our delegates to the Student Volunteer Convention were? Yes, they say Vic was the most popular thing you ever heard of.

I sent you the names of our "Who's Who" contest and you remember who got second place for prettiest? Well, a certain love-stricken youth in Atlanta informed this young lady that even if she was engaged he was coming to see her, if she was not married in a year, no matter where she would be. Think of such devotion!

Elma S., ever since Monday night has been considering a major in math., and really "Montgomery" better look out, or "Chattanooga" will beat her time.

Beth McClure and Frances Stuart have been wearing smiles as bright as their hair—why? Because they've had their mothers here.

Ella says she gets plenty of "Copy-book" practice, posting phone calls for girls, and one who gets so many is M. McDow. Her calls come from the Ansley and "high-toned" places like that. Julia W.'s man wanted to look over the campus, so Julia showed him all around Saturday afternoon, and he was charmed with the view. (He looked at Julia all the time!)

Everyone is so happy looking and they go around singing all the time. No one can beat Polly, though, she is taking lessons on the mandolin so she can accompany herself.

When we get to having dinner at night and dances by our Cotillion Club we'll be laying good foundations for a regular charm school, won't we, Aggie?

Your own loving

GIDDIE.

P. S. As you can believe, A. S. C. is just like a "Love nest."

for appliques came in for a generous share of attention.

On the table there was an assortment of hat frames, and a great array of silks, and ribbons, and flowers, and a bunch of big red cherries that were destined to droop demurely about the piquant face of a chic little Agnes Scotter. You know, there is a superstition that cherries, when worn "just so," are very effective in winning hearts. Now, who could be this young person who was overheard to say that she "Just must have cherries on her hat because—oh, well, she—she always had liked gay things?"

So, there is a chance, it seems, that Agnes Scott will send out from her portals not only examples of intellect and brilliant studiousness, but a representation, as well, of these so-called "charming young women" who still think frequently of the eternal question of how to dress well, and who can economize on a young husband's limited income by making their own dresses and hats.

AGNES SCOTT PRESENTS BLUE RIDGE IDEA TO COMMERCIAL HIGH SCHOOL.

Monday afternoon, March 7, seven of the Agnes Scott girls went in to the Commercial High School in Atlanta and presented the subject of Blue Ridge to the students there.

The invitation to appear at Commercial High came through Jean McAlister, who has a club of girl reserves there and is interested in relating the school to any outside activities.

Nine of our very peppiest and most enthusiastic girls were present. Most of them had been to Blue Ridge and the others are planning to go this year. Ruth Hall made a short speech in which she told what Blue Ridge really is and what it stands for, after which some colored slides of Robt. E. Lee Hall and the beautiful mountain scenery at Blue Ridge were exhibited.

The big feature of the meeting was when our nine Agnes Scott girls went up on the stage and sang "Rig-a-gig-gig," "Hottentot," and others of our favorites, and then some rousing Blue Ridge songs.

Those girls who were present were Frances Harper, Cama Burgess, Margaret McLaughlin, Ruth Hall, Peg Bell, Frances Gilliland, Betty Floding, Charlotte Newton, and Marguerite Watkins.

ALUMNAE

Visitors of the Past Week.

Julia Lake Skinner returned last week to pay her old home a visit. It seemed like old times to see Julia's bright smile, and her arm around Ellen Wilson, her former Sophomore Sister. Julia graduated from Agnes Scott in 1919. She is now doing girl's work in the Presbyterian Church in Nashville, Tenn. She is going to attend a Bible school, and is planning, in a few years, to take this wonderful work abroad. Julia is just the kind of girl to do that, so here are three cheers for her!

Our other visitor is the beloved "Little Country" Lucy Dun. She graduated from Agnes Scott in 1919, and was president of Student Government. "Little Country" has recently returned from an extended visit to England, and it was mighty fine to have her with us for a few days.

There are some things we never tire of around here, and those things are alumnae visitors.

ting sin of woman—the absorbing "clothes question"—came into predominance, and by their natural right.

To be more specific—a real, sure enough sewing machine over against the window clicked and stitched away, as the center of attention, on pink gingham ruffles. Grouped about it were the "models" cheerfully allowing themselves to be draped and "fitted." And the bed spreads were in grave danger of being spliced by daring scissors which traveled recklessly through lengths and breadths of gingham in all the shades of rose and blue, green and lavender, and what not. Tiny patches of color cut in curious shapes indicated that gingham were not alone in favor; ers, rabbits, monkeys, and elephants. After the parade the animals did some tricks. They were all well trained and the audience marveled at their feats.

Next came the acrobatic stunts. These were quite daring, and more than once did people hold their breath for fear the actor would come to some bad end.

But perhaps the most interesting part of the circus came last. This was the Wild West show. A circus is never quite complete without a Wild West show, and this one was fine. There were all kinds of bronchos and many experienced cow boys. It was as good as a real Buffalo Bill performance.

After the main show was over the crowd again began to swarm into the side shows. The fortune teller, especially, was rushed, for nobody wanted to leave without getting a peep into the future. The animals were also seen again and it was not until time for the lights to go out that the crowd began to disperse. Everybody agreed that they had had a fine time, and that they wished circus day came oftener at Agnes Scott!

AGNES SCOTT STAGES GEORGIA-TECH BASKET-BALL GAME.

The anticipation of the basket-ball fans reached its height when they witnessed the "Georgia-Tech" game Friday, March 11. A large crowd came out and rooted vigorously for their favorite "school." For the time being, Georgia in Inman and the cottages, and Tech claims Rebekah Scott and Main. Everyone awaited the game with expectancy and no one was disappointed.

The Georgia stars are:

Centers—A. Stephens, A. Meade.

Side Centers—A. Thomas, G. Spruell, W. Peck.

Forwards—M. McLaughlin, B. McClure.

Guards—K. Harrell, D. Smith, E. Pou.

The Tech stars are:

Centers—A. Brewer, V. Howie.

Side Centers—Roberta Love, E. Hoke.

Forwards—H. Wayt, M. Hay, N. Evans.

Guards—L. Moriarty, A. Whipple, J. McAlister.

Though these teams haven't had so very much practice, both showed that they were made up of star players. A lot of pep and enthusiasm helped the players. Both the losers and the winners deserve honorable mention. Though the crowds are better, the bleachers are far from full.

One of the Tech players thrilled the crowd with her long-distance throwing. She made several baskets that fairly made the spectators hold their breath. There are only a few more games. Come and see them.

TENNIS TOURNAMENT BEGINS.

The tennis tournament has at last begun, and everybody that knows how to hold a tennis racquet has signed up on the bulletin board in Main Building. The classes are playing among themselves first, and the winners of the class singles and doubles will be given numerals. Then the winners will play each class and the victorious ones, also singles and doubles, will receive cups, and the title of "Champion Tennis Players of Agnes Scott College."

Some difficulty has been found in keeping the courts straight after they have been signed for, so players are requested never to erase names from the board. The board will be erased each night and then courts may be signed up for the next day. It is hoped that this system will do away with the confusion about who has which court signed up for when.

IRREGULARS TO RECEIVE NUMERALS.

At last the Irregular Class is to reap the reward of its staunch support of athletics! At the end of the basket-ball season, the irregulars who have played in four or more games are to receive a badge of recognition made of felt. Not a numeral, for the Irregular Class doesn't know what year it will graduate, but a great big question mark, ?, will tell the campus just which of our gallant Irregulars have shown themselves true athletes.

ROSA PONSELLE SINGS AT AUDITORIUM.

Many Agnes Scott Girls Attend.

Music lovers of Atlanta were delighted Monday night, March 14th, with the concert of Rosa Ponselle, new Metropolitan soprano. This was Ponselle's third appearance in Atlanta. The first occasion was year before last, when she played in "Cavaleria Rusticana." Then last year she achieved great success in "La Juive," both times in the role opposite Caruso.

Those who heard Ponselle last year and again Monday night feel that her voice has become even more beautiful. Her tones are rich, firm and full of color; her voice has great range and power. Ponselle's voice was especially wonderful in the aria from the "Forces of Destiny" and "La Gioconda."

Miss Ponselle has said that of all her roles, that in "The Force of Destiny" is her favorite. "Perhaps," she added, "because it was the one in which I had my first opportunity." Besides a beautiful voice, Miss Ponselle has a lovely personality and charming manner. She has become a favorite of the Atlanta audiences, and her return with the Metropolitan Opera Company in April is awaited with much pleasure.

William Tyroler, famous accompanist of Amato, Martinelli and other artists, accompanied Ponselle. Mr. Tyroler rendered with wonderful touch and great feeling the popular "Isolde's Love—Death," from Wagner's Tristram and Isolde.

The story of the rise of the new opera singer is most interesting. Several years ago she was singing in vaudeville in Atlanta with her sister, a fine contralto. Deciding that she wished to rise higher, Ponselle went to the vocal coach who had trained Galli-Curci. Her coach told Caruso of his new "find," and through Caruso Miss Ponselle was admitted to the Metropolitan. She is the first and only soprano admitted to the Metropolitan without previous training in lesser companies. In fact Ponselle at that time had no opera training. The name Rosa Ponselle now ranks with the greatest sopranos of the Metropolitan Company.

have liked them if she hadn't been credulous and accepted your verdict. This is a minor instance, but you hear a dozen or more every day.

Why not let the world be cheerful? It's so prone to be "bored" and "indifferent" and "tired out." Tense eagerness is never an equivalent for eager content. An Englishman got on a street car, and he saw a woman holding a baby sitting across the aisle. The baby was extremely ugly, and the man was fascinated. Finally the woman became angry at the stares of the man, and she turned to him and said—"Rubber!"

He was unaware that the word was a Yankee expression for "stare." "Thank goodness," he said, "I thought it was real."

He: "Do you like indoor sports?"
She: "Yes, if they know when to go home."

An absent-minded professor entered his room. One of the boys had crawled under his bed. As the "Prof." entered, the boy sneezed.

The professor started, and said: "Is there anyone in this room?"
"No, sir," answered the boy.

A VEGETABLE COMPOUND.

One of the students recently picked up the following letter on the campus:

"Dearest Violet:
"Do you carrot all for me? My bleeding heart beets for you. My love is as soft as a squash, but as strong as an onion. You are a peach with your raddish hair and turnip nose. Student Officers Elected For 1921-1922

All Places Wisely Filled.

Every good citizen of Agnes Scott was present at the polls (otherwise the chapel) Friday, March 18, at 2 p. m. The important business of electing officers for 1921-22 was on hand and Lab was postponed an hour so that everyone might be present on this important occasion. A great deal of interest was shown and many thrills experienced. All the girls realized that whomever they put in office would mean a great deal to the college during the coming year.

After numerous searchings of the ceiling in meditation, with pens suspended, consequent feeling of assurance, hasty scribbling of names, much hearty applause, and the passing of several hours the new officers were duly elected. The student body is to be congratulated on the splendid choice of student officers. Here's to our officers! We pledge them our loyalty and support.

PI ALPHA PHI ENTERTAINS INTERCOLLEGIATE DEBATORS.

Tea Given in Silhouette Tea Room.

The Intercollegiate Debaters were entertained at a tea Tuesday afternoon given by the other members of the Pi Alpha Phi Debating Society. Tea and sandwiches were served. Many compliments were given on the appearance of the tea room. The report from everyone was "a mighty good time."

Too much cannot be done for these girls on whom Agnes Scott is depending to bring back the silver cup. This Debating Society is not only doing its share in the making of "silver tongued orators," but also in the honoring of those girls chosen as the debaters who shall represent us at Randolph-Macon and Sophie Newcomb.

Miss Monroe Addresses Students On "Poetry"

To Be Entertained at Reception Afterwards.

Miss Harriet Monroe, of Chicago, addressed the college community last Wednesday night on the subject of "Modern Poetry." Miss Monroe, a poet and critic herself, and the editor of the well-known magazine, "Poetry," gave to us a clearer conception and deeper appreciation of the modern verse than we have had before.

Miss Monroe first gave a sketch of the history of poetry up to the present time, showing the various influences that have their mark on the modern poems. She then read most delightfully some works of the Chicago poets, showing by her interpretation that she has the understanding and appreciation of a true artist.

After the address, the audience was invited to an informal reception given in Miss Monroe's honor in the Rebekah Scott Lobby. Here the students had the opportunity of meeting and talking to one of the outstanding poets of the day.

On Thursday, English XX, the Modern Poetry Class entertained informally for Miss Monroe in the White House dining hall. The poet, critic, editor, was the recipient of much attention during her short stay at the college.

Miss Monroe's presence at Agnes Scott was due to the efforts of our Lecture Association, which has secured for us two other noted speakers during the year, Mr. Dodd, the historian, and Mr. Taft, the sculptor, both of Chicago.

DR. DIVINE SPEAKS ON "OUR FOREIGN OBLIGATIONS."

On Saturday morning, Dr. Divine, a noted sociologist, addressed the students in the chapel on "America in the Light of Our Foreign Obligations." Dr. Divine has been for fifteen years Professor of Sociology in Columbia University. During the war he traveled in Europe addressing the soldiers and studying conditions at that time, and he is known all over the United States as a lecturer of rare force and charm.

Dr. Divine told us in his lecture Saturday morning that America, on account of her mixed population, has foreign obligations that are very real, and Europe looks to America for help in every difficulty. He said that Mr. Hoover had not exaggerated in his reports of the number of people who are actually starving in Europe today, and he made three appeals to us as students.

First. Give. We who are rich must share our wealth with those in Europe and Asia who want the very necessities of life.

Second. Use our influence toward universal disarmament, and establishment of some means of arbitration for the amicable settlement of disputes.

Third. Keep up with the happenings in other countries, understand their significance, and form an opinion as to the advisability of the policies adopted by the governments of the world.

Dr. Divine's forceful statements together with his unusual wit, made him a most attractive speaker, and we consider his address one of the most interesting that we have had the pleasure of hearing this year.

After chapel, Dr. Divine talked with our Intercollegiate Debaters, and gave them many helpful ideas about securing and arranging their material.

When You Know A Fellow

When you get to know a fellow,
Know his joys and know his cares,

When you've come to understand him
And the burdens that he bears,

When you've learned the fight he's making
And the troubles in his way,

Then you find that he is different
Than you thought him yesterday.

You find his faults are trivial
And there's not so much to blame

In the brother that you jeered at
When you only knew his name.

When next you start a sneering
And your phrases turn to blame,

Know more of him you censure
Than his business and his name,

For it's likely that acquaintance
Would your prejudice dispel

But you'd really come to like him
If you knew him very well.

When you get to know a fellow
And you understand his ways,

Then his faults won't really matter,
For you'll find a lot to praise.

Georgia Glee Club Will Sing At Agnes Scott March 23

Jazz Band Especial Feature.

Nightly practices at the University Chapel are rounding into shape the finest show ever produced by the Georgia Glee and Mandolin Club, in anticipation of the two weeks' tour of the state which begins on Monday, March 21. The itinerary is as follows: Winder, March 21; Gainesville, March 22; Agnes Scott, March 23; Columbus, March 24; Barnesville, March 25; Macon, March 26; Tifton, March 28; Valdosta, March 29; Brunswick, March 30; Savannah, March 31; Augusta, April 1; Milledgeville, April 2.

There's no doubt about the show this year being the greatest that the university club has staged—a young Hippodrome. A presentation that will appeal to all has been the aim, and the result has been just that all-comprehensive.

Forty-five handsome youths, with music and fun in their systems that is as contagious as whooping-cough on a side street make up the cast, including John Slaughter and his Jazz Band; Mallon Sheffield, the boy with the guitar that talks; Jones, Carson, Boykin and Rawlinson. Then there is the Sentimental Four, the Saxophone Sextette, and the song bird of the Georgia Four.

Slaughter's Jazz Band is the only real jazz band in a Dixie college. It's the genuine article. The farce extravaganza in one act entitled, "A Night in Cuckoo Land," is rich. And there's no use to dwell on the Sentimental Quartette. It was the hit of the season last year, wherever the boys traveled. Two violins, a guitar, and a cello, it is, which can pour forth harmony that makes you feel cozy all over. Then there's the Glee Club of '17; the Mandolin Club of '17; the Saxophone Sextette; the usual clever black-face comedy—in fact all those things that give the

Mlle. Grolat Addresses French Club

Subject: "Education of French Girls."

Among the rare privileges enjoyed by Agnes Scott this session was the lecture by Mademoiselle Grolat given Friday evening in the Mnemosynean Hall to which the whole student body was invited.

Mademoiselle Grolat is a charming Frenchwoman, with several degrees from various French institutions. She has come to the United States quite recently and has been in Atlanta since November.

Mademoiselle Grolat spoke interestingly on the development of French educational principles and methods, a fact which made her lecture of especial interest to the education classes. Beginning with the story of Saint-Cy, the first girl's school in France founded by Madame de Maintenon in the seventeenth century, Mademoiselle Grolat traced the history of French education to the present day. Incidentally she believes that the greatest thing a teacher of French can do is train the student to speak the language fluently.

After the lecture a delightful reception was tendered Mlle. Grolat in the Y. W. C. A. Cabinet room, at which members of the French Club were present.

DR. KIMBALL TO SPEAK ON REVOLUTION, REACTION, RECONSTRUCTION.

Is Professor at Smith College.

On March 25th Agnes Scott is to have the honor of a visit from Dr. Everett Kimball, the professor of government at Smith College. Dr. Kimball is coming under the auspices of the International Relations Club formed from contemporary history classes. He has decided to change his subject for address, which was at first "Mexico," and will give a talk on "Revolution, Reaction, Reconstruction," which includes some discussion of Mexico.

Everybody is cordially invited to attend this lecture. No admission will be charged. It is a well-known fact that the girl who fails to come to hear Dr. Kimball will miss one of the best treats that Agnes Scott has offered this year.

PATRONIZE OUR ADVERTISERS.

Now that spring is here, our thoughts naturally turn toward new spring clothes, and the various stores in Atlanta at which we can buy them. The Agonistic wants to appeal to every girl to consider first those stores whose interest and generosity makes the publication of this paper possible. It is at those stores from which we secure advertisements, that Agnes Scott girls can be assured of the best service, the most interested attention and the most reasonable prices. Therefore, girls, read the advertisements and patronize our advertisers.

Another thing—when you go into a store that advertises with us, mention the fact that the girls notice and appreciate the advertisements. You can't realize, how much a few words from you can help our paper. Again, if you go into a store that doesn't give the Agonistic an advertisement, make it a point to ask the clerk why it is that they don't ask for our trade, and you may be influential in helping to support the publications.

It isn't much trouble to follow out these suggestions, and it's another way to show school spirit and loyalty. So, girls, patronize our advertisers, and help support the Agonistic.

EDITORIALLY SPEAKING

QUIET.

Every girl in school has a real love for Agnes Scott, and if you'd ask any one of the students on this campus to make a real sacrifice for her college, she would certainly do it. Girls are always ready to do something big to prove their school spirit and their readiness to serve. Since this is true, isn't it strange that we so often fall down on the little duties and trusts, the minor Student Government rules that are so easy to follow implicitly? If we would only realize that it is in our observance or non-observance of these minor regulations that others can judge whether or not we really love our Alma Mater, how much more careful we would be!

One of the Student Government rules that is hardest to enforce is the quiet rule. Now there is not a student here who doesn't know that from seven to nine-thirty, quiet is supposed to be observed, and yet often the noise is so annoying that girls can't study in their rooms at all during that time. Of course we don't mean to break a rule when we run up and down the halls laughing and talking during study hour at night. It is just thoughtlessness, but that is no reason why it should be excused. We are in college now, and it is our business to think, and to uphold the laws which we are on our honor to obey.

The Student Government Association belongs to each of us, and without our co-operation it can never be successful. Can we not realize that our spirit in upholding the laws that we ourselves make, determines the calibre of our entire Association? We can show our school spirit by keeping quiet in the halls just as readily as by giving a large subscription for the betterment of the college, and much more easily. Let's prove to the President of Student Government, to the executive committee, to proctors and to ourselves, that we're behind Student Government in everything.

DO YOU READ THE NEWS-PAPERS?

How many of us really read the newspaper every day?

When Dr. Divine spoke to us last Saturday, he tried to make us realize the importance of keeping up with affairs in the world and of forming an intelligent opinion about the policies of the nations. We are potential voters now, and the responsibility of having an efficient government is going to rest on our shoulders. Now is the time to prepare for this responsibility—and yet a large per cent. of us never look at a newspaper, except the society or sport page of the Constitution.

Of course tests and term papers and lessons keep students mighty busy, but they aren't everything in an education. A B.A. degree is worthless unless we know how to apply the education that we have received, and make use of it in practical everyday life.

If you don't know where the Island of Yap is, read the newspapers. If you wonder what the condition of affairs is in Mexico, in the League of Nations, in the labor world—read the newspapers. Let's don't go out from Agnes Scott with only a lot of theoretical education in our heads, and nothing to help make the world go round.

NEW PEP AT OUR SINGS.

The sings lately have had so much more life and "pep" in them. Previously our sings sounded like we sang just because the time had come to sing. Tuesday night had come, Student Government was over, and therefore it was time to sing. "Miss Agnes" in a mechanically hum-drum fashion would rise, sing "Hottentot" and then depart.

But now can't you just feel a change? Our sings lately have been full of enthusiasm and spirit.

The change is due to two reasons. One reason is a person, the other a thing. The first is Ruth Hall and the last is our new song books. Everybody just feels like singing when they see Ruth just bubbling over with enthusiasm. Then our new song books! Of course we all love our old songs but it is so nice to have others, too.

It isn't very long before the conference will meet here and of course we want everyone to know the songs by then. We should all plan to stay for the sings. They don't take such an awfully long time and just think how much better you feel after you do get back to studying. Now if you don't believe this just stay to our next sing and see how much easier your Latin or English will be for having spent a half hour singing. If for no other reason then to show our cheer leader that we appreciate her untrifling efforts we should try to attend the sings.

NEW OFFICERS ELECTED.

The present hard-worked officers of the Y. W. C. A. are about to be relieved; for new officers have been elected. They are:

President—Ruth Scandrett.
Vice-President—Ruth Hall.
Secretary—Q. Harrold.
Treasurer—Margaret McColgan.

These officers together with Lucia Murchison, Julia Jameson, Beth McClure and Ruth Pirkle selected by them made up the new cabinet. Until spring holidays, they will be in training here for their new duties. From the first of April to the fourth they will attend a conference at Wesleyan. One of the principal speakers there will be Miss Oloah Burner, who will give a series of talks on "The Greatest Things in Christianity." Miss Burner has already been an inspiration to many girls, and the new cabinet members are expecting to profit much by hearing her.

All of us are glad that we can attend this general training school because it helps us to remember that our organization is part of a bigger one. Often we fail to get the inspiration of being in an international Association, because we are so taken up with our own problems that we forget what we are.

The new cabinet commission, composed of all the heads of departments, has not been chosen yet. It is a grave responsibility for the new president to select the best girls for all of these places, and she has to take time for thought. Members of the Commission will probably be announced in the next issue of the Agonistic.

THE NEW AND THE OLD.

We extend our congratulations to the new officers, because their election shows that a majority of the girls in school think they are better fitted than any one else to bear the responsibilities of leadership in the Association. We have confidence in them, and we believe that they will make our Y. W. C. A. better and more influential than it has been in the past. We are ready to pledge them our hearty support in all they want to undertake; we will help them to carry out their ideas.

But in our enthusiasm of looking forward to what is new, we want to stop long enough to thank the old officers for what they have done and have tried to do this year. They have given their time and their energies for the good of the whole community; and still they have the disappointment of having had ideas they could not fully carry out. But let us see to it also that they have the satisfaction of knowing that we appreciate their work.

STUDENT VOLUNTEER SPEAKS IN CHAPEL.

Mr. Fay Campbell, who spoke in chapel last week about the opportunities offered by the foreign mission field, is the traveling secretary of the Student Volunteer Association. It was the Y. W. C. A. which was instrumental in getting him to come here. To those who heard him he made Christian work in foreign countries a real opening for one's energies, to be definitely considered in planning for the future.

BLACKFRIAR INITIATION.

Amuse Old Members.

The Blackfriar initiations are always clever, and the last one, which occurred on the eleventh of this month, was especially so. Of course most of the proceedings are secret, or it wouldn't be a real initiation, but there are a few things which those who are not of this great and glorious organization are permitted to know.

The new members to be initiated were informed by notes beforehand as to what they were to bring to be used in the initiation, and these proved to be a varied and heterogeneous collection—anything from pins onward. After the stunts, which were a source of much amusement and delight to the old members, the new members were pledged, and formally taken into the ancient order of Blackfriars. Then ice cream cones were produced to revive and refresh them.

For some the initiation did not end then, for one new member appeared adorned with a varied assortment of pins of every description, and another wearing different kinds of slippers. It was evident, though, that even if all did not enjoy being initiated, that at least they were proud to become really and truly Blackfriars.

WHERE THE BUDGET MONEY GOES.

If You Haven't Paid Yours, Hurry and Do It.

There are several reasons why we want to explain the budget system. First for those who have felt a little depressed and somewhat depleted after having handed out five dollars to the student treasurer. This class needs to be encouraged and perhaps when they see the many things which they support they will feel like taking heart again.

Secondly, there are those whose idea of finances is very distorted and who think that the college's activities can run on five cents per capita a year. Or to take a more amiable view this class merely wishes to have a business attitude toward life and wishes, therefore, to give an account for the empty pocket book.

Lastly, we are distressed to say that there are those who must be warned as to the serious consequence of not paying the budget. No thrilling tennis games, no swimming, no voting, no place on any college team. How can one forfeit her ballot for the careless mistake of not paying her part in the expenses?

But to be more practical we will get to the point and show you just where "your money" goes.

Two dollars goes to the Student Government Association. Would you forfeit your right to be a free Agnes Scott citizen and be under a faculty regime again? Well, these dues to Student Government are necessary and no organization can run without money.

One dollar and a half ($1.50) goes to the debating society. The society has many expenses such as sending delegates to debates, etc. Then one dollar helps to support the Athletic Association in buying those beautiful purple letters, buying basket-balls, etc.

The Agonistic receives two dollars and a half and surely any one who buys theme paper would never ask why the Agonistic needs money.

One dollar and a half goes to the Aurora and its expenses are similar to the Agonistic. The Annual costs each student five dollars and this is much cheaper than individual copies can be made.

The Y. W. C. A. receives one dollar and the May Day committee fifty cents. Those who realize that so much of our fun comes from these two latter sources will never wish to ask the "reason why" again.

GIDDIE GOSSIP

My Dearest Aggie:

You should have been here last night—we had the grandest serenade by the Decatur boys, oh! that melting tenor and grand bass! You've really never heard such a good blending of voices and they carried so well. We appreciated it but couldn't "speak up and 'spress ourselves" because there's a rule against applause during serenades. We're just hopin' they'll do it again soon—and often!!!

Everyone's tripping the light fantastic toe these days, practicing up for May Day and there's a good deal of talk about chiffon, bloomers, and people coming from afar for the grand event. Mary K., who lives in Atlanta, likes to dance too, but she prefers the Georgian Terrace to Agnes Scott Terrace. Did you ever hear of a boy who was old enough to be a Freshman at Tech, who had never had a date with a girl? I didn't think there was any such animal, Aggie, but there is—and he came out to see Reba V. the other night. Aside from being a little bashful he showed very promising signs of becoming quite a "and with the ladies."

"Two mothers each week" is our motto and this week the visitors have been Viola Hallis' and Mr. McFall's mothers. Viola's didn't stay long but Mrs. McFall was here for several days and took a bunch of lucky girls in town one day. Frances Harper's mother was here, too, and gave Frances and several of her friends a lovely dinner at the Terrace.

Have you noticed how good Flora W. has gotten lately? She goes to Sunday school in Atlanta every Sunday. Now we all know that just because she's noticed one who is perfectly adorable is not the reason at all—she blushingly denies it, too.

Marguerite W. isn't nearly so anxious for Spring holidays to come as she is for the next week after that to arrive—because more than the week will arrive—his name is "Charles" and he's coming all the way from Arkansas! Isn't that thrilling, Aggie?

R. Pirkle has whole carloads full of "people" out to see her every Sunday. Gee! she must have an awful lot of relatives! It must be grand to have lots of "uncles" and "cousins."

We're all so glad to have "Brownie" and "Vivian" G. here for a visit. Seems like old times to have them come strolling in to Rebekah dining room with Margaret.

It's such a short time until spring holidays that we are all busy with lessons and term-papers that we haven't much time for frivolity, but plenty for anticipation.

Lovingly,

GIDDIE.

P. S.—I think I'll get him spring holidays, "Aggie."

burning question. That is, its a burning question with the several young citizens down where the peach blossoms blow. But She is not in suspense! Oh, no, she has known from the very first the one who will come the first night, but she doesn't believe in telling all she knows.

NO MORE GYM.

Day Practices Start.

No more gym! Whether for you this spells r-e-l-i-e-f or r-e-g-r-e-t there is one thing that it does spell to all of us no matter who we are, and that is s-p-r-i-n-g! for when the time comes to speak of no more gym it is a sure sign that the days are about here when we begin to think of diplomas or vacation—as the case may be, and summer-time and home. In this connection we are all instantly joyful when the fact of the nearing events comes to us.

But for the present? Well, for the girl to whom the end of gym means relief are the thoughts of two extra hours a week, no need rush for the gym at the "eleventh hour" and no sore muscles and stiff joints. On the other hand to the girl to whom the statement of "only two more weeks of gym" means regret come other thoughts, such as: that then will be the loss of a full hour of good, blood stirring, brain-awakening physical exercise in an afternoon of only strenuous mental activity.

So for the present the nearing end of gym means one of two things, but as a forerunner, as a presage, it can mean only one thing and that a joyful one involving summer and home and the folks we love.

ALUMNAE.

In looking over the list of officers of the Presbyterian auxiliary meetings in Georgia, we note that Miss Clyde White is Sparta President; Mrs W A Turner, Newnan President, and Mrs. Hagen Smith of LaGrange has been made Field Secretary. We are very proud indeed to know that these three women are former Agnes Scott girls, and that their training here prepared them for the great work they are doing now.

Miss White is President of the Augusta Presbyterial. Mrs Turner was formerly Miss Annie Kirk Dowdell of Opelika, Ala., and graduated from Agnes Scott in 1902. She writes from the Atlanta Auxiliary interesting news of the women of Troup County.

Mrs. Smith was formerly Miss Ruth Slack of LaGrange, Ga. She graduated from A. S. C. in 1912, and is especially fitted for her work. She is a woman of much charm and personality, and thoroughly understands organization among women and young people. Her work will be among both, as she is the Synodical Secretary of Young People's Work too. Her intelligence, her interest in the work, and her deep consecration make a combination difficult to find in one so young and the work promises to grow under such leadership.

The news of these splendid women is of the greatest interest to all—especially to the ones who knew them, and the other students are very proud of them.

ORGAN RECITAL.

On Saturday evening, Althea Stevens gave an organ recital which was greatly enjoyed by everyone present. Everyone considers Althea's technique to be splendid and her rendition of difficult pieces showed a remarkable amount of talent.

Althea was assisted by members of the voice department—Lillian McAlpine, soprano, and Caroline Moody, contralto.

MISS CODY IS COMING.

On next Sunday morning Miss Cody will arrive, to be with us only a day or so. Miss Cody is one who is always assured the heartiest of welcomes at Agnes Scott.

Miss Cody was Professor of History here for several years, until the call came for her to enter the Y. W. C. A. work. She is doing a great work now, and Agnes Scott claims her with pride. Miss Cody has her place here in the college that can never be taken from her.

The night was unusually beautiful. A big yellow moon shamed the efforts of the twinkling stars and sent its reflection shimmering over the lake below. A young couple, perched affectionately upon a large rock, were regarding everything and nothing with the rapt gaze of the dreamer.

"Emily," the youth murmured, "Isn't this wonderful! Why, with a moon like that a man could make love to a broomstick. Darling, I adore you more than—"

"SPRING HOLIDAYS ARE A-CUMIN' IN."

Down in a modest little city of Middle Georgia where the pink peach blossoms and white petalled apple flowers merge into the fresh green color of growing things and the red patches of bare Georgia soil, there is no little agitation going on in the minds and hearts of several young citizens; and all because of spring holidays! You see, this is the situation: The nine-forty train, thanks to the thirty-first, will bring to town an Agnes Scotter whose good looks and charm make the question of the first "date" with her a matter of vital importance. Of course, three "dates" can't all go that same night for diplomatic reasons, and so each of the three applicants are striving to turn the tide in his favor. Now, of course, there might be arranged a series of half-hour engagements and thus allow each of the three a brief visit—but—the question of "first" still remains unsettled. And besides, the first "date" never would leave, and the others might forget and come early—so there! And the three young men are still on the anxious bench, so to speak.

Meanwhile, the Girl smiles with a shy twinkle in her eye over the number of "Specials" and boxes of candy that come her way, but refuses to give a satisfactory answer to any of the letters. You see she just always forgets to mention the main issue, and the first date is still a GYM MEET MARCH 26.

Baseball Game Feature of Afternoon.

On the 26th of March the athletic season will reach its height. All the classes will put forth their best material toward winning the track cup. Since every class is so confident of its team, there is a lot of interest and friendly rivalry which help to make the whole affair more interesting.

The main features are the hurdles, the hop-skip-and-jump, the dashes, the discus throwing, and the shot put. All of the classes have been faithfully practicing and are expected to perform some marvelous feats.

In order for a class to have its best material in fine shape, there must be a large number to chose from. Show your class spirit and come out to practice. You may prove to be the "track star."

Beside the track meet there will be the gym meet. All the classes will perform and the winner will get ten points toward the cup. The winner of the track also gets ten points toward the cup.

After these two meets there will be an added attraction in the form of a baseball game. The teams will be chosen from the four classes. One team will consist of Juniors and Freshmen and the other will consist of Seniors and Sophomores. This game will be a fitting climax for an interesting and lively afternoon. Come out to practice, and if you cannot make the team, you can enlarge the number of the rooters.

EXCHANGES

Thirteen new members were initiated into the Phi Beta Kappa honorary society of Western Reserve University. The different colleges of the University have been well represented among the initiates, as five are from Adelbert, one from the Law school, one from the Medical school, and six from the College for Women.—The "Reserve Weekly."

Shorter College will soon apply for membership in the Southern Association. The only thing that has kept her out for several years has been the lack of a sufficiently large endowment. Membership in the Association will not make her a better college, but will help her educational standing.—The "Periscope."

Officials of Vassar College to-night announced that the registration list for the class entering in September, 1925, has been closed, four years and seven months in advance of entrance. Vassar admits about 230 students as Freshmen each year, and already 500 have regularly applied for admission in 1925. There are at present about 5,000 names on the advance enrollment lists, including children registered by their parents at birth.—Mt. Holyoke.

At George Washington University the faculty have organized themselves into departmental baseball teams. They are also considering the idea of a Faculty Glee Club to compete with the student organization.—Exchange.

A Mohammedan monastery, a famous landmark in Japan, has been purchased by the Y. W. C. A. and will be changed into a Y. W. C. A. center for Japanese girls. It will include the same program of recreation, athletics and clubs that the Association has given to American girls for years.—"Mississippi."

We notice in a recent issue of an Austin, Texas, paper, that the University of Texas was victorious over Columbia University in a debate of recent date. The victory went to the University of Texas by the unanimous vote of the three judges.

"DISHEARTENED."

(Princeton Tiger.)

I've rhymed about Rosalind, Rosie and Ruth,
And even sung songs to Susanne,
But none of them bettered my drag,
so forsooth,
I'm sorry I ever began!

I've versified Vivian, Velma and Vi,
And lyricized Laura and Lou,
And seeing my efforts have failed to get by,
I shan't try much longer, would you?

I've poemed to Polly, and Paula and Peg,
And caroled to Carrol and Claire,
And though I'm still sure I'm a pretty good egg,
I don't seem to get anywhere!

I've used all my knowledge of science and arts,
And fancied myself quite a sage,
And while I can't manage to break any hearts,
I've managed to fill up a page!

SONG CONTEST TUESDAY NIGHT.

Rebekah and Main Rival Inman.

One of the most interesting stunts that Agnes Scott has seen in a long while was the contest sing held in the chapel Tuesday night just before Student Government. Inman trailed in first singing "Inman's Goin' to Shine Tonight." Then Rebekah Scott smoke-danced in with a rousing song. Both were full of pep and determined to come out winners; but there were no judges present (fortunately for them) so each side may joyfully and rightfully claim the laurel.

Inman, led by energetic Eleanor Hyde and aided by Althea Stevens at the piano, sang first. Then Rebekah Scott with Nancy Evans as cheer leader and Jeanette Landrum as pianist made a fine showing. The contest was hot and fast songs alternating. It was perhaps the peppiest, most enthusiastic meeting the chapel ever witnessed.

Any fair-minded Rebekah Scottter will inform you that the judges must surely have decided in favor of the spirited Main and Rebekah delegation, while an Inman dweller would hold the same opinion in behalf of well supported singers from her dormitory. But they will both join hands and, with decided approval of each other's opinion, declare that the biggest and best song of the year was that led by Ruth Hall after the contest was ended.

The new songs made hits, each side cheering for the other. They certainly show originality. The fine work of Eleanor Hyde in leading Inman was quite noticeable, while the enthusiasm of Dell Bernhardt in getting up posters and yells and that of Nancy Evans in leading Rebekah Scott songs indeed worthy of attention and acclamation. Owing to illness in her family Dell was obliged to go home before the sing, but Nancy ably filled her place. Rebekah and Inman are proud of themselves and each other, and wish only for another such opportunity to show them enthusiastic and spirited cooperation.

Fifteen colleges, representing every section of the South, Saturday formed a new association in Dixie to be known as the Southern Intercollegiate Conference. They banded themselves together under the strictest rules that could be possibly devised to protect the integrity of athletics, adopting not only the one-year rule, the three-year rule, but also went a step further than any association in the country by stipulating that no athlete having attended a college can go to another college and indulge in athletics under any circumstances.

Under the rules adopted no Freshman can play on any team in the conference, nor can any athlete participate in college athletics for more than three years. These three years must also be gotten in within four years from the date of matriculation.

The colleges forming the Southern Intercollegiate Conference are the leading teams in the South Atlantic section, and in the S. I. A. A. The colleges are Maryland, University of Virginia, V. P. I., Washington and Lee, North Carolina State, North Carolina University, Clemson, Georgia Tech, Georgia, Alabama, Tulane, Auburn, Mississippi A. & M., Tennessee and Kentucky.—Technique.

Date For Debates Set For April 26

MISS HEARON WILL GO TO RANDOLPH-MACON.

Inter-Society Debate Tuesday.

The 26th of April is to hold more than one joy for Agnes Scott, for besides being a holiday it will be the date for the Triangular Debates. Sophie Newcomb and Randolph-Macon have both agreed to this date.

Even the meekest Freshman knows what a holiday is at Agnes Scott and a holiday with something more—and there will be lots more, too, because Pi Alpha Phi is making some splendid plans to entertain the delegates that come here. They will need the help and interest of the whole college community in doing it though, so let's all plan to help them if called on.

It has been decided that Miss Hearon go with our negative team to Randolph-Macon as official chaperon. Dr. Armistead is also planning to go to hear the debate, if he can arrange it.

On Tuesday night, there will be an inter-society debate in the chapel at eight o'clock between the Intercollegiate teams. Everybody, show your loyalty and root for your society!

BLACKFRIAR MEMORY BOOK STARTED.

More than one head was stuck questioning out of Main Building or Rebekah Scott window last Tuesday as surprised eyes glanced wonderingly but delightedly at a group of daintily costumed characters who seemed to have stepped from some story book or play. A look of dawning recognition proved that the actors in "Our Aunt From California," "Everybody's Husband," and "Overtones" had been remembered despite their changed background of town and tennis court. Your deductions as to these personages were correct, O window-gazer, but were you enough possessed of curiosity, or did you feel enough inclined to solve the detective mystery to find the reason for this picture procedure? It is a dark and deep secret (but of course you won't tell) centering around two mystical words, "Blackfriar Book."

Strange to say, this is neither on the order of a black list, nor is it some pirate code book, but is simply the record-to-be of all Blackfriar plays. Each page is to represent a play and will contain a program, the most representative group picture, and one or two separate pictures of unusual or exceptional costumes or characters. This composite of all dramatic presentations will be placed for safe keeping in some such place as the library. There in future generations former Agnes Scott girls with all their talent and enthusiasm and accomplishments may gain fame and a lasting memory as they pass in review by those destined to possess our place!

SENIOR BASKET-BALL TEAM.

Who's Who In The Athletic Association

Members of Executive Board and Their Jobs.

An angel of mercy is one who ministers unto the needy. There are exactly ten of these friends of humanity at Agnes Scott. They furnish the life, the spirit, the pep for the College. These young ladies, however, are known under a less holy name to the world at large: they make up the Executive Board of the Athletic Association.

The "chief cook and bottle washer" of the Association is Fan McCaa. She is about the most athletic "fan" on the campus. Never is she idle, but is always exerting every effort in helping her co-workers plan the undertakings of the Association which will make Agnes Scott greater and better—athletically speaking.

Next on the immediate staff are: Dot Allen, vice-president; Beth McClure, secretary, and Caroline Farquhar, treasurer. Never have girls worked so diligently and accomplished so much as these girls. They have almost succeeded in making Athletics Agnes Scott's middle name.

But the staff is not the "whole cheese" by any means; it shares honors with six managers, who may be called the "real backbone" of the Association.

The great success of the hockey season was due to Hilda McConnell, who so wonderfully managed the games between the classes. Hilda can manage teams as well as she can wield a hockey stick—and that means a great deal.

But when Agnes Scott put away her pumpkins after Thanksgiving, she also discarded hockey sticks and donned her basket-ball attire. Althea Stevens, the famous center in the "Georgia" game, managed the most successful season yet.

And now that basket-ball is a thing of the past, those who are "fleet of foot" are practicing diligently. Helen Wayt, the capable track manager, is very optimistic over the showing her teams will make on Saturday.

For those who cannot play hockey, or basket-ball, and who cannot beat even a snail in a race, hikes furnish a good way to get numerals. Everybody can walk, and certainly nothing is more pleasant than strolling about. Hikes are in season the year 'round, and have certainly been popular this year under the management of Genje Johnston for the boarders and Helen Hall for day pupils.

But what would the Athletic Association amount to if it did not have a song leader? "There's music in the air" always when Ruth Hall, the most "athleticist" song bird, is around. When visitors express surprise because Agnes Scott girls know so many songs—"Hottentot" and oth-

Allen and Jones Elected To Hoasc

Organization Now Has Fourteen
Members.

The class of 1921 has contributed two other names to those destined to go down in the list of Agnes Scott's Hoasc girls. At a meeting of the organization last Tuesday, Dorothy Allen and Alice Jones were unanimously elected members.

It is a significant fact that "Dot" and "Sis," who have roomed together and been perfectly inseparable during their years at Agnes Scott should have this honor conferred upon them at the same time.

All Agnes Scott knows how great an honor membership in Hoasc is, and how fully both Dot and Sis have merited this honor because of their enthusiastic and untiring work for the college.

'21 now boasts of fourteen Hoasc members.

Cotillion Club Elects Seventeen New Members

Planning For Ball In April.

Invitations have been sent out to seventeen girls to become members of the Cotillion Club. These girls are Dorothy Allen, Virginia Burum, Hazel Bordeaux, Pearl Lowe Hamner, Ruth Keiser, Carolyn Moore, Lewis Murchison, Lucy Oliver, Virginia Ordway, Eugenia Pou, Elizabeth Ransom, Margaretta Womelsdorf, Dorothy Bowron, Virginia Pottle, Margaret Powell, Lucile Smith and Lucy Wooten.

The Cotillion Club is now a flourishing organization of about forty members, who are planning entertainments for the college community. While the Cotillion Club expects to be the source of much social enjoyment in the future, that is not its only, or indeed its fundamental object. The Cotillion Club, organized by Hoasc, has for its purpose the standardization of dancing at Agnes Scott, and the raising of all the social standards. It wants to keep the ideals of the college high, both in regard to social entertainments and dress, and it solicits the help of every student in accomplishing its end.

The Club is planning its opening ball for the Student Government Conference in April. Arrangements and plans are being made already, and it is expected to be the best dance of the year.

Oh, Those Gym Tennis Tournament Exams! In Full Swing

No More Gym Classes After Spring Holidays.

Preliminaries Over; Finals Being Played Now.

"Attention! Right dress!"

And the gym exam is begun.

The first squad selected rush out upon the floor with determined faces, while the others adorn the wall, gleefully hugging their knees and enjoying thoroughly the performance.

The drilling is not so bad despite the struggle to remember right from left, for usually you can follow the one before you in the much-alluded-to manner of sheep. This, however, is not always a safe thing to do, and woe to all the blind trusting followers if the leader goes in the wrong direction.

After the drilling comes the real torture—the patient and long-suffering "horse" is dragged out onto the floor, and a general sigh goes up; the instructor takes her place on the other side, pencil poised over her grade-book, and this face, daunts the bravest. Each in turn makes a wild dash, slings herself promiscuously at the offending beast, and, if luck is with her, lands on her two feet on the other side. From time to time, however, there is a low but expressive mourn as some hopeless creature lands on some other parts of the anatomy rather than the feet.

The dancing terminated the horror of the exam, but after it a sigh of relief and thanksgiving is breathed: no more gym until next year! An exam which brings such a blessed deliverance cannot be so bad, after all, no more we'll sing dolefully:

"Got to go to gym today,

"Gee, I wish I could stay away," but now it will be a different and much more cheerful tune.

GEORGIA GLEE CLUB BIG HIT.

Reception Afterward By Agnes Scott Glee Club.

Singing, humming, or whistling new tunes is all the style at Agnes Scott. This could not very well help its prominence if it would, for the University of Georgia Glee Club was so successful last Wednesday night that a whole bunch of new tunes are flying around the campus. Forty-five jolly "college fellows," as they styled themselves, gave a minstrel show when they stopped by Agnes Scott auditorium on their annual tour of the State. The Georgia Glee and Mandolin Clubs lived up to their reputation for a fine entertainment, while a good Agnes Scott audience proved the reality of its ideal of attentive enthusiasm.

The snappy, interesting program was followed with a reception given the Georgia representatives by the Agnes Scott Glee Club. The Red and Black contingent were given the best time possible, and everybody, both girls and boys, said they had a good time.

As regards the program itself, Jerry Jones' "A Night in Cucoo Land," the original one-act play, was a sure success with its Dramatic Personae, Ladies of the Harem, Members of the Amalgamated Association of Street Car Conductors and Motormen, Fan Bearers to His Excellency, Imperial Guards, and Imperial Band. The singing was exceptionally good, especially the quartets.

Agnes Scott has a glowing new memory to add to many others relative to past events, for the evening of March twenty-third will ever call to mind delightful remembrances of that occasion and pleasurable anticipation of another visit from the Georgia Glee and Mandolin Clubs.

"There are girls who are known by one and all,

Who know just how to serve the swiftest tennis ball!"

For the last week or so, to observe the serving of that "swiftest tennis ball," numerous heads may be seen sticking out of the library windows. It is an occupation much more desirable and fascinating than the taking of History I notes.

Then, too, interested spectators may be seen sitting in the grandstand (that part of the campus which curves upward beside the court.) A referee carefully watches lines and score. All the tennis experts have come forth and now on court 4 display inimitable serves, unheard-of strokes, and skill past understanding.

The preliminaries were over by March 23. The winners then proceeded to play each other, each time the loser dropping out until the class champions are determined. The champions each receive a numeral. These champions in both singles and doubles play each other, Freshmen against Sophomore, Junior against Senior. The two victors of these games meet and thus the school champion is determined.

Great is the reward of the final victorious three. A silver cup goes to the champions of singles and another to the champions of doubles. Not only do the winners as individuals receive reward and glory but their classes gain. Five points for singles and five for doubles go toward the athletic cup. This last fact makes every loyal player long to win because of the great benefit to her class. She realizes that through her efforts 10 points may go to her class, as many as can be obtained by hockey, basket-ball or track. Three cheers for the tennis tournament!

BRILLIANT AFFAIR OF MARCH 26TH.

Miss Hall Weds Mr. Inman.

One of the most interesting events of the college season was "perpetrated" on Saturday evening, March 26, in the lobby of Inman Hall, when Mr. Inman, otherwise known as Marion Lindsay, and Miss Hall, otherwise known as Ray Bell, were joined in the uncertain bands of mock-wedlock.

This was one of the most brilliant social affairs in history as the number of those present testified. Both of the young people are—we feel safe in saying—most ardently admired by all of their friends. The wedding was largely attended, even by friends from as great a distance as Main and the neighboring—halls!

The bridal party was as follows: Best man, E. B. Carpenter (Eleanor); maid of honor, Miss Myrtle Blackmon; bridesmaids, Misses Fan McCaa, Lilburne Ivey, Polly Stone and Annie Sue Banks. The ushers were: Messrs. Harry Scott (Harriet), H. Bordeaux (Hazel), and E. T. Robinson. Flower girl, little Miss Peyton Simson, and ribbon bearers: Masters Eugene Pou and E. Thomas.

The wedding march was rendered by Miss Althea Stephens and in the course of the evening Miss Margaret McLaughlin sang a very touching love song which brought tears to the eyes of even the divorced wife of the groom, Miss Claire McIver, who was among those present. Miss Geraldine Goodroe, a very fascinating young woman of pronounced vampire type, who had come to witness the deed,

SOCIAL STANDARDS OF AGNES SCOTT.

We hear a great deal about the ideals of Agnes Scott, and these ideals are very precious to us. It is because of the standard set by those who have gone on before that we as Agnes Scott girls are respected wherever our college is known. The good name of Agnes Scott is a priceless heritage to each of us, and it is our duty to hand it down to the coming generations as unblemished as we have received it.

There are various kinds of standards that we as individuals must measure up to in order to be the best kind of Agnes Scott girl. There are intellectual standards and social standards. If we can't measure up to the intellectual standards, the faculty sees that we don't stay in college. It is our social standards—our dancing, our dress, our speech, that the students are especially concerned with. No chain is stronger than its weakest link, and every girl must realize that she may reflect the spirit of the entire college to those people who are not familiar with its standing. Every girl can do the college immeasurable good, or immeasurable injury.

The Otillon Club is undertaking to standardize dancing at the college, and to create public sentiment against those dances which are thought to be objectionable. It appeals to every girl to stand behind it, and to adopt the standards and ideals of dancing for which it stands. When we prove that we can always be trusted to do the right kind of dancing, our privileges along that line are bound to be increased.

Again let us be careful about our dress, to be sure that it could throw no discredit either on ourselves or on our college. And if we remember that it is by our speech—the quick words that come almost before we know it—that we show our character and our thoughts, it might be an incentive to avoid any language that we wouldn't want those people whom we respect most to hear us use.

We have a very grave responsibility in maintaining the social standards of Agnes Scott. May each girl realize this responsibility, and prove herself worthy of it.

SPRING HOLIDAYS.

To every girl on the campus, the Agonistic wishes a most happy spring holiday!

About this time of the year, with term papers piling up, conferences, debates, grand opera, commencement and exams all staring us in the face, we need a holiday, and a little respite from the duties and responsibilities that confront us is almost necessary. If each of us would take this holiday sanely as a time to have a good time and rest, it would prove a source of great benefit. As it is, we are prone to think of too much gaiety and come back more tired than ever.

Let's try to come back from this spring holiday refreshed in body and mind, and ready to undertake with new enthusiasm the work that lies before us.

EXCHANGES

It is the custom at Newcomb College for the Seniors to present their Dean with some kind of a present just before graduation. This time they presented Dean Pierce Butler with an air-plane ride over New Orleans. The ride probably made Dean Butler the "highest" college dean in America on Sunday one week ago.—Exchange.

reading of his experiences in and around Oxford, England.—From The Mississippian.

NEW CABINET COMMISSION.

Cabinet Commission, consisting of all heads of departments and chairmen of committees, has been appointed for next year. Head of the Membership department is Ruth Hall. There are two committees under this department, Church Affiliation and the Membership Committee. Sarah Till is chairman of the first, and Roberta Love of the second. The Publicity department is under the direction of Quenelle Harrold. Its two committees, the Bulletin Board and the Publications, are headed by Dell Bernhardt and Nannie Campbell respectively; the former has charge of the big bulletin board near the fountain in Main building; the latter is responsible for reading various publications and keeping the necessary ones on reference for members of Cabinet. The head of the Finance department is Margaret McColgan. In this department the committee of Dues and Pledges is under Evelyn Byrd. Ruth Pirkle has the World Fellowship department. The World Fellowship committee has Josephine Logan for its chairman, while the Voluntary Study Classes committee has Eunice Dean. Beth McClure is at the head of Religious Work, Emily Guille is chairman of the Evening Watch committee, Barron Hyatt of the Chapel committee, Carr'e Scandrett of the music committee, and Ruth Keiser of the poster committee. The latter has charge of the poster just outside the chapel door. Lucia Murchison is head of the Social Service department. The committees in her department are Community

Work, which includes the Orphans' Home and the Home for the Friendless, and the rest; the Maids' Sunday School class; and the Girls Clubs at the Y. W. C. A. in Atlanta. They are in charge of Mary Floding, Christine Evans, and Martha Talliaferro in order. The head of the Social department is Julia Jameson, with Frances Stewart as chairman of the Entertainment committee. Our undergraduate representative, whose duty it is to keep us in touch with the national organization, is Ruth Virden. Next year's Y. W. editor of the Agonistic is Eloise Knight.

Y. W. C. A. WORK AND HOW TO DO IT.

Do you know what it takes to be a Y. W. C. A. secretary? Miss Tewkesbury of the National Board told some of the girls about it last week. There are ten kinds: business secretaries, who have to know book-keeping and stenography, but need no special training; cafeteria directors, who are usually women, who have specialized in home economics; colored work secretaries who are themselves all colored people; girls' work secretaries, who are directors of activities, and are at the head of the Girl Reserve work which many Agnes Scott girls are doing now; health directors, who have to be graduates of some school of physical education; industrial workers, who have to be trained by the Y. W. for doing recreational and social service work among girls in industry; religious education supervisors, who conduct Bible study classes for those who especially need them; and the city, town, and rural executives, who are at the heads of organizations and buildings, unless, as is the case with the rural secretary, they have to use the county roads for their headquarters. It is easy to see that this work presents a range which will allow any girl to follow her own individual bent.

If you are thinking of doing this kind of Christian social service, the experienced heads of the Y. W. C. A. urge you to graduate, and then teach for two years before going to their summer training school. This is because they think that teaching is the most valuable kind of experience a young woman can have, and also because they want you to save your money and thus earn your own way. The training school lasts six weeks, and your expenses, including enough for sight-seeing and the theater, will amount to between two hundred and fifty and three hundred dollars. After this course the Y. W. places you somewhere as a secretary, of whatever kind you have chosen, and you work for five years, saving your money all the time so that at the end of that time you can attend the nine months' winter training school which fits you for the really big executive positions in the Association. After this long apprenticeship you can be sent abroad to any country you wish if you are willing to enlist for five years of service, in France, Italy, China, Japan, or South America. Here is a field of Christian service with scope enough for you to express your whole personality, and with opportunity for unlimited growth and promotion.

STUDENT CONFERENCE OF EPISCOPAL CHURCH MEET AT SEWANEE.

The Student Conference of the Episcopal Church met at Sewanee, Tennessee, for three days, March eleventh to March thirteenth. Mary Barton and Eleanor Carpenter represented Agnes Scott at this conference. The object of the National Student Council of the Episcopal Church is much the same as that of the Y. W. C. A. with which it is supposed to co-operate. When the girls returned from Sewanee, a meeting of the Episcopal girls from Agnes Scott was held at the rectory of Holy Trinity Church in Decatur.

Mrs. Fitzhugh chaperoned the girls and was very helpful and interested in the discussions. That night it was decided to organize a guild of Episcopal girls and such others as were interested. The name of the organization is to be St. Agnes' Guild, and the following officers were elected: Mary Barton, president; Alice Virden, vice-president; Eleanor Hyde, secretary and treasurer. After the elections and plans for the guild, coffee and sandwiches were served. Those present were: Mrs. Fitzhugh, Fan McCaa, Mary Barton, Martha Stansfield, Helen Barton, Eleanor Carpenter, Alice Virden, Elizabeth Nichols, Caroline Agee, Anna Meade, Elvie Wilson, Eleanor Hyde, Alice Jones.

acters are—well, they look like students of college age, but their behavior induces the belief that they are kindergartners. You know the rest—how the class first co-operates in a martyred groan, and then splits into factions, each denouncing some particular date for said quiz as out of the question. Feeling runs high, and voices are still higher. Your next door neighbor looks at you wincingly when you show signs of voting for April 25, when her BIG History quiz falls. All the reasons of almost all those present for not wanting a quiz a certain day, or for wanting it another, are screamed simultaneously at the bewildered instructor. Chaos reigns.

Undoubtedly, quizzes are often unpleasantly contiguous. Undoubtedly, one's own particular reason for wanting that quiz postponed seems better than anyone else's. But a more adult behavior when battling for one's point would be an improvement.

If I were an instructor, I should announce a quiz in stentorian tones, after the bell for dismissal, and then walk quickly out, slamming the door in the face of the thwarted class! 1922.—Mt. Holyoke News.

These officers of the Athletic Association help to keep up the morale of the college. The students are kept from longing for home, sweet home by the various Athletic "affairs" which are constantly being pulled off. To these angels of mercy, to these friends of humanity, to these "powers behind the throne," Agnes Scott owes her spirit, her health, and her pep!

GIDDIE GOSSIP

My Darling Aggie:

I'm just thrilled to death and I'm afraid this won't be a very good letter but "There's a reason"!!! Georgia Glee Club Concert tonight!!! Of course, now you understand, don't you, Aggie? It's going to be the grandest thing and we've heard; the boys are regular—(started to say Georgie Peaches)—well, regular—whatever is the best you can call 'em. The girls in our own Glee Club are all "decked out" in evening dresses or dinner frocks and the chapel is a dream(?) in red and black. Don't you wish you were here, Aggie?

I wish I were a Senior, Aggie, so I could go out to dinner with men—like Sarah does with her "Satellite." Yes indeed! and he's just wild about her—they always are when they keep taking you out to dinner and things like that. Lucile wouldn't let her fair roomie get ahead of her though, not so you could notice it! She and Eric have dinner in town 'most every night and they go to the theater and out in the afternoon too.

Just think next week-end we will all be away for spring holidays and we're all so full of plans for clothes, beaux, dances and frolics that there's not much room for lessons. To get ahead of this epidemic of "non-studiness," every teacher in school has found it her especial duty to assign a test or a term paper and so we have to work "whether we will or no."

J. D. C— has a new Tech beau—she's just met him ("how" is a mystery!) and she's crazy about him. Sarah McDowell is so popular that she has to get special permission for extra dates. Imagine it!

There haven't been many gifts of flowers around here lately—guess all the poor opposit sex are saving their money for Easter corsages.

Well, Aggie, it won't be long now before we'll have all the excitement of intercollegiate debates and we're going to win 'cause we've got the best debaters ever found! Watch A. S. C. win—rah! rah! rah! I'm real peppy, aren't I, Aggie?

What do you think of a girl when she's inclined to be fickle, Aggie?

I'm not mentioning any names but Bettie Sue just declares she doesn't love "Bob" a bit any more and she's crazy about "Ross," who goes to Tech. Perhaps it's just a case of the "nearest being dearest," but how are you going to account for the fact that she wears "John L.'s" pin? Three on the string!!! Lucky girl!

M. Kelly got a huge box of candy Monday morning and she'd just seen "Vick" Saturday afternoon. He doesn't let her forget he's still in existence, does he? Now about the most romantic thing I've seen around here yet is the way Lois Moriarity mended her clock. It was cracked right in the center, so she pasted a picture (in shape of a heart) of "him," in a big white sweater, right over the crack and now her heart beats with the clock!

You ought to see Nellie F.'s new rings. Yes, two!!! Jimmie gave her one for a graduating present but the other—? well, it's an engagement ring and they're both beauties.

"Rushfully" yours,
GIDDIE.

We wish them all the good luck in the world!

Gentle breezes from outside
Tempt me
And a campus full of springtime

But gym is very good for me, they say.
I wish to sleep and dream for many hours
The whistle blows
And the sound of "Forward march" would Not be called by any means
A lullaby.
But gym is very good for me, they say.
I got in May Day and I practice all the time
Or a little dance
Which
Requires much grace and skill,
So gym was very good for me, I say.

BIBLE DEPARTMENT ANNOUNCEMENTS.

A Bible major has recently been added to the curriculum of Agnes Scott. This addition is not very well known, but it must be of interest to a great many students. Pass this information on to your friends who are considering their subjects for a major.

It will also doubtless be interesting to the students to know that the Student Volunteer Movement has recently contributed some very important and valuable books to the Agnes Scott Library. Among these books are:

"Christian Work in Latin America," in three volumes. This is considered to be the greatest reservoir of authoritative information relative to Latin American social, educational and religious conditions ever published.

"Regional Conferences in Latin America," a concise review of the missionary problems of the Latin American fields, particularly from the view point of Christian cooperation in solving them.

"Renaissant Latin America," by Professor Harlan P. Beach, of Yale University.

"The Christian Movement in the Japanese Empire," a Year Book, published each year by the Conference on Federated Missions in Japan.

In addition, there are several important Reports of the Board of Missionary Preparation, and also seven books comprising Clark's "The Continent of Opportunity," Dawson's "South American Republics," Tucket's "The Bible in Brazil," Brown's "Latin America," Pepper's "Panama to Patagonia" and Hale's "The South Americas."

These books are a splendid addition to the library, and are always at the students' disposal.

JUNIOR MEMBERS TAKEN IN HOASC.

Five New Members Announced.

On Monday morning the Junior members of Hoasc were announced, Coma Burgess, Ruth Hall, Laura Oliver, Nell Buchanan and Ruth Scandrett.

Miss Cady made the talk of the morning, and emphasized the honor conferred on these girls by honoring the college again exactly what Hoasc means and stands for. Hoasc is an organization that every girl in school is eligible for, the only requisite being loyal and unselfish devotion to Agnes Scott. Hoasc stands for service, and it is the object of every girl in the organization to leave the college better for her influence. Miss Cady told us that the ideals for which Hoasc stands have always been an inspiration to her, and that the world needs more of the Hoasc spirit of unselfishness.

Hoasc is a Senior honor society, certain Juniors being elected each spring to carry it on. Other girls may be taken in during their Senior year. Admission to Hoasc is a coveted honor, and the new members have received the congratulations of the entire college community.

BLACKFRIARS ENTERTAIN.

Proceeds Go For Costume Box.

On Friday, the Blackfriars were hostesses to a most original and unusual party, to which the entire school was invited. Every guest was asked to bring some donation for the Blackfriars costume box, and when the donations were collected, there was indeed a great deal of variety. The guests brought everything from fancy combs to bandana handkerchiefs, and the wealth of the Blackfriars was greatly increased.

After the amusement caused by the gifts had subsided, a most attractive program was furnished which the guests greatly enjoyed. Later delightful refreshments were served, and both the guests and hostesses were well satisfied with the results of the entertainment.

HURRAH FOR MISS WILBURN.

In Atlanta, Georgia, was born the dark-haired child whose fate is here to be discovered to the eager reader. At a very early age she could skin the cat from the ancestral oak in her front yard, and beat all the little boys in the neighborhood running races.

When Llewelyn came to school she found an easy pathway, because she alone knew how to spell her name, and therefore could always claim to know more than the teacher. Her favorite subjects were Recess and Lunch Time and her favorite holiday was April Fool's Day.

Decatur, Georgia, had the honor of witnessing her high school days. Here she worked unceasingly, not even stopping for meals, and easily held the basket-ball championship because of this unceasing devotion to the sport. Not only was she an athletic star, but also a dramatic star. On one occasion she took the part of the tall and stately Rosalind, which shows into what a lovely creature our heroine had developed.

At Agnes Scott her athletic and dramatic careers continued with undimmed brilliancy, while at Columbia University she lead all the classes. And now she is back with us—Miss Wilburn, we call her, but she's the same Llewelyn—great athlete, good sport, and loved and admired by all the girls!

MISS WADE, YOU'RE ALL RIGHT.

Miss Myra I. Wade, born in Chicago, has had a most thrilling existence. Very athletic from childhood up, she led in all the competitive games during her high school days. Also very early she developed a strong appreciation for Latin and the classics, and there was a great struggle in her life when she tried to decide between physical education or dead languages as a profession. When a Senior at Oberlin, she decided to go in for gymnastics and with this in view, took up work at the University of Wisconsin and at the Chicago Normal School of Physical Education.

Having finished her preparation, Miss Wade did work at a community centre for factory girls in Sheboygan, Wisconsin, and a little later she consented to come to Agnes Scott.

During her two years with us, Miss Wade has been a never failing source of inspiration, giving both her time and loyalty to furthering the athletic interests of the students. Three cheers for Miss Wade!

ON GOING HOME.

He sat across the aisle from me—aloof, still, tantalizingly indifferent. He overawed me with his magnificent imperturbability.

He gazed out of the window, entirely oblivious of poor little me. I moistened my lips in a desperate effort to speak to him, but my voice froze on my lips.

A man walked up to him, addressed him. I envied his free and easy way of talking to one who was so cold and majestic.

Finally I gathered my oozing courage in my hands and spoke, my voice quavering, "Porter, won't you please make up my berth?"—Miss Leane Zugsmith, Atlantic City, N. J.

seemed highly moved at Miss McLaughlin's touching rendition.

The mother and father of the groom (E. Perry and R. Price) as well as the parents of the bride (Dot Allen and Ruth Pirkle) were also present. Miss Marion Cawthon, a sister of the groom, and the nurse of his childhood (Miss Virginia Ordway) were among the company assembled to "see it did."

The ceremony was performed by the Hon. Peg Hedrick, N. G. at an improvised altar flanked by beautiful branched candelabra (which we seemed to recognize) and a profusion of potted plants and other things. Suspended over the altar was a huge white bell which lent significance to the ceremony.

After the ceremony a reception was held and dancing, and refreshing punch followed. The gifts presented to the happy pair were displayed on the upper floor and were admired

BASKET-BALL SEASON ENDS.

Senior Team Comes Out On Top.

"All's well that ends well." This little quotation certainly holds true. The basket-ball season is over and all that we have is the memory of our good times. But we have been forcibly reminded that all of our activities in college live in records and the record of the recent basket-ball season is indeed an enviable one. Not only has the playing been unusually good but the spirit among players and spectators alike, although strongly enthusiastic, has been ideal. Usually what the audience lacked in pep was fully atoned for in pep.

In the beginning of the season, each team went into it with a vim, practices came hot and heavy, coaches and players worked madly with one goal in view—the cup. As various inter-class games were played off, the interest increased and devotees of the game waited with greatest anticipation the outcome of each match.

When the Juniors were not fiercely fighting for their own goal, they were vigorously yelling for their sister Freshmen. Likewise the Seniors urged on their Sophomore sisters.

The end of the season found the Seniors holding their own, having lost no games, and the Sophomores and Freshmen running neck and neck for the second game. The final game which was to play off the tie for the second place resulted in a score of 28-35 in favor of the Sophomores.

The basket-ball season for '20 and '21 is over now. Track and tennis have taken its place but all look forward to the season of '21-'22 with the greatest of pleasure.

After all the scores had been turned in and counted up it was found that the percentage was as follows:

	P.C.
Seniors	100
Sophomores	37
Freshmen	43

Three cheers for the Seniors!!!

COME OUT FOR THE HIKES.

As the weather is getting pretty again, and the green leaves are budding out on the trees, it seems that everybody can think of nothing better than to get out, and walk for miles or go on one of the hikes. Everybody that goes on these hikes can tell you how much fun we always have.

Sometimes we leave the college about five o'clock and go to the woods and get some long sticks and roast our weiners. You just don't know how good this food tastes until you go on a hike. During the winter months we usually left the college at about two-thirty, and hiked to East Lake or toward Stone Mountain or Druid Hills, but since spring has come we will be going later and carrying our supper again.

Besides the good time we have we get plenty of exercise which can be counted on our exercise cards. Then we can get numerals in hiking too, if we go on eight of the ten hikes.

If you cannot hurdle or race you can at least put on your walking shoes and go on these hikes. In a few weeks we will be given another hike, and instead of going to Atlanta to see a "movie," come out and go hiking with us and see if you do not enjoy it as much as the other hikers have.

HOCKEY—GONE UNTIL FALL, BUT NOT FORGOTTEN.

Hockey has for some years been one of the chief sports at Agnes Scott. This year an unusual amount of interest was shown in it. Hilda McConnell was the manager of the teams. More girls went out for hockey than ever before and the teams were all quite good.

The Seniors won the largest number of games, then came the Sophomores, Freshmen, and Juniors. At first the Sophomores and Freshmen tied for second place, but the Sophomores won when the tie was played off. However, the Freshmen team made a fine record, considering especially that this was their first year and many of them had never played before. The Sophs say that they will certainly be next year's champions if the incoming Freshman class hasn't a mighty heap of pep. But the other classes aren't quite so sure about that.

Each game that was played last fall was interesting to the end and all the classes showed their spirit by loud yells and cheers. One would not think that we could get up much pep at six o'clock in the morning, but whenever a hockey game was played at that hour there was just as much enthusiasm as ever.

The manager for next year will be chosen in the near future and plans will be begun. Let's all come out for hockey and show our class spirit! It's a great sport!

TAKE A DIP IN THE POOL.

Good For Spring Fever.

"The ole swimmin' hole"—the words probably bring a picture of a barefooted boy in overalls and a straw hat with a bundle under his arm to our minds. But in spite of the old-time associations "the ole swimmin' hole" in one guise or another, has a strong appeal for us all just about this time of the year.

The sun has been feeling sure-enough warm for a week or so and gingham dresses have been blossoming out with the trees and flowers over the campus—there's been something in the air that has made us feel not so very anxious to study. And judging from the crowded blackboard in the gym there's nothing that is so good an outlet for all these stirring springtime energies or so good a cure for our "spring fever" as a dip in that very "ole swimmin' hole." What does it matter if our particular one is lined with cement and under a roof? Any average girl's imagination can supply the particulars to suit itself—a muddy creek with willow trees dipping their fringe in the water, or perhaps you prefer the elegance of the country club bath house and lake? But whatever be your own ideal details the one essential thing is right here on the campus—the water.

So when you feel as though you simply can't pin your wandering fancy and your restless energy down to dry and unromantic subjects and can't take your eyes off the springtime about you, to pin them down to the printed page, just go plunge some of your disturbances into the pool and see if it doesn't help.

AGNES SCOTT COLLEGE, DECATUR, GA., TUESDAY, APRIL 12, 1921

No. 19

Agnes Scott Admitted To A. C. A.

Long Coveted Honor Conferred.

At a recent meeting of the Association of Collegiate Alumnae Agnes Scott was admitted to that organization. Only those alumnae who were members of the Association of American Universities or the Carnegie Foundation were eligible. We remember that last fall Agnes Scott became a member of the Association of American Universities.

There were present at the Association of Collegiate Alumnae 353 members, among them presidents of Bryn Mawr, Mt. Holyoke, and Wellesley, deans and professors of nearly every American college. Beside these many other prominent persons attended the convention. There were about 25 delegates to the Southern Association of College Women. Miss Smith represented Agnes Scott.

At this meeting a new organization was formed composed of the Southern Association of College Women and the Association of Collegiate Alumnae. It is called the American Association of University Women. Dean Comstock of Smith was elected president.

Only those members of the S. A. C. W. and the A. C. A. can become members of the new organization. Other colleges if not on the list of A. C. A. yet eligible in the S. A. C. W. are given a membership of five years. If at the close of the five year period these institutions have not attained standards set by the new association the colleges will be dropped from the list.

The newly formed association is a member of the International Federation of University Women. It is with great pride that we have learned that our Alma Mater has become a member of an international organization.

One of the important features of the A. C. A. is the ten fellowships offered for graduate work. Some of these are to be used in Europe, some in America. Different branches of this organization are influential in obtaining better educational laws, both state and federal.

It is interesting to know that at this meeting of the A. C. A. toasts were given by Mrs. Vernon Kellogg, wife of Mr. Hoover's chief assistant. Her subject was the "Hope of Europe." Mrs. Kellogg said that in Europe she has seen wheat seeds planted for six years and each year fail to come up because of the tramp of passing armies. Yet with all this the school teachers went on with their tasks, sometimes without even a building. The hope of Europe is the American college.

The Association while in Washington was the guest of the President's wife at a reception at the White House, and was entertained by the wives and daughters of the Senators.

The next convention is to be held in Kansas City. Perhaps some of us when we have become alumnae shall be members of the American Association of College Women. We are indeed honored that we have such a privilege and that Agnes Scott ranks with the leading colleges of America.

NEW AGONISTIC STAFF SELECTED.

The staff of the Agonistic for next year has been chosen. Four of the offices were filled at the student elections, but the rest of the staff was appointed. The list is as follows:

Eleanor Hyde—Editor-in-Chief.
Mary Greene—Assistant Editor-in-Chief.
Lucy Oliver—Society Editor.
Eloise Knight—Y. W. C. A. Editor.
Mary Colley—Exchange Editor.

OFFICERS OF THE INTERCOLLEGIATE STUDENT GOVERNMENT ASSOCIATION.

Student Government Conference Begins Today

About Forty Delegates Arrive.

Today the Annual Student Government Conference of Southern Women's Colleges meets at Agnes Scott for several days' discussion of college problems. This conference, to which come representatives of the best colleges south of the Mason-Dixon line, has always proved a source of inspiration to the girls to whom the Student Government work is entrusted, and this year also it gives promise of being an enthusiastic and helpful convention.

The purpose of this Convention is to bring before a conference of representative girls from different colleges problems for mutual help and suggestion. Any problem affecting college life is discussed in the sessions of the Convention, and it is helpful to know how other colleges meet situations that have been difficult for our own college to deal with.

The Convention also helps colleges to organize self-government associations, and gives to those schools who are just starting it the benefit of years of experience.

Another advantage of the conference is that the girls from every college have an opportunity to know each other socially, and can get the other colleges' point of view in that informal way.

Agnes Scott is delighted to be the hostess for the conference this year, and bids to every delegate a most hearty welcome.

INTER-SOCIETY DEBATE APRIL 11.

Agnes Scott's Chosen Debaters Doing Splendid Work.

On the evening of Monday, April the eleventh, at seven-thirty, occurred the second inter-society debate since the intercollegiate debaters have been chosen. The question was the same as that for the intercollegiate debate—"Resolved: That in all railroad controversies affecting the public convenience the railroad labor board, as constituted in the Transportation Act of 1920, be required by law to make an investigation and make a decision binding upon all parties to the dis-

President Of Mt. Holyoke Speaks April 19

Miss Woolley Guest of Gamma Tau Alpha.

On the evening of April 19 Agnes Scott is to have the very great honor of hearing Miss Mary E. Woolley, president of Mt. Holyoke. Miss Woolley will be the guest of Gamma Tau Alpha, and will deliver the address of the annual open meeting of Gamma Tau.

For some years the alumnae have desired that Miss Woolley visit Agnes Scott, but her engagements had been made three years ahead. Gamma Tau is very fortunate in being able to have the president of Mt. Holyoke at its open meeting.

The subject of the address is one in which we are all interested: "The American Woman One Hundred Years Ago and Today." On the afternoon of the 20th Miss Woolley will speak to the alumnae in Atlanta on, "The College Woman in the World Today."

Before becoming president of Mt. Holyoke Miss Woolley was head of the Bible department at Wellesley. She has held many important positions, such as Director of the Religious Education Association, and offices connected with the Consumers' League and the Massachusetts Woman Suffrage League. She is the author of several books.

Miss Woolley has a national reputation as a forceful, brilliant speaker. She has done much for Mt. Holyoke and is prominent in educational circles. We feel that from her wide experience and knowledge of women she is able to tell us something helpful on the subjects she has chosen. Agnes Scott looks forward with great pleasure to the coming of her distinguished visitor.

Grand Opera Week Begins April 25th

Many A. S. C. Girls to Attend.

One of the big attractions that Agnes Scott's college year boasts is the annual visit to Atlanta of the Metropolitan Opera Company with its week of delightful operas. Atlanta is the only city south of the Mason-Dixon line and east of the Mississippi river that the Metropolitan visits. We are indeed fortunate to be in Atlanta when the annual opera week arrives.

Music lovers come from all over the South to the operas and most of us are hoping to see some folks from our own home town.

METROPOLITAN OPERAS IN ATLANTA NEXT WEEK.

The first opera is Andrea Chenier. The story tells of Andrea Chenier, who came to Paris for his education. He was a poet, patriot, and dreamer. The Revolution was in full swing. As he was a lover of liberty he took sides, was arrested, and was guillotined in 1794.

Next is Mefistofeles. It is drawn from Goethe's Faust. Episodes have been chosen from the whole story, however, and the episode of Helen of Troy is included.

La Boheme is a very delightful opera. The principal characters are an inseparable quartet who are reckless and happy-go-lucky in spite of their hunger and hardship.

The story of Manon is taken from the novel of the Abbe Prevost, but several changes have been made.

Next is Aida, an Italian opera. It is one of the longest operas, lasting four hours and forty minutes. It is one of Verdi's most famous works and is enjoyed by all music lovers.

Rigoletta has proved quite as popular as Aida. It is an opera in three acts. The scene is laid in Mantua and vicinity in the sixteenth century. The chief character is Rigoletta, a hunchback.

Tosca is the last one. The plot is gloomy and tragic but the musical

Delegates And Where They Are From Twenty Colleges Represented.

For several weeks one of the most important topics of conversation at Agnes Scott has been the Student Government Conference which is to be held here. The students have been looking forward with much interest and pleasure to the time when the delegates from the various colleges would arrive and have been planning for several entertainments in their honor.

The list of the colleges which will be represented at the Conference has been obtained, and about twenty of our colleges will have delegates here, it is found. The names of the colleges represented, the delegates, and the rooms where they will be entertained are as follows:

EDITORIALLY SPEAKING

WELCOME TO YOU, DELEGATES.

To each of the delegates here assembled for the Student Government Conference, Agnes Scott bids a hearty welcome. We have long been looking forward to the privilege of having you with us—you, the representatives of the best schools in our Southland, and the choice students of those schools. It is indeed an honor and an inspiration to have you here.

We not only hope that your trip to Agnes Scott will be profitable for you, and for the schools which you represent, but we want you to like our college, and to feel at home on our campus. Each student here is at your service, and would be delighted to perform any service that you might desire. The keys to the college are yours.

Just remember, Delegates, that Agnes Scott is glad to have you here, and that every student extends to you a cordial welcome.

AGNES SCOTT SPIRIT.

Why has Agnes Scott grown, and become the important centre of education that it is today?

It is because of the Agnes Scott spirit.

The Agnes Scott spirit is intangible, but very real. It is more important than any amount of riches that the college might possess. It is the college itself. The spirit of the students has made Agnes Scott rise, in its own estimation, and in the estimation of those around us. The Agnes Scott spirit is loyalty, love, honor, unselfishness and willingness to sacrifice, if necessary, for the benefit of our college.

It is the spirit that the students, as a whole have shown, that has made the Student Government Association, based on the honor system, successful here on this campus. Without the co-operation of the majority of the girls, such an undertaking would have been impossible.

It is the Agnes Scott spirit that made the raising of our Endowment possible, and it is the Agnes Scott spirit that has enabled the Lecture Association to procure so many distinguished lecturers this year. Those things are marks of progress.

The Agnes Scott spirit has made the college what it is. It makes us sing the Alma Mater reverently, "Hottentot," whole-souledly; it makes us work cheerfully and play enthusiastically and above all, it makes us love our college with a true devotion, seeing its failings, but only to correct them.

The Agnes Scott spirit has been handed down to us by those girls who have gone on before. It is our task to never let it wane, but to pass it on to those who are to come later as noble and unsullied as we have received it.

HINT TO THE FACULTY.

Why doesn't the faculty give us a play? All year we have been patiently waiting. Faculty, you wouldn't disappoint us.

LUCILE SMITH GIVES RECITAL.

One of the most enjoyable recitals of the college season was given Saturday evening, April the ninth, by Miss Lucile Smith, soprano. She was assisted by Miss Margaret McLaughlin, contralto, and Mrs. Lewis H. Johnson, accompanist. A large audience listened with much appreciation to the numbers, and wished that it could have more opportunities of hearing these singers.

The performers received many beautiful flowers. They well merited all the compliments that they received—and more—for the whole program was delighted. It was:

I. Aria, "These Are They" (The Holy City)—Gaul.

II. Aria, "Connais-tu le Pays (Mignon)"—Thomas.

III. (a) A Spirit Flower—Campbell-Tipton.
 (b) Love Has Wings—Rogers.

R. E. LEE HALL, BLUE RIDGE.

Have you signed up to go to Blue Ridge? If you haven't, do so right away, so you can get in the Agnes Scott Cottage.

WANTED: YOUR CLOTHES.

Don't you want some new spring clothes? So do the girls at Crossnore. But they can't get any unless you help them. Clearly the thing to do is to get new clothes for yourself and send all your old ones to Crossnore, where they will be new to those who have not seen them before.

If you live in Inman, take whatever you can spare to Ruth Sanders. If in Rebekeh Scott, take them to Jeannette Archer. If in Main, to Janef Preston. The box is to be sent off soon, and we all want it to be one worthy of Agnes Scott.

VOCATIONAL CENSUS.

What do you think you would like to do and be when you leave Agnes Scott? The Vocational Guidance department of the Y. W. C. A. knows now from the census they took last week. They found social service and teaching in the lead, with newspaper work and library work running close.

Next week every morning in chapel there will be a speaker, an authority in some line of work, to talk for ten minutes about the possibilities in that field, so that those interested may know the opportunities offered them.

Of course this vocational bureau is of the greatest interest and aid to seniors, since they are nearer to their life work. But underclassmen can prepare for more useful lives if they consider early what they want to do in the world. Don't miss chapel next week.

ALUMNAE.

Julia Lake Skinner.

Agnes Scott is always proud of the success of her old girls. The following extract recounts the work of one of our alumnae, First Presbyterian Church, Knoxville, Tennessee: "Our Young People's Worker, Miss Julia Lake Skinner, has thoroughly organized the three divisions of Christian endeavor, together with a strong weekly Bible meeting among the business women and girls of the city, with supper at the church each Friday night. There has issued directly from her labors the heartening fact that two hundred young people and business women have been brought under weekly Bible instruction and training who, hitherto, were not receiving it.

Miss Skinner has also introduced a regular missionary program into the Sunday school, devotional hour. With the election of a new staff of officers for the Sunday school this year the Intermediate and Senior Department was divided from the Adult Department, and beginning with April will meet in separate auditoriums. This makes a distinct advance step in Sunday school efficiency and growth. For all this work we are deeply indebted to Miss Skinner with her enthusiasm, energy and ability."

Bell; and the negative by the Mne-mosyneans, Anna Marie Landress and Nell Buchanan.

A large audience composed of enthusiastic members of both societies, encouraged the debaters with songs and yells. This was the second practice debate and gave splendid promise of victory in the actual contest on April twenty-sixth. With such debaters and the loyal support of the whole student body, Agnes Scott has determined to triumph over both Sophie Newcomb and Randolph-Macon.

INSTALLATION OF OFFICERS

Next Sunday at Y. W. meeting the new officers will be installed. There will be a beautiful ceremony in which the out-going president will hand on to the new one the candle, symbolizing the office which she has held. The old president, Janef Preston, will make a talk in giving up her responsibility, and the new president, Ruth Scandrett, will make one in receiving it.

In the processional the Glee Club will sing "Father of Lights," and the old cabinet will lead, followed by the new one. In the recessional the order will be reversed, the new cabinet preceding the old.

Those who have seen similar services before know that it will be both pretty and impressive.

WITH THE Y. W. C. A. IN TOWN.

The Y. W. C. A. in Atlanta is planning a big festival this spring in which those girls who have Girl Reserve clubs are vitally interested. The industrial department of the city Y. W. is going to give a mammoth spring festival, in which one of the chief attractions will be the pageant given by the Girl Reserves. There will be about three hundred in the pageant, which is the feature for which Agnes Scott girls will be partly responsible.

The story of the pageant is this: Mother Earth tells the Spirit of the Spring how her children have been great but not immortal, and that her latest sorrow is for America, who she had hoped would be a son above reproach; but apparently he has forgotten the ideals for which he has recently fought. The Spirit of the Spring calls in her friend Experience, who says that it is always easier for two to be noble than for one alone, and so she suggests that Mother Earth find a good wife for America. They look for one, and after passing by frivolous Gaiety and forbidding Ability, they choose True Womanhood, who is well-rounded in her development along bodily, mental, social, and spiritual lines. At the wedding she wears white and plain Y. W. blue, until during the ceremony she is given the red of self-sacrifice, and the stars of high ideals, and the torch of service, and stands forth as Columbia. They hear the calls of the oppressed peoples of the earth, and go off together, while Mother Earth breathes a prayer that her son may at last live up to the best that is within him.

The proceeds from the festival are to be used in sending delegates to the Girl Reserve conference this summer. Atlanta, has never sent any before but this year in addition to the delegates from the clubs, the Association is going to send the Agnes Scott girls who are advisers.

All who like to have a good time are invited to come to the pageant the second Saturday in May.

GIDDIE GOSSIP

My Dearest Aggie:

We all expected to feel "sorter let-down" like after all the grand rush and butterfly life of spring holidays but with all the thrill of having the conference here and welcoming the charming delegates we've forgotten to be blue and homesick. We're all so glad to have these girls and you would be wild about them and wish they were "residents" if you could only be here and know them. We're leading a very gay and hectic life now with all the entertainments in honor of the delegates and honestly, Aggie, were it not for the fact that the male attendance necessarily was conspicuous by its absence, we could imagine that we were all still at our "Home, Sweet Home" or back where we played the role of charming visitor in the home of our good friend or "roomie."

Some of the girls came back with new frat pins and others are parading around in rings with stones as big and bright as headlights! Don't you wish your friend was that kind, Aggie, so you could brag about me? I do!!!

We're all humming new tunes now, and doing new dance steps, since we went away; Gee! don't I wish we could have spring holidays or—delegates all the time! If we did—life at A. S. C. would be one "long sweet song"!

I wish somebody would elope or somethin' and then I would have some real exciting news to tell you. But anyway—too much excitement would cease to be exciting.

You ought to hear about Lucy and Hall! Well, they were out for the week-end and they met these two boys. One was very opportunely a photographer and so they spent the afternoon taking pictures. Imagine the surprise of these fair damsels when a recent "mail-call" brought them five dozen pictures of themselves—all sizes from little kodaks to life-sized portraits. The boys had enlarged and finished those pictures all for Lucy and Hall!

Dot was so excited Sunday night she could hardly walk over to Main Building—for "Cliff" was waiting there to see her. He's right up to date, too, Aggie, for I saw his straw hat on the hall table. He's awfully cute looking too!

Mr. Powell came to see Margaret

Easter Sunday and she was so mad because he would only stay four hours that she could hardly eat the wonderful dinner she had in town with him.

I'd be glad to see my Daddy even for ten minutes, Aggie, wouldn't you if you hadn't seen him since Christmas holidays?

M. McLean spent a happy week-end—guess why? "Hugh" came up from Sewanee to see her and to make sure that she would be there for commencement. She's been acting real dreamy and been sorter "up in the clouds" ever since he left. He's a senior this year, so I'll bet she'll have a grand time, don't you?

Jack got the most wonderful pink roses you ever saw Tuesday night. She couldn't imagine why she hadn't gotten them sooner until she discovered a card from the Nunnally Company saying they had run out of her special brand at Easter time and had to postpone the order, so Jack forgave "him."

Everyone here has gotten out of the habit of studying and we're all set for all the frivolity that will come our way!!!

Light-heartedly yours,
GIDDIE.

DAY PUPILS HOLD ELECTIONS.

On Thursday morning, the day pupils held their elections, which were as follows:

President—Ethel Ware.
Treasurer—Eileen Dodd.
Member of College Council Katherine Dunnington.
The day pupils are coming more and more to take an interest in the college and its organizations. Their rest room in the library that they have fixed is most attractive. They have been more interested in athletics than ever before. Our day pupils are all right, and we congratulate their new officers.

of the delegates. All meals will be served in Rebecca Scott dining hall. The number of representatives who are to be at the Conference, proves the interest of all these colleges, and gives promise of an enthusiastic meeting at Agnes Scott.

Mr. Dollarmarks: "And my son is getting well grounded in the classics?"

Prof. Cramemuppe: "My dear sir I may even say that he is rapidly becoming stranded on them."

MME. BORGISLOV GIVES PROGRAM FOR AGNES SCOTT.

Agnes Scott girls in the past years have enjoyed many opportunities of meeting celebrities, but those who attended the program of songs given by Madame Ruano Borgislov last week in the Propylean Hall feel that this was quite a unique opportunity.

Madame Borgislov, or Mrs. Ricardo Martin, is an American by birth but her parents were both Europeans—her father being Polish and her mother Russian. Mme. Borgislov has traveled widely and is the wife of the famous opera singer, Ricardo Martin, who has been heard several seasons with the Metropolitan Opera Company, and is most pleasantly remembered by many of us.

Mme. Borgislov is a very gifted artist and has a most attractive personality besides, and her appearance at Agnes Scott was a delightful and interesting event. The songs of this singer are mostly Slavic folk-songs in the Russian, Polish, or Czecho-Slovak.

This beautiful and gifted singer has been a notable entertainer of New York, Newport and Palm Beach society this season, and was heard in Atlanta under the auspices of the Atlanta Woman's Club. Of course Agnes Scott could not miss such an opportunity, and thanks to the efforts of Miss Sutphen we had the opportunity to hear Mme. Borgislov. We enjoyed her program very much, and feel greatly honored by her visit.

EMORY GLEE CLUB COMING TO AGNES SCOTT APRIL 23RD.

To Present "I Smell Smoke."

Yes, we are told so, and we feel that this smoke is particularly nice since it doesn't mean fire. It does mean, however, that the Emory Glee Club is coming here with a troop of splendid singers, and a grand opera production which bears this significant and classical title "I Smell Smoke!" Surely no true Agnes Scott girl would miss such an opportunity to enjoy one of the coming operas of the day.

The Emory Glee Club will be here on Saturday night, April twenty-third. Those who heard the club last year are able to assure the less fortunate ones that there is no greater treat in store for them during the whole year. They have some unusually fine voices and Agnes Scott has had especial opportunity to hear some of them. Mr. J. Foster Barnes took the leading bass in the Messiah chorus given before Christmas, and Mr. Byron Warner took the tenor part in the opera-logue "Manon" given by Agnes Scott students. Mr. Warner, it seems, is very versatile. He is to be the heroine in "I Smell Smoke."

Let us all go and see him. It is good for us to "see ourselves as others see us." and perhaps he will treat the ladies kindly. It is good for us, too, to enjoy ourselves and we cannot fail to do that if we consent to give the Emory Glee Club a hearing.

The Prince Spoke at A. S. C. Short While Ago.

A special dispensation from Rome has been sought to permit the marriage of Mrs. Bertha K. Archibald, a very wealthy English woman who has made her residence recently in New York, and Alfonso Louis Jerome de Bourbon of Spain, who gave an address at Agnes Scott not long ago. Mrs. Archibald is planning to join the Catholic church if the dispensation is granted.

We all remember the Prince who spoke to us with such charm on the subject of "Women and Civilization," a few months ago and will be very interested in his engagement.

The meeting between these two took place about three months ago at a ball at the Hotel Plaza, and since then the romance has progressed rapidly. Through this marriage Mrs. Archibald will become an American citizen, for the Prince recently was naturalized, taking the name of "Don Louis de Bourbon."

Mrs. Archibald is described as small, dark and vivacious. She has devoted much of her time to sculpture, and has in her home some quite beautiful statues of her own making. She was married when only seventeen years of age, and six months afterward her husband was killed. She came to America primarily because of her interest in tarpon fishing, and made the record in Florida for that season with a fish that weighed 175 pounds.

A New York paper says of him: "He is at present engaged in a plan for promoting business relations between the United States and the Balkan States. He markets American goods through the medium of the motion picture, affiliating native merchants in each country with an American corporation. He was born, he said, in Roumania in 1884, and during much of his early life he was hidden away."

Agnes Scott is especially interested in Prince Louis because of his having been entertained out here, and wishes him all happiness and success.

THE BENEFIT OF MISS PHI'S BEAUTY PARLOR.

Yes ma'am, spring surely has come. And everybody's thoughts have begun to turn toward all sorts of things. We know in which direction all the young men's fancies are turning, and father's are towards fishing and golf, and mother's toward spring house-cleaning, and ours toward new clothes and getting all dressed up and going somewhere.

And right here is where Miss Phi's beauty parlor comes in, for no matter how smart and ruffled our new taffetas and gingham may be, we must streak across the campus back of Inman and pay Miss Phi's beauty parlor a visit, before our toilets are really complete.

We may be bedraggled and tired and hopeless looking when we enter, but after a half hour with Mrs. Moore and the curling irons and the electric vibrator and about fifty other things we don't know the names of, we step forth from the shop quite different from the way we entered it.

Are Agnes Scott girls pretty? You bet they are. And Miss Phi's beauty parlor is making them prettier than ever.

When we read over this list of girls, we know that next year's Agonistic is going to be splendid.

With Eleanor, who all year has shown her ability and enthusiasm as athletic editor, at the head of the editorial staff, and "Vic" as business manager, the Agonistic is sure to be an A-1 paper. The school is enthusiastically behind the new Agonistic staff, and everybody knows that they'll be fine.

ATHLETIC OFFICERS ELECTED.

Just before spring holidays, three more athletic officers were elected by the student body. The officers are Ethel Ware, vice-president; Winona Peck, secretary, and Hilda McConnell, treasurer. These girls, together with Althea Stephens, president, have chosen the rest of the members of the Athletic Board for the 1921-22 session, but they have decided not to make the appointments until later on. With such a group of officers, the Athletic spoke of the Agnes Scott wheel is sure to be a success.

TRACK MEET HELD MARCH 26TH.

Seniors Have Most Points Toward Cup.

On Saturday afternoon, March 26, the Agnes Scott athletes slowly and solemnly marched out before an admiring crowd. The track meet practically finishes the athletic year and is a fitting climax for such an interesting, lively and successful season.

The managers chose the most capable and interested men as judges, who were Dr. McCain, Mr. Johnson and Mr. Painter.

There were seven main events which were hurdles, discus, baseball throw, 75-yard dash, 100-yard dash, hop-skip-and-jump, and the relay. The final score was:

	First place.
Hurdles	Margaret Laughlin
Discus	Hilda McConnell
Baseball Throw	Lois McClain
75-yd Dash	Ethel Ware
100-yd Dash	Ethel Ware
Hop-Skip-and-Jump	Ethel Ware
Relay	Seniors

The stars did credit to the Athletic Association. Ethel must be complimented for the sprinting which was the "best yet." Hilda added to her own glory and to our pleasure by breaking all Agnes Scott records. It is believed that she broke the record held by women's colleges. Her art in throwing the discus is certainly to be envied.

The Juniors and Seniors tied for first place, each winning 5 points toward the cup. The Sophomores won 3 points.

The present class standing for the cup is:

Seniors	25 points
Juniors	5 points
Sophomores	13 points
Freshmen	6 points

the South. It is not a college. There are no "exams, quizzes or tests" held and yet many a man has learned more in ten days there than he did in four years of college life. He learned to know himself and came to appreciate more fully the purposes of human existence. There is no other place just like it. It stands out alone, unique and original. ROMANCE.

"Dear Mr. Smith," she wrote to me.
And I? I said, "Dear Mabel."
Then she replied, "Dear Ned" to me
As soon as she was able.

"Dearest" just lasted one short week,
"My Darling" sounded better;
But somehow things weren't quite so sweet
In her responding letter.

So "Dearest" paid another stay
Still shorter than the first one;
And then it, too, just slid away,
And things were almost done.

For then, "Dear Ned" declined, you see,
"Dear Mabel" followed faster;
"Dear Mr. Smith," she wrote to me.
And I? I didn't answer.
—Virginia Reel.

MY GIRL.

She's the homeliest girl in Virginia,
She looks like a snowball in spring,
Just one hank of hair,
And freckled—I'll swear,
She's the sorriest bet in the ring.

But surely there's one consolation,
And I know that happy I'll be,
For go where I please,
My mind is at ease,
'Cause no one will steal her from me.
—Virginia Reel.

She nestled against the two strong arms that held her. She pressed her flushed cheek against the smooth skin-so near-so tan-so glowing.

"How handsome!" she cried, her eyes noting the fine straight back, the sturdy, well-shaped legs.

"How handsome!" she repeated.
"I adore a leather upholstered chair."

JULIA HAGOOD AND EMMA JONES REPRESENT A. S. C. AT RICHMOND COLLEGE DAY.

Present Original Stunt, "Every Girl."

If anyone thinks that Agnes Scott girls just sit back on their laurels and rest, after the long and arduous labor of getting a diploma, she is sadly mistaken. Agnes Scott has for several years past been trying to get a representation in the various college days held throughout the country once every year, and this year we have had the very best representatives possible at Richmond—Julia Hagood and Emma Jones, sent especially by Dr. Gaines.

The meeting there was held in the large Y. W. C. A. auditorium, with all the students from the Richmond high schools and the counties near there present. The program consisted of a stunt by the Westhampton girls, songs by Randolph-Macon, yells by Vassar and a stunt by A. S. C. entitled "Every Girl," and when you know that Emma wrote it herself, there is no need to tell you how very clever it was and how well it took.

The meeting was well attended and certainly worth while, for some of the high school children had been laboring under the impression that Agnes Scott was only a two-year school, as they expressed it, a finishing school so to speak. Dr. Gaines is enthusiastic about the success of this initial attempt that he has arranged for the same girls to go to Nashville, Knoxville and perhaps Birmingham, to show those who are preparing to enter some college, just how high Agnes Scott is ranked and just what high ideals she stands for.

A VOCABULARIC DUEL.

A Kentucky lawyer was standing on the steps of the Covington postoffice the other day, when an old colored man came up and, touching his hat, asked:

"Kin you tell me, is dis de place where dey sells postage stamps?"
"Yes, sir, this is the place," replied the lawyer, seeing a chance for a little quiet fun, "but what do you want with postage stamps, uncle?"

"To mail a letter, sah, of course."
"Well, then, you needn't bother about stamps; you don't have to put any on this week."

"I don't?"
"No, sir."
"Why—for not?"
"Well, you see, the conglomeration of the hypothenuse has differentiated the parallelogram so much that the consanguinity don't emulate the ordinary effervescence, and so the government has decided to send letters free."

The old man took off his hat, dubiously shook his head, and then with a long-drawn breath, slowly remarked:

"Well, Boss, all dat may be true, an' I don't say it ain't; but just sposen dat de eckentricity of de aggregation transubstantshuates de ignominiousness of de puppindickeler and sublimites de pusplicity of de consequences—don't you qualificate dat de government would confiscate dat dere letter? I guess I'd jest better put some stamps on anyhow, fer luck!"

And the lawyer passed solemnly down the street.—(Selected).—Ga. Cracker.

"Why do you call me a lock?"
"Something to adore."

THE QUEER MODERN GIRL.

She is queer—darned queer—queerer than most of these queer modern girls. That small V-shaped object glides here and there over the shiny surface! Under her deft fingers it seems controlled—her eyes seem to trace its path.

"Nothing queer about her!" you scoff, "All modern girls drive Oujas."
But you are wrong. The V-shaped object is no Oujja. It is a flat-iron.—B. Y., Greenville Training School, Greenville, N. C.

"Whom are you sneezing at my pretty maid?"

"I'm am going to sneeze—a-chew," she said.

"I've gone crazy over tating."

"I was perfectly dumb."

"It was so funny I was just splitting."

"I'm simply stuffed."

"That Bill Watkins drove me insane."

DEBATERS LEAVE SUNDAY FOR R. M. W. C.

Agnes Scott Hopes For Double Victory.

About the most exciting and most talked of thing about the campus now is the debate, and rightly, for indeed the debate is one of the biggest events in Agnes Scott's year. Everybody is uniformly confident of success. On all sides are heard the praises of our debating teams, and the bare thought of failure or defeat has never entered into the question.

The team leaves Sunday night, and everyone is planning to see them off with true Agnes Scott pep, and to let them know that Agnes Scott stands behind them as a body, and expects great things of them. This team goes to Randolph-Macon, and is composed of Anna Marie Landress and Nell Buchanan, with Eleanor Carpenter as an alternate. Miss Hearon will accompany them as chaperon.

The team that stays here is composed of F. C. Markley and Charlotte Bell with Martha Stansfield as alternate. These debaters have all proven themselves capable in many well-rendered debates, and Agnes Scott feels certain that she could not have chosen a better team to represent her in this debate.

The debates this year are especially interesting because this is the first time that they have been arranged in this way, and there is the possibility of a double victory, thus adding a double amount of interest.

So let's all be down to tell them "Good bye" in a way they won't soon forget and although the fact that it is Sunday may prevent the noisy and hilarious send-off which Agnes Scott would like to give them, still for all that it will be none the less sincere.

The most exciting part will be waiting to hear from the debate, but we are all confident that our girls will come out on top.

Whatever comes, Agnes Scott is vastly proud of her debaters, and hails them as the greatest ever. The love and confidence of the whole student body goes with them, and each and every one wishes them all the success in the world.

MAY DAY BOOK TO BE MADE.

Will Contain Programs and Pictures.

Miss Longshore has arranged a place in the library for a May Day book. Along with this book will be kept the Blackfriar book and files of the Agonistic, of the Aurora, and of the Silhouette. These books will always be on file and will be a source of great pleasure to the students.

Although other events that happen at Agnes Scott are long looked forward to and then remembered for long times afterwards, May Day is especially remembered because it is so pretty and then because it is springtime. Everyone likes to read a program of the May Day that was held the year before and also see the story as it is worked out in pictures. When this book is put in the library, everyone can go there and have her desire fulfilled for the programs and the pictures are to be put in this book. Some pictures of the preceding May Days have been secured but if anyone has any pictures from last year that she can contribute, they would be greatly appreciated.

In addition to the other books that are to be placed on file, there is a general college book in which are to be placed programs of all entertainments. These programs begin with the Pageant that was given several years ago under the directions of Miss McKinney and Miss Markley. This book is given through the kindness of Miss McKinney.

BLACKFRIARS PRESENT TWO PLAYS

"Society Manners" and "Two Pills in a Bottle."

The Blackfriar plays Tuesday night were great successes. In fact, this was one of the most delightful entertainments that Agnes Scott has had this year.

"Society Manners" was the first one. Two society ladies were sitting at a table engaged in conversation. Behind each stood her primitive self who said aloud just what they were really thinking while the society ladies carried on their conversation in the formal, set phrases of polite speech which are so insincere. Though exaggerated somewhat, this was rather a true picture of modern people.

The other play went by the name of "Three Pills in a Bottle." The scene occurred in a poor woman's home where her little sick boy lay in bed. His mother showed him three pills in a bottle. The three pills in the bottle—each to cure some special ill. She then bade him goodby and set out for her day's work.

Three different people passed by the little boy's window—a rich gentleman, a scissors grinder, and a working woman. As they went by, the child engaged them in conversation and begged them to come in and play with him, or at least to let their souls come.

The souls did come in, though their owners were unaware of it. Each of the souls told the child his particular ill after he had talked to him awhile, and it happened that the three pills which his mother had left suited each. So he gave them all away and the souls in return promised him a reward.

When the poor mother came home and found that her valuable pills were gone she shed bitter tears. But as her little boy had predicted, she got a reward, for the rich old man passed by again and gave her enough money to buy as many pills as were needed.

The casts of the two plays were as follows:

"Society Manners."

Harriet, a cultured woman—Sarah Fulton.

Hetty, her primitive self—Margaret Hay.

Elizabeth, a cultured woman—Sarah Till.

Lizzie, her primitive self—Rhea King.

Scene—Harriet's Reception Room.

Time—The Present.

And for—

"Three Pills in a Bottle."

The Widow Sims—Ruth Pirkle.

Tony Sims, her little boy—Rachel Rushton.

A Very Rich Gentleman—Fannie McCaa.

The Rich Gentleman's Soul—Helen Hall.

A Scissors Grinder—Charlotte Kessler.

The Scissors Grinder's Soul—Rhea King.

A Working Woman—Jeanette Archer.

The Working Woman's Soul—Virginia Burum.

Time—Now or Then.

Place—Anywhere or Nowhere.

Those grand old Blackfriars! They are always coming forward with some new play to charm us or make us happy again after a hard week's work. What would Agnes Scott do without them?

I WANDERED LONELY AS A CLOUD.

I wandered lonely as a cloud
That floats on high o'er vales and hills,
When all at once I saw a crowd,
A host, of golden daffodils;
Beside the lake, beneath the trees,
Fluttering and dancing in the breeze.

Continuous as the stars that shine
And twinkle on the milky way,
They stretch in never-ending line
Along the margin of a bay:
Ten thousand saw I at a glance,
Tossing their heads in sprightly dance.

The waves beside them danced;
but they Outdid the sparkling waves in glee:
A poet could not but be gay,
In such a jocund company:
I gazed and gazed, but little thought
What wealth the show to me had brought.

For oft, when on my couch I lie
In vacant or in pensive mood,
They flash upon the inward eye
Which is the bliss of solitude;
And then my heart with pleasure fills,
And dances with the daffodils.

—Wordsworth.

AGNES SCOTT SENDS MONEY FOR CHINESE RELIEF.

Will Have Two Meatless Dinners a Week.

"None of us at Agnes Scott have ever been really hungry. Perhaps there have been times when we thought that we were just about as hungry as a body could get—at any rate as hungry, and more so, than we liked to be, but we never really got so very hungry, because there was always the possibility of good food and plenty of it soon.

We have had various pleas presented to us at various times this year for various nations that are in distress and we have given more or less liberally as purse or inclination allowed. But now a plea comes which—though not new—seems to strike us as particularly demanding our aid and interest. This is the plea from China. Millions there are starving, actually going whole days, weeks, months without sufficient food to keep them alive and finally dying.

And three cents provides just enough food to keep one person alive for one day—one person like our father or our mother, or a little child like our little sister or brother! (A dollar saves such a life for a week.) So when Dr. Caldwell spoke in Y. W. service Sunday evening and presented the appeal anew a purpose was definitely formed in our minds that we must help these people in some way.

The way decided upon by the student body in the last open meeting of Student Government Association was that we would do without meat twice a week every week from now until the end of the semester. The amount that would be spent providing meat amounts to about $400, and this sum will be sent as A. S. C.'s contribution to the life saving fund.

So when we have no meat for meals let's not grumble or assume a martyr-like attitude, but be thankful that we have the means to give, and when we write to our folks about it or tell other people let's have them understand that it was our idea and that we're doing this bit of relief work willingly, joyfully and prayerfully.

MISS WOOLEY SPEAKS TUESDAY EVENING

SUBJECT, "THE AMERICAN WOMAN."

Guest of Gamma Tau Alpha.

On Tuesday evening, April 19, Miss Mary E. Woolley, president of Mt. Holyoke College, addressed the college community on "The American Woman 100 Years Ago and Today." Miss Woolley was the guest of Gamma Tau Alpha, and delivered her address at the annual open meeting of that society. The alumnae have desired to have Miss Woolley here for a number of years and feel that they were very fortunate in securing her services.

We had anticipated Miss Woolley's talk with much pleasure, for knowing her reputation we felt sure of an interesting and helpful address. It is needless to say that our expectations were fully realized, and we heard Miss Woolley's address with an unusual amount of pleasure and profit.

Miss Woolley spoke at Eggleston Hall Wednesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock on the subject of "The College Woman in the World Today." This lecture was given under the auspices of the Agnes Scott Alumnae, and a large audience heard her talk.

Miss Woolley has a national reputation as a forceful, brilliant speaker. She has done much for Mt. Holyoke, and is prominent in educational circles. Due to her wide experience and knowledge of women, she was able to talk most interestingly and helpfully on the subjects she had chosen.

AGNES SCOTT GIRLS GIVE STUNT IN ATLANTA.

Auspices Music Study Club.

Last Friday afternoon twelve Agnes Scott girls with as many suit cases full of costumes climbed into three big automobiles that were waiting in front of Main Building and set out for Atlanta to give a stunt at the Atlanta Music Study Club's lawn party.

The stunt given was the now quite famous one which B. O. Z. gave on Hoasc stunt night in the fall. It was written by Elizabeth Wilson and we all know how exceedingly clever it is.

It was through the invitation of Mrs. Beale (whom all Agnes Scott girls knew as Lois McIntyre) that the stunt was given. The Atlanta Music Study Club, of which Mrs. Beale is a member, wanted a most clever, most original stunt to feature at their lawn party, and so Mrs. Beale told them right where they could find exactly that.

The party was given at Mrs. Andrews' home on Peachtree road, the proceeds going to a fund for the Atlanta artists. One feature of the afternoon was a reading by Martha Lee Taliaferro. Those Agnes Scott girls who took part in the stunt are: Jeanette Archer—the girl. Jeanette Landrum—the hero. Polly Stone—the heroine. Hazel Bordeaux—the villain. Frances Amis—the dog. Nanabeth Preas—Anti-climax. Jack McIver—the moon. Lucy Oliver, Margaret Powell—stars. Frances Arant, Carolyn Moore—flowers.

Student Government Conference Successful

NEXT CONFERENCE TO BE AT SOPHIE NEWCOMB.

Delegates Report Enjoyable Time.

The Southern Intercollegiate Student Government conference which met at Agnes Scott during three days last week was most successful. About fifty colleges were represented, delegates coming from about twenty-five colleges south of the Mason-Dixon line.

Most of the delegates arrived Tuesday, and on Tuesday night, an Agnes Scott sing and a Blackfriar play were given in their honor. Wednesday morning the sessions began. On that day Hoasc gave a tea in the Silhouette Tea Room, and the Alumnae took them for a drive around Atlanta. Wednesday night the Cotillion Club gave a dance in the gymnasium, and Thursday, the Y. W. C. A. gave a tea. The college was planning a trip to Stone Mountain Thursday afternoon, to cook supper and come back by moonlight, but on account of the inclement weather that plan had to be abandoned. Thursday night there was an open meeting, to which all the college community was invited. Dr. McCain made an inspirational address to the delegates, which was much enjoyed by every one, and which gave the girls much practical advice and much inspiration.

Agnes Scott feels that she obtained much of real benefit from this conference. Topics treating of every phase of college life were taken up and discussed freely. Examples of these topics are: methods of making girls feel personally responsible for the success of student government; relation of faculty to student; intercollegiate relations; extending honor system to high schools and preparatory schools; the probation system; and other like subjects. Agnes Scott was officially represented at these meetings by Margaret McLaughlin, President of Student Government, Nell Buchanan, President-elect, and Cama Burgess, Vice-President-elect.

On Friday morning the last session of the conference was held. At this session, the officers of the association were elected. They are:

President—Nell Buchanan, Agnes Scott.

Vice-President—Edith Elfrich, Newcomb.

Secretary—Kathryn Hodges, R. M. W. C.

Treasurer—Lillian Holladay, Hollins.

Field Representative—Lena Kernodle, N. C. C. W.

At this time many invitations were submitted for the conference next fall, but the vote went to Sophie Newcomb.

Agnes Scott feels that it has been an especial privilege to have this conference meet with us, and that we have gained much from the convention. It has made us feel in closer touch with our sister colleges in the South, and has brought before us the fact that these colleges have problems very similar to ours, that must be solved. The fact that we have our association, not because we know no better, but because it best suits our needs is very important to each of us.

In these conferences, we come to realize the bigness and real value of Student Government. Colleges all over the world are getting to be self-governing. The conference also made us realize that without individual responsibility we could do nothing. Until the students separately realize to the fullest extent that they are responsible not only for their own honor, but for their neighbor's also, Student Government will never be perfect.

The conference has given Agnes Scott a broader vision. May we keep that vision, and make use of it.

EDITORIALLY SPEAKING

THE INTERCOLLEGIATE DEBATE—AND YOU.

On next Tuesday night come the Intercollegiate debates, and Agnes Scott has to redeem herself for her defeat of last year by taking the decision from Sophie Newcomb, and by winning a victory in new territory over Randolph-Macon. This is no easy task, but it requires all the strength and enthusiasm and spirit of the student body of Agnes Scott.

It is everybody's duty to stand behind these debaters, and to make them feel that behind them there are the good wishes of the student body who will push them on to victory with a never-failing spirit. So often we are prone to think that when duties are definitely given out to some girls, then we have no part in seeing them administered. But debates are often won by the whole-souled enthusiasm of the debaters. If we can make our debaters realize that we want them to win, that we are behind them to a man, then that will go a long way toward filling them with the determination to win.

The responsibility for these debates does not rest upon the six debaters we have chosen alone, but it rests upon each of us. How are we going to meet that responsibility? Are we going to indifferently sit in our room when the debates are going on, and then criticize if we lose? If you do not do your share in enthusiastic support of your college in this battle, and if Agnes Scott loses, then you yourself are in part responsible for the defeat.

Intercollegiate debating is the only form of intercollegiate activities we take part in. It is in these debates that we have the best opportunity to prove our metal, to uphold our college and to show our spirit. Let us not prove unworthy in this crisis.

HAVE YOU PAID YOUR BUDGET?

If you have not—and unfortunately there are a large number of girls who have not—then the Agonistic wants to voice public opinion, in urging you to pay it.

There are several reasons why you should pay your budget. First, you are certainly a loyal citizen of this community. In order to keep the community up to standard, to support the publications and the organizations without which our college would not be recognized, and would not be a profitable place in which to spend our time, a certain amount of money is necessary. As a loyal citizen, you should pay for the privilege which you enjoy.

Secondly—You should pay your budget because it is not fair to others who do pay for you not to do so. Haven't you more pride than to have others support the organization from which you derive much benefit—the student government, Y. W. C. A., etc. You cannot have the real respect of others unless you meet your honest obligations.

Thirdly—You ought to pay your budget to gain your own self-respect. You may say that you haven't the money, but is that really true? Are we not misrepresenting things in order to ease an uneasy conscience?

And lastly, we ought to pay the budget because the organizations need the money. They count on the money that you are expected to pay to meet their expenses. When you fail to live up to your obligation, then they go in the hole.

Girls, don't you see that when you owe budget money, it is a real debt? But if in spite of everything you persistently do not pay your budget, then won't you refrain from using the 'phones, the tennis courts, voting or from doing any of the things to which the paying of the budget entitles you? That should be a point of honor which, as an Agnes Scott girl, you cannot keep from observing.

MISS AGNES INVITED TO THE TECH "Y."

On Thursday, April the twenty-first, at seven-thirty in the evening, the Atlanta Student Volunteer Union is going to have a meeting in the Y. M. C. A. building at Tech. In the Union are over fifty student-volunteers for the foreign field; they are now in Tech, Agnes Scott, Emory, and Oglethorpe. To this meeting, however, are invited not only these, but all the students in schools around Atlanta, and the members of the B. Y. P. U.'s, Christian Endeavor societies, and Epworth Leagues in town. Not only those who are personally interested in doing foreign mission work are urged to come: the Student Volunteers think they have such a good meeting in prospect that they want even those who are sure that they will never work outside America to come and enjoy it with them.

Margaret McLaughlin is going to sing a solo, and Mr. J. Foster Barnes, who is also well-known among Agnes Scott music lovers; he is a theological student at Emory now, who expects to

BLUE RIDGE GIRLS GIVE STUNT MONDAY NIGHT.

Come On, Girls, And Go.

On Monday night the annual Blue Ridge Stunt was given in the chapel. It will be time in a few days to sign up for Blue Ridge, and so those who have already been there once and know what it is like want to tell everybody else about it, so that they will want to go and learn all about it for themselves.

The stunt gave a picture of a typical day at Blue Ridge, just overflowing with joy and fun and with the wonderful spirit that makes just being at Blue Ridge mean so much. The daily song practice was the first thing on the program, after classes in the morning, and do you know that Agnes Scott won second place in the song-contest, with the song which Janef wrote? So there was always a practice on that eventful last Saturday evening, and everybody tried to sing a different part and generally the one best suited to her voice.

After the song practice came an afternoon of first having a good time—a swim in the coldest water you've ever felt, of a hike to High Top—you've never seen such a view!—or best of all, the party at Dr. McCain's, even though the rain did have a rather disastrous effect upon some of us, but all the rest, even though dripping wet, had a glorious time.

But the nicest part of all, anybody who has been there will agree, is the delegation meeting the last thing at night, when everybody sits around the fire and tells everything that has happened during the day, and there are so many things to think and talk about, and just at the last you sing your favorite hymn, and then go to sleep on the sleeping porch, where seventeen people in fifteen beds doesn't matter in the least, and the beds are so close that someone is sure to step on your head if you are not careful, while the stars wink "good night" at you and the little stream in front of the cottage sings softly and the pines whisper soothingly.

Oh, there's nothing quite like the joy and the companionship and the wonder of Blue Ridge, but you must go yourself to know what it's really like. The Blue Ridge stunt tries to give you some idea of the things you do at Blue Ridge, but it's so far beyond anything that can be said about it that the only thing to do is to be one of those happy and fortunate beings, a "Blue Ridge Girl."

AGNES SCOTT COTTAGE AT BLUE RIDGE.

go out as soon as he is prepared. Dr. Cate, however, is a young man who has completed his training, and has been given a definite sailing date, August the eleventh next. He is to be sent to some hospital in Korea, by the Southern Methodist Board. In the course of his address he will tell why he has chosen to give up a successful career in this country to do service in Korea.

Another interesting speaker will be Mr. Chan, a native born Chinese, who is also a theological student at Emory. He is studying to go back with a message for his own people. His slight foreign accent is very attractive, and his earnestness makes him an impressive speaker. He will tell of conditions in his own land, as only a native can understand them.

Lest those not interested should think that the Student Volunteer movement is entirely visionary and that its only accomplishments are still promises, a returned missionary, who used to be traveling secretary for the Association, will tell something of her work in the Orient, and of her attitude toward foreign mission work since she has found out exactly what it is.

There is so much enthusiasm at Tech and Emory and Oglethorpe with regard to this rally that the Volunteers here feel sure that there will be a good many from Agnes Scott who will like to attend, and so they have arranged everything so that you can with little trouble. If you are interested, just speak to Ruth Hall, and she will see to making up parties and getting chaperones for them.

A VISITING SPEAKER.

The Y. W. C. A. was especially glad to have Dr. Charlie Myers to speak in chapel while our conference delegates were here; for we were glad for our visitors to know that we always welcome outside speakers. Dr. Myers is pastor of a Presbyterian church in Greensborough, North Carolina; he has been in Atlanta recently conducting a series of meetings in the North Avenue Presbyterian church. But of even greater personal interest to us is the fact that he is the uncle of Frances Myers and Josephine Logan. Those who know something of the difficulty of getting speakers when we want them will appreciate his coming out to talk to us.

EXAMS!

Every member of cabinet commission is required to take an examination before she is installed. Consequently all of next year's cabinet officers took theirs last week, before the installation service on Sunday. Their papers have been sent on to Field headquarters, but no report has come from them yet. Those who took the exam are properly modest about their papers, but the rest of us feel sure that they all did credit to Agnes Scott.

GIDDIE GOSSIP

My Dearest Aggie:

You really should have been here last week, we had the most wonderful time while all the delegates were here. If they like us as well as we liked them, we will have some true admirers! Aggie, they were all adorable girls and I wish you could have met them.

You know I think when a girl gets flowers nearly every week, there's a reason! Margaretta got some perfectly wonderful looking pink roses the other day and she gets 'em so often it's not even exciting for her any more.

Spring holidays certainly fostered romance this year. Seems to me that I've never heard of so many girls "falling" before and from all reports the men "fell" too. Cama vamped a nice lieutenant and he's coming up to see her this week-end. Isn't that thrilling?

Did you hear about Mary Lou? Well, she has a new beau and she won't tell me a thing about him because she's afraid I'll tell you, but she needn't think she's hiding anything from me, 'cause I can tell when they're in love!!!

You know, Aggie, I wish I was a Methodist or at least that I had had sense enough to affiliate with the Methodist church! Why? Because the other afternoon all the Methodist girls were taken out for a long ride and then to a tea and they had the best time you ever heard of. Just my luck!

Sidney thinks Sigma Nu's at Georgia are just about all right and the only thing she can't decide is whether she likes little "Cooks" or big "Cooks" best!

The other night Martha was all dressed up in a lovely brown dress and every time anybody came up and said how nice she looked or carelessly put their arm around her she sighed deeply and said she wished she was where she had been the last night she wore that dress! Now, Aggie, wasn't that a queer statement for her to make? Oh! those curving arms!

I haven't any more news for this time, so "adios" until next week.

Lovingly,
GIDDIE.

P. S.—I wonder why "Skinny" is so worried about "Boodle"? I'm going to ask Mart.

COTILLION CLUB GIVES OPENING BALL.

Gym Transformed Into Garden.

The opening dance of the Agnes Scott Cotillion Club, held in the gymnasium last Wednesday night, was the most brilliant affair of the season. Decorated in green and white, with festoons of honeysuckle decorating the walls, and dainty jack o' lanterns hung here and there, the gym was transformed into a veritable fairy land. At one end of the hall was the punch table, presided over by some of the members of Hoasc, and banked around with ferns.

When the guests arrived, they were escorted to the daintiest of dressing rooms to take off their capes. Soon the music—Tape's well-known orchestra—began and the couples lined up for the grand march, led by Nell Buchanan, President of the Cotillion Club, and Kathlyn Hodges of Randolph-Macon.

During the intermissions there were dances by members of the Cotillion Club. The first was a dance by Amy Twitty and Virginia Burum, dressed in green and white paper costumes, which was heartily applauded. Later Ruth Kaiser gave a solo dance. The grace and beauty of this dance was commended very highly by the guests who enjoyed it very much. During the evening, these dancers gave out favors to the guests, and horns, balloons, and streamers added much to the gaiety and festivity of the occasion.

The dance lasted until ten-thirty, when the last strains of "Home, Sweet Home" made people realize that the dance was at an end. About a hundred tired but enthusiastic dancers trailed regretfully from the scene of festivity, declaring that the dance had been a huge success.

The success of the dance was due in large part to the efforts of Lucy Wooten at the head of the various committees, and Charlotte Keesler, who was in charge of the decorations.

TEAS GIVEN FOR DELEGATES BY Y. W. C. A. AND HOASC.

Agnes Scott tried to do everything to give the delegates of the Student Government conference a good time as well as a hearty welcome while they were here. Wednesday morning members of Hoasc gave a tea in the Tea Room, cheese straws and tea being served. The Junior members of Hoasc and the delegates were invited. After the tea, the second session of the convention for the day met again. This was a very delightful intermission.

Thursday morning, the Y. W. C. A. also gave a tea in Rebekah Scott Lobby. Coffee and sandwiches were served by the girls. The new cabinet members for the next year were invited to come with the delegates.

These social gatherings gave a chance for the girls to know each other in a different way than in the sessions. Then, too, the girls refreshed by these moments were not as tired from the all morning meetings.

TWO NEW STUDENT PARLORS.

Little Rooms in Inman and Rebekah Refurnished.

"They say that Cozy Corners, They ain't got no style!"

But whoever said that is very much mistaken, because the two most popular places on the campus are the "Cozy Corner" Student Parlors in Inman and Rebekah. How could you blame any live girl for liking a little room that looks like home and that is really her own?

"Reed furniture is the most desirable when 'coziness' is the effect to be produced," so Miss Lewis, who was kind enough to help select the furniture, said, and reed was the choice.

Imagine a settee full of friendly sofa pillows in one corner of a little room, a big, comfortable rocker in another part, and in the center a nice round reed table, and of course the pianos are still there, your imagination will have conjured up for you a picture of the little "cozy corner" Student Parlors that we now own. Inman's room boasts of a new rug; and while Rebekah's aren't quite new, they are awfully pretty. Oh yes! and Miss Miller and Miss Calhoun came to the rescue with nice, fresh curtains.

Dreams are realizable even though Mr. and Mrs. Inman had to give their daughter into the wholly bond of padlock and Eunice Dean give a fire drill to make the girls in Inman realize that dreams are in our reach. Rebekah and Main had given their money readily but Inman lacked what seemed a fortune. Even the sacrifice of Shesha had not been sufficient and so — a fire drill. "Inman hall has got the pep" and she sure did show it by the way she came across with the necessary money. Part of it was only pledged though. Inman you have yet to live up to your pledges; we know you will, but let's get it in before the fatal first.

The greatest mystery of the season has been enacted while the committee was "straightening up." The little organ that has for years graced the ante-room of the chapel has vanished into space. Where it is, nobody knows, but we were glad to see it go. This organ has concealed from us for years some dust-covered placards bearing such mottoes as these: "Cleanliness is next to Godliness" and "The place for trash is in the trash can." The good old organ had concealed these truths from us that we needed to know for a long time.

The girls to whom we owe a vote of thanks for serving on the "Dream Realization" committee are: Mary McLellan, Ruth Hall, Quenelle Harold and Lucy Wooten.

LOOK PLEASANT, PLEASE!

Miss Agnes Has Her Beauty Struck.

We have been getting quite cocky lately over our appearance. We always knew we were a distinguished looking community, the genuine Four Hundred, as it were, but it is only in the last day or two that we had proof of the recognition of this fact by the outside world. This proof has been in the shape of Atlanta photographers who have pursued us with cameras and a zealous persistence which Norma Talmadge might covet.

It no longer startles us as we stream out of the chapel door each morning to find said photographers ambushed behind tall, spindly legged cameras, prepared to use all types of tactics, from respectful kindness to insulting brusqueness. The employer of the first type gently placed us where the sun would not shine in our eyes, and pleaded with us to look pretty if possible but pleasant in all circumstances, the other urged us in stentorian and megaphonic tones to show a little pep and when we were effectively posed and thoroughly cowed, flattered us into complacency once more. Fortunately we have not had to submit to much bully-ragging; even the photographer from Kansas failed to create a great sensation, and the thrill of having one's beauty reproduced in black and white is rapidly losing its thrill.

We are not alone in receiving publicity, for the delegates to the Student Government conference are also undergoing similar treatment. All we can hope for now is that when the returns come in we will look as pretty as we thought we did.

MNEMOSYNEANS WIN INTER-SOCIETY DEBATE.

Uphold Negative Side Intercollegiate Question.

The Mnemosyneans represented by Nell Buchanan and Anna Marie Landress won over the Propyleans supported by Frances Charlotte Markley and Charlotte Bell in the Inter-Society debate held in the chapel Monday night.

The debaters discussed pro and con every phase of the question: Resolved that in every railroad controversy threatening the public convenience the railroad labor board as constituted in the Transportation Act of 1920 be required by law to make an investigation and render a decision binding upon all parties to the dispute.

The negative was convincingly upheld by the winners while the affirmative was ably argued by its staunch supporters. Each speaker had fifteen minutes as well as ten for rebuttal. Especially noticeable was the poise and self-assurance, preparation and easy force, of each debater. The judges, Hon. Hooper Alexander, Hon. Murphy Candler, and Dr. H. E. Lee, made their decision two to one against compulsory arbitration as set out in the debate.

The Mnemosyneans are proud of their battle; but not so much as Agnes Scott will be of our same affirmative debating here April 26th with Sophie Newcomb's negative and of our same negative seeking to defeat Randolph-Macon's affirmative on their own territory.

ALUMNAE.

Visitors at A. S. C.

We are all delighted to have as our visitor this week, Julia Hagood, who finished last year. Julia was president of Student Government, and one of the most popular girls that ever attended Agnes Scott.

Ruth Crowel is also a visitor at Agnes Scott this week, and Margaret Blond has been out several times recently. It is always a pleasure to have these girls with us.

MISS NELL ESSLINGER GIVES RECITAL.

Assisted by Miss Lucile Smith.

On Saturday evening Miss Nell Esslinger, contralto, gave a most enjoyable recital to the college community. Miss Esslinger's voice has proved a source of much pleasure to us at Agnes Scott, and her recital on Saturday was indeed praiseworthy.

Miss Esslinger was assisted by Miss Lucile Smith, soprano. Mrs. Lewis Johnson played the accompaniment.

The program was as follows:

Y. W. C. A. SUMMER CAMP OPENS AT HIGHLAND ON MAY 30.

The announcement that the Y. W. C. A. summer camp at Highland, Ga., will be open for this season on May 30 brings a thrill of joy to the girls and young women of Atlanta and other states even as far as Louisiana, as many of these girls, singly and in groups, are besieging the Y. W. administration office, Peachtree Arcade, to learn what new the camp will have this summer, new meaning to them what they are to have in new pleasures and attractions, with possibly a few new rules. The camp improvements are as follows: First, Miss Lucy Marvin Adams, Y. W. C. A. health education director, will again be camp director for this season. Tennis courts are being constructed; the Nickajack swimming pool is being deepened and enlarged; Mrs. Charles A. Conklin, camp chairman, is personally superintending the building of attractive quarters for the camp counselors and flowers are being planted around the farm house.

New Rules: Girls may register for and stay at camp this season longer than one week. The rule has been, since the opening of the camp, three years ago, that girls stayed at camp only one week with the privilege of returning at different times, but not staying in succession. This season girls may stay at camp one month or longer if they so desire. Last season seventy-five girls were accommodated at camp each week. This season 100 or more will be received each week. Matrons will be welcome at camp this season, this being a change in rules from last summer when matrons were not registered for camp except in unusual cases. The desire of many matrons of the Y. W. C. A. health center to go to camp has caused ample provision to be made for their registration. College groups of girls will entertain house parties at camp this season which is an additional attraction being offered.

Study Courses: In order that girls may enjoy a vacation and yet make up necessary work, coaching will be given in high school and college subjects. A regular schedule will be arranged with competent instructors in charge. A woman physician, Dr. Dorothy Bocker, is engaged for this season. She will give a complete course in first aid each month. This course will be given three times during this summer. Miss Adams, free of charge to all girls, will give one-half hour daily to Swedish gymnastics.

Camp Program.

During the entire season regular programs will be given on Friday and Saturday nights, to consist of music, vaudeville, games and dramatics. The programs will express the original ideas and talents of the girls and will be presented by them for the entertainment of those in camp.

The camp has an immense garden that will supply the table with fresh vegetables. Ice will be sent out daily from Atlanta, also mail will be delivered daily. The camp has running water and electric lights. The spring water has been analyzed and pronounced chemically pure.

Camp Highland is ideally located twelve miles from Atlanta on Nickajack creek, in one of the most beautifully picturesque spots in Georgia. It contains one hundred and six acres, comprising cultivated farm land, and acres of wooded hills and valleys and winding streams.

It is designated as both a vacation and a week-end camp and is open to any girl who wishes an inexpensive vacation in the coolness and rugged beauty of the real country. All proceeds, above running expenses, are used for the Y. W. C. A. to improve and develop the camp. The purpose includes no plan to make money, but is to give girls a summer vacation at the least possible expense.

Attractions.

Swimming, wading, hikes, straw rides, picnics, blackberry hunts, impromptu plays, bacon and marshmallow bats on the big rock, stunts, stories, sings or vesper talks around the campfire in the evening—these and many other attractions which the originality of the girls suggest are among the happy and wholesome features of camp life at Highland.

Rates: Seven dollars per week; $1.50 per day; $5 from Monday p. m. to Saturday a. m.; $2 for week-end—Saturday p. m. to Monday a. m.

Registration: Guests must register at Y. W. C. A. office, Peachtree Arcade, before going to camp. A registration fee of $1 will be charged which will be deducted from board. No refund if cancelled. Reservations can be made only upon payment of registration fee. No one will be admitted to camp without registration card.

Each guest may bring two pieces of hand baggage; no trunks allowed. Each guest is requested to bring her own sheet, pillow-slip, towels, soap and kimona. Bloomers, middies, rubbers, old skirt, heavy shoes, bathing suit and extra blanket are desirable.

Every girl makes her own bed, keeps her part of the camp neat and clean and does her share of the general camp work.

Director and Counselors.

Assisting Miss Adams, camp director, will be the following counselors: Miss Julia Peacock and Mrs. Hattie York, of Cox College; Miss Ruth Scandrett, of Agnes Scott college; Miss Mary Mann, a member of the Y. W. C. A.; Miss Isabel Dew, a teacher of Fulton High school, and Miss Gertrude Reiley and Miss Kathleen Clement, of the city schools.

Junior Assistants: Miss Mary Newsom, of Shreveport, La.; Miss Martha Fox, of Bessie Tift college; Miss Carrie Scandrett, of Agnes Scott College; Miss Olive Hall, Miss Sara Slaughter, Miss Elizabeth Speir, Miss Stirling Johnson and Miss Virginia Ashe, of the Girls' High School, and little Miss Dorothy Winn.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT

The regular meeting of Student Government was held Monday evening, April 10, instead of Tuesday. The following announcements were made: Time limit is now 6:30.

Students are asked not to pull down the shades in the parlors in the evening.

Dates are not expected to smoke in the parlors or society halls.

Students are reminded not to use the telephones after light.

Several announcements about arrangements for the conference were made and the meeting was then open to discussion. The motion was made and seconded that we give up meat for two meals a week for the rest of the semester and send the money that that meat would cost to the relief of the famine sufferers in China. This was voted on at dinner Tuesday.

We are asked not to go to Chandler's drug store for any purpose until further notice.

STUDENT VOLUNTEERS TO MEET THURSDAY EVENING AT TECH Y. M. C. A.

The Atlanta Student Volunteer Union will meet Thursday, April 21, at 7:30 o'clock at the Tech Y. M. C. A. All the college young people of the city and the members of the B. Y. P. U.'s, Epworth Leagues and Christian Endeavors are invited.

The program will be in the interest of modern missionary activities. There will be a talk by Dr. Cate, who sails for Korea this summer, under the Methodist board. Mr. Chan, a Chinese student at Emory, will tell of some of the conditions in China from his own experience. A returned missionary from the Orient will probably also give an address. Miss Margaret McLaughlin, of Agnes Scott, and Mr. Barnes, of Emory, will sing solos.

The Atlanta union is composed of volunteers in the various colleges and universities of the city and has 50 members. The officers of the union are: Mr. Morris Paty, of Emory, president; Miss Ruth Hall, of Agnes Scott, vice-president; Miss Lillian McAlpin, of Agnes Scott, daughter of the oldest Presbyterian missionary in Japan, secretary; Mr. Perry Mullinax, of Emory, treasurer. The Atlanta union has two large meetings a year, and it is hoped that this one will be the best of the year and that there will be a large attendance.

DRESS REHEARSAL FOR MAY DAY TUESDAY.

Everyone Be On Time.

May Day will seem much nearer and more real after next Tuesday when the real event takes place. For on Tuesday the 26th there will be a dress rehearsal. Of course the dresses will be pinned and only temporarily draped, but the effect will be much the same. Photographers from the Atlanta papers will be out to take pictures for the Sunday editions of those groups whose costumes are most nearly finished. So if you want to have your group taken, get to work on your costume.

Now the success of May Day depends on the success of the practices, and the success of the practices depends on each one of us. Therefore it is up to each of us to have our costume ready and to be prompt at the dress rehearsal on Tuesday morning.

WHY YOU SHOULD ATTEND BLUE RIDGE.

1. Because of the beauty and charm of the place, the cool breezes, the tramps to the hills, sunrises and sunsets from the tops of the mountains—the cordial of youth, the challenge of the spirit—dreams and blue skies and distance and forests and ferns and wild flowers.

2. Because of the delightful recreation programs, the college games and delightful fellowships, the contagions of the best in the natural sharing of wholesome life.

3. Because of interesting and helpful studies and insights into new and splendid tasks, the appeal of great adventures for humanity, and the abiding strength of fellowship formed in those never-to-be-forgotten associations.

4. Because of inspirational and notable addresses which you cannot afford to miss.

5. Because the work back in the college needs you as leaders to take back to its life and tasks just what Blue Ridge has to give, viz: a new sense of religious values, a deepening of the spiritual life, new efficiency, new insights, new consecration.—Technique.

MAY DAY

SENIOR OPERA

Vol. VI

AGNES SCOTT COLLEGE, DECATUR, GA., TUESDAY, MAY 3, 1921

No. 21

SENIOR OPERA CO. HERE MAY 5th

WILL PRESENT "SAMSON AND THE LIAR."

Many New Stars.

Agnes Scott has been favored of late by many and famous speakers and has enjoyed unusual entertainments, but without doubt the best attraction of the season is the famous opera, "Samson and the Liar," to be presented by the special condescension of the Senior Opera Company, perhaps the best known and most popular of all metropolitan companies, not excepting the talented players who have been in Atlanta during the past week.

As the title suggests, this opera is distinctly tragic in tone, which gives the characters a particularly fine field for the display of their genius. Filled with pathos from beginning to end, it will wring tears from the heart of the most unresponsive listener, tears which it will be a privilege to shed. The company is most fortunate in having enlisted the talent of four of the most sought-after stars.

First of all Lucillini Smithshirewski, of whose fame it is needless to speak, will take the role of the Liar, a part which this star is particularly well-suited to fill. With her wide experience and her really marvelous voice, it is quite certain that she will bring the audience to her feet, as she has so often done in the past.

Heleni Wayhiti, the famous tenor, is equally well-known among music lovers. His tall and manly beauty, along with his deep and resonant voice, are enough to insure to us a remarkable treat.

Finally Heleni Wayhiti and Rachelo Rustonovitch and Margaretta McLaughliniami, baritone and contralto respectively, are to assume roles of almost equal importance, which seem to have been composed for their own particular voices, so well do they blend in the sweet and melodious harmony of the whole.

Were this all, it would be quite enough to assure us of the sterling worth of this production, but this is not the case, for the willowy and lithesome ballet which travels with the Senior Company production are to make their appearance during the evening, led by the world-famed Heleni Hallo, premiere danseuse.

When we add to this the fact that the company is bringing with it its own especially trained orchestra and efficient conductor, it is needless to say what a stupendous production may be expected.

The single-seat sale for this opera to be given Thursday evening will begin early in the week and it is expected that there will be a rush such as has never before been witnessed in the history of this company. So be on hand early, that you may be among those lucky ones who will procure seats in the limited seating capacity which the Auditorium Rebekah affords.

SOPHOMORES ELECT OFFICERS.

E. Ransom President.

At a very enthusiastic meeting Friday night the Sophomores elected their officers for the first semester of next year, the 1921-1922 session.

They are:
President—Elizabeth Ransom.
Vice-President—Eloise Knight.
Secretary and Treasurer—Christine Evans.

Members of Executive Committee—Nannie Campbell and Emily Guille.

We all realize the importance of this election, as these girls will be the ones who as junior officers will care for the tender Freshmen of '25.

MANY A. S. C. PROFESSORS GOING ABROAD

MISSES NEWTON AND STEVENSON TO STUDY IN EUROPE NEXT WINTER.

Mrs. Sydenstricker and Miss Hearon Going Also.

Many of our faculty are planning to go abroad this summer. It had seemed at first that the whole faculty would turn out en masse for England and the continent this summer, but a few of them have changed their plans, and now there are only four who will have that pleasure and privilege.

Miss Stephenson is planning to leave in the late summer or early fall for London, where she will do work in the history department of the University of London toward her Master's degree. She is especially fortunate and honored in having letters of introduction from the famous Dr. Campbell Morgan. She will return some time in the following July after her year's study.

Miss Newton has plans for studying at the University of Lisle, for which destination she is planning to leave in the late summer.

Mrs. Sydenstricker, however, intends only to spend the summer in travel abroad and will return to be with us next year. She will leave on June 2, on the "Princess Metoika," which is bound for Naples. From Naples her party will leave for a cruise on the Mediterranean, visiting points of historic interest in Greece and then back to Rome. Then they will travel over France, Switzerland, Belgium, Holland, Scotland and England. Having seen all that there is of beauty and interest in these countries, they will return to Montreal, Canada, in September.

The trip sounds too lovely and interesting for words, and it is certain that Mrs. Sydenstricker will have much that is instructive and interesting to tell us when she returns from her extensive traveling.

We regret very much that Miss Stephenson and Miss Newton will not be with us next winter, but feel sure that they will have a pleasant and profitable year.

Miss Hearon will also be abroad this summer, and Agnes Scott wishes to all her faculty who are leaving for their travels and studies in foreign lands good luck and a lovely trip.

CAMPAIGN UNDER FOOT FOR GREATER TECH.

Anyone who has seen the campus dotted with khaki uniforms lately or who has been awakened from a comfortable doze in the library by a variety of yells from a passing street car will probably want to know the why of this untoward circumstance.

The "why" was the Georgia Tech campaign for the purpose of raising funds to enlarge the plant. Tech at present owns a very large tract of land near the college where she hopes to erect dormitories and classroom buildings. Her ambition is to enlarge the capacity of the school sufficiently to accommodate five thousand students.

For months Tech has been planning this campaign. A band of seventy-two delegates, enough to occupy a special train, has been visiting various towns making booster speeches. The bright array included about twenty Alumnae, in Georgia.

The campaign proper in every Georgia Tech boy had an active part, began on Monday, the 25th, and lasted through Wednesday, the 27th. Atlanta and Decatur were apportioned among the canvassers, and Agnes Scott is glad to know that the campaign met with great success. Here's to the gold and white!

A SONG.

Hills are all aflower,
Skies are all afire;
Fool was I to sorrow
For a dead desire!

Lo, the April marvel
Stirs the world again—
Break, my heart, of beauty
That would not break of pain.

EMORY GLEE CLUB MAKES ANNUAL VISIT

Opera Presented "I Smell Smoke."

Grand opera was enjoyed at Agnes Scott a week earlier than usual, when last Saturday night the Emory Glee Club paid its annual visit. We have always agreed on the merits of Emory's Glee Club, but never before have they presented quite such an interesting program.

Especially enjoyable were the songs by Mr. Barnes, who took the leading bass in the Messiah chorus given before Christmas. Mr. Warner sang also, and proved further to have an unusual dramatic ability which was displayed in his role of heroine of the opera, "I Smell Smoke."

The Rag Time Court gave proof of the "power of the law" in syncopation and was conducted in perfect rhythm. The "Feminine" characters were unusually good. Mr. Eubanks and Mr. Osteen, in the roles of mother and daughter, were invincible, and gave us the opportunity of getting the masculine viewpoint of the manners of the weaker sex.

A bit of variety was offered in the whistling of "Listen to the Mocking Bird" by Mr. Partin, and not the least in attraction were the mandolin club and orchestra, who had a noble share in the entertainment during the evening.

The Glee Club was declared, by all who heard it, a huge success, and those who did not attend missed a "mighty good time." After the performance, the Agnes Scott Glee Club entertained them at a reception in Rebekah Scott lobby.

PLANS FOR MAY FETE COMPLETED

FIRST DRESS REHEARSAL.

Dances To Be Repeated in Atlanta.

The first dress rehearsal for "Pandora," the May Day fete at Agnes Scott, was held on Tuesday morning, April 26. All morning graceful nymphs and dryads flitted over the campus and peeped around the trunks of the tall oaks. The scene was a lovely one and gave promise of a more beautiful May Day festival than has ever been given here before.

Both the dances and costumes this year are exceptional in their beauty. For some weeks past over a hundred and fifty girls have been practicing under the direction of Misses Wade and Wilburh. The new dances afford much opportunity for grace, especially those of the companions of Aurora and of the derydops. The costumes are Grecian and of beautiful colors. The bright blue of the Aurora's dress with many white accents will make a pleasant contrast with the Atlanta papers which were taken for the rehearsal and dress rehearsal and taken pictures of the dancers. Besides these pictures, which will appear in the city papers, moving pictures of the performance are to be made and will be shown at

AGNES SCOTT WINS NEWCOMB AND R. M. W. C. DEBATES

Newcomb Defeats R. M. W. C.

AGNES SCOTT TEAM AT LYNCHBURG RETURNS VICTORIOUS.

A. S. C. WINS 2-1 OVER NEWCOMB.

As far as debating is concerned, Agnes Scott simply walked away with all the honors Tuesday night. After the decision had been rendered here and the celebration over the victory was under way, the news arrived from Lynchburg that the A. S. C. team had defeated Randolph-Macon by a majority vote of the judges. After that, Agnes Scott was the very happiest place on earth to be.

The news came by telegraph to Dr. Gaines, but even before the wire arrived, we had already heard the good news, for Miss Spott Payne, one of our alumnae who lives in Lynchburg, had called over long distance.

The Randolph-Macon-Sophie Newcombe debate, which was held in New Orleans, resulted in a unanimous decision in favor of Sophie Newcombe.

Although Randolph-Macon was defeated both times, we all know what splendid and sportsmanlike teams she had, and wish to congratulate her on her splendid work, for this is the first time Randolph-Macon has ever taken part in an inter-collegiate debate.

Our girls, Nell Buchanan, Anna Marie Landress, and Eleanor Carpenter, were royally received at Randolph-Macon and given many lovely entertainments. Agnes Scott is proud to have had these girls represent her, not only as debaters but as typifying the Agnes Scott spirit. Next year, the triangular debate will be arranged in such a way that Randolph-Macon will send one of her teams here, and we will have the opportunity of showing her how much we appreciate the cordial hospitality she has extended to our debaters this year.

The triangular debate was a great success. Especially does Agnes Scott feel glad and satisfied over the result, not only because we won, but because we feel we have learned to know and love our two southern sister colleges so much better. We all feel that the triangular debate will now be an established annual event.

TRIP TO STONE MOUNTAIN GIVEN NEWCOMB DEBATERS.

"They say that Stone Mountain
It ain't got no style;
It's got style all the while
All the while,
All the while."

At least our Newcomb visitors saw Stone Mountain in style last Thursday morning. The Athletic Association hired a car and took the debating guests for a long ride to the pet show place of Georgia. There are no mountains in Louisiana, and least of all, any of stone, upon which is to be carved history, for all posterity. The ride lasted about two hours, and Fan, Crew, and Dot say that they had every bit as good a time as the debaters.

the Howard theatre some time in the near future.

Two invitations to present the May Day festival in Atlanta have been received: one from the Alumnae Association and one from the Colonial Dames. Since two extra performances cannot be given, these two organizations have combined and will arrange for one presentation to be given after that at Agnes Scott, which will take place on Saturday afternoon of May 7.

May Day is always looked forward to with pleasant anticipations by both the college community and the friends of the college from far and near. Since May Day is going to be better in every way than ever before, the large crowds of interested and pleased on-lookers, which are expected to attend, may be assured that they will go away gratified by the grace and beauty which they have seen.

"Here's to the rep, the pep—the name of Agnes Scott,
For it is a jolly thing to be a Hottentot."

And no occasion in the whole session of '20-'21 at dear old A. S. C. has proved more conclusively the existence of aforesaid rep, pep, etc., than the occasion of the Newcomb-Agnes Scott debate on Tuesday night, April 26th.

In the first place, the pep was certainly 100 per cent. present, as anybody who was there can testify, and as anybody who was within two blocks of chapel can testify. Serenades and yells, cheers and songs kept the air ringing for over half an hour before the debating began. Our song-leader, Ruth Hall, was the "peppiest" yet, and our orchestra—well, it was just grand—in fact, everything was simply great.

After we had sung a while, and sung some more—than we settled down to hear the debate: "Resolved, that in all railway controversies threatening public convenience, a labor board as constituted in the transportation act of 1920 be required by law to make an investigation and render a decision binding on all parties concerned."

One of our most popular alumnae, Emma Jones, was "mistress of ceremonies." She explained how the debating idea had originated and grown, and how a triangular debate had been the ambition of Sophie Newcomb College as well as of A. S. C. for a long time, and that now it was finally realized. Miss Jones went on to explain that each college (R. M. W. C., A. S. C. and Newcomb) had prepared two debating teams, "one to fare forth into the ranks of the enemy, and the other to do battle at home." Randolph-Macon's team for the "affirmative" side of the question for debate was debating at Sophie Newcomb while A. S. C.'s "negative" team was debating at Randolph-Macon. After a statement of the question, the actual debate commenced.

Frances Charlotte Markeley and Charlotte Bell represented Agnes Scott and debated the affirmative side of the question. Martha Stansfield was alternate. Miss Shields and Miss Odenheimer were Newcomb's debaters for the negative, with Miss Kuss as alternate.

After a most instructive and interesting debating on the question by the four able orators above named, the Judges—Gov. Hugh M. Dorsey, Mr. Marvin Underwood and Mr. M. L. Brittain, gave a decision of 2 to 1 in favor of the affirmative.

Sophie Newcomb's debaters were "the very best of good sports," and put up a noble fight, and A. S. C. admires their ability and sportsmanship.

Anybody that was present can tell you that if there was any doubt as to the rep, the pep or anything else about the A. S. C. spirit these doubts vanished into thin air on Tuesday night on the occasion of the debate.

The visiting representatives from S. N. were entertained while here at luncheons and teas—for on Tuesday they were entertained at luncheon at East Lake club and then taken for a drive; then at 5 o'clock a reception was given for them in the Mnemosynean Hall by the Lecture Association. On Wednesday Pi Alpha Phi entertained them at the Hotel Ansley at lunch, Miss Stephenson gave them a tea in her room in West Lawn, and later Julia Hagood entertained them at supper in the Tea Room. Then on Wednesday night they were taken to the opera, were entertained again on Thursday and left Thursday afternoon for New Orleans.

EDITORIALLY SPEAKING

NEXT YEAR'S OFFICERS.

There is an ancient saying: "After the tempest, 'peace,'" and while student elections are not exactly analagous with a tempest, there is enough likeness between the two to admit of comparison. For elections are like a storm that stirs the ocean to its profoundest depths and its influence is felt in every little channel and broad river that flows into the ocean. There is a great rushing to and fro, the current ebbs and flows until the final overwhelming tide sets it and sweeps everything irresistibly with it. But, just when the storm is raging most fiercely, a sudden calm falls; and so it is with elections, when after a period of concentrated thought and earnest consideration and the effort to do the thing that is best—to say nothing of the stir and excitement created—the calm has fallen upon us again, and we have settled down to our old comfortable way of just drifting along most of the time, taking it for granted that everything will be done as it ought to be, but without thinking or worrying much about how it will be done.

In electing the student officers for next year we have all conscientiously tried to fill each place with the girl who is best suited to hold it and to carry it on, work capably and successfully! We have chosen our leaders, but how are we going to follow them? For after all, however excellent and efficient the leaders may be, they cannot work alone, but need the support of every single member of the student body. Our leaders may be—and we believe that they are—endowed with every qualification for carrying on this work, but if we fail to respond to their leadership, how can they accomplish anything?

There are very definite ways in which we may prove that we are interested and ready to co-operate in all of their plans. The new Y. W. C. A. cabinet has already been installed and committees have been chosen, and it is these committees that do much of the work planned by the department heads. There is a place for almost every girl on some one of these committees, and if we refuse when asked to serve on any of them, besides hindering their work we are showing that we are indifferent to the real welfare of the college. Student Government is working out ideas for improvement and advancement for next year, and in these it is essential that we should all join with whole-hearted and active enthusiasm. The staffs of the publications and the sport managers of the Athletic Association are being selected; and how can we better prove that we have that elusive but extremely important quality, College Spirit, than by gladly doing anything that we may be asked to do by any of these organizations?

It is not fair to the student officers not to uphold them after they have been elected; for in electing them we pledged ourselves to support them; and to fulfill this pledge is as much a part of the honor system as are any of the rules of Student Government. We have chosen our leaders; are we going to follow them?

STUDENT GOVERNMENT NEWS.

Time limit is now 7 o'clock.

The regular meeting of Student Government was held Monday evening last week. The following announcements were made:

Students are reminded to be careful about noise and visiting after lights and noise during quiet hour in the evening. Practors are asked to give knocks for noise hereafter without giving warning.

Underclassmen are reminded that they cannot have dates in the lobby of Rebekah Scott or in the society halls.

It was suggested that the office of student treasurer be connected with the Student Government Association hereafter, in order that the treasurer may have the backing of this organization. This will be voted on in the next meeting.

The girls who have not paid their budget for the second semester cannot have their Annuals unless they pay three dollars.

The request was made that the subject of Juniors rooming with Seniors next year be brought up in college council.

MISS AGNES GETS SOME MAIL.

The following letter is from our missionary in Korea. We feel that she is peculiarly our own because she used to go to Agnes Scott herself:

My dear Agnes Scott Girls:

Today for the first time I've really known that I am your missionary and though I haven't time tonight for a real missionary letter, I must write and tell you how much I appreciate your asking for me and for the personal interest Ruth Hall's letter promises you will have in me, and how glad I am going to be to get those letters telling me all the Agnes Scott news and showing me that you are thinking about me. The Concord folks have been so good about writing to me and I've gotten to feel very close to them; but they promise to keep on being my friends, so I am just thoroughly happy over having a big crowd of new friends in you girls. In fact I'm quite excited over being an Agnes Scott girl again! So please be sure to write me and I certainly am going to try to write you as often as I can.

I don't know how much you all know about Korea and just what a "single lady evangelistic worker" does, and maybe I'll tell you a whole lot of things you already know, but I'm planning now to write you serial letters giving you short accounts of my work and my home life, then you'll have a better idea of what I'm talking about when I write you letters from this country. I hope I can carry out this plan for I believe we can get better acquainted if I do.

Right now I am down in Kwan-Ju helping in the "Big Bible Class" for women of this territory—the class being from March 1st to 11th. And we are having a splendid class. There are 440 on the roll, but not all of them will get promotion cards as over 50 came in late. This is a big experience in the lives of most of these women and they are having a fine time. Every afternoon they are gotten out for some sight-see of the foreign homes or the schools or the hospital; yesterday afternoon most of them walked out about a mile to see the leper hospital; or there is had some little entertainment down in the Bible School building, but tomorrow afternoon we're to give them a party—have all kinds of games and refreshments, and I wish everyone of you could be here to see them play and how much fun they have.

Our ten days' class in Chung-Ju opens next Tuesday and I do hope will be a big one, too; but the men's class was so big this year and our class is coming rather late so I don't know just how many to expect.

Think of concluding Genesis in ten days! In one of my classes tomorrow I have to teach the latter half of the life of Joseph from the 42nd chapter to the end, and I'm not prepared for it; so you see why I really mustn't write a "missionary letter" tonight, though this is 'most one now.

MISS MALTRY SPEAKS ON "NURSING AS A PROFESSION."

A great many of us are asking ourselves the question, "After college, what?" Speakers in different professions are telling us, in a series of lectures, what opportunities their professions offer. Tuesday morning at the chapel hour Miss Frances Maltry, a representative of the Southern division of the American Red Cross, spoke to us on "The Opportunities of Nursing as a Profession."

She explained in detail a broad program for public health, which includes the services of trained nurses. She said that few avenues of work, either professional or commercial, were closed to women now. But many of them are overcrowded, whereas the country is greatly in need of more nurses. The demand for nurses, she told us, is growing steadily, and one with a nurse's diploma need never fear being unemployed. She also made it clear that nursing prepares young women to meet the responsibilities of domestic life as well as any other profession.

Miss Maltry—The "ornado" nurse and ha—The Chautau—er of great personality. h interested in this—ess' Home—so many of us are having to decide what our life work will be. The nursing profession is one well worth consideration.

Please don't forget about those letters, and be sure to tell me about Miss Hopkins, Miss McKinney and Dr. Gaines when you write.

With love for each one of you,

EMILY WINN.

GIDDIE GOSSIP

My darling Aggie:

We're so popular lately that you wouldn't know us—there are boys all over the campus at all times of the day. Well, even if they ARE canvassing for "Greater Tech," it's quite refreshing to see so many "gentlemen" all over the place. Wouldn't it be nice if Tech were just "next door" and Emory were "across the street?"

You know last Saturday those adorable "Emoryites" and their glee club gladdened the hearts of A. S. C. girls with their tender warblings and their "bolshevik jazz."

Since we've won all the debates we could find and have proved that our debaters are the best who can be found, we're all excited and are sure now that A. S. C. will furnish AT LEAST a president of the United States some day!

But I meant to tell you about something that happened the night of the Emory Glee Club. An Emory man fell so hard for R. Price that it wasn't even funny. He asked everyone he met who the cute little girl with dark bobbed hair was, and when he found out, he wasn't happy until he'd met her! What do you think about vampish people like that?

It's getting to be no unusual thing for us all to blossom forth in dinner and evening dresses, but it still gives us a thrill to see handsome youths all dressed up in their dress clothes, too. Guess after we have a few more glee clubs and the senior prom, that will begin to ease its snap, too.

If you were to come by Agnes Scott most any afternoon these days and saw the number of ears drawn up along the edge of front campus, you would think that "Miss Agnes" was having an "at home" or somethin' like that, but it's only a May Day practice on the lawn in front of Inman. Judging from the preliminary audience, the crowds on May Day will most probably be record-breaking.

There hasn't been any abatement in the number of specials, flowers, candy and dates that have been sent out to "Miss Agnes."

Frat-pins keep appearing daily. M. Martin is the latest one I've noticed. "He's" a Phi Psi and of course Marguerite is proud as proud can be of it. I don't blame her, do you, Aggie?

Well, Aggie, dear, if you know any news, let me hear from you at once. Love and lots of it.

COMMENCEMENT PLANS.

Many Affairs Planned For Our Seniors.

The annual had a Freshman thrill story in it but the Senior thrills that are in store for commencement are a great deal larger in number than any which the greenest of green Freshmen has ever had.

The first thing on our program for commencement this year is the Soph-Senior tea-dance at East Lake. East Lake is one of the most wonderful pleasure resorts of Atlanta and a special beauty feature at this time will be furnished by the guests themselves. You ask what the "beauty feature" is? Well, all the young ladies lucky enough to be Sophomores or Seniors will wear light, fluffy dresses and of course they will be very lovely. An added attraction will be wonderful music (they won't say who is to furnish it, but we know it will be good).

Then the Sophomore sisters, those blessed mortals, are going to give a luncheon at the Georgian-Terrace on Friday, the 20th. Imagine being there, in that dream place, with your dear Senior Sister! This is something for which the Freshmen and Juniors live in hopes and the Sophomores and Seniors will realize.

On the Thursday before commencement comes the wonderful "prom." The innovation of the season. "There will be young men," so Miss Hopkins said, and immediately every Senior began to rack her brain to decide whom to invite. It is to be a faculty affair and will take the place of the usual reception.

The Juniors are very secretive about their banquet, as is their custom, but they will say that it is to be on the Friday evening before commencement. The Juniors have already signed up for the Seniors that they are to take and have made their dates. Even though we don't know a thing about the banquet, except the date, yet we know that it will be lovely since the Seniors are the inspiration and the Juniors the hostesses.

Of course the spring-play will be another thrill, especially for the Blackfriar Seniors since it is the—well, since lots of them will be in it. The Juniors and Seniors, have had the pleasure of meeting the author, Granville Barker, who has been on the campus during "their day." The name of the play is "Prunella." It is a Pierrot and Pierret affair with a Dutch house and garden for the background (Dr. Gaines' house with an improvised fence around it). Everybody in Blackfriars is trying out for it and many of them have a pretty good chance to get in since there are 23 characters in all. It will be given the Saturday evening before commencement.

RECEPTION GIVEN ATLANTA PRESBYTERIAL.

Many Alumnae Members.

An event of especial interest to Agnes Scott because of the participation in it for former Agnes Scott girls is the reception to be tendered the ladies of the Atlanta Presbyterial on Thursday afternoon of next week. The reception will be held in Rebekah Scott lobby between the hours of five and six. Committees of students will be detailed to show the delegates the beauties of our campus.

The Atlanta Presbyterial will hold its annual meeting May 4-6 in the Decatur Presbyterial church. It is one of the largest of the six presbyterials in the synodical of Georgia. The presbyterial covers twenty-two counties. Sixty delegates are expected among whom Agnes Scott numbers the President of the organization and several members of the executive board as former students.

NEWCOMB DEBATERS ENTERTAINED.

Teas and Luncheons Given For Visitors.

When visitors come, there is always the question, How are we going to entertain them? Last week, girls were flying about making interesting plans for the Sophie Newcomb debaters. Such a string of luncheons, drives, teas, and "things" makes us all wish that we could be visitors just once. The college was dressed in her best to receive them Monday morning.

After lunch in Inman, Mrs. Boyd, who helped select judges for the visiting debaters, took the guests and the officers of the Debating Council for a long, pleasant drive. She then entertained them at a tea in the club house at East Lake.

Monday night the guests enjoyed a delicious supper in White House dining room.

Tuesday the debaters once more drove out to the East Lake club—this time for a luncheon given by the Lecture Association.

The Student Government Association gave a tea in Rebekah Scott Lobby Tuesday afternoon. Quite a number of the Agnes Scott girls were invited to meet the Newcomb visitors.

Wednesday morning Katherine Seay, a member of the Alumnae, entertained the guests with breakfast in the tea room.

After a long drive through Atlanta Wednesday morning, the members of Pi Alpha Phi gave an elaborate luncheon for the debaters at the Ansley Hotel. In the afternoon Miss Stevenson was hostess at a delightful tea in her room at West Lawn. This was one of the most enjoyable entertainments for the visitors.

Wednesday night there was a supper in the tea room with Julia Hagood, who graduated here last year, as hostess.

The Sophie Newcomb and Agnes Scott debaters were entertained at the Opera Wednesday night. This was an unexpected treat for the New Orleans girls.

Thursday morning the guests had a pleasant drive to Stone Mountain with the members of the Athletic Association. They enjoyed the climb up the mountain and the view from the top.

The girls in Rebekah Scott were hostesses at a luncheon to the Newcomb girls on Thursday. The girls left in the afternoon for their own college.

They endeared themselves to us all by their praise of our college and their delight in the entertainment we gave them. Although we are proud and glad that we won the debate, we are sorry that their visit was marred by their disappointment in their defeat. They have shown us the real spirit of Newcomb College and we are looking forward to the time now when we shall visit them next year.

PRESIDENT OF HOLYOKE SPEAKS AT AGNES SCOTT.

"American Womanhood One Hundred Years Ago and Now."

At the annual opening meeting of Gamma Tau Agnes Scott had the great pleasure of hearing Miss Mary E. Woolley, president of Mt. Holyoke. Miss Woolley is a speaker of great force, of charming manner, and of delightful humor.

President Woolley began by giving to Agnes Scott the greeting which the girls of Mt. Holyoke had sent. The subject of the address of the evening was "American Womanhood One Hundred Years Ago and Now." Miss Woolley traced the development of education from the admission of women to common schools in New England, through the establishment of "female seminaries" to the present college. She went on to point out how the war created a demand for trained workers regardless of sex. Through this demand a great many new fields have been opened up to women.

Women have three natural qualities Miss Woolley pointed out: the constructive, the personal, and the idealistic. The first quality makes women opposed to war. The second quality, the personal, enables women to see not labor but the laborer, people of Europe not as foreign but as fellow-men. To the idealistic trait college training adds clear and sane thinking. Through the idealistic comes progress. Miss Woolley closed with these striking words: "We must have clear vision, earnest effort, high ideals. We must be quick to see and ready to meet the needs of the world."

ALUMNAE.

Visitors At A. S. C.

Everyone welcomes "K. Seay" again at Agnes Scott! She was a very popular and brilliant member of the student body, and graduated from this college four years ago with the highest of honors, including a Gamma Tau pin!

"K. Seay" has been spending the winter at her home in Nashville, and has returned to pay us a two weeks' visit.

Julia Hagood, of the class of '19, is also a guest of the college. Julia graduated so recently she is well known by all the present student body and always welcomed back.

GETTING INTO IT GRADUALLY.

"George," said a Florida man to an old negro in his employ, "I understand that you intend to give your son an education?"

"Dat's my intention, suh," responded George. "I know myself what 'tis to struggle along without learnin', an' I has determined my son ain't goin' to have no sich trouble as Ise had."

"Is your son learning rapidly?" "He shore is, suh. Las' week he done wrote a lettah to his aunt what lives more'n twenty miles from yere, an' afta while he's goin' to write to his aunt dat lives 'bout fifty miles from yere."

"Why doesn't he write to that aunt now?" asked his employer.

"He 'kaint write so fur yit, suh. He kin write twenty miles fust rate, but I tole him not to try fifty miles till he gets stronger wif his pen."—Jacksonville Times-Union.

TAKE A DIP IN THE SWIMMING POOL.

Swimming pool and warm weather! What two words go more beautifully together? Of course Miss Agnes' swimming pool is open to all, and in all weather too; but somehow it doesn't seem so tempting when there's ice and snow on the ground.

One can pass by the gym building any hour of the day and hear the girls splashing about in the vast depths of our ocean. And did you ever hear such delighted squeaks and yells as issue from the very bottom of these girls' heart? Of course there is heard a piercing cry or two from a timid little Freshman who has not learned to navigate our waters, but not for long does she wail, for the water beneath is too inviting.

Now let us take a peep at that scene which has proved itself so familiar to Agnes Scotters. There is one girl entirely submerged like a submarine. She knows the dashing waves. But there is another who timidly clings to the shore. Let's duck her too! Isn't it fun to be in the swimming pool this hot weather?

They were going home from school. "Teacher said that that that that that girl used was superfluous."

"Here's the first pupil for my stammering school," the business man said as he introduced himself.

A negro mammy had a family of well-behaved boys, and one day her mistress asked, "Sally, how did you raise your boys so well?"

"Ah'll tell you, missus," answered Sally, "ah raise dem boys with a barrel-stave, and ah raise 'em frequent."

"What does this friend of yours look like, Edna?"

"He's just wonderful! Rather dark, with a twin six roadster, and credit at all the restaurants."—Judge.

"To think they call this chicken feed!" mourned the Collegian, as he mullied over a handful of nickels and dimes. "I never fed a chicken on less than a five-dollar bill in my life."

A LEGAL TURN.

The following is told of a late railway magnate and a prominent Philadelphia lawyer. Said the magnate to the lawyer:

"I want you to show that this law is unconstitutional. Do you think you can manage it?"

"Easily," answered the lawyer. "Well, go ahead and get familiar with the case."

"I'm already at home in it. I know my ground perfectly. It's the same law you had me prove was constitutional two ears ago."

A portly Dutch woman applied at the postoffice for a money order to send to her son in the Far East. She told the clerk she had left her son's letter at home, but said he was "some place out by China dot sounds like der noise an automobile makes."

The clerk smiled and turning to another nearby he said: "What kind of a noise does an automobile make, Joe?"

"Honk, honk!" the other suggested. "Yah, dat's it," exclaimed the woman, her face brightening. "Honk, honk, dot's der place."

So the clerk made the order payable at Hong Kong and the woman went away happy.—Boston Transcript.

QUESTIONS ASKED.

A small boy of the Jewish persuasion who was playing at the end of the pier fell into the sea and was only rescued after great difficulty by an intrepid swimmer, who dived off the end of the pier and succeeded in getting the boy into a rowboat.

Half an hour afterward, much exhausted by his effort, the rescuer was walking off the pier when a man came up and tapped him on the shoulder.

"Are you the man who saved my son Ikey's life?" he said.

"Yes," answered the much-exhausted hero.

"And how do you correct your watch?" asked the professor.

"I take it to the watchmaker in Cairo," exclaimed the soldier, "and he tells me the error."

Forthwith the professor interviewed the watchmaker and asked him to explain how he checked the error of the gunner's watch. "I always get the correct time from the gun," was the reply.

ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION GIVES 6 A. M. HIKE.

If there were any visitors on the campus last Thursday night they were probably astonished by Agnes Scott's industry, for every few minutes some girl would call to another, "Have you an alarm clock? Wake me up about twenty minutes of six in the morning, please."

However all this industry was not the result of a coming test or term paper but of the announcement on the Athletic Bulletin Board, "Hike tomorrow. Six o'clock sharp. Return in time for breakfast. Everybody come. Only two more this season."

At six o'clock an unusual number of hikers assembled on Main steps, some of us carrying a few crackers carefully tucked away in our sweater pockets. By this time we had all gotten thoroughly waked up and set out at a brisk walk for Ingleside.

The morning and walk were glorious, but never had Ingleside seemed so far away. We had begun to be apprehensive about breakfast when Genie shouted to us to turn down the road to the right which led toward Agnes Scott and food.

DRESS REFORM SKITS AT SMITH.

Three Plays Given in John M. Greene Hall Saturday Night—Audience Awards Prizes To Authors.

Northampton, April 16.—"Alice Through the Boudoir Glass"; "Three Inches from the Floor"; and "A Million a la Mode," one-act skits on the present styles in dress, written by students, were given in John M. Greene hall this evening. The plays were written in competition for prizes of $25, $15 and $10 offered for the best one-act play advocating modesty in dress. The three plays presented tonight had been chosen out of the many submitted. The names of the authors were kept secret until the audience had voted on the awarding of the prizes as follows: First prize, "A Million a la Mode," by Katharine Walker, '21, New York, and Mary Short, '21, Worcester; second prize, "Three Inches from the Floor," by Lenore Wolf, '21, of St. Louis, Mo.; third prize, "Alice Through the Boudoir Glass," by Ruth O'Hanlon, '21, of Geneva, N. Y.

"Alice Through the Boudoir Glass" renewed her acquaintance with the White Rabbit, the Duchess, the March Hare and the Mad Hatter, besides meeting the Debutante and the Vamp and the College Girl. From the latter she learned that "The more demure you are the further you advance," and was invited to "take a chance" on being appropriately gowned, instead of "pretending to be what she was not," as the Vamp and the Debutante did.

"Three Inches From the Floor" was laid in Soviet Russia, and told how the Soviet regulation that all dresses must be "three inches from the floor" helped Anna Crepedechinovitch to win the love of Shyan Retiringovitch when "modern fashions" had frightened him away.

"A Million a la Mode" proved that the charmingly modest taste in dress of the Smith college girl is more effective in making "potential donors" give millions to the college than any other means devised.

Each play was cleverly done and pointed its moral clearly and joyously. The plays were coached as well as acted entirely by the students. After the plays, models from the class of 1923, which is leading in the campaign for dress reform, exhibited costumes from the leading New York shops, proving that gowns may be beautiful and modish without sacrificing suitability and modesty.

"To what do you attribute your long life, Uncle Mose?" asked a newspaper interviewer of a colored centenarian.

"Becuz ah was bo'n a long time back," the old gentleman replied.

ORDERING A DINNER.

A stylishly dressed woman entered the restaurant. The waiter handed her a bill of fare written in French, and said: "Please mark off the dishes you wish to order."

Could a woman dressed in the height of fashion confess that she was unable to read French? Taking the pencil she made a few dashes and the order read: "Dinner, $1.00. June 20." "Vegetables." "Please pay at the desk." "No tips."

The waiter brought her a dinner of steak and potatoes.—Pittsburg Chronicle Telegraph.

WASN'T HIS QUESTION.

A certain methodical teacher had a regular routine of questions which she asked her class every Sunday. The class was always arranged in the same order and she began with the same question, "Who made you?" And the boy at the head of the class answered, "God."

Then to the next boy, "Who was the first man?" and he answered "Adam."

One Sunday the first boy was absent and of course the usually second boy was at the head of the class. As usual, she began by asking, "Who made you?" and the boy answered "Adam."

"No," the teacher said, "God made you."

"I don't think so, miss," the boy replied. "The boy that God made is not here today."—Christian at Work.

FIRST CHAPEL EXERCISES

MR. J. K. ORR SPEAKS.

The first chapel exercises for the session were held at nine o'clock on Wednesday morning, when, after a hymn and a short prayer, Dr. Gaines addressed the students. He used the ideals of women as his theme. No nation, he said, can rise higher than its womanhood; and, using Rome as its illustration, he told how the immorality of her women had contributed much to the downfall of the eternal city. At the present time also, he continued, there is an immoral tendency working its way into the world, and it falls to the lot of the Christian woman's college to stem this tide. High scholarship alone cannot do it, but scholarship dominated by Christianity can work out the salvation of women.

Dr. Gaines then defined the mission of Agnes Scott as the sending out of women who shall be leaders and who shall perpetuate both the ideals of this college and the Agnes Scott type of a true, modest and refined woman.

After a few words about the responsibility of the officers, faculty members and old students in making the first impressions of college life work for good in the lives of the new students, he spoke of the importance of the record that each girl will leave behind her. Dr. Gaines ended by asking that "excelsior" be made the motto for the new year.

Mr. J. K. Orr, the chairman of the Board of Trustees, was then asked to speak. After welcoming each and every girl back to Agnes Scott, Mr. Orr said that in the dedication of an old volume of poems, he had found the following lines which seemed to him especially suited to the occasion:

The truest test of woman's worth,
The surest sign of gentle birth,
Is modesty."

Mr. Orr is always a welcome guest here, and both the students and members of the faculty appreciate his opening the doors of Agnes Scott for the new session.

ALUMNAE BUILDING BEING CONSTRUCTED.

Will Be Complete by Christmas.

Wasn't it grand to come back and find a brand new building going up? The name of it is "the Alumnae building," and it is a memorial to Miss Anna Young, who held the chair of mathematics for so long.

Most of us have no idea how many wonderful uses this Alumnae building is going to be put to. First of all, of course, it is a place where the alumnae can stay when they come back to visit Agnes Scott. There are seven rooms up stairs. The class of '21 is furnishing one of these as its farewell gift to the college. Then the college is furnishing one for the lecturers, etc., who come to visit us. There will also be a room for Miss Bishop, who will look after the building.

But, best of all, is the down stairs. We are going to have a lovely tea room that extends across the whole building. Sometimes we want to have little parties and there has been no place to have them. Well, the Alumnae Association has not overlooked this fact. Opening into the spacious tea room is a beautiful little dining room where we can entertain our friends. Then, after the tea or luncheon, or whatever we have, is over, we can just walk into the living room and make ourselves at home.

Haven't we had a hard time pressing our dresses, and, maybe, making them? Well, we won't have to undergo these hardships much longer. There is a room where we can press our clothes and hang them up in nice, large closets. This room will also contain two good sewing machines. Then there will be a gift shop and an office for the secretary of the association. Just a few more months, and we will have all these good things. Think what is in store for

NEW ACQUISITION IN THE WAY OF FACULTY

AGNES SCOTT THE RALLYING GROUND OF THE CLAN OF KNOWLEDGE

Girls, have you met all the new folks on the campus yet? Don't think that you've seen every one when you have called on your "grandchildren" and all the new girls that various people have asked you to "be nice to," and have made a Sunday night round to see Freshmen in general. Even then you haven't gotten acquainted with all the newcomers. Just start on the faculty! Have you noticed how many new faces appeared in the back rows of the chapel the first morning school opened? It is true that some of them have been taken for new students, nevertheless they are catalogued as faculty.

The French department has the largest addition of all. In the absence of Miss Le Gate, Miss Alexander has been appointed head of the French department. To the old girls she needs no introduction, but we want the new girls to know that we are proud to claim her as our own, and justly proud, too, for she was the first Agnes Scott graduate to take an M. A. degree from a large university within a year's time. Her associates this year are Miss Gwendolyn Glendenning, Miss Margaret Culberson, both holding B. A. degrees from Smith College, and Miss Louise Hale, who has received an M. A. from Chicago University.

From Smith College comes Miss Lois Gibbons, who has taught history there. Miss Gibbons has a Ph.D. from Cornell University.

In the Spanish and German departments we have Miss Muriel Horn, with a Ph.D. degree from Johns Hopkins. She has recently been teaching at Salem College.

Miss Mary Goodwin, who is the new addition to the Latin department, is a Vassar graduate, holding a B. A. degree from that college.

Have you met the new residents of East Lawn? Our new mathematics professor and his wife are living there. All loyal "Tar Heels" will be glad to know that Mr. W. W. Rankin, Jr., received an M. A. degree from the University of North Carolina. Mr. Rankin has been teaching for several years at Columbia. His associate professor is Miss Gayloid, of Erie college.

This year the spoken English department has also changed hands. Miss Edith Moses, M. A., of Columbia, will take the place of Miss Gooch.

To this year's Senior class, Miss Isabel Randolph is not a stranger, for she was here when they were Freshmen, and they all learned to love her then. It is a glad welcome that we give her this year, as she comes to be in charge of the work in physical education, assisted by Miss Llewellyn Wilburn.

Don't think that it is a mistake to introduce Miss Curry as a new member of the voice department, for she's not the same Miss Curry that was here last year. We know how nice people of that name can be so we are anxious to be better acquainted with her.

Last, but by no means least, we come to that noble adjunct to our institution of learning, namely, the library. In all that sea of books, what would we do without a capable pilot to guide us? On September 7, Miss Longshore embarked on a matrimonial venture and left the ship's log in the hands of Miss Sanders, with whom doubtless, most of us are already acquainted as a literary if not a social way.

THE MINSTREL.

The organ-grinder man comes down the street!
From tenements a noisy group will run,
Whose yesterdays have blossomed 'neath the sun
Of other lands, and now together meet.
They join soiled hands, and dance with nimble feet,
As crude and painted harmonies are spun
From out the street-held box and in their fun
Instinctively they sway, advance, retreat.

O, might me for a moment lay aside
Our dear-bought burdens, heavy-grown too soon;
Forgotten all our envy, hates or pride,
And dance with you to Maestro Tony's tune!
May it not be that God is waiting too,
For us to turn our step, and dance with you.

AGNES SCOTT LITERARY TALENT HONORED.

Another of the numerous honors awarded to our Agnes Scott is the appearance of a poem by Miss Frances Charlotte Markley in "The Poets of the Future." This book is an anthology of college verse and to have one's poem in it is a very high honor. Miss Markley's poem, "The Minstrel," is the only one from Agnes Scott that was accepted. All Agnes Scotters are duly proud of the addition of this honor by Miss Markley. Two of our girls' poems received honorable mention. They were "The Flight of Daphne," by Miss Charlotte Newton, and one by Miss Elizabeth Enloe.

"The Poets of the Future" is an anthology of the poems of college students which show extraordinary talent. Only the best poems are even considered and the very best are accepted. By their accepting "The Minstrel," we realize that the staff of the anthology see great possibilities for the future in Miss Markley.

Y. W. C. A. GIVES RECEPTION FOR NEW GIRLS—FIRST FORMAL EVENT OF THE YEAR

One of the social events most pleasantly anticipated at Agnes Scott is the Y. W. C. A. reception for the new girls. This took place on Saturday evening at half-past eight o'clock in Rebekah Scott hall. The lobby was artistically decorated in goldenrod.

In the receiving line were Dr. and Mrs. Gaines, Miss Hopkins, Miss Alexander, Miss McDougall, Miss Martin, Miss Torrance, Ruth Scandrett, Nell Buchanan, Laura Oliver, Althea Stephens and Eleanor Hyle. Punch was served in the cabinet room by Misses Virginia Burt, Helen Wright and Nancy Evans. Two special features which added much to the pleasures of the evening were the staging of "I Am Thy Heart" and "Somebody Whispered to Me Yester E'en," by Miss Eunice Curry, and a dance of school days by Misses Ruth Keiser and Quenelle Harold. Hand-painted favors were given to those present.

Much of the credit for this delightful entertainment is due to Miss Frances Stuart, the chairman of the entertainment committee.

As Green--Not as Grass-- But as the Freshman Class

Worse than being as blue as indigo is the state of being as green as grass, and the Freshmen would be the last class on the campus to deny that the Sophomores have made a most conscientious and commendable effort to cure them of this deplorable condition. But notwithstanding popular opinion, born of years of experience with Agnes Scott's uninitiated, the class of "twenty-five" has from the very start displayed a wisdom beyond its years. The climax was reached on a certain night last week when without excuse or display of affected modesty, each new girl upon request of an audience composed largely of Sophomores, gave her full repertoire of accomplishments. It thrilled the hearts of the loyal Juniors to see their little sister class displaying such versatility as it blossomed like a rose, scrambled like an egg, and chanted the names of the stations between Atlanta and Decatur in a musical manner which the street car conductors might well emulate.

The noble manner in which the Freshmen have borne with so many indignities has caused an additional gleam of approbation to sparkle in the eyes of said sisters, and has also further established the notion that the children are wiser than they look, and know when to be seen and not heard.

Any visitor to Agnes Scott might suppose that nearly a third of the inhabitants were still undecided whether to stay or leave, for in addition to their troubles, the Freshmen have unprotestingly borne their suitcases from class to class until a most unpermanent atmosphere pervades the campus. O, of the nearest approaches to an open complaint, in fact, has been a remark made by Dr. Armistead to the effect that his class room during the English I period resembles a passenger coach, and that a checking room for baggage seems to him the only remedy possible.

But the class of twenty-five continues to keep up its spirits, even though weary of suitcases and saluting and skipping for it knows and can say with Kipling—
"When the last placard is destroyed, and the last green ribbon untied," then the last little trace of verdancy will have disappeared, and the Freshman class will be one which "belongs" and is recognized and appreciated by Sophomores as well as by everyone else who is part of A. S. C.

MANY THANKS FRANCES, WE HATE TO LOSE YOU.

Frances Stuart, a most active member of last year's Sophomore class, and one of the best known Agnes Scott students, returned this year for only a short time. She came the week before school started and, as chairman of the Y. W. C. A. entertainment committee, had charge of all the social affairs of the first week. Her capable hand has everywhere been seen in the cordial reception given to all new girls, in their being shown about the campus, in the dances, in the gym, in the floor parties in the various halls, and in the reception given the first Saturday night of school.

Frances has been with us for the past two years and has taken a very active part in all student activities. Her untiring efforts always for the good of the college community, her executive ability in organizations, and her constant loyalty to Agnes Scott, will be missed by the whole college community, and by her class especially.

This fall she will take a teachers' training course at Peabody college, and it is needless to say that we appreciate her coming back this year and carrying out the work of the Y. W. C. A. entertainment committee more than we can tell, and that every one of us, old girls and new, wish her a pleasant year and unlimited success.

ATTENTION! GOOD NEWS!

Welcome

The Agonistic wishes to extend a hearty welcome to a newly-reunited Agnes Scott; to the faculty; to the students, and to those who, while not members of either body, are a part of our College. We have a fresh page before us upon which to write a new year's work and achievement. There may be disappointments, and failures to attain our ideals, and there may be mistakes, but there are sure to be many lessons which, though grudgingly learned, will be among our most cherished memories of college life.

For the Freshman class The Agonistic has an especial greeting. The Class of 1925 holds a position of peculiar responsibility toward the rest of the College. The old students of A. S. C. have set certain standards, and have endeavored to conform to them. Upon the Freshman Class devolves the task of maintaining these standards and of raising them even higher.

The Sophomores have already made a place for themselves at A. S. C., and we are glad to have them back with us this year as "old girls." And the Juniors, happy at last in their position as upper classmen, are most welcome. We already know how much they mean to the College, with their spirit and energy.

As for the Seniors, we regard with envy their exalted position and their dignity, and it is our intention to do all in our power to make them enjoy to the fullest extent their last year as students of Agnes Scott.

More Welcome

The Agonistic staff is glad to be able to extend its greetings, and to present to you this first issue of The Agonistic for the year 1921-22.

We wish to impress upon you that The Agonistic is not only the property of the College at large, but that each individual girl owns just as much of our paper as any member of the staff does. Our aim is to publish a paper worthy of Agnes Scott. We want you to be proud of your paper, to send it home, and to your friends; we want our alumnae to enjoy reading The Agonistic, and we want other Colleges to recognize how fine a College we attend. To accomplish our purpose, we need your co-operation, your assistance, and your support. Won't each one of you help us make The Agonistic a success?

Y. W. C. A. NEWS

Y. W. C. A. EXTENDS A WELCOME TO ALL NEW GIRLS.

During the first week of the school year the Y. W. C. A. has done its best to let all of the new girls know just how glad the college community is to have them here.

Now, through the pages of The Agonistic, and right in the midst of Sophomore week, the Y. W. C. A. wants to say again that we are glad to have every one of you here, and that we stand ready to help you in any way and at any time. You must feel that you are a part of us, and that we are anxious to be your friends.

The Y. W. C. A. says "we," because it is composed of practically all of the student body. The officers are as follows:

President—Ruth Scandrett.
Vice-President—Ruth Hall.
Secretary—Quenelle Harrold.
Treasurer—

But the officers are not the entire working force of the organization. There are many departments and many committees.

Perhaps the two committees best known to the "new" girls are the publicity committee, of which Quenelle Harrold is chairman, and the entertainment committee, with Julia Jamison in charge.

Surely you have noticed the attractive display of posters on the bulletin board! All of these are the work of the publicity committee, while the entertainments given during the past week, the Y. W. C. A. tea and the joint reception given with student-government, speak for Julia Jamison's committee. They are the "dead-against-the-blues" crowd, and if you are sort of lonesome, look 'em up!

The Y. W. C. A. also has charge of the Sunday night services. All of these services have been carefully planned and are intended to be of the very greatest help to the college girl. If you will attend these services, perhaps they will hold something for you. We are sure that they will!

And here is a sort of guarantee from the Y. W. C. A. to you:

If you are just a little lonely;
If you are just a trifle blue—
Just go to the Y. W. C. A. girl—
She will cure the blues for you.

IMPROVEMENTS ON THE CAMPUS WITH THE ACCENT ON PAINT.

"Look at all the grand, new, white paint and everything—oh, isn't it wonderful to be back!?!?! Yonder's Ella, and there's Frances Stuart and Beth McClure—grand!! Oh!! I'm so happy to be back." Thus, the content of nearly everybody's raving when they reached the portals of Agnes Scott. The "grand new white paint" is only one among the many improvements that have been made on the campus.

The gym floor is one of the most marvelous acquisitions and one which we should truly appreciate. Do you know that they had to even excavate before they put the new one down so that the new one should not go the way of all previous gym floors?

The hundred loads of dirt that came from underneath the gym floor filled up what used to be the front tennis court. We are sorry to lose our tennis court, but still it helps the looks of our front campus lots to do without it.

The rooms in Main were furnished with chairs and tables just like Inman and Rebekah. Aren't they proud, though? Some new clothes closets were also put in Main.

East and West Lawns, the infirmary and all the outside woodwork are resplendent in white paint.

The library now has some new book shelves to accommodate more books. We are working towards the day when we can get books signed up with ease. The drinking fountains certainly must be remembered because it so nice to have them.

The biggest improvement on the campus is in the form of "the new class." We are happy to greet each one of them.

PLANS FOR THE FRENCH CLUB.

First Meeting to Be Held Soon.

Although the French club has at present no president, still it is planning an enthusiastic year. At its first meeting, to be held in the near future, a president will be elected to fill the place left vacant by the absence of Margaret Hay, who did not return to Agnes Scott this year.

The French club can boast of a very large enrollment, because its French department has always offered a variety of popular courses, and is one of the largest departments in the college.

The French club is for the benefit of the beginners in French. It is an acknowledged fact that the conversation is by far the most difficult part of the study of the French language. The meetings of the French club, conducted entirely in French, are of material aid in the acquiring of the gentle art of polite conversation. There is first a period of informal chatting, then the business is disposed of, next there is a short program, and last the whole club joins in the singing of French songs.

VOCAL AND EXPRESSION DEPARTMENTS TO GIVE RECITALS.

Doubtless we have all been very much interested in meeting and knowing the new voice and elocution teachers. A chance will soon be given us to know them better and appreciate their skill. Miss Curry, of the voice department, and Miss Moses, of the expression department, will give a recital on Monday, October 3, at 8:30 o'clock. All the college community is invited to attend this.

Miss Curry comes to us from Canada and has been a pupil of Arthur Hubbard, the famous teacher of our former voice teachers. It is needless to say that our vocal and expression departments will have a splendid year under the leadership of the new faculty.

BEAUTY MAY BE ONLY SKIN DEEP, BUT—

The news that Mrs. Philo Sturgis, better known as "Miss Phi," has reopened her beauty parlor comes as a welcomed announcement to old girls and as a pleasant anticipation to new ones. Not all of us are born beautiful, but "Miss Phi" is not to blame if we fail to achieve desired results. With trained assistants, she will shampoo, manicure and massage in a way to please the most fastidious. In the basement of her home next door to Boyd, "Miss Phi" will be glad to see Agnes Scott girls at any time. "Since Mohammed can't come to the mountain, the mountain must go to Mohammed."

The annual alumnae register has been published. It contains news from all branches of the Agnes Scott Alumnae Association and should prove of great interest to all of us. Miss Mary Wallace Kirk, the president of the Agnes Scott Alumnae Association, will visit the college soon.

Mrs. Lewis Gaines entertained the Atlanta Alumnae Club, of which Lois McLuttre Beall is president, on the afternoon of Tuesday, Sept. the twentieth. Miss Moses, head of the Expression Department at Agnes Scott, gave a reading. Plans for furnishing the alumnae house were discussed.

ALUMNAE NEWS.

Cupid was on his job early with the class of '21, for three of them have already gotten married. The first was Anna Marie Landress. She was married to Dr. W. R. Cate on September the first. The wedding took place in the Baptist church of Chattanooga and a large number of friends attended it. Dr. Cate received his education at Emory University, graduating in medicine last year. Dr. and Mrs. Cate sailed immediately for Longdo, Korea, where they will be engaged in mission work.

Emily Hutter was married on September the seventh to Mr. Arthur P. Stewart, the marriage taking place in the Episcopal church of Lynchburg, Va. They went north on their bridal tour and are now in Decatur visiting Mrs. Stewart's mother. Mr. and Mrs. Stewart will make their home in Miami, Fla., where the former holds a responsible position.

On September the tenth Cora Connett was married to Mr. Ralph Ozenberger. On account of a sudden death in the family, the wedding was a very quiet one. Mr. and Mrs. Ozenberger left immediately after the ceremony for Denver and other points in Colorado. They will live in St. Joseph, Mo., where Mr. Ozenberger holds a position with Swift & Company.

A FEW RULES TO OBSERVE CAREFULLY

Student Government News.

Miss Daugherty urgently requests that all students learn and observe the infirmary rules, as much inconvenience is caused by the failure to do so. These rules are: Dr. Sweet has office hours for thirty minutes after every meal, except on Sunday, when she is in her office only twice, after breakfast and after the Y. W. C. A. service. All cases of sickness must be reported promptly at the doctor's office hours. Emergency cases may be reported at any time. No student is allowed to stay in bed in her room except when the infirmary is filled. Excuses for absence while in the infirmary must be gotten from the nurse. Miss Daugherty particularly asks that no one come to the infirmary after nine o'clock, at which hour it closes and is to be kept quiet. If Dr. Sweet is needed, she may be reached at her home over the telephone, or Mr. Starr will go for her. A fee of twenty-five cents is charged for every meal sent to a student's room. The money must be given to the maid on the hall and taken to the head of the dining room in which the girl eats, with the request that the meal be sent to the girl's room.

The following announcements concerncerning student government rules were made:

Students should come to all student government meetings, as they are responsible for all announcements made there. The first of the open meetings, to be held on the first Tuesday in every month, will be held next Tuesday. At open meetings any student may bring up questions concerning campus life. A box will be placed in Main building to receive suggestions for discussion.

No one but a Senior may use a light for studying after ten o'clock. Girls spending the night with Seniors may use the light until eleven o'clock, for other purposes than studying. The light art room in Main is now open, and girls who have had special permission to take light arts in their rooms are asked to give their names to Nell Buchanan.

Girls going out for supper or a week-end must leave the campus in time to reach their destination by time-limit, otherwise a "late" will be counted against them.

Only music appropriate to the day is to be played on Sunday. Decatur drug stores may not be visited on Sunday without special permission.

When going to Decatur to supper, students must register. The Dean's permission must be registered wherever necessary.

Knocks are to be given without warning, for talking in the hall or bathroom after lights.

A FRESHMAN'S LETTER HOME

AGNES SCOTT COLLEGE.

DEAREST MOTHER:

Oh, mother, everything is so strange and new that I scarcely know what to write. I love everything and everybody, but I can't get used to this new life. You know how, at home, everybody looks out for their own good times, and doesn't bother about the other fellow. Well, you know here it's just the opposite. As little as you may believe it, mother, every girl forgets herself and spends all her time making the new girls have fun. Just parties, parties, parties, where everybody dresses up and is made to feel popular. But I'll just have to tell you about each one individually, 'cause they have all been wonderful.

Thursday afternoon the Y. W. C. A. gave all the new girls a tea, and it wasn't a bit stiff, like those at home. The old girls took us and we went to the summer house, where some of the girls served punch. Everything was just beautiful, for it was decorated in pink and blue balloons and crepe paper. We talked and met lots of old girls and just all around had a dandy time.

Then that night we had the funniest party I have ever seen. Have you ever been to a backwards party, mother? Well, that's what this was, and it's the funniest thing in the world to see everything backwards. Even the seniors were undignified and wore their hair backwards. We danced some, but it was hard to tell which way you were going—backwards forwards.

Next night we had floor parties, a that's about the best idea I know, for it's awfully hard not to know your next-door neighbor. Now I feel familiar enough to drop in anywhere on the hall and feel at home. We sang, played and ate until we all knew each other better.

But all those entertainments are minor events compared to the big reception Saturday night in Rebecca Scott lobby. Mother, I was scared to death to go, because everybody had to go down a long receiving line full of faculty and big girls. I just know I'd do something wrong and ruin my rep, but I didn't. My date (yes, we had special dates with old girls) said I did fine, and I think I did, too. Nobody could have said "How do you do, Dr. Gaines?" with any more dignity than I did.

We wore evening dresses that night and the men wore dress suits, so, of course, we felt too flossy to live. Everything was wonderfully decorated in goldenrod and leaves, and two girls danced a barn dance appropriate to the decorations. I just wish you could have been there, for it was really elegant.

Now, mother, that isn't all that has been done for us, but I haven't time to write about everything, when I want to tell you what is yet in store. Can you believe we aren't through with parties yet? Well, we aren't, for each class is going to give a big party for the entire school and both literary societies are going to entertain, too. We are dreadfully popular right now, so I don't ever want to get down to real work.

Mother, dearest, please come up to see me and meet all my wonderful friends, and see how cordially the old girls treat the new. This Y. W. C. A. is the best in the world, for it has made us feel at home, and we appreciate it, too, more than we can ever tell.

Lovingly,

FRESHIE.

EVERYBODY COME TO THE SUNDAY SCHOOL RALLY—START THE YEAR RIGHT!

Have you been wondering when and where you would go to Sunday school, dear Agnes Scotters? If you have, that question is going to be answered for you right now. Don't you remember those gala days which were called Sunday school rallies, when you put on your very crispest new dress and went tripping along more gaily than usual, jingling your pennies? There was a new sort of interest in going to Sunday school and a feeling of excitement in the air. Perhaps you were a red or a blue or some other denomination which distinguished you and your side from another, and you had asked several people to go with you—perhaps they accompanied you to Sunday school that morning. What a feeling of satisfaction you had when you could report a new member whom you had brought! Weren't you just curious to see who was there, and weren't you just thrilled over the new people in your class? Perhaps there was a talk by the superintendent or someone else whom you liked that made you very happy and ambitious!

Of course, you remember all these things, and more. And wouldn't you just be excited again to have an old-fashioned Sunday school rally at Agnes Scott? Yes, indeed! That is just what we are going to have, too, this very next Sunday at 9:15 a. m. in the chapel. So come, bringing all your roommates and friends, sing some real stirring Sunday school songs, find out who will be the superintendent and teachers, and join a class.

down to the lobby that it wasn't just a fire drill, but a sure-enuff, honest, truly fire. He has kept such hazards from us for years. May the good work continue, Mr. Starr!

He is also a friend to the day student who works in the library at night. They feel a kindly protecting gaze watch them down the long walk, through the gate and just as far as his eyes can see.

You old girls remember those cold, rainy nights last winter when "the wind went woo, the lamp wick spluttered," and all the rest. There, faithful and cheerful, was he protecting our lives from many a hazard that none of us have ever dreamed of.

Now, Mr. Starr is a jolly, good fellow, and the kind that appreciates a word or so about the weather and a good, whole-souled handshake. Stop! sometimes, fair maid of mine, and inquire after his grandchildren; he appreciates it ever so much. It's hard to do enough for one who does so much for you!

So, here's to you, Mr. Starr, a power behind the throne—noble, faithful, trustworthy, all in one are you.

And best wishes for your grandchildren, too.

'CHOC'LATE AND PEANUTS!'

CHOC'LATE AND PEANUTS!'

Every "old student" is more or less familiar with the haunting cry of the Junior who walked endless miles up and down steps, over colonnades, and through corridors selling candy and peanuts, and every "new student" will soon become familiar with the cry, and—the Juniors hope—become veritable "choc'late and peanuts" fiends! For the Juniors have suddenly been inspired to "get rich quick"—and "all donations joyfully received." Besides the "choc'late and peanuts" which the Juniors will distribute at nominal prices, there will be a most entertaining stunt put on by the aforesaid inspired Junior class on the date of October 15. Everybody stock up on candy and peanuts and come to see it, for you're bound to have a "rippin' good time." The exact nature of the stunt is as yet an undivulged secret, but the idea is started, and an evening of fun is guaranteed. Make your date early and avoid the rush.

The chocolate and peanuts can be procured from:

- Eleanor Hyde, 26 White House.
- Anne Gambrill, 42 Inman.
- Marjorie Lowe, 2nd floor Main.
- Eva Wassum, 2nd floor Rebekah Scott.

So there's a place where you can buy the goodies near your own room, wherever you stay. So, when an attack of that unaccountable in-between-time hunger comes on there is wholesome food at hand.

But why the Juniors' sudden longing to fill the class coffers? Well, that's a Junior secret—and every girl who has ever been a Junior can sympathize, while the joy of sympathizing is yet to be for those yet to be Juniors.

In the meanwhile, hoard the shekels and run to the nearest supply station and partake of candy and peanuts—and don't forget October 15th.

MISS RANDOLPH AND MISS WILBURN GUESTS OF HONOR AT ATHLETIC BOARD BANQUET.

One of the many nice things about having Miss Randolph back is that a new gym teacher always provides the athletic board with an excellent reason for giving a banquet in her honor. The banquet, long and joyfully anticipated by the board, took place in the private dining room of the Silhouette tea room on last Wednesday evening. There were eleven guests, Miss Randolph and Miss Wilburn, the officers and sport managers of the Association, and the song and orchestra leaders.

The color scheme was purple and white, of course, for athletics is one of the best possible ways to express college spirit and manufacture pep. White carnations stood at each end of the table, while a row of crystal candlesticks gave a soft light. At each place was a tiny white basket of mints, tied with purple ribbon. The place cards played an important part in the plan of decoration, each one being painted with something to represent the office of the girl for whom it was intended. Judging by the sounds that leaked through the closed door of the dining room, the banquet was a very hilarious affair, both Seniors and faculty forgetting their dignity and becoming as youthful in spirit and conduct as the pig-tailed damsels so thick upon the campus just now. We all love Miss Randolph and particularly is the athletic board fond of her, but banquets are "simply grand."

END OF 9:45 WHISTLE.

No more will the siren whistle of 9:45 p. m. cause the study-soaked Hot-tent to jump half way across the room in the excitement of the moment—or if she happens to live on the end of the campus farthest from aforesaid siren. No more, we say, will she sleepily wonder what kind of bird sings at night! Why this outburst about the whistle? Well, because it is no more, for the people of Decatur have requested that their slumbers (?) be not disturbed at such an unearthly hour.

Instead of the whistle the bell will sound as warning every night at 9:45 so the girl who is deep in her books may know that if she continues in her wild ways such longer than fifteen minutes she will have the pleasure of going to bed in the dark, or, if she be a Senior, she will be reminded that the night is yet young.

THE SILHOUETTE OFFERS PRIZE FOR BEST KODAK PICTURE

Contest Begins Right Away.

Everybody likes to take pictures, and everybody else likes to see the pictures everybody else takes. The Silhouette staff has just made this more-than-important discovery, and has decided to offer a prize for the best group of pictures submitted by the students of Agnes Scott. The Silhouette realizes that the best way to put out an annual of universal interest is to have contributions from people who are "in touch with all parts of the campus," and as the human race is more willing to work for a prize than for the sake of mere glory, the annual prize is for the purpose of encouraging the girls to submit their kodak pictures for publication in the 1922 Silhouette.

The contest is to start right away, so get out your cameras and begin to snap. The prize is offered to the girl who has the most snap-shots in the Annual. Contributions may begin any time, the sooner the better. It is not necessary to submit all the prints at once, as each girl's contributions will be kept in a separate envelope, to avoid any confusion.

The contest is open to anybody who is interested. The winner will be announced the day the Silhouette comes from the press. All pictures which are not used will be returned.

TEN P. M.—AND ALL'S WELL.

"Ting-a-ling," and the lights are off! "But who turned them?" "I," said Mr. Starr. "With my strong right arm I turned them off."

Mr. Starr, whom everybody on the campus knows, is the night watchman here on the campus—and a noble work he does, too. Remember the expression, "They also serve who only stand and wait?" Well, Mr. Starr serves even better than in that way. He's up and keeping the coyotes and other

CONCERTS BEGIN IN OCTOBER, MANY CELEBRATED ARTISTS TO APPEAR.

Next to Grand Opera, the most important features in the musical world of Atlanta are the concerts by celebrated artists. Usually there have been two series, the Civic and the All-Star, but this year these two have been combined. Tickets have been on sale for some time at the Cable Piano Company, and many Agnes Scott girls have already arranged to attend these concerts.

On the program this year are Braslau, Alda, McCormick, Werrenrath, Rachmaninoff, the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra, and Pavlova with her ballet. The series will begin in October and will extend through February. Hearing these great musicians is an opportunity that no Agnes Scott girl should miss.

fierce wild animals off of us all night long. You may say that there aren't any wild animals around here, but what goes on in the wee small hours is a secret to us, besides a mosquito was heard buzzing in Inman the other night.

And all the fires that Mr. Starr does keep off of us at night when your mother's angel daughter and the gentlemen faculty's mother's sons are lost in dreamland. It would be perfectly horrible to have the fire alarm wake you some night and find when you got

ALL JOKES ASIDE

Sadie, a Freshman at the information booth: "Are there any foreigners at Agnes Scott?"

Frances Stuart: "Not that I know of."

Sadie, surprised: "Why, whom do they teach spoken English to?"

III. I love you.

VI. You're all the world to me.

Fresh?

A Freshman made this remark on arriving at A. S. C. a day early: "There was no one there but the trees and they were leaving, and the fence was running around the front yard."

It Seems to Me That:

A woman gets sense very early in life if she ever gets it, but a man never gets it till he gets so old it doesn't do him any good!

Life is a tough game, but you can make it a whole lot tougher if you try.

There are more girls named after the month of May than any other month except June. All the Junes name themselves.

It's mighty peculiar that they make our face and let us pick our own teeth.

In a year or two it will be practical to build houses without cellars.

Third Time Unlucky.

A colored soldier in the American army was on guard for the first time in his life. A dark form approached him.

"Halt!" he cried, in a threatening tone. "Who are you?"

"The officer of the day." "Advance."

The officer advanced, but before he had proceeded half a dozen steps the dusky sentry again cried, "Halt!"

"This is the second time you have halted me," observed the officer. "What are you going to do next?"

"Never you mind what ah's gonna do. Mah orders are to call 'Halt!' three times, den shoot!"—People's Home Journal.

JOIN THE WORLD FELLOWSHIP TOUR.

Everybody has seen the attractive poster on the bulletin board in the mail room, to be sure. Doesn't that steamboat look inviting? Suppose we all secure passage and take the world fellowship tour of the world...

Miss Alexander: "Qu'est-ce que c'est?"

Aspiring French Student: "No, I didn't catch what you said."

A Freshman, being aroused suddenly during the Sophomore raid, had much trouble in getting down to first floor Inman. Sleepily, she crawled headforemost down the stairs, saying to a Sophomore raider: "I don't see why you didn't tell me you were coming so that I could have been ready for you!"

There was a little girl Working in the lab, There was a great combustion, Now there's a marble slab.

A Junior: "What would you rather have than anything in the world?"

Freshman: "A check from home—no—a cut in trig."

An Unconventional Surrender.

The history class in a Long Island public school had finished a chapter dealing with the surrender of Gen. Robert E. Lee to Gen. U. S. Grant, much detail having been given to the contrast in the dress of the two generals.

"Now," asked the teacher at the oral review, "can any of you tell me just how the two great generals were dressed at this important ceremony?"

A little fellow held up his hand.

"Why," he said, "General Lee was dressed up. He had on a full-dress Confederate suit with gold buttons, and he gave General Grant a jeweled sword."

"But how was General Grant dressed?" she asked.

"Oh, he was in a hurry and just had on an old Union suit."—Saturday Evening Post.

Grateful Appreciation.

When Whistler, the famous artist, was living in London he was annoyed not a little by a bumptious Englishman who always persisted in accosting him familiarly in public places.

"Hello, Whistler," exclaimed the pest as they met one afternoon in a club. "Hello, Whistler, I passed your house today."

"Thank you," retorted the artist fervently.—Saturday Evening Post.

Her Maternal Instinct.

Bryn Mawr College girls are given at stated intervals examinations designed to reveal the scope of their general information. At a recent test of the sort the students were asked to name five musical instruments used by symphony orchestras.

One sweet young thing is said to have given the following list: Violin, cello, oboe, clarinet and bassinet.—Saturday Evening Post.

WHAT FORMER FACULTY MEMBERS ARE DOING.

Although we are enjoying making new acquaintances and greeting old friends on the Agnes Scott campus, yet there are many familiar faces that we miss seeing this year. Especially do we miss many of the faculty members who have left Agnes Scott to work in other fields.

Miss Le Tate, whom we all remember most pleasantly, is head of the French department at Adelphi College in New York. Miss Stevenson is studying in England, and Miss Finlay is making use of her knowledge of Spanish by teaching in Cuba.

Miss Newton has for the present given up her study of French, and is taking a secretarial course at Simmons College in Boston. Miss Sledd is teaching mathematics in Girls' High School in Atlanta, although it is rumored that she has decided not to keep the position very long. Miss Hammond has decided to be a lady of leisure this year and is staying at home, while Miss Gooch is head of the expression at Trinity College in Texas.

And Mr. Painter? For any information concerning him, see Miss Margaret Thorington, and she will doubtless be able to give it.

International Relations Club Re-Organizes

NEW OFFICERS ELECTED— BARON KORFF COMING.

The International Relations Club held its first meeting for this year Friday, September 30th, in the Mnemosynean hall. This was a business meeting, when the officers for the year were elected and plans were discussed. Roberta Love, who served so efficiently as president last year, was re-elected. The vice-president elected was Virginia Ordway; secretary-treasurer, Josephine Logan, and the two members of the executive board chosen were Charlotte Keesler and Martha Lee Taliaferro.

This club, which was organized last year, is of course, a branch of the International Relations Club which is known to all of us. We are indeed fortunate in having Miss Hearon as director and the interest and enthusiasm which she has shown have proven quite an incentive to the girls.

The purpose of the club is the scientific study of the current international problems that confront mankind in a thoroughly non-partisan spirit and devoid of any propagandist aim. It is hoped that the club will mean a great deal to the students and create more interest in the affairs of the world.

There are now enrolled forty-five members. Membership in the club requires that the student have one year of college history, or if she cannot meet this requirement, but is very anxious to become a member, she must submit her application to the executive board, who will take action upon it.

The plan of study for the first few months will be the problems of the Pacific. This subject is one of interest to all of us, yet very few of us have gone deeply into the question, so we are planning to learn more about it so that we won't be ignorant of "history in the making."

The next meeting of the club is to be October 21, the main topic of discussion will be the disarmament conference to be held at Washington beginning November 11. There will be two very interesting papers given, one "Critical Problems of the Disarmament Conference," and the other "Contrast Between Washington and Paris Conferences." After this there will be open discussion, and all will be free to ask any questions or discuss problems bearing on the subject.

The club is planning to have several good speakers come to the college during the year. The first of these will be Baron Korff, who was a high official in Russia under the ancient regime, but who was forced to flee to America when the bolsheviks gained the other hand. Further announcements will be made later concerning his expected visit.

ADVANCE NOTICE OF THE HEALTH CAMPAIGN

WATCH NEXT WEEK'S AGGIE

Who said mysterious things are interesting? Whoever it was, he surely spoke the truth. Well, there's something mysterious going on right here on this campus. And when the secrecy of all the future proceedings is removed, every one will be happy because of the good things it brings with it. The name of the happy project is the HEALTH CAMPAIGN. This is being put over by Dr. Sweet and Miss Randolph.

When Miss Randolph was here before, a health campaign for good standing posture, good shoes, and what not, was the fond desire of her heart. But circumstances prevented her plans from maturing. Since she is back again, with more pep and enthusiasm than ever, she and Dr. Sweet have gone to work again.

Now this explains "the thing." But

AGNES SCOTT GLEE CLUB.

MISS HOPKINS' INVITATION FROM MISS WOOLLEY.

One of the most distinguished visitors that we had the pleasure of entertaining last year was Miss Mary Woolley, president of Mount Holyoke. She made the address at the regular open meeting of the Gamma Tau Alpha honor society. Her subject was, "Woman of a Hundred Years Ago and Today."

Miss Woolley seems not to have forgotten Miss Hopkins or Agnes Scott because last week Miss Hopkins received this beautifully engraved invitation:

The Trustees and Faculty of Mount Holyoke College

request the honor of your presence at the exercises of Founders' Day on Friday morning, October the 7th, at half after ten o'clock, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-one,

Mary Lyon Chapel,
South Hadley, Massachusetts
Address by President M. Carey Thomas, Ph.D., LL.D., Bryn Mawr College.

R. S. V. P.

The President's office by October 1st, 1921.

Indeed it would be wonderful if Miss Hopkins would accept it. How we would love for the Holyoke girls to know and love the one who personifies the spirit of our college as we learned to know and love their president.

BABY NIECE OF MISS ANNA YOUNG ENTERED AT AGNES SCOTT.

Last September 11th, about one year after the death of Miss Anna Young, little Miss Anna Young Eagan was born to Mrs. John J. Eagan, of Oaksdale road, formerly Miss Susan Young, sister of the beloved Miss Young, who taught so faithfully at Agnes Scott. The child's name, at her birth, was entered on Agnes Scott's register book.

what are the promised joys and happiness? Well, that is what is mysterious. But this much can be said. Since it is to last a week, many things can happen and are going to happen. No one is required to participate in the events; but it will show school spirit and co-operation. It is earnestly desired and urged that each and every person help in this demonstration week. If we do, the campaign will have pep and school spirit, two things always needed. Participation in the week's doings will be worth while mentally, physically and morally. So every one come in and help and gain something.

During this week are to be given tableaux, stunts, charades, and other such things. Dr. Sweet and Miss Randolph, seconded by the committee, are brimful of ideas. So the week is sure to be enjoyable.

Watch THE AGONISTIC for more news each week.

Buster and Tiny Wise Have Come

SEE MISS PHILO STURGIS FOR INFORMATION.

Everybody at Agnes Scott knows Miss Philo Sturgis, or Miss Phi, as she is called. And everybody knows Miss Phi's pet. Miss Phi's pet is the whole of Agnes Scott, as a whole, and as individuals. And now Miss Phi has a new fad to introduce. We are all interested in mascots, so Miss Phi has brought to her gift shop the latest thing in mascots, the Stocking Doll. These dolls come in two sizes, and are called Buster Wise and Tiny Wise respectively. They are soft and comforting, and may be obtained in many color combinations. If as many as fifty girls order the Wise boys in A. S. C. colors, they may be had in purple and white. But at present, they come in red and white, blue, pink, yellow, brown, and, in fact, in all of our class colors.

Pennants and pillow tops of purple and white are awfully expensive, so why not send a stocking doll to baby sister, or to big brother off at school? Both sizes are the same price, $1.00 or 90 cents, and may be used by the hard-hearted as pin-cushions.

Let's all go over to 125 South Candler street and sign up for Buster or Tiny Wise. They are the last word in style. Go early and avoid the rush.

In addition to her "toy department," Miss Phi has a lovely gift shop. The prices are moderate, and the articles are nearly all hand-made. You will find there gifts for any occasion, or any friend.

OUTCOME OF THE STUNT

SOPHOMORES AGAIN WIN BLACK CAT.

Again the Black Cat has been won by the class of '24. Both stunts were of unusual merit—wit, pep and originality characterizing them. It goes without saying that both classes were eager for the bronze trophy. Yet, the judges could award it only to one—but which? They based their decision upon those things that stand out as essentials to a really good play. Their first requirement was that the plot be clearly conveyed to the audience and that the details lead in orderly manner to the climax. The selection of the characters, the costumes, the presentation of the character and the stage settings were taken into consideration.

It was only after careful deliberation upon the merits of both that the judges awarded the prize to the Sophomore class. Both the classes are to be congratulated upon "the splendid spirit and undying enthusiasm which prevailed throughout the entire contest.

MISS MARKLEY'S NEW JOB.

Miss Frances Charlotte Markley, whom all the old girls know and love, and whom all the new girls already know as a member of the class of '21, who did so much for Agnes Scott, has returned this year to take the position held last year by Mrs. Eva Towers Hende, as general secretary of the Alumnae Association at Agnes Scott. As general secretary, Miss Markley has charge of all correspondence in regard to the Alumnae Association and keeps a file of the names and addresses of all the alumna of Agnes Scott. She is glad to furnish any information concerning the whereabouts of any of the alumna. If any of the girls know of any change in address or marriage and consequent change of name of any of the alumna, please give the information to Miss Markley at her office in number 8 Main. Her office hours are from 8 to 9:30 every morning.

Miss Markley also keeps a record of all local Agnes Scott Alumnae Clubs and other clubs connected with the Alumnae Association. The Decatur Alumnae Club will meet on Monday afternoon at four o'clock in the Propylean Hall.

Seeing to the distribution of the yearly alumnae publication, "The Register," is another of Miss Markley's many duties. She sent out last week 1,200 copies of "The Register," which gives the alumna an account of the work of the local Agnes Scott Alumna Clubs and other standing committees, a statement of the financial conditions of the association, a report of the scholarships, and a report from the tea room. An interesting item in the last "Register" was the announcement of the Louise McKinney Play Contest Prize of $250 to be given for five years by an alumnae who wishes her name to remain unknown to the alumna, who writes the best play. These plays are to be sent in before January 15, to Miss Markley, who will send them on to the judges, who are Rachel Crothers, Arthur Hopkins and Kenneth McGowan, three of the foremost American playwrights.

A CORRECTION.

NO EDITORIAL THIS WEEK.

Editorials are dreadfully hard to write, and nobody ever reads them, so THE AGONISTIC has decided to take a vacation from editorial writing for a while. Sometimes there is so much else to be done on THE AGONISTIC that the editors just don't have time to write long "iterations." We wish to apologize for our lack of formality in taking this unconventional stand, and to urge upon you, the readers of our paper, to express your opinion freely as to the necessity, or superfluity, of editorials.

We shall substitute a picture for an editorial in this issue.

JAPANESE CUSTOMS.

- Now, if you should visit a Japanese home,
Where there isn't a sofa or chair,
And your hostess should say,
"Take a seat, miss, I pray."
Now, where would you sit? Tell me, where?
- If I should visit a home in Japan,
Where there isn't a chair or divan,
And my hostess should say,
"O Kake-nassare," (1)
I'd sit on a futon (2), that's where.
- And should they persuade you to stay there and dine,
Where knives, forks and spoons are unknown,
Do you think you could eat with chopsticks of wood?
And how might you pick up a bone?
- And what if to dinner I'm asked to remain,
Where I look for knives and forks, but in vain?
Why, in my right hand I'd take up
O hashi (3),
And fare very well on rice and O kwashi (4).
- And then should they take you a Japanese drive
In a neat little "rickshaw" of blue,
And you found in Japan that your horse was a man,
Now, what do you think you would do?
- And if out a-driving they ask me to go
Ichi-nin-nori (5) or ai-nori-no (6),
A man for a horse! omoshiro (7) my!
But for the riksha (8) man, O moshiroku nai (9).

Chopsticks. (4) Sweetmeats. (5) Riding singly. (6) Riding double. (7) Pleasant. (8) Little two-wheeled buggy pulled by a man. (9) Not pleasant.

"And what is the corner-stone?" he asked.

She answered: "A solitaire."

Up to Heaven she flew,

SOCIAL SERVICE DEPARTMENT IN FULL SWING.

Is Agnes Scott alive, and are we interested in our fellow man?

A throng of eager girls, deep in social service work, call back with heartiest accent, "I'll say we are!"

And if you don't believe it, just investigate a little on your own account and see. You will find scores of Agnes Scott girls who do not think that studies are so pressing, that athletics are so interesting, or that the library is so binding that there is no time left to show the spirit of brotherly love.

We all of us know the song which has become so popular in our Sunday schools at home, "Brighten the Corner Where You Are," and to the Agnes Scott girls many, many "corners" present themselves. And just to prove that our hearts are in the right place, we have lost no time in beginning that brightening process. We are "up to our ears" in social service work and also, as a natural result, "up to our ears" in smiles.

One of the most interesting of those corners, which really doesn't happen to be a corner at all, is the Wesley House. For those of us who have grown up with "little sister" always at our heels, this work ought to prove very attractive.

The home is situated right in the heart of the mill district and has children of all ages, sizes and descriptions. There are at least a hundred babies here, because a day nursery is kept up to accommodate the mothers who are working all day.

Just here is an opportunity to give an excellent piece of advice to the Agnes Scott girl. If you feel just a little unimportant, or just a trifle unnecessary in the throng of bustling efficient students on the campus, just try visiting this day nursery. How glad the children are to see you! And how glad you will be to see them! They need the hour of games and story-telling that you can give them quite as much as you need an eager listener.

Besides the Wesley House, there is the DeKalb county poor farm, where just a handful of old people are found. They are so very interesting, and so very much interested in Agnes Scott girls, or any other visitors who stray their way.

And those who have been there will tell you of "Uncle Nathan," one of the old men who loves the "fiddle" with all the ardor of a first love. They are all very fond of music. People do not forget this when they visit there, and always carry a bountiful supply of song books, of which they make good use.

The orphans' home, too, just out of Decatur, gives every girl the chance to forget that she is a dignified and responsible student delving into the intricacies of Anglo-Saxon or calculus. There she may romp to her heart's content with the youngsters and fairly shout, "Hence, loathed melancholy!"

The crippled children's home, too, becomes the object of many visits from college, where the girls carry baskets filled with bits of ribbon, party favors, or any amusing little trifles which they happen to have stored away as nonessentials.

It is with this attractive list of places that the social service department of the Y. W. C. A. beguiles the Agnes Scott girl into participation in its work. Practically all of us have taken up at least one phase of this work and we feel that we are very fortunate to be able to do it.

Dell Bernhardt Honored

PARTY IN HOME ECONOMICS DINING ROOM.

As a mark of appreciation to Dell Bernhardt for her work on the Sophomore stunt, on the night of October 13, a delightful surprise party was held in her honor by the members of the Sophomore committee: Carrie Scandrett, Vic Howie, Beulah Davidson, Helen Wright, Mary Evelyn Arnold, Nancy Evans, Margaret Powell, Mary Colley, Wenona Peck and Cora Morton.

The home economics dining room was transformed into a modern "Cap and Merrie Pigtail," and was attractively decorated in blue and white, the Sophomore class colors. The famous Bronze Cat stood on guard in the center of the table and kept his eyes and ears open to all that passed. A delightful supper was served, during which toasts were proposed and songs were sung. The evening was a very delightful one.

Dell Bernhardt is the author of the clever stunt which was presented by the Sophomores in their contest of wits with the Freshmen, and it was largely through her untiring help and enthusiasm that her class was victorious.

after dark. The boarders are not allowed to be out after dark unless they are chaperoned. Day students do not have chaperons. We have to go home in the dark and all alone after staying for our swimming class, library reading or laboratory work. Hockey and tennis are both very well, but when can we get them in since we have so much library and laboratory work which must be done in the day time? We each need a Carnegie in our homes.

It is not merely school work that we find very inconveniently arranged, but the student activities seem to belong almost entirely to the boarders. We enter the college every year with a great deal of pep and enthusiasm. We intend to take part in this, that and various other activities, but we have a damper cast on our fine spirits when the meeting, try-outs, etc., are held after supper. Day students hate those two words more than any other in the English language: "After supper." Last year we wanted to go on the hikes, but the boarders' hikes were almost all in the late afternoon, so it was decided that we would have our own hikes. Now Agnes Scott has two kinds of hikes—the boarders' and the day students'. Is it best to have two of everything, so that the day students will get their share?

This article is not meant to be a report of "Calamity Jane," but it is meant to be a plea for a tiny bit more consideration, co-operation and, most of all, for a larger place in the heart of Agnes Scott. We want to feel that our college loves us as much as she does any of her children.

There was a young fellow who sat
Quite thoughtlessly flat on his hat,
He reposed there a while
And so altered its style
That he uses it now for a mat!

There was a young maid of Manila,
Whose favorite cream was vanilla;
But, sad to relate,
Though you piled up her plate,
'Twas impossible ever to fill her.

A FRESHMAN'S LETTER HOME

ALL JOKES ASIDE

DEAR MOTHER AND ALL THE REST OF THE "FAM":

I've searched my dusty old mail box for a letter till I'm sick. I'm awful glad lots of us have a box together, for if it wasn't for Jerry Goodroe's letters in my box, the spiders would just take it over. You know I have to depend on my family for letters, since I haven't anybody to write to me and begin them "My own little sweetheart" like some girls have. Never mind, I got a little Freshman to show me how to write a really "bullish" letter, so I'm going to use a copy of it for the very first boy I write to, and then—oh, well, we'll wait and see.

Oh, mother! I want a frat pin so bad. If you'll get me one I'll promise to take good care of it and nobody will ever know that my "steady" didn't send it. Anna Bell Burkhead has a good-looking new S. P. E. one, but that's not all she has either. She's mighty mysterious and blushes a lot when you mention it. So, I can't exactly understand—it's a diamond, a beautiful one on her left hand. She vows her mother sent it, but that sounds fishy, 'cause I know there was a Montgomery postmark on the package and her mother lives in Opelika.

But the strange part of it is that she doesn't like to talk about it, and if it were mine I'd adore telling the whole student body and faculty thrown in.

You know this is the most popular class of Freshmen we have here—all but me. I've written you about Montie Sewell, I think. Well, she's been so thrilled that she hasn't been able to think clearly for a week, because he came through Atlanta. I think his name is John, but that doesn't matter what his name is. I just wish he could have seen Montie curling her hair and borrowing cute clothes for him. I was afraid she'd be a wreck before he came for she worried herself to death for fear that terrible rain would ruin her curls before they ever got in, and also for fear she couldn't get a whole parlor to talk in. She says he's terribly good looking and has a K. A. pin, so what more could anybody want? Did you ever hear of such luck in all of your experienced life?

And Louise Buchanan, another Freshman, just made my eyes green with envy Saturday night. She was in the stunt that night, so of course was all vamped up, and some Emory boy just fell like a brick for her. She just took delight in prancing by me, all huddled up on the banisters with myself, while she was with him. And he was so cute—just my height and everything. If ever I could be in a play I bet I'd be a negro mammy and the janitor would fall for me instead of an A. T. O. at Emory.

But better than A. T. O.'s, K. A.'s, S. P. E.'s or any of those kind of beaux, is one who has been abroad and brings back presents. Walker Fletcher knows all about that kind and she says it's fine. It must be, 'cause now since "he is so closely connected with the faculty," it kinder helps Walker get privileges, etc. I wonder if there's another man, sorter like him around? I'd like to find out anyway, and meet him if possible.

Mother, if I don't hurry up and get a beau, I won't have anything to talk about, 'cause all I hear is "my John" or "my Joe," etc. One girl told me that any girl could have some kind of man if she wanted to, but I'd hate to tell her what she told. I know: I'll just concentrate on somebody if Mr. Stukes will help me, and see if that brings any result—my last hope anyway.

Yours patiently waiting,
FRESHIE.

HIGH LIFE AT AGNES SCOTT

SENIORS PRESENT CABARET.

Perhaps some of us had dreams of visiting a Parisian cabaret. Well, that dream was fully realized in the Senior cabaret in the tea room Saturday night. Nothing could have been more French (unless it might be French II). There were charming French waitresses, with coy smiles and perfect French. Of course, some of the American guests had a bit of difficulty in understanding French and still more in trying to "polly." For their benefit the maids spoke English, with a decided French accent, using hands, shoulders and eyes most expressively. The menus were printed in French. By skillful translation one found that one might have ice cream, various kinds of sundaes, sandwiches, cakes and chocolate. If one desired a drink, there was lemonade, ginger ale and of course wine (made of grape-juice).

While the guests were enjoying these delicious refreshments there appeared two lovely French dancers, famous all over the land—Mlle. Ruth Misere and Mlle. Lucie Wonten. In their fluffy costumes these lovely "danseuses" delighted all present by their grace and beauty. The audience was enthusiastic in its applause. Later in the evening Mlle. Harriette Scot sang a charming little French song. Mlle. Scot has been in the country only a short while. Those students of Agnes Scott, present at the cabaret, were very much interested in her exquisite French as well as her wonderful voice.

Further entertainment was furnished by the presentation of a light French opera entitled, "La Chambre Bleue." This new opera is written by Mlle. Elizabeth Wilson. Those who

The duke and count are rivals for the hand of Mme. de Rambouillet. The Duc de Pelissier then wins the hand of Mme. de Rambouillet.

The guests enjoyed to the fullest the Senior cabaret, and wish that there might often be such entertainment and rare delicacies. Here's a toast to the "Frenchness" of our Seniors.

ST. AGNES EPISCOPAL GUILD.

Last spring two Agnes Scott girls, Mary Barton and Eleanor Carpenter, were sent by the Holy Trinity church of Decatur as delegates to the student conference of the Episcopal church at Sewanee, Tennessee, and they brought back with them the idea of establishing here a unit of the Student Council of the Episcopal church. These guilds exist in nearly all the big colleges and universities for the purpose of keeping students in touch with the work that is being carried on in their church, so that they will not feel entirely shut off from all connection with it during their college years. Because a need for such an organization was felt, the St. Agnes Guild was established with about 20 interested and active members. There was little time to do more than elect officers and make general plans for the ensuing year, but the opening of the session this fall found a majority of the members back, desirous of taking up the work at the point where they had left off. On Sunday night, the second of October, the first meeting was held, two new officers elected, and definite plans made for the year. Several meetings are to be held at which discussions and talks on the work of the church in mission fields and at home will be led by different members. In addition, they plan to give to St. Paul's library in Tokyo, Japan,

Come On In, the Water's Fine

SWIMMING SCHEDULE POSTED.

Over in gym building there's a spot venerable and much beloved, known by divers names. Some (those without due reverence) call it the bathtub. Others, blessed with poetry and imagination, know it as the "ole swimmin' hole," while the catalogue tactfully and decorously records it as "a moderate sized swimming pool" (see page —).

The name doesn't matter. Have you been there lately for a dip? Have you sneaked over, raincoated and shrinking, to wiggle timid toe in the chilly waters? Have you screamed in terrified ecstasy as the shower trickled down your spine? Then hopped into the tub to find it not too icy, after all, and not too deep? No? Then, there's a brand new thrill for you. Don't miss it!

Some of us have not yet acquired the gentle art of swimming and are loath to proclaim our abysmal ignorance on subjects aquatic. This theory is wrong absolutely. Miss Randolph and Miss Wilburn are holding regular classes where the most approved strokes may be learned. So far, sixty girls have signed up for these lessons—a most encouraging promise of future Annettes, or, to be up-to-date, future Alice Lords.

As for those who are already swimmers, more or less proficient, but who aspire to perfecting their "crawl," there will be an advance class composed of only ten girls, the hours for this class to be posted later.

You see, there's not a loophole; everything goes in for swimming this year. The pool invites you all day Tuesday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday. Get out the old bathing suit and "come on in; the water's fine!" when you come, be sure to wear your cap, Miss Randolph admonishes; some young things, it appears, have overlooked the fact that water wets hair, and have splashed in uncapped—with disastrous results to fluffy bobbed coiffures.

Remember, Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Fridays and Saturdays.

Re-Opening of the Vanity Fair Beauty Parlor

ADDED ATTRACTION TO CAMPUS INTERESTS.

Just to the rear of White House, at 125 South Candler street, is a perfectly normal looking house. But the cellar of that house is what makes it more interesting than the general run of houses. Why? No, it has nothing in common with a still; for it is quite a lively place. The Vanity Fair beauty parlor is located there.

In connection with it there is a gift shop, the stock of which is small now, but which will increase gradually. Although small in numbers, the articles are dainty and clever, and would attract the eye of any sure-enough girl. Just think what a convenience this will be for doing Christmas shopping. This perhaps seems to be a premature thought, but two months from now Christmas shopping will cease to be a mere thought and will become a necessity, which involves every one. And, even in the living present, one may save herself a trip to town (that is, if she cares to do so) if she will but remember the gift shop.

These two combined establishments have been open since October 3 to all Agnes Scott students and to the faculty as well. So, any week day from 9 a. m. until 6 p. m., Miss Laura Fagen will be glad to attend you or show you about the beauty parlor. You will find that the prices are reasonable, and that the service is good. It's just a few steps away. Why not see for yourself?

The prices of the beauty parlor are: Facial massage, 75c. Shampoo, 50c. Curl, 35c. Manicure, 50c. Scalp treatment, 75c.

These prices are less than in Atlanta, so A. S. C. can save money as well as time by going to the Vanity Fair Beauty Shop.

"AND THEN WE HAD GYM."

The day was Tuesday, and the hour was 11:30 and about forty Sophomore schedules read "gymnasium." So, accordingly, the forty Sophs filed over to the gym building. Some of them may have strolled leisurely over, but if they did their stroll ended right at the gym door because within the big spacious room the whole atmosphere was brisk and snappy and full of action. It seemed to command every girl to make a rapid transit change from conventional street clothes into the comfortable gymnastic "bloomers-and-middy-and-tennis shoes" costume. Nor was mere atmosphere the only thing which called for action, for in a few minutes Miss Wilburn's brisk little whistle sounded the note, "Fall in line. Ready for roll call. Attention!"

Then, these brief formalities over, the real work of the hour began—a work pursued with more zeal because Miss Wilburn started off with the diplomatic remark that we would have to prove that we could take Sophomore exercise. And we proved it as we went rapidly through all the paces of marching—forward, to the rear, and in right and left columns. Next, without a moment for catching the breaths we lost in double-quick running and forming columns of fours, we were rushed into open ranks and put through the drill of setting-up exercises. And, never mind how we felt when we jumped with feet apart and arms extended to the sides and back to position again in two counts like gay little birds. We didn't have time to think about it in the half-minute of "in place, rest," which we were given before we marched out into the yard for a game. Later, as we followed up the exciting mysteries of "three deep," we lost our few remaining hairpins and quite forgot our dignity as "students." It seemed less than a minute before the bell rang for dismissal and a hurried return to skirts and 12:30 classes.

And that was the end of the first gym class, if one is not to count the sore limbs and muscles which manifested themselves next day as some of the minor effects of gym—but this is confidential!

ALUMNAE NOTES.

Gladys Brown was married on Saturday, the fifteenth of October, to Mr. Edward Knox Proctor. The wedding took place in the Presbyterian church of Chadbourne, North Carolina. Only the Seniors and Juniors know Gladys or "Brownie," as she was always called at Agnes Scott, for she did not come back last year. She had quite a wonderful voice and everybody loved to hear her sing. Mr. and Mrs. Proctor will live at Lumberton, North Carolina.

VISITORS.

Gertrude Manly, a graduate of 1920, spent a few days here with her sister last week. Gertrude will spend the winter at her home in Dalton, Ga.

Evelyn Hannah, a Junior of last year, visited us last week. She will stay in Thomaston this winter.

Eleanor Carpenter spent the weekend at Agnes Scott. Eleanor is head of the department of Romance languages at Greenville Woman's College, at Greenville, South Carolina. Although a very important member of the faculty, she says that she has several times been taken for a Freshman.

"Genie" Johnson visited us last Saturday and Sunday. She is at her home in Atlanta this year and we hope she will come out to see us often.

Juliet Foster, who has been visiting friends at Agnes Scott, left last week for Anderson, South Carolina, to visit her sister, also an Agnes Scott Alumnae. After an extended visit there she will return to her home in Fayetteville, North Carolina.

BY REQUEST WE PRINT THE FOLLOWING.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Sept. 23, 1921.

EDITOR AGONISTIC,

Agnes Scott College.

DEAR FRIEND: I am sending you enclosed herein a little story I have written—it is straight from my heart to the girls at Agnes Scott, whom I love collectively and individually.

If you give it space in your excellent little paper, I shall be glad; it might possibly serve to help some one.

With best wishes for the renewed success of the school, the paper and the girls, I am Very sincerely,

"ANONYMOUS."

The Life Worth While.

"Good-by, Tom! Good-by, Bob! Be sure you write me soon, Bess!"

"Mother!" And the bright eyes filled with tears as she clasped "mother" in a tight embrace. How could she say "good-by" to mother—how could she do without her for a whole long year?

But there, there, she must go now—the train whistles and the "all aboard for Atlanta" has already been megaphoned through the station. So with a brave bright smile and a tender pressure of that mother hand, Jean is gone.

To be sure, it is not so far away, but it is separation not distance which counts, and looking ahead into the year to come it seems very long and lonely to Jean. There will be the letters, though—they will help just heaps—and then, hadn't Tom and Bob both said they would see her soon? Oh, yes, indeed! And there were the girls from last year coming back, too, and the new room in Rebecca Scott building to fix so daintily in pink checked gingham draperies, and the new penants from the summer's conquests. Just heaps of pleasures loomed up brightly before Jean as she sped along on her journey.

Before going very far her attention was directed to a young girl of about her own age, apparently, seated not far ahead of her on the opposite side of the chair car—an extremely attractive girl she was, with large, soulful brown eyes, dark curly hair, and a very wistful expression. She seemed to be in trouble; her very posture indicated sorrow, and yet she was not ill for her cheeks glowed with a natural color. With head bowed and eyes downcast, she sat, trying to read, but finding it a difficult matter. When the lunch hour came she took nothing, only shaking her head as the porter offered to bring her lunch. Then Jean concluded she would go over and see if she might be of some pleasure or comfort. So in her own sweet way she crossed to the other side of the coach, looked down at the girl and asked if she might share her seat for awhile.

"I am so lonely and want some one to talk to—won't you talk awhile?"

The girl raised her eyes, looked straight into the face of Jean and reading therein a real sincerity and kindness, said: "Yes, do come and sit down. I, too, am lonely and more than that, I'm so blue, I just don't know what to do."

And soon the two girls were confiding in each other as only girls of their age can do, each unconsciously helping the other by giving her experience. Here sat Grace—for that was her name—grieving over what she was longing for, but was compelled to give up—a course at Agnes Scott College. Her plans had been completed, her father had made every financial detail of the course possible, when at the last minute everything he had swept away in one of those relentless fires—no insurance—everything gone in a day. Instead of the happy four years' work fitting herself for future usefulness, she was compelled to go now in search of employment that she might do her share towards bearing the burden and expenses of the family.

Grace's story roused a new thought in Jean's mind. "How thankful I should be that I am going to Agnes Scott! How glad that it is possible for me to complete my course and have all my heart's desires!" Jean felt that life held more for her now than she ever before realized, and comparing her own opportunities with those of her new acquaintance, she resolved then and there to make every day and hour count for something really worth while. She would study harder and go to town less, and try to make good! Since hearing of Grace's disappointment Jean seemed to see more clearly her own many advantages, and when at Christmas time her reports showed so many merits, and her chums called her their "banner girl," she said: "It's all because of something which happened coming over here last fall on the train."

And to this day, the girls are wondering what it was that made such a change in dear old jolly Jean. She had become so studious, so ambitious to succeed, and yet so kind and thoughtful for the other girls, they noticed the change in their chum, but loved her all the more.

When, a few months later, Jean received a letter from Grace, her heart beat fast and her cheeks burned with excitement, for Grace had found employment, so the letter read, as companion or secretary for Mrs. Young, one of Jean's dearest friends.

Jean had first suggested her writing Mrs. Young and had herself written, urging her to give Grace some sort of assistance if possible and explaining the circumstances of Grace's needs.

Could anything have worked out better? At Easter time, Jean was asked to join a house party given by Mrs. Young. Accepting the invitation, she found herself in the midst of the finest, noblest crowd of boys and girls she had ever met. Not a bit strange it was, either, to find that Grace was the centre of attraction and was always ready to do her part in promoting the happiness of all, yet never neglecting her duties.

Jean felt keenly interested in Grace, but her own secret hopes died within her heart as she saw and realized that Bob—her Bob—was seriously, hopelessly (and hopefully) in love with Grace!

"Well, mother, I made one match, or, at least, I found a place in the world for Grace, didn't I?" said Jean cheerily, as she related to her mother the entire circumstances of meeting Grace, becoming interested in her welfare, and writing Mrs. Young regarding her.

"Yes, dear, and you have found that the greatest thing in life is servicing others, haven't you? That is what makes life worth while."

"With head erect—alert in walk—Clear in thought—direct in talk—She meets success on every side—"

She stands up straight—
She's straight inside."

Atlanta Student Volunteer Band Holds First Meeting

PLANS FOR YEAR DISCUSSED

The Atlanta Student Volunteer band held its first meeting for this year at 3:30 Sunday afternoon at Agnes Scott. Mr. Morris Paty, the new president of the organization, presided, and, as no definite program for the afternoon had been arranged, plans for the coming year were discussed. The chief question brought up was whether all the meetings should be open. No definite decision was reached, but it is to be hoped that these will be open.

Much enthusiasm was evident among those present. Besides the members, there were many visitors from both Atlanta and Agnes Scott, who showed their interest of the union. This year promises to be one of inspiration and success for the Atlanta Volunteers.

Atlanta's Annual College Day.

Sponsored by Chamber of Commerce.

A city of colleges and specialized schools and yet we have not capitalized the asset! President Ashcraft has suggested a plan which will mark an epoch in advertising Atlanta in a manner which will return a rich profit. In brief, it's just this, providing the college men of Atlanta one special opportunity in the year to come out en masse, and no better day could be chosen than the opening football game of our own Georgia Tech and Oglethorpe.

A strong committee has been selected, consisting of at least one alumnus of each college represented in the city, and as we go to press plans are under way to make October first the biggest college day Atlanta has ever seen. And it will not stop there, for plans are complete for the Chamber of Commerce to feature the opening day each year.—The Atlanta City Builder.

CHORAL SOCIETY AGAIN COMING TO THE FRONT.

Last Tuesday evening people passing through Rebekah Scott lobby were made rather curious by a large group of girls swarming around the entrance of the Propylean hall. They were apparently encumbered with much trepidation, symptoms of being scared to death or other nervous afflictions. The members of this group seemed to disappear one at a time into the depths of the Propylean hall, then serving as Mr. Johnson's studio. Presently they would emerge and give an enthusiastic report of their absence. They had been "trying out" for the choral society in answer to Mr. Johnson's announcement of that morning.

All the old Agnes Scotters remember the wonderful renditions of Handel's Messiah, which have been given by our choral society for the past few years just before the holiday season. This year the "Messiah" will be given in Agnes Scott chapel on the last Sunday afternoon before we go home for our Christmas vacation. Several new choruses will be added to the program for this year.

Those who are to comprise the chorus this year are as follows:

Sopranos: Lillian McAlpine, Alice Whipple, Jeannette Archer, Charlotte Keesler, Eloise Knight, Helen Crocker, Victoria Howie, Laurie Bell Stubbs, Margaret Mitchell, Helen Lockhart, Mary McCollum, Viola Smith, Catherine Wilkinson, Isabel Ferguson, Elizabeth Houston, Marion Hull, Ruth Kennedy, Agnes Jackson, Annie Johnson, Eileen Dodd, Katherine Wharton, Laura McCulluh, Lois Jennings, Frances White, Brooks Grimes, Miss Goodwin, Mrs. Chas. Carter, Mrs. Geo. Napier, Mrs. R. B. Cunningham.

Contraltos: Nell Esslinger, Elizabeth Lockhart, Caroline Moody, Ruth Almond, Ruth Pirkle, Jane Knight, Frances Gilliland, Carrie Scandrett, Mrs. B. A. Beck, Mrs. Allison, Mrs. Lawrence Mansfield, Frances Britt, Olivia Liebheit, Irma Heaton, Elizabeth Hoke, Julia Jameson, Mary Knight, Ruth Hall, Mary Brown, Ruth Virden, Martha Eakes, Frances Gardner, Frances Singlettery, Annette Carter, Julia Rothermel, Miss Mary MacDougall.

Besides these, men from Emory Glee Club, Georgia Tech and the cities of Atlanta and Decatur will sing in the chorus. The best soloists in the city will be engaged to assist.

The society will meet in the chapel every Tuesday evening at 8:30 o'clock for practice under the direction of Mr. Johnson.

K. U. B. TRYOUTS.

Some time next week there will be a day of great interest to all would-be journalists—K. U. B. try-outs. These try-outs are open to all who have done or are doing work on THE AGONISTIC, except Seniors. As Seniors become honorary members the second semester, it seems best that girls should not be taken in at the beginning of their Senior year. Freshmen who report on THE AGONISTIC are eligible for membership.

The try-outs will consist of two parts: One subject assigned to be written up as if for the town paper, and one subject chosen by the applicant for membership and written in the same way. All subjects will, of course, be campus events.

In considering the try-outs, the ability to write a news article will be the main qualification for membership, but the applicant's general attitude toward campus activities, and evidence of having the best interest of the college at heart, will also be taken into consideration.

CLEANED OUT.

"Hi there, sir!" shouted a Florida landlord to a departing guest who was rushing for the train, "you've dropt your pocketbook."

"All right," shouted back the guest without stopping, "I've no further use for it."—Boston Transcript.

FIRE FIGHTERS OF A. S. C.

ALL THE WORLD'S A STAGE.

"What on earth is the matter with that girl over in the corner of the library, sitting with a book in her hand, but staring fixedly into space and her lips moving in some heathen incantation?" No, she is not a candidate for Milledgeville, but for Blackfriars! She really isn't as crazy as she may look, but on the contrary she has shown her good sense and has decided to try out for Blackfriars. The book in her hand may be a copy of anything from Shakespeare to Sheridan, for the selections assigned for try-outs are of wide range.

All during the week previous to try-outs, one hears from fourth floor Main, the wails of many frantic Juliets, while from the basement of the library come the sounds of as many Mrs. Malaprops, proclaiming in loud voice, "These, my dear, are the perpendiculars of a good education."

Of course, all of the Juliets and Mrs. Malaprops do not always find themselves on the Blackfriar stage, but some of them do, so there is always the incentive to at least try for "nothing risked, nothing gained." And a lot is to be gained by trying real hard—hard enough to be accepted, for, oh, what fun it is to be a Blackfriar! After the try-out comes the annual banquet in early December, and then there are three plays given regularly every year, the culmination of artistic effort coming in May, when the annual spring play is given on Dr. Gaines' lawn. It is the ambition of every Blackfriar to take part in this play, for it is the largest production of the year and crowds of people from Atlanta and Decatur attend. This play is Blackfriars' annual contribution to the festivities of commencement week.

How does one get into all this? Try-outs, is the answer. These try-outs are held at the beginning of each semester, the first being limited to old girls, and the mid-winter try-out including the new girls. The number of girls accepted is necessarily limited, but the number of times the rest are allowed to try out is indefinite, so that the disappointed ones need not feel that their lives are blighted forever, so that "if at first you don't succeed, try, try again."

Better Late Than Never

WELCOME TO TWO MORE NEW GIRLS.

It will be of interest to the girls to know that there are two new girls who have come to join us. They are Elizabeth Kink, of Roanoke, Alabama, and Virginia Watts, of Decatur.

Elizabeth Kink came in this week and she rooms in No. 3, Lupton. Virginia Watts is a day student. It's up

JUNIORS FURNISH ENTERTAINMENT FOR COLLEGE COMMUNITY.

Never before in the history of the college has Agnes Scott enjoyed such a thrilling movie spectacle as that offered by the Juniors last Saturday night. Anyone in doubt about the sweeping success of the Junior Palatial theater can observe for himself that the Victory theater in Decatur has been forced out of business.

Scenic effects, including lighting, etc., rival those in Atlanta's largest theater; and in one important respect the Junior Palatial theater surpasses its closest rivals: that is in respect to captions. In place of written words flashed on the screen, they have hit upon the happy plan of having a story-teller to sit out in front and explain the picture as the plot unfolds. This eliminates the irksome necessity of reading the captions aloud to the children, and also spares fastidious spectators the pain of hearing those around them read aloud.

The program of the de luxe performance Saturday night was as follows: Overture, Agnes Scott orchestra. Advertisements. Pithy news items. Personal appearance of Dere Hart. Close-ups of stars. Music, Agnes Scott Jazz orchestra. Dere Hart, spectacular screen sensation, with an all-star cast.

The first scene is a street in a Western town. Fiendish Flannigan, alias Dere Hart, terrorizes the peaceful inhabitants continually because the fact that he has never succeeded in rolling a cigarette with his left hand riles his temper uncontrollably. In the Bucket-of-Blood saloon, he encounters Pedro, the half-breed, who quails before him and his threats. Uneeda Nabisco, who loves Pedro, asks the hypnotist, Hammurabbi, how she can free her lover from the foul dominance of Fiendish Flannigan. He fails to help her, and Fiendish, discovering the plot, shoots the hypnotist. Uneeda and Pedro consult the Ouija board then. Ouija tells them to find the right girl for Fiendish—a shy, unsophisticated little country girl. Pedro undertakes the quest. Eventually he finds Giddy Gush and takes her back with him. They arrive just as the general massacre which Fiendish has announced is about to start. Fiendish falls immediately and forgets to carry out his plan. Giddy adroitly rolls his cigarette with her left hand and presents it to him with the warning, "Don't roll your own." And Fiendish, now called Dere Hart, and Giddy, and Pedro and Uneeda all lived happily.

The all-star cast included: Story teller, Eleanor Hyde. Fiendish Flannigan, Lois McLain, Dere Hart. Hammurabbi, the hypnotist, Emily Guille.

Pedro, the half-breed, Lucile Little. Uneeda Nabisco, Dorothy Bowron. Giddy Gush, Elizabeth Ransom.

October's Calendar in Brief

MANY EVENTS SCHEDULED FOR THE MONTH.

There are many treats in store for us during the remainder of October. It seems as though wonderful things are always happening at Agnes Scott, but when the Juniors plan a stunt, the grandmothers' party, there is to be a Baron from Russia and the Dean of Smith College, we feel that October must be the most wonderful month of the year.

The Juniors have asked for Saturday evening, the 15th, and have been given full possession of it. You know, the Junior class is a working class, for they constantly have in mind the wonderful spring that comes in every Junior's life. They are planning now to have a real, live W. S. Hart production right here in the chapel. Everything is to be truly western, even to the ticket collectors and ushers. Of course, it is a W. S. Hart production, but we may recognize some of our friends, the Juniors, in the all-star cast. We'll forget all that, though, and read the "reading part" when borne on the backs of some of our friends.

Then the grandmothers' party is to be October 22nd, and it bids fair to be one of the most delightful events of a Freshman's life. The gym is turned into a veritable grandmother-land, where all the grandmothers carry peppermints in the pockets of their white aprons and wear tiny white curls beneath a white lace cap. This land abounds in pink lemonade and sugar cookies, but the bad part is that wise grandmother is careful to see that granddaughter does not make herself sick on the "goodies." But the strange part of it is that these grandmothers can dance almost as well as their grandchildren and do engage in this amusement.

Baron Korff, of Russia, is to be here and make a speech under the auspices of the International Relations Club. He was governor-general of Finland before the collapse of the Russian government. He has delivered lectures everywhere in America on the almost intangible situation in Russia. It is interesting for us to note that he belonged to the liberal party. He has been quite distinguished since his stay in America, by being made chairman at the meeting of the American Historical Association, which met in Washington. The whole college community is cordially invited to hear Baron Korff on the 28th.

Dean Comstock, of Smith, is to be here on the 31st. She comes by special invitation from Dr. Gaines. She is to speak at Founders' Day exercises of Sweet Briar and then will visit a few of the leading Southern colleges. We do not as yet know what the subject of her lecture will be, but we can be sure it will be one of vital import to all college women. We should count it indeed a privilege to entertain so honored a person as Dean Comstock.

ON COMING BACK.

Do you really appreciate the value of "Hey?" We are sure that you won't be able to do so to the fullest extent until you become an old girl coming back. Just to be on the campus and to see all the girls in their middle suits; to chat with the faculty with the air of an old acquaintance; to go to the tea room and spend more time and more money than you have, just to be back at Agnes Scott—is bliss!—Charlotte Newton, '21.

AGGIE SINGS.

From the windows, doors and cracks in the floor of fourth floor Main at all times of the day and part of the night issue forth many ah-ahings, oh-ohings, oo-coings and other sounds, which make Aggie think quite often that there must be much "agonizing" on that high altitude. But if you go to church in Atlanta on Sundays you will in all probability decide that there is a reason; for Atlanta recognizes the fact that there is talent at A. S. C., and that Mr. Johnson, head of the vocal department, and Miss Curry, his able assistant, are faithfully training that talent in the best possible way. Should you desire to see or hear for yourself (if you are from Missouri, so to speak), there are several churches from which you may choose. At All Saints will be found our own Miss Curry as contralto soloist, with Miss Goodwin and Katherine Wharton as members of the choir. At St. Phillips' Cathedral you will see many familiar faces, among whom are Nell Esslinger as contralto soloist. Nell comes from Ponce de Leon Baptist, where she has been soloist. And Olivia Liebheit, Carolyn Moody and Ruth Pirkle as members of the contralto portion of the choir. Lillian McAlpin, as soprano soloist, and Frances Gilliland as contralto soloist have been singing with Hattie May Finney, a former organ student of Mr. Dieckman's, but they will soon make a valuable addition to St. Phillips' choir. If you go to Decatur Presbyterian you will find Elizabeth Lockhart as contralto soloist.

It is to Mr. Johnson that we must take off our hats and wave our handkerchiefs, for it is he who acts both as patient teacher and publicity manager of our vocal department. The girls who sing should thank Mr. Johnson indeed for the good opportunities that he makes it possible for them to accept and the college community should appreciate these efforts of Mr. Johnson and the vocal department. At present he is tenor soloist at North Avenue Presbyterian church.

Rose Harwood, an old A. S. C. girl, is showing her appreciation of our vocal department by returning for a few weeks to review her vocal and increase her repertoire.

COTILLION CLUB DANCE.

On Friday night, the Agnes Scott Cotillion Club gave an informal opening dance in the gymnasium. The gym was beautifully decorated in goldenrod, and at one end of the hall, the punch bowl was placed, adding to the general artistic effect. An orchestra from Atlanta made excellent music and everyone pronounced the dance a huge success.

During the intermission, Ruth Keiser gave a beautiful solo dance. Everyone always enjoys Ruth's dances, and she was encored several times.

Each Cotillion Club member was privileged to bring one guest. Those dancing were:

Quenelle Harrold with Evelyn King.
Charlotte Keesler with Elizabeth Malloy.

Wenona Peck with Augusta Thomas.
Lucy Oliver with Hall McDougall.
Elizabeth Ransom with Mary Evelyn Arnold.

Dorothy Bouron with Lois McClain.
Virginia Ordway with Anne Gambrill.

JUNIORS FURNISH ENTERTAINMENT FOR COLLEGE COMMUNITY.

Barkeeper, Mary Goodrich.
His daughter, Jerry Goodroe.
Cowboys, mobs, etc.

The Pithy News items showed Mr. Starr signing the contract not to blow the whistle at quarter of ten because it wakes up the citizens of Decatur; also John D. Rockefeller offering the Junior class a million dollars, which, however, they refuse, saying they prefer to make their own money selling peanuts and candy; also, the rush to meals, and Freshman-Sophomore week at Agnes Scott.

Those taking parts in the animated ads and the Pithy News items were Thelma Cook, Mary Harris, Margaret Turner, Martha Ballard, Eloise Knight, Nannie Campbell, Elizabeth Hoke, Ruth Almond, Christine Evans, Lucy Timmerman, Hall McDougall, Wenona Peck, Josephine Douglas and Rebekah Harmon.

CHURCH AFFILIATION.

Last Sunday night at Y. W., everybody was given a chance to sign up for a church home. Most of the new girls have perhaps felt a little strange on Sunday morning when the time for church came, because they didn't feel like they "belonged" in any of the churches; when they went in, all the faces were strange and there was no family pew in which to find refuge. Well, that is just the reason we want to decide upon a certain church to call our own while we are here, so that the feeling of strangeness will wear off and we will feel as much at home as we do in our real home.

Of course, we would hardly want to move our membership just for the part of four years that we are here, but the Y. W. C. A. has devised a plan by which we can "belong" to both churches. That is, we can decide, after visiting at all the different churches, which one we like best; then we sign up (as we did Sunday night) for the one we want to affiliate with. The lists of girls affiliating with each church are sent to the different pastors, and they and the ladies of the church do all in their power to meet and know us, and make us feel welcome to worship with them.

Sarah Till is the chairman of the church affiliation committee this year and she and her committee planned a very interesting program for Sunday night. With Miss Wilburn as leader, it goes without saying that the meeting was thoroughly enjoyed. The young people from all the churches in Decatur were invited to meet with us and we are hoping that we may become acquainted with them through the various churches this year.

For all those who did not sign up for a church home last Sunday night, another chance will be given soon, some morning after chapel, and everyone is urged to take advantage of the opportunity to become affiliated with one of the churches either in Decatur or Atlanta.

'WARE FIRE!

WE ARE PREPARED FOR ALL EMERGENCIES.

Have you ever waked up with a start in the middle of the coldest kind of a winter night and heard the ear-splitting clanging of an awful sounding bell? If you are a new girl, you probably have not, but just watch out, because you soon will. Most any old girl can be heard saying, "O, a fire drill!" "What in the world did she give one tonight for?" "She surely picked out the coldest night this winter." "I had just gone to sleep." "She knows that I have a test tomorrow and need to sleep."

Yes, the captain in every building probably knows all these things, but the fire drill has to come just the same, and every single girl has to jump out of bed, grab a wet towel and fly down stairs in the pitch black dark, falling over every trunk in the hall.

These things may seem useless, but if we stop to think about it, we realize that they are among the most important things that we have to do here at school. We have always heard that "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," and this is certainly true in case of fire drills. Dr. Gaines has always tried to impress upon us the fact that fire drills are not merely for the sake of drills, but are preventives. Think what it would mean to us if we really did have a fire, to be able to get out of the building quietly, in an orderly way and quickly. Much time and probably many lives would be saved, whereas if everybody rushed frantically down stairs and out, there is no telling what might be the result.

In order to carry on these drills, it is necessary to have leaders. Eunice Dean is fire chief this year and elections of fire captains of the various buildings will be held some time this week, and it may be interesting to the new girls to know that this will be the first election in which they will take part.

As soon as the captains of the various buildings are elected, and the lieutenants of the various wings and members of the bucket brigades are appointed, fire drills will begin. There will be one every week for six weeks and after that one every month. The lights in the halls will be turned off, but all lieutenants will have flashlights and anybody else who has one may use it.

It is absolutely necessary that every girl be present with a wet towel at every fire drill. Knocks will be given for failure to have wet towels and restriction is the penalty for absence. Every girl should feel personally responsible for the carrying out of all regulations because fire drills concern each and every one of us; any failure to comply with all regulations might, in case of fire, mean the loss of many lives. Housekeepers of various buildings have called attention to the fact that trunks, boxes, chairs or any other obstructions must not be placed in front of windows leading to fire escapes. This is a precaution that must be observed in every building.

Realizing the importance of fire drills and remembering that "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," let us all work together this year to make them as fast as possible, yet quiet and orderly.

We hope that the cracking of bones, as heard on the hockey field, will not disturb the infirmary quiet.

EXCHANGES.

Something that is of interest to the Southern colleges is the fact that of the one hundred and sixty Chinese students who have arrived in the United States recently to continue their education with money secured from the Boxer indemnity fund, forty are young women, according to the Southern Methodist Mission Board.—The Sun Dial.

Rhodes scholars will be appointed by 32 States, including Tennessee, Virginia, Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia and Mississippi, December 3, to take up residence at Oxford University, in October, 1922. All applications, testimonials, references, etc., must be in the hands of the respective State committees before October 29. It is practically useless for under-graduates to apply for appointment.

Young alumna under 25 years of age, who are doing graduate or professional study, or are engaged in teaching or are pursuing other intellectual pursuits, are the most likely candidates. Judging from past observation, we should say that an athletic record and gifts for social leadership, along with scholastic and literary attainments, are essential for appointment. The scholars pay 350 pounds sterling annually, and the appointment is for three years. Almost any line of study may be pursued with advantage.

Any alumna identified with any of the above named States who wish to apply should communicate at once with Prof. Thos. W. Lingle, who will aid them in any possible way.—The Davidsonian.

We feel that Randolph-Macon in the following article has given a suggestion that we might apply to ourselves, and try not to be too "Agnes Scottish" in our views.

Heretofore, there has been a decided tendency to become too Randolph-Maconish by neglecting the affairs in the outside world. Suggestions were made that the old girls should take the lead in influencing the Freshmen to keep themselves posted on current events by frequenting the reading rooms and subscribing to the college paper and magazine to gain a knowledge of other collegiate activities. Then, too, there are organizations in the college, such as the International Relations Club, whose purpose it is to discuss and explain all affairs of moment to the members.—The Sun Dial.

Pretty Niece (blushing): "Auntie, what would you do if you learned that a young man was inquiring secretly about your ability to cook?"

Wise Aunt: "I would immediately inquire as to his ability to provide things to cook."—The Mississippian.

COZY FIRE IN THE CABINET ROOM.

On Wednesday, October twelfth, the entire college community was cordially invited to be the guests of the publication committee of the Y. W. C. A. at "five-thirty o'clock" in the cabinet room. To a great many of the new girls the name "publication committee" sounded impressive and the "cabinet room" unfamiliar, but Mary Greene made the invitation in chapel so appealing, with the description of an open fire and a cup of tea, that at five-thirty the guests came thick and fast.

But perhaps you were one of those unfortunate persons who couldn't go and therefore didn't learn about the publication committee and the cabinet room.

The cabinet room is on the left of the entrance to the two halls of the literary societies. It is a room set apart—school nor studies ever enter its doors. Therefore, it is home-like. There are big, easy chairs, a lounge and a beautiful lamp. The pillows galore and the bright fire give the last touches needed to drive away the "homesick blues."

The publication committee has charge of this room and keeps the table supplied not only with the current magazines, but all the denominational papers and the Association Monthly.

The sincerest wish of this committee is for each girl to make the cabinet room her "happy room." There will be a fire there every night just right to toast marshmallows over from 9:30 till the lights go out. The room will be especially delightful on Sundays.

Every girl who was able to accept the invitation of the publication committee, everyone who partook of the tea and crackers and enjoyed the blazing open fire, will testify to the "homey" feeling she carried away with her.

A FRESHMAN'S LETTER HOME

DEAREST MOTHER:

I haven't had a moment to be homesick this week, mother, for besides my work, there have been lots of things to have fun with. Best of all, was the Senior Cabaret. This Senior class must be awful clever, for they just talked French like it was English, and made us feel like we were at a real French cabaret instead of a play-one at the tea room. I tried terribly hard to give my order to the French maid, but when it came I decided I must have made a few mistakes, for instead of ice cream I got sandwiches, and lemonade instead of orangeade.

I like anything in the tea room; just wish I had enough money to stay down there. I guess Ruth Evans likes it, too, for she gets to go down there and not pay. Why, the other day I saw her there with two or three boys, sitting at a table, about to order everything on the list. Must be fine!

I know I'm a "sad egg," 'cause I don't have dates to take me to the tea room, and I don't have lots of Davidson boys all time stopping by to see me like D. Bernhardt has. They say they stop over on their way somewhere else, but I have an idea that there isn't any stopping in it—that they just come for one purpose. Of course, now,

ALUMNAE NOTES.

The first fall meeting of the Decatur branch of the Alumnae Association was held Monday, October 10, at 4 p. m. in the Propylean hall. There were two interesting and important talks made. First, Janef Preston talked about the events that happened around Agnes Scott, student activities, number enrolled, Dr. McCann's report, etc. Then Mrs. Guy, of Atlanta, talked about the alumnae house. She explained the plan of it, how it would be run, and suggested plans for the housewarming. It is hoped that this building will be opened by Thanksgiving. After Mrs. Guy's speech, Miss Bishop gave the report of the tea room, which of course is run by the Alumnae Association. Miss Isabel Saxon, the president, presided over the meeting. There were about twenty present and all were very enthusiastic over the plans for the coming year. Miss Saxon appointed a social, ways and means, and publicity committee. After the business meeting, the executive committee was hostess at a social meeting.

JANE HARWELL'S MARRIAGE.

The wedding of Miss Jane Harwell, of Decatur, and John Walter Rutland, of Atlanta, will take place at the home of the bride's parents, on Clairmont avenue, at high noon on Saturday, October 29. Anna Harwell, sister of the bride, will be maid of honor. A number of Agnes Scott girls expect to attend the wedding.

VISITORS.

Quite a number of old girls visited Agnes Scott last week. Some came especially to pay visits and others just dropped in on their way to other places. The visitors were: Frances Whitfield, Eleanor Carpenter, Aimy D. Glover, Caroline Agee and Charlotte Newton.

We love to have you girls! Won't you come again?

I don't know, 'cause I'm not very wise, but I just somehow guess that's the way. And I don't have a Washington-Lee boy, either, to keep me supplied with candy, like Elizabeth Bond has. His father must own a candy factory, judging from all the empty boxes I see blocking up Elizabeth's door. When I do fool some boy into liking me, he "sho" has got to do what most girls call "put out." That means send candy and flowers, and take you to all the good football games, etc. Gee, I can't wait till all that happens, if it ever will.

Mother, Agnes Scott, I fear, is going on a terrible decline soon, for it is at the crisis now. What do you think? Ella and Mary are about to go on a strike. They say that they weren't overworked answering the telephone and door bell until these Freshmen came, but now, you just ought to hear them tell about how many calls they can answer a minute and how much shoe leather they have worn out going to the door. But they say they can stand it until it begins on Sunday night. So don't you think, for the sake of the school, that somebody ought to warn H. Gaines and some others not to let all their friends "pass through" on Sunday night any more?

You know, M. E. Arnold is the funniest girl. I've seen her in the mail room lots lately and she always looks so pained and hopeless until a big, fat letter with a funny kind of handwriting is put in her box. She isn't a bit interested in all her other mail, because it's not from the "right person." I'm crazy to know who a letter has to be from to be "good" and from the right person, aren't you?

H. Stevenson is too flossy to live. She is going to town with a man tomorrow afternoon, and he is from Virginia, too! Oh, you Virginia men! I wonder if they are heart-crushers like everybody says. Oh, I do hope they aren't for Hester will be such a wreck. I wonder what I'd say to Miss Hopkins if by chance I should capture a date to go to town. I'd better think about what I'd do with one in the parlor out here first, before I aspire for a town one.

Write soon, mother, and don't forget that I get hungry as well as homesick. I don't mean that for a hint, but you can take it as you please. I'll have to stop writing before Exec. "shoos" me, for this pen makes a terrible fuss when I write, and I do hate to be "shooed"—it distracts me.

Yours hungrily, "FRESHIE."

Come to Student Government Meeting

FIRST OPEN MEETING OF YEAR.

The Student Government held its weekly meeting Tuesday night after supper in the chapel. Many of the rules which seemed to have escaped the observation of some of the students were again brought to our minds as a last warning.

These were the dance rules. The dance rules may be found on page 30 of the handbook. If you are not sure of these look them up. It will not only aid you, but be of great assistance to the Student Government Association.

The girls are asked not to walk far from the grounds unless in groups. This may seem to you a very silly rule, but it is for the safety of the students; danger has no warning bell.

Do not ring the fire alarm. This bell is for the use of the fire department only. Non-observance of this rule is a very serious offense and will be dealt with accordingly.

There have been several failures to register. These are checked with a big cross-mark. If you find one of these cross-marks on your page of the register book, please do not fail to register over this failure mark.

If lost articles are reported immediately to the president of Student Government, she will be glad to help you find them.

An open discussion meeting will be held the first Tuesday night in every month. If you have any questions to ask or suggestions to make, please write them on a slip of paper and put them in the Student Government box in the hall of Main building.

BETTER LATE THAN NEVER.

to us to show these new girls that we're glad to have them among us, so let's look them up and make them feel that we're glad to have them, even if they are a little late in getting here. We are always glad to see new girls and we want them to feel at home here.

And to the new girls we want to say that we're glad to have you and we hope you're going to love A. S. C. just like the old girls love it and like the other new girls are learning to love it. We all want to join in giving you a big, big welcome and we hope that this year is going to be the very best one you have ever spent.

Nowadays, who steals my purse has got to hustle to get there ahead of the landlord and the tax collector.

If a musical show takes off enough clothes in the summer it usually runs through the winter.

SUNDAY SCHOOL NEWS

VERY LARGE ATTENDANCE THIS YEAR.

Dr. Gaines says that this year's Sunday school at A. S. C. is the best ever. And Miss Randolph, the superintendent, is a most inspiring and enthusiastic leader.

The Freshmen have the choice of the international Sunday school lessons taught by Beth McClure in Miss Curry's studio, and Emily Guille in the little parlor in Main; or, of the "Principles of Christianity as Applied to Everyday Living," taught by Josephine Logan in Propylean hall, and by Lucia Murchison, Eloise Knight and Pearl Smith in their own rooms.

To the Sophomores is offered the very helpful course presented in Harrison Elliott's book, "How Jesus Met Life Problems." There is one class taught by Ruth Hall which meets in the large parlor of Main, and another taught by Janef Preston which meets in Mr. Dieckman's studio.

The Sophomores, Juniors and Seniors who wish to keep up with the international Sunday school lessons may do so in Mnemosynean hall with worthy Mrs. Sydenstricker as a teacher.

There is a class for Juniors and Seniors. (Continued on page 4.)

NATURE'S TRUTHS.

By LAURA KIRKWOOD PLUMB.

Daffodils are not daffy,
Crocuses do not croak,
The weeping willow sheds no tears,
The smokebush does not smoke.

The catnip has not a bite,
The dogwood has no fleas,
The sycamore seems real well,
The snowball does not freeze.

The snapdragon has no snap,
The bleeding heart no gore,

Tiger lilies can't roar.

The ragweed can never jazz,
The best ferns make a brake,
So why be true to Nature
When she is such a fake?

ATHLETICS

HIKES A L'INDIVIDUELLE.

Have you heard the good news from the athletic pleasure-recreation department? No? Then you are missing something exciting, for the news concerns a thrilling new privilege for all numeral-aspiring "hikers"—and this special privilege is individual hikes. Can you imagine taking a hike all by yourself or with just your best friend, and having it count toward a numeral? Well, that is just what can happen on as many as three hikes out of the eight required. Five hikes must be taken with the class group, but that still leaves three which may be taken, if you wish, at any time you want to go and with whomever you want to go. There is the time and the company at your pleasure. The only thing limited is the place—and there is even a range of choice in this. You may decide whether you wish to walk:

From Decatur to Atlanta.
From Atlanta to Decatur.
From Decatur to Stone Mountain.
From Stone Mountain to Decatur.
From Decatur to East Lake and back.
From Decatur to Druid Hills Golf Club and back.

So, when you have your destination picked out and your companion(s) collected at the proper setting-out place at the proper time, you will be quite ready to explore the trail of an individual hike. And you can travel quite untroubled without having to make frantic efforts to keep up with the flying steps of certain energetic girls who seem to always be miles ahead; or being bothered over the necessity of reaching your destination not less than five minutes later than the main body of hikers, so that your hike will "count." You may proceed at leisure, you may rest by the roadside, you may talk of the "grand rush" you had at the last dance, or how your newest dress is going to be made; you may sing, or recite history to yourself. It doesn't matter. The only thing that does matter is that you must reach your destination and report to the hike manager that you did so.

There, honorable hikers, you are presented with the privilege of individual hikes. Test out their joys for yourself.

The Early Birds Go On a Hike

FROM FIVE FORTY-FIVE TILL BREAKFAST.

Five forty-five may be too early for some folks, but from the number that attended the hike Friday morning, October seventh, it would seem that no other hour is so convenient. One hundred and fifty girls came pouring from Inman, Rebekah and Main when the sun was just dawning to show his dazzling countenance. Yawning was rather prevalent till Nannie said "Let's go." Then we started out the front gate at a speed that made even the sleepest wake up and take notice.

Morning air, combined with exercise, has an astonishing effect on all healthy college girls. Nobody dreamed of missing breakfast, and as the hikers came back in view of the college, their minds with one accord flew to the dining room. Presently the welcome bell rang out, and anyone late to that meal found little left.

We are all hoping for another before-breakfast hike, for besides just exercise, there is always an added spice. They say that some, thinking it was hike time, arose near midnight when girls were returning from the concert. It is even rumored about one Rebekah Scotter that so many girls left early Friday morning that she was afraid to stay in that big, empty dormitory by herself for fear of hob-goblins!

Melancholia, says a prominent doctor, is often a result of biliousness. Very often the form of biliousness that starts out, "Please remit."

America's wastefulness is exemplified by the fact that all breakfast foods were once good wheat.

SUNDAY SCHOOL NEWS.

niors which meets in the cabinet room to study "How Jesus Met Life Problems," taught by Mrs. Gossard, who lives in Decatur and who is the wife of a national Y. M. C. A. secretary. She has had much experience with college girls in the Middle West. And to add to her charms she is young and an interesting teacher.

The entire Sunday school will assemble every Sunday morning in chapel promptly at 9:15 for the opening exercises. Classes will begin at 9:30 and close at 10:00 so as to enable the members to get to church on time.

This worthy institution is partly due to the efforts of Ruth Pirkle, who as a Y. W. C. A. cabinet member has charge of the work. She has already proven herself capable as an organizer. We, as the student body, want to "put this over" 100 per cent, and, as Ruth says, make it the style to go to Sunday school.

LIBRARY RULES.

What institution or organization is there that doesn't have laws and rules? None, in this present time of order and clubs. For do not even the dining rooms of the Agnes Scott College have certain rules for the maintenance of law and order? Truly. Just so does the Carnegie Library of this community have rules to be followed. These are to be obeyed as closely as possible. This is the urgent and sincere wish of the present librarian, Miss Sanders. The rules for the library this year are posted in the library on the bulletin board to the left of the door. They are in detail as follows:

LIBRARY REGULATIONS.

Hours: The library is open from 8 a. m. to 9:45 p. m., every day except Saturday, when the library closes at 1:30 p. m. It is closed during chapel services.

General Reference Books: General encyclopedias, dictionaries and bound magazines are not to be taken from the library under any circumstances. Other reference books may be taken out for over-night use.

Reserved Books: These are the books for required reading. They must be used in the library except when taken out for over-night use.

Books may be taken out for over-night use at nine o'clock in the morning and must be returned at 8 o'clock the next morning.

Reserved books must not be engaged for more than two hours in succession and not more than three hours any one day. At the end of the period for which a book is reserved, it shall be returned promptly at the ringing of the bell.

Not more than two books can be reserved for the same hour.

Reserved books may be taken out of the library at 12:30 Saturday and must be returned at 8 o'clock Monday morning. Not more than three reserved books may be taken out for the week-end.

General Collection: All books not reference nor reserved books may be taken out for two weeks and renewed for two weeks. Books and magazines must be charged at the desk when taken out and returned to the desk for discharge.

Magazines: Magazines are kept in the alcove back of the desk, and are to be read at the tables in this alcove. The latest issue may be taken out as a reserved book; back numbers may be taken out for three days at a time.

Order: The library is for study, consequently quiet and order are very necessary. No talking is allowed. Students are requested to walk as quietly as possible. Studying together is allowed only in the basement study rooms.

The departmental study rooms are for use of advanced pupils.

NOTICE TO DAY STUDENTS.

A day student may draw a reserved book from library on condition that she guarantees to have it back in the library at the time stated, sending it by special messenger or some reliable person, in case she cannot bring it.

The library is for quiet study. Enter the room as quietly as possible. Get the reserved books out just as quietly as possible. Others are studying and do not wish to be disturbed.

Loud talking at the entrance or near the building disturbs those inside.

RESERVED BOOKS.

To be read in the library and not carried from the building.

When reserved books are taken out for use in the library, check opposite the name in column headed "Taken."

When reserved book is returned,

DRY CLEANING CALLED FOR AND DELIVERED.

Every Monday morning, girls, when you are deep in the midst of the broom and dustpan, and when suddenly there booms forth along the halls (interrupting you in your work of getting cleaned up for Miss Miller), "Anybody got any dry-cleaning for the Trio," or "Anybody got any dry-cleaning for the Piedmont," don't you wonder what they are? The Trio and Piedmont are the Trio and Piedmont laundries and dry-cleaning companies of Atlanta. Of course, their purpose is just for the A. S. girls to have their dear old "middy suits" shiny with being gotten into on the way to breakfast and much wear in classes made brand-new again. No girl at Agnes Scott can feel properly dressed if she has not had her old dresses well cleaned at one of these laundries. Then, another attraction about these companies is that they dye beautifully. So, if any of you need to dye, don't stain your hands, but let the Trio or Piedmont do it up like new. The girls have promised not to tell, when you blossom out in a brand new dress, that it has just been dyed again. The managers of these dry-cleaning companies, Misses Virden, Hall and Ordway, say that all old clothes will be gratefully received. So on any Monday morning when you are not too busy with the dust-pan and hear these melodious calls, hasten out with your arms full of dry-cleaning, dyeing or any other work which needs a good laundry, and they promise that they will look like new.

The sting of a bee is only a thirty-second of an inch in length. Another example of a little going a long way.

It is hard to look at a double chin and believe that beauty is only skin deep.

The latest society rule is to laugh and chatter when you are dancing; but it all depends who is on your feet.

The beauty of bobbed hair is that it can be put back in place before the door to the back parlor is opened.

check opposite the column headed "Returned."

Do not check a reserved book as "taken" before taken, nor as "returned" before returning it.

Please use waste-paper basket and do not leave paper on the tables nor on the floor.

DAY STUDENTS ALWAYS ACTIVE.

Day student activities of the past week are varied and of particular interest. They include the beautifying of the day students' room in the library basement, and a hike to East Lake—thus ministering to "mind and body."

On Friday the day students, directed (and counted) by Hike Manager Daisy Frances Smith, set forth eighteen strong, up the big road. From the first, hiking was brisk and conversation brisker. A disaster occurred, however, shortly after Aggie's towers were lost from view; from the underbrush that borders the roadside rushed a beast, a smallish beast brown and uncouth—causing Mem Tucker to squeal in anguish as it dashed between her shins. When calm was restored, the animal proved to be a mere dog—canine, as it were; chien. Other, incidental though valuable, information was acquired during the afternoon as to other fauna—the picturesque cow, and the dust-kicking mule. When divers events had occurred, East Lake "hove in sight," and the fair hikers were tempted to have a dip en masse; but the timely advice of Ethel Ware and Daisy Frances saved the day, and the rep. of day students as hikers. The final stretch, round the street car track, was covered without mishap and all eighteen returning happy and hungry, declared their intention of "doing" the next day-student hike on October 21.

No less interesting than the joys of hiking are the improvements soon to be seen in the day students' study and rest room in the library. With its bright cretonne and pennants and comfy divan, this room is already a pleasant, chummy spot. But rumor tells of the welcome addition of a new divan cover, further pennants and cushions. Hereafter also, flowers will lend their home-like note of color. From all indications, the day students' room promises to be one of the cheeriest places on the campus.

During the past week the construction work at the University radio station has been rushed as fast as conditions incident to class organization would permit. Only a few minor adjustments now remain and it is expected that the signals of 5 Y E will within a few more days begin pounding the ether with old-time vigor. Considerable interest is being shown by former students and a large and efficient staff of student operators are arranging to help man the station.—The Mississippian.

INDUSTRIAL GIRLS VS.
COLLEGE STUDENTS

STUNT EXPLAINS BOTH VIEWPOINTS.

Last week the Y. W. C. A. put on a campaign among the students to stimulate interest in the situation among industrial girls and to formulate plans for co-operation between them and the college girls. In our world of student activities and interests we become so absorbed in our own problems that we are apt to forget that each girl who goes to college is responsible for five hundred others who are not so fortunate. The Y. W. C. A. is at present trying to get the students and industrial girls together, so that each can see the other's difficulties and in some way do her part toward lessening these difficulties.

Various plans for enlisting the interest of the students were put forward during the week. On Wednesday night at the regular Open Forum meeting the "devil's advocate" method was used and proved very successful. On Friday night an original stunt was presented by the girls on the undergraduate representatives committee. The stunt featured two college girls and a factory girl, each with her own particular problem. The college girls were quite convinced that no one in the world worked any harder than they did. One of them was making an investigation of industrial conditions, and in an interview with a factory girl, she was soon disillusioned as to the fact that the college girl's life was harder. She had never considered the home conditions of the factory girl, and had thought only of the hours in the factory as being working hours. Little did she think that a whole family of little brothers and sisters could be dependent upon the earnings of a frail stoop-shouldered girl scarcely over the child-labor age requirement.

During this interview each was brought to see the viewpoint of the other and the factory girl also saw that the college girl's life was not quite such an easy one as she had imagined while she was toiling away in a sweat shop. The result of the interview was the devising of a scheme whereby the students and industrial girls could meet on intimate terms and become acquainted with each other. Hikes and picnics were arranged and also more serious meetings where problems relating to activities of each were brought up for discussion and possible solution. Meeting on a common ground it was easier to see both sides of the questions that have hitherto caused much unjust feeling between both classes of people. Co-operation is the great need in dealing with industry and the need is for college women to be broad enough to catch the viewpoint of the ignorant girl in the factory.

GRAPHS."

In order to get a wide distribution of snap-shots for the Silhouette the Silhouette is putting on a contest which will enable this to be done. Five dollars is to be awarded to the person who submits the greatest number of kodak pictures suitable for publication in the Silhouette. The contest closes with the Christmas holidays and up to that time pictures of all kinds may be turned in. There is no limit to the number of pictures each person can hand in but the following rules must be carried out:

- (1) Inclose the picture and negative in an envelope.
- (2) The name of the person must be written on the back of the picture. If the picture is accepted, it will be returned and the negative kept for print, otherwise both the picture and negative will be returned to the owner. There is no restriction to the type of the pictures and it is hoped that there will be a large collection. Pictures typical of Agnes Scott col-

GRANDMOTHERS' PARTY.

INDUSTRIAL GIRLS' RALLY.

On Wednesday evening, October 26, at the Atlanta Y. W. C. A., there will be a big rally of the Industrial girls' clubs of the city association. A delicious supper is to be served at thirty-five cents a plate, and each club will have its own table.

The various clubs will give yells and songs and the whole meeting will be characterized by "Pep." Miss Lumpkin, the student secretary of the South Atlantic field, beloved by the industrial as well as the college girls, will lead the singing.

A very great honor and privilege has been extended to Agnes Scott girls in an invitation from the industrial girls to us to come and be present, and even take part in their rally. The Industrial girls want about thirty of the Agnes Scott girls to come Wednesday night, have supper with them, give some yells and songs, and a stunt too, maybe.

The idea of the rally is just a general "get together" for the different Y. W. C. A. clubs for girls in the industrial world. Incidentally, this is a good opportunity for industrial girls and college girls to get together, too, and become acquainted, and what is more conducive to a universal feeling of good fellowship than singing together and yelling together, and doing all the other things that a rally implies.

Let's make the most of this opportunity and have our full "quota" of thirty "Hottentots" there with their biggest smiles and best yelling-voices in full working order.

THE LIBRARY DOES ITS BIT.

Books On The Industrial Problems.

If you are at all interested in industrial problems, you have perhaps often wondered whether the library contains any books on the subject and what they are. Or have you casually accepted conditions as they are, without making an effort to understand what brought about these conditions, and how they may be remedied? In any case, it would be greatly to your profit, as well as of much interest, to look over some of the books and magazines in the library that deal with industrial problems. And besides, consider the feeling of superiority it will give you to have some real information on the subject, and to be able to bestow it upon your less intellectual and energetic sisters with a proud and pitying smile!

The reference books for industrial problems offer a varied selection of subjects, so that, whatever aspect of the question interests you, you are sure to find something about it. The books give information about anything you will possibly want to know about industrial questions,—working conditions, strikes, the workers' attitude towards work, towards his employers,

CONFERENCES HELD BY STUDENTS AND INDUSTRIAL GIRLS.

In considering the two groups of girls, the student and the industrial girl, the first question which each might put to the other with aptitude might be "and how may I understand you better?"

That we hadn't understood each other before, any college girl will clearly see when she is told that the industrial girl had an idea that the student never worked. With "De Senectude" waving a taunting hand at us, with trigonometry and calculus, French, Greek and Anglo-Saxon all staring us in the face until we scarcely knew where to turn, we answered that assertion with a feeble "if you don't believe it, try it and see."

And so, at the conference in New York last year, which Charlotte Bell attended as our undergraduate representative, they did "try and see." At the same time that the college conference was held, an industrial conference was going on. The two conferences availed themselves of this opportunity to hold joint-meetings at which they discussed points which were found to be common with both groups. These subjects were "work," "education" and "health," and much was done in these meetings to create a sympathetic attitude toward both groups because there they discovered that they were all "just girls."

This conference was a sort of introduction, and carried with it an invitation from Blue Ridge to the Industrial girls to send representatives to the conference there given by students. Here acquaintance grew into friendship and the Y. W. C. A. made resolutions, and these resolutions are being carried out now, very thoroughly and effectively. The were, briefly, something like this: In each association an important phase of the work would be a closer co-operation with the Industrial girls. And this was to be brought about by sending delegates to conferences, by personal contact with Industrial girls in cities where there were colleges, and by an active interest in the workers' educational movement.

Later, at the Industrial conference held at Brevard, these resolutions were accepted enthusiastically. At conference the students had five representatives who came from Hollins, West Hampton, Winthrop, Wesleyan and Agnes Scott. Ruth Scandrett was our representative and she is intensely enthusiastic on the subject of the Industrial girl.

At this conference, a Student-Industrial night was held, during which the college girls portrayed to the best of their ability what happened in an average college day, and from all reports it must have been one of those thoroughly exciting stimulating kinds of days!

In Open Forums, too, both organizations got at that business of understanding each other with characteristic earnestness and vigor. "What we

BRYN MAWR COLLEGE

TRAINING SCHOOL FOR INDUSTRIAL GIRLS.

Away up in Pennsylvania, there is a school that is doing wonderful work for industrial women. Many of us know very little or nothing of the summer course that this school offers these women.

The object of the school is to offer young women of character and ability a special education and an opportunity to study liberal subjects, in order that they may widen their influence in the industrial world, help in coming social reconstruction, and increase happiness and usefulness of their own lives.

It is hoped that the summer school for women workers in industry will demonstrate in a concrete way that educational movements among workers in this country and abroad may be carried still further and may be developed into systematic intellectual work through courses of study pursued for a number of consecutive weeks in academic surroundings of beauty and under the same favorable conditions of complete freedom from economic anxiety and domestic care which conditions college students enjoy.

This work began in Great Britain and of course has developed most fully. The experiences of these schools of Great Britain are especially helpful to our American schools. Many of the colleges open their doors to these students for several weeks each summer.

In America this work was begun, in 1903, but was not carried out in an active way until 1918, when it was taken up by various trade unions.

It is to this great movement that Bryn Mawr College has offered use of buildings and grounds for eight weeks in the summer. The administrative committee is formed of representatives of the directors, faculty, and alumna of the college and representatives of the industries of women workers.

Of those who come to this school only a common school education is required. No one is admitted under eighteen and preference is given to those between twenty and thirty-five.

The courses are lectures of students of the college and will be on those topics requested by the summer students. These courses are those that will enable the student to comprehend more clearly the industrial world and its problems, help her to take her place in the social and political world and become a better voter. Another group is one that is planned to enrich the personal life and add culture and better understanding of the world. Of course the recreation is not left out for there are tutors for this purpose.

Last year there were six students from the South Atlantic field, who attended this school. Among these

PLANS TO LINK COLLEGE GIRLS WITH INDUSTRIAL GIRLS

NATION-WIDE Y. W. C. A. CAMPAIGN.

What do we know about industrial girls here at Agnes Scott? Do we think of them as the kind we read about in books and hear time-worn tales about again and again? Maybe we don't think that we will ever come in contact with this far away being—the Industrial girl—but if we but use our brains and eyes a bit we will see that every time we go to Atlanta we are right in the midst of the oft heard of industrial situation. The girl you hand your nickle to with such a blase air in Kress's when she hands you a paper of pins, to the one who kindly flatters you into believing that you can wear that impossible piece of head dress, because it looks just as if it were especially designed for you, that is the kind of girl we want to know. Just notice some morning when you are in Kress's buying that paper of pins how graciously and quickly your wants are filled, and then go back there in the evening, and you'll find that you do not get the same enthusiastic service. If you handed out papers of pins for ten solid hours and stood up those ten hours you would certainly be in no pleasing frame of mind.

Well, what are we going to do about the tired girl, who makes our shopping easy for us? We can be courteous of course, but there are some very definite plans that Atlanta has helped us work out for helping the industrial girl and giving her an opportunity to help us.

In the first place, how would you like to go into Atlanta some evening and get a good supper at the Y. W. C. A., and then go to some of the clubs the girls are leading for themselves? It would be a revelation to learn how they go about their Y. W. C. A. work when we are so prone to think in terms of our own local organization.

Then the leaders in Atlanta are hoping we can agree upon a time when as many industrial girls as possible can come out for some of our hikes. They are skilled campers and could show us how to roast wieners to perfection. It would also increase our repertoire very greatly to learn some of others' club songs as we "tramp along the dusty road" munching apples.

These are some of the easy ways we can learn to know girls we'd probably never have the opportunity of knowing otherwise. They can tell you the inner workings of things that never would occur to you, how the little paper cups that are around every piece of Nunnally's you eat are made, and how the boxing is done. It would be a kind of recreational sociology we'd be getting.

And for those who are more high-brow or have time for a good discussion group on "The Christian Woman in Industry" can go in once a month, get a good supper at the Y. W. C. A., and then have an interesting hour really learning some definite things about the work of a girl in industry.

Perhaps some of us feel that we won't have time to do any definite work because of our load of care, but we can be at least intelligent observers and meet the industrial girl half way as we see her in our every-day associations.

It is really a wonder there aren't more dead letters, the way the mail trucks speed through the streets.

Oysters are good only in the months containing the letter r. The boot-legging business is good only in the months containing the vowels a, e, i, o, u and sometimes y.

RUSSIAN GIRL REFUGEES FLEEING BEFORE FAMINE.

Many Highly Educated and Accomplished Ignore Hardships.

Unquenchable courage and fortitude is characteristic among the Russian girl refugees now fleeing to other countries, according to Miss Ruth B. Rule, of Kansas City, Missouri, now Y. W. C. A. representative in Riga, Latvia.

"Some of them have been living on one meal a day and that meal has been tea with no sugar and black bread," she writes. "One highly accomplished girl told me that for one month she and her brother lived on such berries as they could find in the woods. This same girl could not come into town the other day because she had no shoes to wear. All the girls are worn out in mind and in body. Vika Prince, on our staff here, who has been through all the horrors of the revolution in Russia, like many has come out a person of real understanding and power. Tamara Bina-kor, our Russian Secretary, lived in Petrograd until a few months ago. In describing it, she said, 'It was hard but I am a better person for it. I can understand and sympathize with people as I never could before.'

"Barefooted girls, scantily clothed in their flight, are often highly accomplished and intellectual. A Russian mother said she was afraid that the other girls would laugh at the shabby appearance of her daughters. One girl had an old coat for a dress and both girls were barefooted. After welcoming them, the little girl with a coat for a dress timidly offered to play for the dancing, playing exquisitely all of the delightful folk-dances, her sister doing a most difficult Russian dance in a very wonderful way. These two girls were the stars of our afternoon and went away supremely happy.—The Sun Dial.

Marshall Field has refused to give employment to girls who bob their hair, use rouge or powder, wear short skirts, or roll their stockings.

They would have saved lots of time by limiting the announcement to the words, "No Girls Wanted."

MOUNT HOLYOKE.

We are glad to receive from Mt. Holyoke this news of Miss Woolley, whom all the old girls will doubtless remember as having talked to the student so delightfully last year.

MISS WOOLLEY IN FAR EAST.

President Woolley's absence is the circumstance which has made this opening of college different from any that the classes now here have known. Last spring she was appointed a member of an educational commission of which Professor Ernest D. Burton of the University of Chicago is the head. The object of the commission is the study of the institutions of higher education in China. It has been sent to the Far East by the Foreign Missions Conference of North America as an interdenominational group. The commission sailed on The Empress of Asia from Vancouver, August 18th, arriving in Yokohama the last of August.

At Tokio, where the commission visited the Imperial University, Miss Woolley was entertained by Shigeo Miura, 1919, and at Kobe the schools were the object of study by the commission. After further travel in Japan and in Korea, they arrived in Peking in time for the exercises and dedication of the new medical building, given by a grant from the Rockefeller Foundation. During the remainder of September the commission was in Peking, and October and November is to be spent in travel and investigation of institutions of higher education, different members of the commission going to different sections of the country. In December they will come together again in Shanghai and spend the month in conference, sailing for home early in January.—The Mt. Holyoke News.

WHEN TIMES ARE DULL.

Members of the office staff were discussing the vacation subject when the boss came in.

"Vacation!" he exclaimed. "What is it you've been having for the last five months?"—Commerce and Finance.

There are rumors along Broadway that the return of the long skirt will ring down the curtain on the best show in town.

OUR NATIONAL Y. W. C. A.

We have all of us heard at different times that the college Y. W. C. A. was not a separate and independent organization, but that it was merely a local branch of a far larger organization,—the National Y. W. C. A.

Perhaps, since we have received this assurance we feel a pardonable desire to know just what the rest of our "family" is like.

And it is one big family, this Y. W. C. A. organization. So, just to be sure that we know ourselves, a brief sketch of what the National Y. W. C. A. is, is to be given here.

In the year 1906, there were two national organizations, the International Board of Women's Christian Associations, and the American Committee, under which last the college group came.

Both groups felt that unity ought to be brought about in some way, and so at the Manhattan conference, with Miss Grace H. Dodge as presiding officer, a commission was appointed to work for a united movement. As a result, in December 1906, the Young Women's Christian Association of the United States of America was formed; and a National Board, consisting of thirty members, representing each of the different groups, was elected to INDUSTRIAL GIRLS' CLUBS.

Do you ever consider the industrial girl as anything but an almost mechanical device for turning out articles for your benefit and performing services for you? Most of us do not stop to think whether she has any pleasures when her work is done, whether she ever thinks about anything but her work, or has any desire for a better physical, mental, and moral life. The Y. W. C. A., however, realizing that girls are the same the world over, has made possible for girls in industry the attainment of a higher development along all lines by means of clubs in which they may get together and satisfy their natural desire for companionship of their own age, learn about many subjects for which they have neither time nor opportunity at home, and come to have a deeper spiritual life.

These clubs are held at the Y. W. C. A. unless the factory at which the girls work has a room in which the girls may get together. These clubs include: candy makers, type setters, clerks, office file clerks, store clerks, stenographers, garment makers, shoe workers, press feeders, telephone operators, waitresses, cashiers, and laundry workers. The clubs are self-governing, and organized as any other woman's club. At the head of the club there is some social worker, whose chief attributes must be sympathy and tact, and whose work consists in leading the girls towards self-development and self-realization. Club meetings are held monthly, are conducted by the girls, and include inspirational, educational and social programs. The club leader plans the meetings in conjunction with the president, who presides at the meetings. The programs are carried out by chairmen appointed by the president. Each club does some social service, and besides this, they have study courses which include: millinery, cooking, sewing, dramatics, Bible.

act as executive of the Y. W. C. A. between conventions.

At the present moment we have a headquarters building at 600 Lexington avenue, New York City, and a vast working force. One hundred and two national secretaries; eleven field committees with offices, serving as substations; eleven summer conferences, a publication department, issuing literature for the use of all associations; training centers in different fields and a graduate school for the training of secretaries;—this long list will help us to realize the magnitude of the work of the National Y. W. C. A.

Gradually, the National Board has developed eight departments through which to accomplish its work. The first of these is the Field Work Department, which is responsible for the promotion and standardization of association work in a particular group of states. Through this department the local associations are helped more economically and efficiently. It numbers eleven fields in all.

The Publication Department is one of the most important for creating and maintaining the unity of the National organization, since through the pages of the association monthly and other magazines it informs, and information is the basis of real oneness of spirit.

Besides these, there is the Finance Department, the hope of the association and the burden-bearer as well! and the Secretarial Department, which has for its work the finding and training of women to serve as association secretaries in positions of responsibility.

One of the most interesting of the departments is the Department of Methods. Here a staff of sixty-three specialists is constantly at work centering attention on problems physical, educational, economic and religious. In its kind of scientific administration the National Board of the Y. W. C. A. stands alone among national organizations.

The Office Department stays at National headquarters and is composed of a large office force, which enables the other departments to fulfill their duties. And since the association does not wish to "live to itself alone" but wishes to serve others, we have the Foreign Department.

From our glimpse at these eight departments we see that our national organization takes active part in a world-encircling crusade for righteousness. And aren't we proud of it!

BABY ORGANIZATION BEGINS WORK.

Successful Forecast for French Club.

The French Club of Agnes Scott College will hold its first meeting of the year on Friday evening, October 28th, at 8 o'clock in the Mnemosynean Hall.

The officers and French Faculty have planned a most interesting program for this first meeting. The program is so clever and unique that they wish it to be a complete surprise. For that reason it cannot be printed but anybody who can "parlez" come on and see what it is going to be like.

Thus far 118 members have been signed up. This is a wonderfully large membership yet there are others who should be members. Even if you are just taking come on even though right at first, you feel like the "cat's got your tongue." It will do you lots of good to hear the spoken language and besides you know enough to say, "Bon jour, mademoiselle, Comment-alley-vous." Monsieur may be hard for you to pronounce but don't worry about that you won't have to say "Bon jour, monsieur."

The officers of the club are: Ethel Ware, president; Helen Barton, vice-president; Mary Barton, secretary and treasurer; E. Guille, Miss Alexander, Miss Hale, Miss Glendinning and Miss Culberson work in conjunction with the officers on the executive committee. You see the executive committee is a strong one.

The purpose of the French club is to give the French students an opportunity of becoming used to hearing the language. All meetings will be conducted in French and all conversation must be in French. You won't be forced to talk, though. It also gives the student a broader knowledge of French literature and customs through the many interesting lectures that are given under the direction of the Alliance Francaise in Atlanta, as well as the programs rendered by the students. You will also be taught many clever little French songs, one

NEW BLACKFRIAR MEMBERS RIVAL THE "DIVINE SARAH."

Try-Outs Held on Monday Night and Five New Members Taken In.

Monday night, October 17th, 7:15 P. M.

Sixteen anxious maidens are trembling with fright and feverishly reciting their lines. It is the night of the semi-annual Blackfriar try-out, when it is to be decided how many of the old girls can enter the mystic portals of Blackfriar-dom and be partakers of its mysteries and delights. In a solemn inscrutable array sit as judges, the officers of the club and the faculty committee, upon whose votes rests the fate of the applicants.

Tuesday morning, 9:30 A. M. It is all over now, the try-out—all but the suspense of not knowing the outcome, the suspense of waiting eagerly the distribution of the mail and of those coveted slips of paper which announce victory. Sixteen tremulous damsels open as many mail-boxes. To five comes the joy of triumph, to eleven rejection but the resolve to try again. The five fortunate ones, chosen because of their stage presence, delivery, memory, etc., (Continued on page 4).

Any A.S.C. Girl's Letter to A Last Year's Senior

Dearest Grad (uate):

Aren't you sorry you aren't here any more—so you can get all the news first hand? I'll tell you everything I have heard about, but you see it's so hard to remember everything at once—so I may leave out some things.

Have you ever tried sleeping on a piece of wedding cake put in an envelope which also contains the names of five boys, the word "stranger" and the dreadful epithet "old maid"—on seven separate slips of paper? Every morning you pull out one of the papers and the last one tells you your fate. A big mob in Main and Rebekah are trying their fortunes this way and it's very exciting! Every day at breakfast the romantic ones compare notes and great are the sighs of relief when "old maid" or some undesirable youth has been eliminated. Sometimes the girl's "true love" is among the first to be pulled out and then great are the tears thereof!—like when "Monie" C. pulled out "Jesse"!

Everybody on the third floor of Rebekah rushed to their doors the other night when Rebekah H. rushed up and down the hall demanding to know who had taken her Tech annual with her darling "Willoughby's" picture in it. She had to look upon his smiling countenance before she could "rest her head in slumber." Wonder what "she" would think if he should hear about it?

If the railroad trustees (or whatever they have) knew about all the beaux who are coming from miles around to see all these popular Agnes Scotters, I bet they would put on special tourist rates to Decatur. Oh yes! we have many "long distance" dates (editorial "we"). "Fanny" (he's a man) came from Davidson to see Gena and there were about ten Davidson boys out here all demanding Dell B. Wouldn't it be marvelous to have people come to see you from out-of-town—oh! gee! whiz! R. Love wore the smile that wouldn't come off while John was here. Evidently John "was speaking for himself" to some advantage.

Brooks G. made so many engagements at beauty parlors for next week that we got suspicious and she finally acknowledged that "Josh is coming." You see there's another one!

Montie S. had a date the other afternoon and it took them so long to say goodbye at the front door of Main that girls living on third floor felt the draught and sneezed accordingly!

Helen Crocker had a date the same afternoon but they parted in less than half an hour—out in front of Main.

Martha Bowen has a nice new A. T. O. pin and don't you reckon she's proud?

Harriet Scott has such a "magnetic personality" that one of her university of Virginia admirers decided to try his luck at Tech. I've heard of devotion before but did you ever hear of a boy changing schools just to be near one small atom of femininity?

Anything you want to know about—just ask me and don't forget to be on the lookout for some nice unsuspecting man I can grab!

Lovingly,
Aggie.

FAMOUS RESIDENTIAL SECTION OF SECOND FLOOR INMAN.

"Ye Goodie Garden" and "Barton's Brewery" Situated There.

'Twas on Sunday night last that the transformation took place, and great has been the admiration thereof. Those dutiful inhabitants of Inman who called on this night were on the point of leaving and those more romantically inclined souls who spend most of the night mooning at Luna were just coming into Inman lobby when the shrieks that announced the miracle began pouring down the steps from the second floor.

Investigations began immediately, and what was the surprise to find that what had erstwhile been known as the right wing of the second floor had—through magic known only to users of white card-board and India ink—become a popular "residential section"—a busy thorough-fare calling itself "Thoughtless Boulevard." ("They don't mean any harm. They're simply thoughtless.") "The Matrimonial Information Bureau," conducted by a lady well-informed on the subject, perhaps accounts for the large number of Homes—the kind spelled with a capital H, which are found there. There is the "Cuckoo House—no males or mice allowed"; and in pleasing antitheses to this, the "Bachelors' Club—open all night." The "Wiggle Inn (like a four-inch worm)" extends hospitality in its name; yet a good look at the realistic presentation of the famous green worm which one is to imitate causes some slight qualms. A home for those possessed of the truly aesthetic spirit may be found in the "Suite of Orpheus." By far the most desirable of the dwellings, it would seem, is the "Lily Apartment" famous throughout the boulevard for the quiet congeniality of its occupants.

The former left wing of the second floor Inman was at the same time converted into "Ye Greenwich Village." This not only provides a Bohemian element hitherto lacking to our loved college; but gives it also an old English atmosphere that is "chawming, you know, old deah." In this section we find the imposing "Pennington Manor House" and "Barton's Brewery" open only at five o'clock. On a hill-top nearby, "Starvation Point," is "Stazzer Inn," justly noted for its "unusually good fare." (Do not criticize!) "Ye Goodie Garden" aids and abets the Inn, and incidentally the Junior class. "Ye Bears" (Continued on page 4).

PRIZE-WINNING SONGS OF Y. W. C. A.

The first of the following poems was written by a Bryn Mawr girl and received first place in a song contest of the Northern colleges. It has been adopted by the National Y. W. C. A. Association, and was sung at all Blue Ridge conferences last summer. The second poem was written by one of our own girls, Janef Preston. Music for it was composed by Ruth Pirkle. We are proud to know that this poem won second place in a song contest in which all Southern colleges took part.

FOLLOW THE GLEAM.

To Knights in the days of old,
Keeping watch on the mountain height,

Came a vision of Holy Grail,
And a voice through the waiting night.

Follow, follow, follow the gleam
Banners unfurled, o'er all the world,
Follow, follow, follow the gleam
Of the chalice that is the Grail.

And we who would serve the King
And loyally Him obey,

In the consecrate silence know
That the challenge still holds today.

Follow, follow, follow the gleam,
Standard of worth o'er all the earth
Follow, follow, follow the gleam
Of the light that shall bring the dawn.

The following is Janef Preston's song:

God of the mountains eternal,
Lord of the wind-swept height,
Comrad of mist on the mountain,
Dawn and the starry night,
Give to us of Thy wideness
That we in heart may be Attuned to Thy ancient beauty,
Quiet and strong and free.

God of our glorious youth,
Lord of our high desire,
Giver of life and truth,
Flame of our hidden fire,
Give to us of Thy patience,

SIGN UP FOR SENIOR LIGHTS.

Juniors, sign up immediately for your Senior rooms for next year. If you do not hurry all the best rooms will be taken, and you will either have to take what you can get or do without a Senior light as some of the Seniors have had to do this year. Such conveniences as Senior lights should not be wasted on Freshmen who cannot use them. If the Juniors sign up early for their rooms, they would be spared the many accidents of bumping into chairs in the attempt to get into bed after "lights out." All of next year's Seniors should avoid all such calamities and secure a room with a Senior light immediately.

FRESHMAN COMMISSION CHOSEN.

New Working Basis Planned.

We all know that "a friend in need is a friend indeed" and this is just what the Y. W. C. A. is to the Freshman class. When girls first come to Agnes Scott, they are, to a certain extent, overwhelmed and bewildered by the strangeness of everything, the purposes of various organizations and the working principles of the activities connected with college life. The Y. W. C. A. stands as a big sister to all new girls and tries in every possible way to help them become acquainted with and a part of the organizations of the college community. This it does through the Freshman commission.

The purpose of this organization is two-fold:

First, to bring the members of the Freshman class in touch with all organizations and with every movement of the college community. It is the hope of the Y. W. C. A. that at the end of the year no Freshman can say that she has not had any part in any of the college activities. Through the Y. W. C. A. and the Freshman commission, new girls are given a chance to help all organizations and to learn something of their working principles, and thus, in a way, to find themselves and to take part in activities in which they are most interested.

Second, the Freshman commission is the intermediary between the Freshman class and the Faculty and Student Government of Agnes Scott. Here they can bring up all questions that they do not understand and any question that the class, as a whole, wishes brought up before Student Government or College Council. The things that they do not understand will be explained and their requests will be given all consideration.

The Y. W. C. A. hopes, through the Freshman commission, to infuse a little more of the true spirit of Agnes Scott into every new girl and make her feel that she is a vital part of the college community and that all organizations and activities are to help her.

The school year is divided into three parts and a third of the class will be members of the Freshman commission for the first three months, another third, for the next three, and the remainder for the last three. In this way the whole class will be brought in touch with all the activities of the college community.

Emily Spivey is secretary of Freshman commission for the first three months and the members are: Martha Bowen, Frances Brit, Catherine Carrier, Romana Galloway, Dorothy Keith, Georgia Mae Little, Anne McKay, Martha Lin Manby, Sara Morehouse, Louise Payne, Caroline Smith, Christine Turner, Ellen Walker, Bess Winston, Elizabeth Woltz, Evelyn Wright, Viola Smith, Priscilla Shaw, Elizabeth Griffin, Ruth Taylor, Frances Bitzer, Louise Buchanan, Bryte Daniel, Margaret McDade, Abby Nichols, Martha Pennington, Mildred

POLLY STONE HERE FOR A VISIT.

All the old students were delighted to have as a visitor last week, Polly Stone, of Blakely, Georgia. It is not necessary to say anything more to the old girls, because they all know and love her, but for the benefit of the new girls let us say that Polly Stone was a member of last year's Sophomore class and she was assistant editor of the Agonistic last year.

Everybody loved her and a proof of their undying affection was given by the Junior class at their stunt Saturday night when they sent her—as a present from the Junior class—a nice big piece of "chocolate."

We are always glad when the old girls visit us and we were especially glad to have Polly. We're sorry she isn't with us all the time, but since she isn't, we're glad to have her for a little while, and we hope she enjoyed her visit with us as much as we enjoyed having her.

Plunkett, Montie Sewell, Emily Spivey, Catherine Wharton, Frances White, Mary Walker Perry, Ruth Owen, Isabelle Ferguson, Emily Zellers, Josephine Douglas, Mary Keesler, Sara Dunlap, Agatha Dever, Frances Lincoln, Rosamund Neisler, Ethel Sturgis.

"Jack wanted to kiss me last night," she told her girl friend.
"How do you know he did?"
"Because he wouldn't have done it if he hadn't wanted to."

DANCING CLASSES

PREPARATION FOR MAY DAY BEGINS.

Perhaps you think that the chilly days of late October do not provide the proper atmosphere for Greek maidens and the graceful intricacies of the classical dance, and maybe you feel a great deal more like just plain shivering than swaying rhythmically to the strains of the lyre. But that's because you don't know about the dancing class and the plans it has for the year. To begin with, the dancing is the preparation for a Better May Day or, to be more exact, the Best May Day that Agnes Scott has ever had. With that as an ideal, we are all very likely to see some very wonderful results next spring. And so, if the role of sylph suits your aesthetic temperament and if you want to spend a delightful and worth-while hour, come on out and "trip the light fantastic" with the dancing class.

As you know, the classic dance has three fundamental points: the interpretation of rhythm, the development of flexibility or "spring" in the body, and the expression of the theme as shown in the carriage and control of the body. It is a combination of these three that will produce a perfect result, and it is for this that this year's class is working under the able direction and instruction of Miss Randolph and Miss Wilburn. Of course here is where the work comes in and you probably feel as if you had much rather slump around with tucked-in chin and bent-over shoulders than go through the training and beautifying processes necessary to turn you out a modern Venus or Diana on May Day. But when you see the filmy folds of the little Greek gowns—all of the same pattern, but as different in color as the hues of the rainbow—that the class is wearing, and when you hear them tell of the pleasure and help they're getting, you'll want to join them in saying, "On with the dance!"

Now that you have all decided to come out and dance, the only question is: When? If you are a beginner and heretofore unlearned in this art, then you want to present yourself at the gym on Tuesday and Thursday evenings at eight o'clock. If you are an adept or "an old hand at the game," then there is no use telling you of the beauty and benefit of the dance and you are probably waiting most impatiently to hear that for you there is an advanced class held every Tuesday and Thursday night at nine o'clock. Now these classes, both the elementary and the advanced, are absolutely elective and are for those girls who come out for the pure love of the dance. Therefore, do not bring your troubles and your sorrows to dancing class, but come with your best ready-made smile and get out of the dance all the wonderful spirit and good that you possibly can.

FROM SYMPHONY TO JAZZ.

Have you heard it? Have you seen it? Oh, the bunch that plays everything from "Mon Homme" to Mendelssohn's "songs without words." It's a combination Jazz Band and Symphony Orchestra (not exactly the Cincinnati variety, however) and the latest addition to A. S. C. along musical lines. Every one in it is full to the brim of music and pep. The object of this famous organization is to drive away the blues on week days, and give the college community a little taste of the old masters on Sunday evenings (of course you remember the "violin solo").

Director Evans holds a baton artistically poised, but we don't see much use in it, for she usually forgets it during the second or third line and gives full sway to the best of all time-keepers—her foot. Here's her lineup:

- First violins—Anna Mae Deickmann, Elizabeth Griffin.
- Second violins—Pocahontas Wight, Agnes Pfohl.
- First mandolins—Alice Greenlea, Helen Faw, Frances Formby.
- Second mandolins—Maude Foster, Adele Moss, Margaret Prowell.
- Guitars—Catherine Shields, Anna-dawn Watson.
- Flute—Mary Jarman.
- Piano—Althea Stephens.
- Drums—Bessie Winston.

EARLY HIKES PROVE POPULAR.

The third general hike was held Tuesday morning, October 18th, at 5:45 in a before-breakfast walk toward Emory. It was indeed a success as there were 104 present. Yet it must be rather dampening to the spirits of the crowd to have to wait for the lateness, and it really might be a burden on Nannie's mind as to whether those that leave behind the main body will ever catch up or get back safely for breakfast. Let's prove our courteous promptness by being ready to leave on the dot. It would save Nannie trouble and embarrassment, also, if no one would ask to go on unorganized hikes to places other than those announced.

The day students had their second hike, Friday, October 21st, at 3:15. There was a jolly crowd and the walk to Druid Hills Golf Club was very successful.

FAMOUS RESIDENTIAL SECTION OF SECOND FLOOR INMAN.

are fortunate indeed in having two apartments in this pleasant district, one, "Ye Bears' Bedlam" as a place of repose, and the other "Ye Bears' Burrow," as a spot very conducive to their efficiency in delving after knowledge. Finally, order is not absent from "Ye Greenwich Village"; for does not Ye Sergeant, Chief of Police, carefully keep it in his sanctuary?

Perhaps the most striking thing about "Thoughtless Boulevard" and "Ye Greenwich Village" is the public square which joins them; for it is the square that gives us the determining factors of a real city. There are the fire department—"To be seen but not heard," the Fountain of Knowledge, "Drink one—drink all," a very necessary trash-can, which solicits patronage, and the useful S. O. U. Cureton and Stinson Tube Co., local and long distance, a very humanitarian organization, whose managers are philosophers of high standing. The Rotary Club also lends its uplifting influence to this community, happy in its completeness.

If you know anyone else who plays an instrument (jew's harp excepted) please tell her there will be a place waiting in Mnemosynean Hall at 5:30 Thursday afternoon. All the recruits possible are needed for the orchestra is going to start out on a professional career, after a little more practice.

Now next Tuesday night, if you've had three straights and gym, besides hockey practice, and you've got a book signed up for 8 P. M., the thing for you to do is to come to the "sing." It's guaranteed to change you from feeling like two cents into feeling like a million dollars. The minute the orchestra begins tuning you'll prick up your ears—queer how an orchestra tuning sends thrills over you, isn't it? Then when you hear those mandolins whining away on the tenor to "Peek-a-boo," you'll just naturally shut your eyes and smile, while you think about a certain date you had this summer. But just wait till the drum begins to rattle off "Hottentot," and there's a hundred dollars reward for any girl who can keep her feet still.

Ruth Hall says she's going to make her crowd drown out the orchestra next Tuesday night on "Whoop-er up." Can she do it? Well, we doubt it, but let's see.

FIRST HOCKEY GAME OF 1921-1922.

The first hockey game of the season was held Saturday afternoon, October 15th, at 3 o'clock. The Juniors defeated the Seniors 5-1; the Sophomores overcame the Freshmen 4-1. Both games were hard fought and exciting from first to last.

The Juniors outclassed the Seniors only in organization and team work. As the Seniors come out to practice more, then individual ability will be turned into starring as a united team. The forward line has exceptional possibilities. The Juniors work unusually well together, and if they keep up their present standard will have a fine chance for the championship.

The Sophomores held the Freshmen down very well indeed. Our youngest contingent has perhaps the best team for a starter that has been seen on the campus for several years. Some have played hockey in high school; hence they had training to begin with.

The hockey season promises much of excitement and close games and uncertainty as to the final result. But the players would assuredly appreciate a larger audience with the added zest of cheering and support.

FACULTY GARDEN NOW IN PROGRESS.

Method of Co-Operation Used.

"The time has come," the walrus said, "To talk of many things, Of shoes, and ships, and sealing-wax, Of cabbages and kings."

This time it is not cabbages that the walrus means, but flowers. Imagine rows of violets, a number of rose bushes, zinnias, jasmine, and various other beautiful flowers which grace the old-fashioned gardens! Perhaps it makes you homesick to think of yard flowers, because the garden was so beautiful when you left, but, whenever a great desire to see the garden at home comes to you, walk by West Lawn, and you will see a real garden.

Can you guess who cultivated this spot of land? The teachers do not spend all of their time inflating high merits and zeroes on us, as some students may think, but they have other interests. The teachers who live at West Lawn decided they would like to make the campus more beautiful, and, at the same time, take an interest in athletics, so they decided to become not farmerettes but gardinerettes. Their costumes are not overalls, but white dresses. Miss Lewis was made head boss because of her brains and her artistic temperament (gardening is an art, you know).

If you wondered what the bunch of white figures at West Lawn were doing one afternoon last week, you would have been enlightened if you had gone nearer. Miss Alexander was wielding a brand new rake with as much vigor as it takes to give French lectures. Miss Hale had some kind of an implement—a rake, perhaps, since that instrument seemed to be popular in the French department. The Latin department was represented, too, for Miss Smith bade Horace Cicero, and others adieu, and spent a whole afternoon planting and transplanting with a new trowel. Miss Lewis is responsible for the iris that will soon be growing in the garden. She did it with her little mattock. The white figure, crouched on the ground, was Miss Gibbons, who worked as industriously with a hoe as if a feudal lord had been directing her. She thought more of her hoe, however, after Miss Alexander said that hoe was the feminine of mattock.

BABY ORGANIZATION BEGINS WORK.

is La Madelon which will be sung at the next meeting. The words are as follows:

Pour le repos, le plaisir du militaire
Il est la-bas, a deux pas de la foret
Une maison aux murs tout couverts de lierre
"Aux Gourlourous" c'est le nom du cabaret

La servante est jeune et gentille
Legere comme un papillon;
Comme son vin, son oeil petille,
Nous l'appelons la Madelon
Nous en revons la vent, nous y pensons le jour
C'est que Madelon, mais pour vous c'est l'amour.

Quand Madelon irent nous servir a boire
Sous la tonnelle, on frole son japon
Et chacun lui raconte une histoire
Une histoire a sa facon
La Madelon pour nous n'est pas severe
Quand on lui prend la taille ou le menton
Elle rit c'est tout le mal que'elle sait faire
Madelon—Madelon—Madelon

The executive committee is planning for each class to give a little play during the year. The casts will be large so as to give many students practice. Don't you think this will be fun?

If you haven't signed up for the French club do so now and if you have come to the meetings because, "we'll have a jolly good time, when we all get together, with a 'parlez-vous francais'?"

Whenever you wonder why you have not got back your French notes, why Miss Gibbons still has your test papers, or a million other unreasonable whys, just remember that there is a spot in the West Lawn yard which is just as dear to the teachers as your test papers, and never forget that Miss Lewis is quite rushed, for she has lots of work to do since a whole garden has been added to her art department. Teachers have to have some form of exercise, and, for those who do not play tennis, gardening is quite a sport—perhaps a form of athletics which Miss Randolph would endorse. Our teachers are not behind, they are determined to be quite healthy as well as efficient.

was Miss Lena Creasey from Lynchburg, Virginia, to whom Agnes Scott gave the scholarship. the ones to whom Blackfriars extend a most hearty welcome are: Anna Belle Burkhead, Nell Esslinger, Quenelle Harrold, Ruth Keiser and Margaret McDow.

At the beginning of the second semester this drama will be re-enacted with a different cast and perhaps different results, by the new students. The Blackfriar Club is expecting to gain a great deal of good material then, and it has thirteen places open and waiting to be filled. The pleasure and profit which may be derived from this club is such that it is to be hoped a great many applicants will present themselves before the awe-inspiring committee on that next awesome try-out night.

PRIZE-WINNING SONGS OF Y. W. C. A.

Teach us in heart to be Tender and loving-kind,
Held in the heart of Thee.

God of the dreams that are born
Silently in our thought,
Lead us with purpose onward
Till deeds from dreams are wrought.
Give us the mind of the Master
That His holy will be done,
Fashion us, mind and spirit
Like to Thine own dear Son.

are doing" and "what you are doing" were the most popular topics for discussion. To correct that impression that the college girl did not work, they were given an account of just how much we did. Then to correct the impression that we did nothing else, our representatives were placed in charge of the recreation hour,—and—planned stunts, parties and hikes all gloriously successful.

In work, then, and in play, the two groups of girls learned to know each other and to love each other, and to understand that girls are girls the world around.

Investiture Friday Morning

SENIORS WEAR ACADEMIC COSTUME FOR FIRST TIME.

November the fourth was a day which will ever hereafter stand out in the mind of each member of the class of '22 as she looks back on her college career, for it was one of the first of a series of great days which make glorious the life of a Senior. Investiture, next in impressiveness and dignity to graduation, was the event which made this a red letter day, for it marked definitely the change from mere ambitiously toiling student to stately gowned scholar.

The Sophomores, too, would agree that it was hardly a less momentous occasion for themselves when they shared the thrilling and exhilarating experience, as well as the conspicuousness of their sister class. Mingled feelings of elation at their own position, pride in their Senior sisters, awe at the impressiveness of the occasion, and inspiration and determination to work hard to attain the goal set for them, filled the heart of every white clad Sophomore.

The Seniors met in Dr. Gaines' home, where Mrs. Gaines put on them their Senior gowns. They then formed a procession, led by Dr. Gaines and the faculty, and joined their Sophomore sisters who were waiting on Inman porch. The Sophomores formed in a double line and marched before, the procession following them and marching into the chapel. Here the line divided and to the music of "Ancient of Days" the faculty and Seniors marched up to the front of the chapel, the faculty going up on the platform, the Seniors taking their usual places.

Dr. Gaines opened the services with prayer, then gave a short talk to the Seniors, which they will long remember. Dr. McCain made the address, in which he expressed the meaning of investiture, and the possibilities which lie before each Senior as she goes out into the world. Then one by one the Seniors walked up on the stage and Miss Hopkins placed the Academic cap on the head of each one—Dr. Gaines closed the services with prayer.

TWO BELLS—AND ALL'S WELL.

"Hear the ringing of the bells!—
Class-room bells!
What a world of mystery their melody foretells!"

Now we've another one to listen for! And we've betide the damsel who tarries until it has rung! For the faculty has decided that because of the tardy marks prevalent upon the records of the teachers, there must be some new system. Therefore, beginning on the first of November we have a new system of bells,—one rung at the usual time and one five minutes later. The first is to let us know that the time has come to leave all and go to our classes. At the ringing of the next one, the doors close and roll-call is begun. In this way everyone who comes in after the five-minute bell is Tardy.

This new bell is not a device invented by the faculty to torment us, nor was it instituted by them simply that they might gloat over us as we tear frantically up-stairs and down-stairs and all around the campus. It was introduced to be of benefit to us, and it fulfills its purpose. Classes now have a definite, uniform time at which to start and we cannot accuse anyone but ourselves if we are late. By starting precisely on the dot, we get the full benefit of our hour's recitation. And five minutes is certainly sufficient time to get to and from our classes. If we were on third floor Inman and someone told us we had a special posted on the bulletin board, do you think it would take us five whole minutes to get over there? That five minutes we have in which to get to our classes is no shorter than the five minutes which seem so interminable when we're waiting for a phone call.

Former A. S. C. Girl Successful in New York

THE ONLY WOMAN-MANAGER OF THEATRICAL PRODUCTIONS.

There is in New York a person, who holds one of the most unique positions in America today. The position in itself is not especially unique, but the fact that the person who holds it is a woman makes it so. Mary Holtzclaw Kirkpatrick, who twenty years ago was a college girl at A. S. C., is now one of the most successful producing managers in this country. She has been in the theatrical producing field only nine years but since then she has climbed steadily the "ladder of success" and now is not only regarded as an authority on play producing, but she is likewise the only woman who is a member of the Producing Managers' Association.

The Producing Managers' Association has as its members such leading theatrical lights as David Belasco, H. W. Savage, Charles Frohman, Morc Klaw and Morris Gest, truly names to conjure with. So we can realize just how successful Miss Kirkpatrick is, from these facts.

Perhaps some of us are familiar with some of the plays she has produced or has helped produce. "A Little Journey" was her first, then followed "39 East," then "He and She" and last winter: "Nice People." Her latest production is "Everyday," which stars the grand-daughter of the late Senator Bankhead of Alabama.

Miss Kirkpatrick was born and reared in Montgomery, Ala., and materially feels a very warm and sincere interest in the South, though she makes her home in New York now. One of her dearest plans is to have the South know more and better plays. This can be brought about by means of stock and transfer-companies if enough Southern centers become interested in the idea. We certainly wish her success here, too, if she undertakes the actual job of sending plays South, for it is very generally felt that that is one of the South's failings, lack of acquaintance with the actual leading theatrical productions of the day.

But if for no other reason, we would wish Miss Kirkpatrick great success, because she is a former A. S. C. girl, and a Southerner.

SUNDAY SCHOOL NEWS.

Agnes Scott Sunday School reports a good average attendance for the past month. So far there are 125 students enrolled and the average attendance for the month has been 90. Classes are growing every Sunday and those who hear Miss Randolph, the superintendent, and assembly one time, feel that they are missing something excellent, indeed, if they miss another service thereafter. On last Sunday, the Sunday School was fortunate in having Miss Lumpkin speak

SING AND BE HAPPY.

Eat, drink and be merry
Then come out and sing!

If you can sing and know you can sing—come out and prove it that we may become likewise imbued with the Spirit of Song. If you can sing and are not aware of the fact, come out and sing and we will tell you so. However, if you are positive deep down in your soul that it was never intended for you to raise your sweet voice in song, come and sing anyway. The spirit is the thing, you know.

Yes—sing—but where? Why every Tuesday night after Student Government. Keep this date open always. By chance, some of the college community may think that as the Student Government meetings vary in length and are always more or less long, some other night would be better, say, Wednesday night when there are neither prayers nor other college meetings. Of course, Mr. Johnson claims the voice students at seven, but if we could sing from six-forty to seven, we would not be deprived of our most gifted songsters. This is just a suggestion. What do you think about it? Talk it over and let every one know what you think. In the sings almost more than any other student activity, we aim to please.

What shall we sing? College songs, of course—but not the same old ones. We have quite a number of very enjoyable songs in the little purple and white books, but are not they very similar, for the most part, to the regular run of college songs. We are glad to use the same tunes that have been college favorites since the first college song was ever written, but what about more individuality, also? We have some two or three songs really our own and we are justly proud of them and the girls who gave them to us. Can you manage to capture an absolutely different tune that is wandering around somewhere looking for a good home? Can you find two words that rhyme and attach them to an idea? If you can not properly mate your words and tune—go outside the family and seek its life companion. No objection to collaboration.

Here is just a hint about something that may happen or may not—it all depends on you. Some class in the spring may have a great big surprise coming to it. Why? Well, for one thing, a great per cent of that class have made a habit of attending the sings. They are always present; so they know all the songs, know how to at assembly. In order that the services may be prompt a change in the ringing of the bells is announced. One bell will ring at 9 and another 9:10, assembly will begin promptly at 9:15. Another bell which means for classes to assemble will ring at 9:30, and at 10 o'clock the dismissal bell will ring. Members of classes may be excused if they will before class meeting, and this will not count off on the record of the class.

JUNIOR DELEGATE TO INTER-COLLEGIATE ASSOCIATION OF STUDENT GOVERNMENT CEOPEN.

Hilda McConnell was elected as the Junior delegate to attend the meeting at Simmons College, some time this month. This election was a pleasure to every one as Hilda is a fine representative of the typical Agnes Scott girl and liked by every person on the campus. Nell Buchanan, as president of the Student Government, will also be present at this conference. These two students will ably represent Agnes Scott to the other colleges and we can be assured that our school will stand at the top through the representation of it by these girls.

The Intercollegiate Association of Student Government will hold its annual conference at Simmons College in Boston, in the third week of November. Agnes Scott and Randolph-Macon Woman's College are the only two Southern colleges that have the great honor of belonging to this association, and, as members, are privileged to send to this conference two delegates each year. The constitution of the association provides that these members shall be the president of the Student Government and a representative from the Junior class.

At this conference, problems that are of mutual interest to nearly all of the colleges in the United States, will be taken up, discussed fully and decided upon in a manner most beneficial to all parties concerned. In former years, the results of these meetings have strengthened the foundations of the Agnes Scott student government and enabled it to carry on, more fully, the matters necessary and essential to the welfare of the student body.

As the older students probably remember, this annual conference was held at Elmira, New York, last year and our representatives brought back the very helpful information and opinions of some other colleges.

Practical and beneficial ideas, for the betterment of our college are forthcoming from these meetings and we hope to profit, more and more, by them, each consecutive year and to make our Student Government one of the best in this association.

sing them, and that to sing is the thing. Then this class just adores to be different and individual and everything; so they have more original songs to their credit. They may know too how to make their own songs make such an impression on every one else that you just can not help joining in.

Do you want your class to have just loads of fun one day around spring holidays?

Do you want to find a sure cure for being blue, or tired, or disgusted with the whole world?

Then come out and sing—be happy—and who knows—you may become famous yet through the great power of song.

Dr. Charles Levermore Lectures

"RACIAL SORE SPOTS" HIS SUBJECT.

We have heard quite a great deal lately of the plans of the International Relations club and last Friday night we had a chance to get some of the real benefits of the organization. We were, indeed, very fortunate in having with us Dr. Charles Levermore, who for several years has been secretary of the New York Peace Society. The subject of his talk was "Racial Sore Spots" and there is probably no one who is better qualified to discuss this subject than he. Dr. Levermore is from Connecticut and took his A. B. at Yale in 1879. He received his Doctor's degree from Johns Hopkins, in 1886, and was university fellow in history there, later becoming instructor. From there he went to the University of California for a time and then to Massachusetts Institute of Technology and from there to Adelphi College, where he was president until 1912. Dr. Levermore was secretary of World Court League and League of Nations Union, in 1919, and is a member of the American History Association.

His "Republic of New Haven" was awarded a John Marshall prize, a Johns Hopkins in 1886. Since then he has written "A Syllabus of Lectures on Political History," "Academy Song Book," and "Abridged Song Book." He is also author of the admirable little pamphlet entitled, "What the League of Nations Has Accomplished" which has recently been published.

This is only one of the many good speakers that the International Relations Club will bring to us this year and we realize that this organization will be very helpful to every one of us, because it is through just such speakers as Dr. Levermore that we get some insight into the real conditions of our country today.

Hoasc Entertains New Members

SUPPER IN HOME ECONOMICS DINING ROOM.

The lights in the Home Economics dining-room on Monday night, and the sounds of festivity, which issued therefrom, were the cause of much gazing and many questions. To those curious ones who have not yet been enlightened, let us say that Hoasc was entertaining its new members at a dinner party. And a lovely party it was (so those privileged ones who were present have told us), with the white and gold colors of Hoasc carried out in the place cards, the mints, the candles and the chrysanthemums which graced the center. The beautifully served four-course dinner bore witness to the fact that Agnes Scott girls are a versatile lot—that is, they are domestic as well as literary. The new members admitted confidentially that they hoped Hoasc would make them as skilled in the culinary art as the old ones seem to be!

Besides the ten members of Hoasc, the three faculty members, Miss MacDougall, Dr. Sweet, and Dr. McCain, were partakers in this lovely affair; also five alumnae members: Fan McCaa, Frances Markley, Janef Preston, Emma Jones, and Katherine Seay, who just happened to be in Atlanta at the opportune time, and of course came for the event.

We have an idea that the banquet was not the only thing that happened that night, but what the rest was we cannot say. We only know that the members walk around with a happy, far-away look, and that they wear their pins with an air of proud ownership—as who wouldn't who ever attained that much-to-be-envied state?

The rival factions in China have refused to go into conference with each other.

Evidently they are not on Peking terms.

RULES FOR REPORTERS.

The Agonistic realizes that it has the very best reporters in the world, but the Agonistic realizes also that some of its reporters are new to the business. So everybody who already writes or wishes to write for the Agonistic, please read carefully the following rules. They are of paramount importance:

1. Write on one side only, of the paper.
 2. Leave a large and very blank space at the top of the first page of the article.
 3. Write very legibly.
 4. Write the number in the upper left-hand corner of the article.
 5. Pin all the pages together.
 6. Hand all articles in to the publication room of the gym by five p. m. of the Wednesday following the day of assignment.
 7. Don't gush. Rave if need be, but gushing is very bad form.
- It is exceedingly important that all of these rules be carried out to the letter.

FROM STUDENT FRIENDSHIP FUND HDQ.

129 E. 52d. St., New York City.
New York, Oct. 27—Student life, as it is today in Europe, can not be pictured, said Sherwood Eddy, just back from three months over-seas.

"Imagine the despair of a student returning after four years of fighting," he said, "to fall into the hopeless misery of no food, not enough clothing, and no work. After being supported by his family for twenty years, with high hopes of his future, neither the student nor his parents are now able to earn a livelihood.

"To understand the situation, suppose that since the war the early Spanish possessions in America had been handed back to Spain, the former French territories to France, the thirteen colonies to England, and Texas had been returned to Mexico. Let us suppose that the University of Texas and its other schools were now to pass under a new regime with the Mexican language, religion and customs imposed upon them.

"Suppose the American students were returning from four or five years of war to their impoverished homes with nothing but their old faded uniforms upon their backs, no money, and bodies impaired by tuberculosis, pneumonia or other war diseases. What would be their fate? Would they enter a Mexican university? Rather, poor as they were, they would migrate into the states where their own languages, religion, customs and liberties could be maintained.

"Suppose they poured into one of our state universities, without sufficient clothing, books or money, ready to work, but fighting for a chance to hold on to their education. Even if they were physically fit they would have but little chance in the present widespread unemployment to get work, and could hardly hope to compete with skilled workmen seeking jobs. This will give some idea of the situation in Europe."

Mr. Eddy himself visited the European students in their bare, impoverished quarters. He said, "There are students in Russia, Poland and in central Europe, sleeping in parks or railway stations, glad of a dry floor or a little space in which to pass the night. There are students in cold, cheerless garrets and rooms this winter, and many more who envy these students even a cold room or a bed without sufficient clothing.

"In Vienna I interviewed the students and student leaders. Many are working as laborers, mechanics and wood cutters to appease their hunger, but after four years of underfeeding they have not enough strength for effective manual labor. If they tutor, it requires ten hours daily to earn a living, and competition is such that no one can obtain so much work. Some are selling newspapers on the streets, getting one-fifteenth of a cent profit on each paper and sometimes small

BLUE TRIANGLE NEWS

Every year the World's Committee of the National Y. W. C. A. decides upon a week of prayer. This year, November 13th to November 19th, has been chosen. It seems significant that this is also the time of the Washington Conference. Our Y. W. C. A. here at Agnes Scott will not hold meetings every day during the week of prayer as in former years. This time is to be given to Dr. Erdman, who will be with us then. However, the Y. W. C. A. believes that the power of prayer, and spirit of prayer can be just as great if every girl, each day, devotes her thought and consecrates a definite time to prayer for foreign countries. Is it not an inspiration to think that at the same time our prayers are ascending, those of the women of forty different countries are being offered?

We have learned in our Y. W. C. A. world fellowship meetings, from posters, in our International Relations Club, and elsewhere what the needs of the world are. Dean Comstock told us that higher education is a strong bond between the women of America and those of foreign countries. There are many other bonds. Let us seek still further during this coming week to understand the people tips. But it is demoralizing to stand for hours on the noisy streets and live on tips.

"Many of the students I met had had no daily breakfast since 1917 till the Student Relief work was begun. Now some 5000 Austrian students have been helped with a daily breakfast at a charge of one-third of a cent a meal. More than 1500 women students have been given clothing. Some were in such pathetic poverty they had not even the price of a piece of soap or a bath and were verminous from sheer poverty.

"Many of the men were wearing their old army field uniforms, now trayed and threadbare. Others had a thin overcoat buttoned up tight to the neck, without shirt or underwear. Many are left with tuberculosis or malaria. Students who have to wait for ten minutes in the bread line sometimes become faint and cannot stand. If a student tutors for three hours daily he earns but ten cents for it, or twenty-six dollars a college year. Even if a student gives up his studies altogether and devotes his whole time to manual labor he can earn only from twenty or fifty cents a day which is not enough to permit laying up money for his next year's study.

"Thousands of students in central and eastern Europe are suffering and will continue to suffer through the coming winter from cold and hunger, insufficient food and clothing, and from hopeless despair. The students of some thirty countries are uniting to who are our "neighbors" and pray definitely for their needs.

The Y. W. C. A. asks each girl to have a part in this week of prayer. The following is a calendar showing what part of the world is to be thought of on each day:

Sunday, November 13—World's Y. W. C. A.

Monday, November 14—Africa.

Tuesday, November 15—The Americas and the work to be initiated by U. S. in Philippines.

Wednesday, November 16—Asia.

Thursday, November 17—Australia.

Friday, November 18—Europe.

Saturday, November 19—Europe.

If on Sunday morning you feel inclined to sleep instead of going to Sunday School read what this Korean missionary writes to the Y. W. C. A. We are especially interested in Kwangju, Chosen, for it is there that Miss Emily Wynne, a former Agnes Scott girl, whom we are helping support, is working.

Kwangju, Chosen, Asia,
September 20, 1921.

Dear Friends:

The summer is ended, but let us hope the harvest is not past. In fact there are many indications that it has just begun. At Changseung there is a young man with unusual zeal who has pushed the Sunday School in his church until he not only has a model Sunday School in the Church itself, but has nineteen extension Sunday Schools in the surrounding villages.

Some of the larger churches are so crowded that the children, women, and men all have Sunday School at different times in order to be able to have room for the crowds. There is such a possibility in the S. S. work out here. If one could visit some Sunday the thousands of Sunday Schools that are held for heathen children, if one could see the teachers gathering the children into small stuffy rooms, or out in the yard, or under some large spreading tree,—if one could hear them singing "Jesus Loves Me,"—and hear them repeating John 3:16, though their faces are begrimed with dirt and though they have not half enough clothing on, it would be an inspiration one could not forget. We are going to try to make this the best Sunday School year we have ever had.

Pray for me that I may have wisdom in directing the work of the churches here. Sincerely,
S. K. Dodson.

Singing Notes

THE GLEE CLUB IS POPULAR.

Although the Glee Club has just barely begun real sure enough work on choruses for this year, yet the organization is already receiving pressing invitations to render programs in the city. Unfortunately, the club was forced to refuse an invitation to sing at a banquet of the Atlanta Rotarians several days ago, on account of the fact that the members were so busy. But now all Glee Clubbers are looking forward with a great deal of interest and expectation to a date in the near future. Several days ago, Mr. Johnson, head of the vocal department, received a letter from the Georgia Products Day Committee requesting the Glee Club of Agnes Scott to be present at the Georgia Products Day luncheon at Taft Hall on November 22nd. At that time the Glee Club is to render several numbers, serve in connection with other Glee Clubs of the State, and to partake of the luncheon. Wesley and Brenau as well as other women's and men's Glee Clubs of the State will be present.

Under the direction of Miss Curry, the club is working hard for the occasion upon numbers with such attractive titles as "A Medley of Southern Songs," "The Barefoot Trail," "Waterlilies," and other excellent numbers which are just as attractive as their titles. The club is learning many new numbers, truly new ones which the Glee Club of Agnes Scott have not sung in the past. Miss Curry is a most excellent director, possessing the happy quality of getting real good hard work from the club, while the members at the same time, derive great enjoyment from the work. It is practically certain that Agnes Scott will have reason to be proud of her Glee Club under its good management and with its willing workers.

The Glee Club is composed in the main of students in the vocal department and a few good voices selected from the other students. The members are, as follows:

Soprano—Lillian McAlpine, Charlotte Keesler, Katherine Wilkinson, Jeanette Archer, Alice Whipple, Viola Smith, Ruth Virden, Lois Jennings, Brooks Grimes, Laura McCulloch, Ruth Kennedy, Frances White, Victoria Howie, Helen Crocker, Margaret Mitchell, Agnes Pfohl, Helen Lockhart, Lulawill Brown, Norma Burke, Mary Caldwell.

Contralto—Olivia Liebhert, Frances Gilliland, Ruth Almond, Irma Heaton, Mary Brown, Carrie Scandrett, Frances Singleterry, Nell Esslinger, Ruth Hall, Ruth Pirkle, Elizabeth Lockhart, Caroline Moody, Sarah Till.

At the last meeting of the Glee Club its organization was effected and the following officers elected: President, Nell Esslinger; Vice-President, Ruth Pirkle and Business Manager, Ruth Almond.

In a Cantata, "Penitence, Pardon and Peace" by Maunder, given by the St. Phillip's Cathedral choir under the direction of its new and excellent organist, Mr. McChord, on Wednesday evening, Agnes Scott was represented by Misses Lillian McAlpine, Nell Esslinger, who is contralto soloist, Frances Gilliland and Ruth Pirkle.

FRESHIE'S LETTER TO HER PAL

Dearest "Pal":

It's just about the messiest day that's possible, for it's raining and windy, and the whole campus looks like a disagreeable "lob-lolly." I guess you've already discovered that I'm in a hectic humor, so there is no use concealing the fact.

First thing, I slept through breakfast, and then wanted to stay on in bed, but a horrid eight o'clock class spoiled that fair dream. So, looking like the original copy of the "Last Days of Pompeii," I waded out into the mud, and there got so mad that I did everything but "bust." For there coming across the campus was Dot B. with her hair all curled, and her nose all powdered, and in every respect looking her best in spite of the rain. It not only made me mad to see that some one could be so cheerful when I was so "dumpy," but also made me feel rather suspicious of Dot. I inquired around and discovered that there was ample ground for suspicion. It seemed that Dot had English V. this morning and this "unusual and pretty type of girl with blue eyes and dark hair" had no intentions of failing to preserve the rep of fair Anglo-Saxon beauties, just on account of rain. All of her intimate friends say that she's very careful every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

Speaking of happy girls, I bet Mary Colley is the happiest within a wide radius. It seems that Mary, lucky duck, knew "Bobby in Miss Lulu Bett." Yes, and it seems that

"Bobby" knew Mary very well too, judging from the calls, the dates and everything that Mary had. She had better go easy though, for actors are dangerous things, so I've heard. It's so difficult to ever know when they cease to be acting. But I guess Mary wasn't in much danger Sunday morning, for I saw her entertaining him in Dr. Gaines' office. Imagine such! I hope the walls won't talk in there, but Mary hopes that lot more than I do.

You never can tell what will happen next, can you? Why I nearly checked out yesterday afternoon when Ruth K. and Elizabeth P. came home from town and said they didn't believe they were very hungry. Now I just knew there was something wrong for who ever heard of an A. S. girl actually admitting that she wasn't hungry. They kept pretty quiet, but you know me—I'm curious and a born detective—so after half an hour, I found out. Do you know that those girls had met a minister, "Dec" one too (I promised not to tell his name) and gone to Nunnally's with him. Now if I was an Episcopal girl, I simply wouldn't stand for that; for it just isn't fair, is it?

I wish I was Louise Buckhanan or Jack McIver, so I'd have a brother in Atlanta. It must be wonderful especially on week-ends. Why Jack has two brothers who call her or come to see her all the time, or better still introduce her to "his cute friends." I often see Jack's name on the phone pad, when I'm hopelessly looking for mine. She always says it's her brother's call, but I believe other people call her sometimes too, from Frat houses.

Emily and "Gus" Thomas told me their mother was coming this week. They needn't have told me though, for I could have read it on their faces. Both are the happiest looking girls I've ever seen, with the exception of Ruth Punn and Louise Brown. (Those two girls are fairly beaming for they are already packing their suitcases to go to "Georgia" this week-end.)

"Walkie" Perry certainly did go to a fine school last year. Somebody said she was a graduate of "cupid's school," which guaranteed to have you supplied with candy. There must be a mistake in the name of the place for I can't find it on the map, and I would adore going there next year—anything for candy. If you find out where it is, old pal, remember me.

Oh! crash!! What a rotten humor I started writing in! Now I feel almost cheerful, in spite of the fact that the rain is still beating the funeral march on my window. Nothing like telling one's good old friend all your troubles, is it?

Write soon, and don't give me up for hopeless, yet. I've got a bet up—with myself—that I'll have a real true man (quality not mentioned in the bet) to love me within a month. Gee I'd hate to lose a tan, so I better get a hustle on me.

Yours 'til I pass French I,
Freshie.

MISS LUMPKIN'S VISIT.

If some one should come along and say, "Everyone who didn't enjoy Miss Lumpkin, stand on her head right quick." I don't believe we would have an over-supply of acrobats, because I'm sure every Agnes Scott girl, young or old, green or dignified, thoroughly enjoyed those jolly sings in the chapel and the sweet talks she gave us and—well, we just enjoyed her.

Wasn't it fun to sing "Dese Bones Gwine Rise Again" and "Deep River" and "Swing Low," and all those old "spirituals," and we liked "Follow the Glean," too.

But song leading wasn't all Miss Lumpkin did, although she was kind enough to lead two sings for us. She had meetings with various branches of the Y. W. C. A., and she led Y. W. C. A. for us Sunday night and at all these meetings she gave splendid talks about our college life and helped us in lots of ways.

The Blue Ridge girls had a picnic with her Saturday night and even if they did get caught in the rain and had to run most of the way back, they all said it was great fun.

We all hated to see her go, but like all good times her visit had to come to a close.

We hope Miss Lumpkin will come back to see us anyway, and we know that the good thoughts she left with us will help to make lots of the hard things easy, and I'm sure we won't forget the songs because Ruth has had us singing some of them already.

LET THE VANITY FAIR BEAUTY PARLOR MAKE YOU ATTRACTIVE.

Attention, girls, the place has been discovered where you may become beautiful for Saturday nights. It is the Vanity Fair Beauty Parlor, probably better known on the campus as "Miss Phi's." This beauty parlor is in the cottage next to Boyd and is quite attractive. It is open from nine until five, so any time when you're not dashing to classes, taking notes, rushing to the dining room or doing any of the other numerous things which call upon your time, you may become beautiful without any work on your part. There are two very good points about this Beauty Parlor; its nearness to the campus, therefore it doesn't take up much of our valuable time, and second the prices which are lower than in Atlanta and therefore don't make such big holes (Continued on page 4.)

HOASC STUNT TO BE PRESENTED SATURDAY NIGHT.

If you want to spend an enjoyable and profitable evening, go to the Hoasc stunt Saturday night. You'll enjoy the local hits and perhaps you'll learn something new about the campus organizations. The following are to be represented:

Executive Committee of Student Government.
Y. W. C. A.
Blackfriars.
Publications.
Athletic Association.
Literary Clubs (K. U. B., B. O. Z. and Folio).
Propylean Debating Society.
Mnemoseyan Debating Society.
Day Students.

It has been the custom every year for each member of Hoasc to sponsor one of these organizations in the stunt. It is the purpose of these stunts to show the students of Agnes Scott the aim and some of the activities of organizations that can help them and that they can help.

TRANSFORMATION IN SCIENCE BUILDING.

Last Tuesday afternoon third floor Science Hall was almost as confused a locality as the brain of any Freshman in biology laboratory. But in the case of the third floor of Science Hall there was the assurance that order would soon emerge from the chaos. All the biology supplies were being moved from the laboratory into the new storeroom which has just recently been completed.

But the changes are not being confined to the new storeroom. The positions of the cases in the museum have been shifted so as to make room for a new one. Also from Woodshole, Mass., where Miss McDougall, Elizabeth Nichols, and Miss McCaa spent a large part of the summer, new specimens have been received and installed in their proper cases.

One of the most interesting and most familiar of these new specimens is the skin of a rattlesnake. It is between three and four feet long and has enough rattles to satisfy the curiosity of those who have never before enjoyed the opportunity of hearing the rustle of a snake's rattlers. The noise is guaranteed to give anyone the goose chills. This skin was given to the museum by Payton Stinson.

There is one room on third floor, which seems to have little to do with study. Previous to my visit to third floor I had never heard of an arboretum, but now I am educated. An arboretum is first double cousin to a conservatory. It has the numerous windows, bright sunlight, flowers, and aquarium of a conservatory; nevertheless, it is an arboretum. There are a great many new flowers and plants there and some newly acquired goldfish, all of which seem to be thriving as well as if they inhabited an honest-to-goodness conservatory.

If you do not know what an arboretum is or if you have never made a tour of inspection on third floor Science Hall, take my advice and go see the museum and arboretum for yourself. It will be well worth your while.

Alumnae News

ITEMS ABOUT '21.

When we came back to Agnes Scott the first of this year, we couldn't help feeling a wee bit lonesome, because the class of '21 had left us. Now, of course, we have become more accustomed to the change, but we are all mighty interested in last year's Seniors and what they are doing.

"Dot" Allen is teaching domestic science and English in a high school near LaFayette, Ala.

Charlotte Bell is teaching French in Science Hill, Ky.

Thelma Brown is teaching French in Union Springs, Ala.

Eleanor Carpenter is the head of the department of Romance languages at G. W. C., Greenville, S. C.

Edyth Clarke has the chair of mathematics at St. Genevieve's school, Asheville, N. C.

Cora Connett married this summer and is living in St. Joseph, Mo.

Elizabeth Enloe is teaching in South Georgia.

"Betty" Floding is teaching Latin at North Avenue Presbyterian high school in Atlanta.

Sarah Fulton is teaching.

Mary Louise Green is teaching.

Helen Hall is teaching.

Dorothy Havis is doing work with the Associated Charities in Atlanta.

Emily Hutter also took the final step and married this summer.

"Genie" Johnston is doing Y. W. C. A. work in Atlanta.

Mary Ann Justice is teaching with Dr. Sloof at Crossnere.

Anna Marie Landress has become "Mrs. William Cate" and gone to Korea as a missionary.

Marion Lindsay is teaching Latin at the Miami high school.

Theresa Newton was not completely finished by her work at Agnes Scott, so has gone to Miss Semple's school in New York.

Lina Parry is taking a business course in Atlanta.

Margaret Wade is teaching in Raphine, Va.

Frances Whitfield is teaching.

Ellen Wilson is teaching.

Most of the other girls are staying at home, with the exception of two notable groups. We have a regular little colony of "Agnes Scotters" at Lewisburg, West Va. Charlotte Newton is teaching English. Margaret McLaughlin teaches Bible and is also Y. W. C. A. secretary. With Martha Laing and "Peg" Bell there too, Lewisburg will soon be adapting purple and white for its colors.

We're always glad to have a few old girls back at Agnes Scott. Fan McCaa is back as biology assistant. Frances Charlotte Markley assists in history and attends to her duties as general secretary of the alumnae association. Janef Preston is assistant in English and Martha Stansfield is a fellow in Latin. Marguerite Cousins helps in the expression department, so altogether a good many of the class of '21 are with us still. In spite of the fact that most of these girls swore by every examination they ever flunked that they wouldn't teach, we see that most of them have changed their minds. We hope they will always remember that Agnes Scott loves to have them visit her, and that many will come back Thanksgiving to the opening of the alumnae house.

Hikes for Day Students and Boarders

DANCING CLASS FOR DAY STUDENTS BEGUN.

Agnes Scott certainly must be the most "athletically" inclined college for miles around. The latest diversions are hiking and dancing. The idea of three hikes in one week! But that is what Agnes Scott had last week. Wednesday morning at 5:45, there was the quietest noise heard out in front of Main. Twenty-five early birds were ready to go on a hike. It was the most delightful hike—just a nice long walk out Ponce de Leon, on East Lake Drive and back down College avenue. The girls said the sun-rise was so beautiful that they felt as romantic as if it had been the moon. This early morning hike was for industrious boarders.

At 2:15 Wednesday afternoon, the boarders, who were unable to lose beauty sleep that morning, went on a hike over the same path, but it is rumored that there were no moons or sun-rises, and that the afternoon hike was not quite so thrilling as the morning one.

Day students enjoy hiking as much as do boarders; and too, a hike helps to fill up an exercise card. At 3:15 Friday afternoon, a large number of day students met, and hiked out to Ingleside and back to the college. The girls said that "they had the best time," and had "more adventures." It was almost dark when they got back, and, although they were "foot-sore" and weak, they were happy.

Day students have decided that their feet were made for more than walking—they want an aesthetic dancing class. Although there are several classes already, Miss Randolph has kindly consented to teach a dancing class for day students if enough of them care to take. The afternoon for this class will be every Monday at 4:15 o'clock. All day students are urged to sign their names on the list which has been placed in their dressing-room in Main. If you think you can "trip the light fantastic toe" sign up before Monday, November 7th. Miss Randolph will not teach the class unless there are enough girls in it—so everybody join.

FIRE CAPTAINS CHOSEN.

Elections were held for fire captains Tuesday two weeks ago and everyone was holding their breath to find out who would have the extreme pleasure of ringing the bell.

When elections were read out we find that Hall McDougall is captain, of Inman, Marjorie Lowe, of Main and Lois McClain, of Rebekah Scott. Eleanor Hyde is first lieutenant of White House and Janef Preston, of Lupton. First and second lieutenants and bucket brigades have been elected and organized so now we expect these girls to be great life-savers and wish their great success in their great and noble service. Eunice Dean is our able fire captain and a fine one she is.

There have been fire drills in almost every dormitory and only a few knocks have been given for neglect of bringing wet towels.

Girls, be prepared any unusually cold and chilly night to spring lightly out of bed, grab a towel, slip on your dainty bed-room slippers and kimono and race down stairs as soon as the bell is sounded. These drills are not to be few and far between but very often, for we need the exercise. Wouldn't our mothers be surprised to see us rise so quickly in response to any alarm? We see that we should all learn to rely on ourselves, and this is one way to do so.

SATURDAY'S HOCKEY GAMES.

A date important in athletic annals was October 29th, which marked the third hockey game of the season, when the Sophs defeated the Seniors 2-1 and the Juniors vanquished the Freshmen 7-1. Three o'clock on that memorable Saturday afternoon found teams and rooters ready for the conflict.

The Senior-Soph game was intensely interesting. After the Sophomores made a goal in the first quarter, there was some fine close playing in which neither side scored. In the last quarter, however, the Seniors came up with a goal, making the score an even 1-1. In the end the Sophs won a second point, which gave them the game. The score proves that both teams are now in good trim and are well matched.

Exciting, also, was the Junior-Freshman game. Creditable team work was displayed by both sides. While '25 did not "shine" as to score, connoisseurs declare that the Freshmen have an exceptional team which bids fair to attain greatness in the future.

If you are not standing by your team by attending the games, resolve today to appear at the field next Saturday. You need the thrill of seeing your side win, and your team needs your yelling.

Le Salon Francais

FRENCH CLUB GAINS MOMENTUM.

The French Club of Agnes Scott College held its first regular meeting of the year in the Propylean Hall, Friday evening, October 28th. All the members of the French Faculty and a goodly number of the members of the French Club were present.

Ethel Ware, the president, presided over the meeting and called it to order. The minutes of the last meeting were read by Mary Barton, they were the minutes for the meeting held to elect officers. After they had been approved the program proceeded.

All of it was in French. Some sat and bobbed their heads in beautiful rhythm, just as one pats their foot to music, we knew that they "comprend" or if they didn't, they wanted somebody to think they did. Still others sat with their mouths wide open, to see that anybody, even Miss Alexander could talk in French so fast. Others, those who have possibly advanced to French II or are majors sat just as if the meeting were being conducted in English. Of course, it's hardly right to say "sat" since some had to sit on the floor and others stand; because the room was so crowded.

The first thing on the program was a series of slides, pictures of Paris and its vicinity which were explained by E. Hyde, S. Till and C. Evans. This was a quite interesting feature and included scenes of Arche de Triomphe, Louvre, Notre Dame, Saint Chapelle and Versailles.

This was followed by some current events given by Helen Barton from Le Petit Journal, which the club subscribes for.

After this many songs were sung among which were, "Au Clair de la Lune" and "Frere Jacques." It was lots of fun to sing "Frere Jacques" since Miss Alexander divided the girls into three divisions and it was sung as a round. Everyone was nearly convulsed with laughter by the time Miss Alexander held up her hand to stop "the noise."

After this a most delightful playette was given. The scene was in a railway car. The moral of it was, "You can catch more flies with molasses than with vinegar." The cast follows:

Le Monsieur—M. Speake.

La Bonne—Vic. Howie.

Bebe—Rosalind Jones.

La femme—R. Neisler.

Le Conducteur—V. Gregory.

The most of the cast was from the Freshman class and they but exhibited another of the accomplishments of that wonderfully precocious class. These girls were chosen by the French Faculty, to take these parts, which was indeed an honor.

Of course games were part of the evening's entertainment and they were in charge of Winifred Johnston and Beulah Davidson. These girls read out a list of animals and then said they would call out some words and when they gave anything that flies with wings the girls must wave their arms in a bird-like fashion. It was intensely amusing since many times some one girl waved her arms in a most ethereal fashion when such words as lion and elephant were read out.

Everyone that was at the club realized that what we need in singing is a copy of the words. Here are some songs that were sung at the last meeting and will be sung again and other new ones that will be sung next time. Please be sure to bring your Agonistic to the club so that everybody will know the words.

LE REGIMENT DE SOMBRE ET MEUSE.

Tous ces fiers enfants de la Gaule
Allaient sans treve et sans repos
Avec leur fusils sur l'épaule,
Courage au coeur et sac au doc.
La gloire était leur nourriture,
Ils etaient sans pain sans soulers,
La nuit ils couchaient sur la dure
Avec leur sacs pour oreiller.

Refrain.

Le regiment de Sambre et Meuse
Marchait toujours au crie de liberte
Cherchant la route glorieuse,
Que l'a conduit a l'immortalite.

Le choc fut semblable a' la foudre,
Ce fut un combat de geants!
Ivres de joie, ivres de poudre,
Pour mourir ils serraient les rangs.
Le regiment par la mitraille
Etait assailli de partout;
Pourtant la vivante muraille,
Impassible, restait debout.

AU CLAIR DE LA LUNE.

Au clair de la lune,
Mon Ami Pierrot,
Prete-moi ta plume
Pour ecrire un mot.

Ma chandelle est morte,
Je n' ai plus de feu,
Ouvre-moi ta porte,
Pour l' amour de Dieu.

Au clair de la lune,
Pierrot repondit:
Je n' ai pas de plume,
Je suis dans mon lit.
Va chez la voisine,
Je crois qu' elle y est.
Car, dans sa cuisine,
On bat le briquet.

MALBROUGH.

Malbrough s'en va-t-en guerre,
Miron-ton, tonton, mirontaine,
Malbrough s'en va-t-en guerre,
Ne sait quand reviendra (ter).

Il reviendra z'a Paques,
Miron-ton, tonton, mirontaine,
Il reviendra z'a Paques,
Ou a la trinite (ter).

The Calendar for November

I. INVESTITURE ON NOVEMBER 4TH.

This is one of the most thrilling events of the college year.

The usual order of the procession was observed. The Sophomores first, dressed in white, formed an aisle for the rest of the procession. Next, the faculty in cap and gown, and last of all the Seniors. Dr. McCain made the address of the occasion. Dr. Gaines also made a few remarks.

II. IRREGULAR PARTY, NOVEMBER 5TH.

On Saturday night, the Irregulars will entertain the college community with a rainbow bazaar. It is to be, according to the Irregular President, a take-off on Peachtree street. The admission will be ten cents and everybody is invited.

III. HOASC STUNT, NOVEMBER 12TH.

Hoasc Stunt is one of the biggest nights of the year. The following organizations will give stunts: Student Government, Y. W. C. A., Publications, Literary Clubs, Propylean Debating Society, Mnemosynean Debating Society, Day Students, Cotillion Club, and the Athletic Association.

IV. DR. ERDMAN, NOVEMBER 13 TO 30.

Dr. Erdman, of the Department of Theology of Princeton, will be here for the entire week under the auspices of the Y. W. C. A. He will talk on Christian Fundamentals.

V. THE BLACKFRIAR PLAY, NOVEMBER 26.

This is the initial appearance of the Blackfriars this year and is looked forward to with much interest by the college community. Two plays will be given: "The Rising of the Moon" and "The Old Peabody Pew" by Kate Douglas Wiggin.

VI. DR. ROBBINSON, NOVEMBER 30TH.

Dr. Robinson is the first speaker to be brought to us by the Lecture Association this year. The plane for the lecture have not been perfected, but will be announced later.

All Jokes Aside.

THERE'S SOMETHING IN THAT.

I am unsophisticated
Nothing bores me.
I have even enjoyed one or two of Harold Bell Wright's stories
And I laugh over prohibition jokes.
I never worry about the down-trodden masses;
And yet I'm always broke.
I read Main street and felt sorry for the author:
He must be a very unhappy man—fearfully sophisticated, you know.
I thrill all over when I hear the Star-
Spangled Banner played—
And then I always go and enlist
(twice I've done it just that way).
A good close ball game gets me every time.
I guess it's because I'm unsophisticated—
Nothing bores me.
But, for all that, I'm happy!

ALUMNAE BUILDING NEARING COMPLETION

Dean Comstock's Message

TO BE SENT TO ALL AGNES SCOTT COLLEGE ALUMNAE.

A circular letter is being got out to be sent to the Association of University Women of America as a greeting to all alumnae of colleges. Since we (Agnes Scott) are members of this Association, we are entitled to one. While Miss Comstock, who is President of this Association, was here she left us a message for our alumnae. This was secured by the Secretary of Agnes Scott alumnae and was kindly contributed to the cause of the Agonistic. The message of Miss Comstock is as follows:

"I am exceedingly grateful to your Alumnae Secretary, Miss Markley, for the opportunity of adding a few words to this circular letter and of bringing you greetings from the American Association of University Women.

"There seems to me to be three reasons why the Association can look forward to a successful future. For one thing, it combines the strength of two strong Associations, the Southern Association of College Women and the Association of Collegiate Alumnae. Secondly, it inherits from these lines of activity already well established. Thirdly, it has committed itself to two enterprises which it is fitted to carry on and which are contributors to efforts just now of supreme importance to the world—the improvement of elementary and secondary education and the promotion of international friendliness. I hope that the graduates of Agnes Scott College, occupied though I know they are with many public and private duties, will lend their support to the attempt of the Association to represent the college women of the country in the world-wide efforts now being made to forward education and to bring peace and friendship to the world.

"ADA COMSTOCK,
"Dean of Smith College and President of the American Association of University Women."

ALUMNAE AID LEAGUE.

The beginning of every semester finds girls who are earnest students, with a definite life purpose, but who are unable to continue or start their college career, as the case may be, because of a lack of finances. These girls are more worthy of going to college than some who have the privilege thrust upon them. But the question is, how are they to manage? Some of them need a small amount of financial assistance, others need more. In either case, the problem has partly been solved by the Alumnae Aid League of A. S. C.

The foundation of this beneficial organization was prompted by the desire of its members to show in part their gratitude to their Alma Mater. About 100 members constitute the League, who have increased the college income $500 by an individual subscription of $5.00 per year. Each member feels, therefore, that although she is not making a great sacrifice, she is, with the co-operation of the other members, offering much assistance.

The plan of the League is thus: For the coming year a subscription of $500 is expected, which is to constitute the Loan Fund. This is to be distributed in small sums of not more than $100 yearly, to any student in line for the B.A. degree who satisfies the recognized standards of character and ability. The loans are not to bear interest and are to be repaid whenever the student shall be in a position to do so.

Dr. Erdmann Visits Agnes Scott

NOTED BIBLE STUDENT GIVES INSPIRING LECTURES.

The college and the Y. W. C. A. united in their efforts to bring a helpful and inspiring speaker to Agnes Scott, and have succeeded in giving us not only a sincere pleasure, but one of the big experiences of our lives. They have brought to us Dr. Chas. R. Erdmann, Professor of English Bible in the Theological Seminary of Princeton. Dr. Erdmann is known throughout the United States as a brilliant Bible student, a vividly interesting speaker, and as a man whose personality is strikingly attractive. We count ourselves very fortunate indeed in securing him to speak to us—the more so, perhaps, since it was necessary to make the engagement in the fall of 1921, and we have been anticipating the pleasure of hearing and knowing him for a whole year.

Dr. Erdmann began his series of talks on "The Fundamentals of Christianity" at the Y. W. C. A. vesper service Sunday night. He has been speaking each night since in the hour immediately after supper and will continue to give his addresses that are so full of genuine help and inspiration during the rest of this week with the exception of Saturday night.

The list of subjects for the week is as follows: "The Authority of Scriptures," "The Personality of Christ," "The Work of Christ," "The New Birth," "The Divine Guidance," "The Holy Spirit," "Prayer," "Service." It is quite impossible to thank Dr. Erdmann for coming to Agnes Scott or to express our delight and gain from the many things that he has so clearly and forcibly and interestingly told us.

LECTURE ASSOCIATION PLANS ANNOUNCED.

Many Noted Lecturers Anticipated.

Last Tuesday morning in chapel we heard of one of the youngest and yet one of the liveliest organizations on the campus. This, as everybody knows, is the Lecture Association. This Association was organized last year and brought to us Mr. Dodd, Miss Monroe and Mr. Taft, whom we all remember very distinctly as giving us some of the best and most helpful lectures of the whole year on history, modern poetry, and art.

This year the Association is planning to do even greater things. They have come in touch with five speakers who are the very best in their respective lines and who can give us information and entertainment that will probably mean as much or more

NOTICE.

The new Alumnae Secretary, Miss Frances Charlotte Markley, has begun her work with the Alumnae Association. It is very necessary that the Secretary know all items of interest to the Association and they should be handed in to her. There are many changes of address as well as changes of name among the alumnae which would prove of great help to her if they were reported to her. Such information will be appreciated. Miss Markley has her office in No. 8 Main and can be found there between 8 and 9:30 every morning.

It is evident that no individual ever adequately pays for his or her college education. Therefore no college can exist without endowment. The Alumnae Aid League is in a position to realize this fact, and have given practical support.

We welcome to Agnes Scott College an Alumna of whom we are very proud—Mary Wallace Kirk, '11, President of the Alumnae Association.

Alumnae Scholarship Loans

Corrections of Statements in Catalogue Made.

Not many people have ever applied for the Alumnae Scholarships, due perhaps to a misunderstanding as to the conditions under which they are offered, the terms, and probably most of all a mistake in the catalogue in regard to these loans. Under the heading Alumnae Association in the catalogue there are these erroneous statements: "Only Juniors and Seniors, and students who have not more than two years' work to secure a degree may borrow from this fund." "No interest (on the loan) will be charged till one year after the borrower has finished her college course. From that date all unpaid loans and parts of loans will begin to draw interest at six per cent. until paid." The Alumnae wish that these corrections be made. According to the catalogue only Juniors and Seniors are eligible. This has never been stipulated by the Alumnae Association. The Scholarship Fund is for the benefit of any student of whatever class she may be.

The second statement in regard to the payment of the interest and principal of the loan also stands open to correction. It should read "These loans are not to bear interest and are to be repaid whenever the student shall be in a position to do so."

The Association feels that these mistakes are responsible for the fact that the loans have not been taken advantage of more generally. And that by their correction the loans will seem more desirable and more students will be benefited by them.

Mrs. Deickman is chairman of the Alumnae Scholarship Committee, and all applications for loans must be made through her.

The amount of the fund is not now available for publication, but in a short time a notice will be printed in the Agonistic as to the total amount available. All those students who are interested watch for this notice.

Louise McKinney Play Contest

FIRST AWARD TO BE MADE IN MAY, 1922.

One of the most delightful announcements made during the week of graduation last spring was the notification of the Louise McKinney Alumnae play contest. To stimulate interest in play writing and to develop what, in the donor's mind, is peculiarly the Southern girls' gift, an annual prize of $250.00 is offered for the next five years for the best play presented by an alumna. The first award will be made in May, 1922.

This offer is not only an assurance of the continued love and interest of an alumna for her Alma Mater after years of absence, but a real stimulus to the development of talent among the alumnae. The opportunity to introduce the college and one's dramatic gift to those whose recognition is really worth while is unique.

The fact that the contest is called the Louise McKinney Alumnae Contest is an indication that Miss McKinney's interest in the students, and her inspiration are felt as a definite influence.

The conditions of the contest are:

1. Any alumna (active or associate) may contest for this prize.
2. No play under full length shall be considered. Full length means that the performance shall occupy 2½ hours, approximately 100 typewritten sheets.
3. By April 1st of this year manuscripts shall be in the hands of the Alumnae Secretary at Agnes Scott College, who will substitute symbols for names of contestants.
4. The Secretary will forward plays to Rachael Crowthers, who, with Arthur Hopkins and Kenneth McGowan, will act as judges.
5. The annual award shall be made at Commencement.

A. S. C. CLUB OF DECATUR.

Activities of "Old Girls."

A highly important phase of the life of every college is the degree of activity of its alumnae. Agnes Scott is fortunate in having an alumnae whose loyalty as Hottentots endures long after the days of sociology and "De Levee," and far from Science Hall and the hockey field. In various cities—Montgomery, Atlanta, Decatur, and elsewhere—branches of the Alumnae Association have been formed, while others are now being organized.

Of particular interest to us is the A. S. C. Club of Decatur, whose proximity to the campus—the base of supplies, as it were, for alma mater spirit and loyalty and energy—renders it one of the most active of the alumnae organizations. With Miss Lizzabel Sexon as president, Mrs. Gusie O'Neill Johnson as vice-president, and Miss Marian Booker, formerly college librarian, as secretary and treasurer, the Decatur Club has unlimited prospects for a year of helpful achievement.

The Decatur Club is doing divers and various things. Have you noticed in the mail room those alluring descriptions of Christmas cards? Of course when you read them you thought only of the fact that Christmas with its attendant holidays must not be only a myth, after all—and your heart turned a flip of ecstasy. But read those notices again. You'll find a most convenient arrangement for getting your Christmas cards—and incidentally you will be co-operating with the Alumnae Association, who are managing the "Christmas Card Movement."

At the last meeting of the A. S. C. Club of Decatur, held at the college,

A Tour of the Alumnae House

FRENCH WINDOWS, SEWING MACHINES, AND FIRE-PLACE IN EVIDENCE.

Those who have walked over nails, scrambled over planks, and up skeleton steps know something of what a wonderful building is going up on the east side of the campus. Maybe some have not found time to go, or maybe they are afraid of the nails and planks, so here's a rather feeble description of it.

The front door opens into a nice big hall, to the left is the alumnae office, where the archives of the alumnae will be kept, and then to the right is a perfectly precious, sunny living room, where you can entertain your guests after the dinner, which was served in the private dining room just back of the living room. But back again to the living room. There is a grand big fireplace in there. The mantle was the gift of an alumna; two sets of adorable French windows are on either side of it. To continue our tour into the private dining room, we pass through French doors. It is tiny and cozy, just the kind of place for the supper party you have been wanting to give. More French doors open into the big tea room. Oh, it's a wonder, a regular thousand window variety, and what's more, it is huge. There is a back entrance, too, so that it will be just as easy to slip in there as in the old tea room. Thence on around there is a marvelous butler's pantry and a nice big kitchen with a grand storage pantry. Honestly the tea room maids will feel almost as though they have been just emancipated when they come from the present tea room kitchen to the new one.

Now let's go up stairs. The steps are in the hall. Up we go. To begin at the front, on the right is a bedroom which the class of '21 is going to furnish as their "P. G." to Agnes Scott. On the left is the college guest room. It is lovely and so hospitable looking with a nice fireplace and a private bath. There are three more bedrooms on the back that will be used for alumnae, another which Miss Bishop will use and another large corner room, the wonderful sewing room and ironing room. Its furniture will be electric irons and machines.

But what's the name of it? Those who are careful observers and have been to Little Decatur the back way have noticed the marble slab bearing Anna I. Young Alumnae House go into place over the door.

The Freshmen and Sophomores have just heard of Miss Young, but the Juniors and Seniors were fortunate enough to feel the wonder of her unselfish personality. Miss Young had the chair of Mathematics at Agnes Scott for 21 years. Just before the session of '20 and '21 began she was seized with a fatal attack of pneumonia and Agnes Scott lost one of her truest and most unselfish alumnae and members of the faculty. She was one who gave of the very best that was in her to the advancement of the good interest of the college.

But who conceived the idea of the Alumnae House? Dr. Gaines, desiring to have established some memorial to the memory of this noble woman suggested to the Alumnae Association that they endow the chair of Mathematics in memory of her. The Alumnae began to talk it over and decided that the distant alumnae might become more interested in something more tangible than the endowment of a chair, so they began to think.

They dreamed rather hopelessly of building a home center for Agnes Scott. The Trustees scented this

EDITORIALLY SPEAKING.

"There is no great harm in the air of patronage with which our times, in their self-satisfied enlightenment, address the great who were of old; but we do use droll adjectives!" These were the introductory words of Professor Kittredge, of Harvard, in a lecture on "Chances," delivered at Johns Hopkins a few years ago. So spoke an authority on literature to his contemporaries. Now, I, an Agnes Scott Alumna, who am neither so ancient as to be able to recall the time when ladylike basket-ball was played in skirts, nor so young as to be still pasting Senior souvenirs in my memory book, rise up to quote Professor Kittredge to you who are yet my contemporaries, though somewhat my juniors.

However lovingly we modern Hottentots may regard the literary great, we are sometimes guilty, mentally at least, of flaunting a little patronizing air in the vanished faces of the great who have gone on before from the portals of our Alma Mater; and of indulging in critically descriptive details of those unknown friends grown famous, who from time to time wander back to the fold. We forget that they knew the warmth of the sheltering arms long before we did; that because they were here first, the sheltering arms knew how to shelter us when we came along.

Being very modern, we revel in the accomplishments of our modernity, forgetting too often those flesh and blood Hottentots who were modern in their day, and who through four college years worked and played and struggled in order to make possible the very fruits which we regard as products of our enlightened day.

Chief among those products which we, mistaken, regard as having sprung solely from our own genius and labor, are our publications. Who of us, when she picks up her new Aurora and beholds its spicily filled covers, does not give a little congratulatory pat on the back of this present Agnes Scott generation? What worthy things we do accomplish, literarily speaking! The Aurora is not our only pride. The Agonistic in this day of speed and reporters' enthusiasm seems verily to hop from the press and fall into our outstretched hands. "What an absolutely efficient talented way we have of doing things," exults the 1921 Hottentot. Yet who for one moment lets her mind travel back to the days when the support of college publications was not an accepted social obligation; when distracted Aurora editors contributed poems and stories ad infinitum and racked their brains to think of new ways of disguising their handiwork; when Agonistic editors chewed their pens to stubs and tore out their none too abundant locks in a heroic effort to make one brain reel off enough proof for an edition of the paper? We, with our division of literary labor, rarely pause to bless the memory of those who toiled single handed to establish publications which today bring joy to our hearts and honor to our college.

We likewise err when we imagine that the freedom and pleasure of our social life are due solely to our own unassisted efforts. What modern little Hottentot of a socially inclined nature does not rejoice that she lives in a day of social privileges? As, armed with her permission from home, she trips gaily off to town with men, she thinks almost pityingly and quite patronizingly of her sisters of yesterday who could never, never leave the "sheltering arms" under masculine protection. But does the dignified, assured little modern ever wonder how the privilege came to be hers? If she will only look back into certain College Council meetings when her sister Hottentots presented the reasonableness and desirability of masculine society, she might use her wits and guess through whose influence the privilege finally came. If she ever paused to wonder through whose dream and its fulfillment came the Cotillion Club, she might have food for reflection and gratitude. Assuredly it did not spring full grown from anybody's head; there were ideals and personalities back of its growth. Social organizations and privileges belong to the modern Agnes Scotter partly because some Agnes Scotters of yesterday cared enough to work hard for organizations and privileges and then to be worthy of them.

Not only have we, as every college generation, fallen heir to a social life to which others contributed, but we have received from others a rich heritage of ideals built up through a slow process of years. The minds and hearts and unselfish loyalties of many girls have been responsible for the growth and the ideals of student organizations. Well may we be proud of smoothly running organizations that are the embodiment of high ideals. Who of us is not proud of our Student Government Association that this very day has delegates in Boston meeting with representatives of Northern and Eastern colleges? Who is not proud of a Y. W. C. A. that is dissatisfied with present achievements? Who does not thrill with pride because we have a Hoase upholding ideals of unselfish loyalty to the college? But who went through the growing pains with Student Government and with Y. W. C. A.? Who dreamed Hoase and saw the fulfillment of her dream?

BLUE TRIANGLE NEWS

The following is a letter received by one of the girls from a member of the class of '20. Many of us remember Mary Burnett, who was president of Y. W. C. A. while here, and are so glad to hear of her experiences.

Highland School,
Guerrant, Ky.,
Oct. 7, 1921.

Dearest E—:

I've been up here nearly two weeks now, (it seems like two months), and am feeling decidedly settled. I just wish you could have seen me getting here. There is no railroad over here, a distance of about four miles, and so the only possible method of travel is horseback, or what is more common, mule back. I was met at the station by a little boy and a horse, which horse carried my suit case, my heavy coat, a little girl 14 years old and me, all on his back! Never have I had a more precarious ride.

The school consists of four buildings, all evidently built for summer weather. Never worry about my not getting enough fresh air! The school room in which I teach is about as big as the Propylean Hall, the glass is entirely out of one window and two of the others won't close, which room is heated by a stove in one end! Fortunately the classes are not very large and we just all sit around the stove in a most informal style.

The school is very poor and needs so many things that it keeps you wishing all the time. If there are any old curtains or clothes to be spared tell the girls to send them up here, unless some other school has already spoken for them, as this is a mission school under the Presbyterian church and in real need.

Lots of funny things have happened and I wish I had time to tell you of them. For instance, I discovered when I got here that I was to be principal of the school! A terrible blow and due solely to the fact that I was the only member of the faculty in possession of an A. B. degree. Just see what my Alma Mater did to me. Also I have to help with the community work, which consists of walking miles over the mountains to visit in the homes and do everything from teaching the Sunday School lesson to giving instructions on the raising of babies, being considered an authority on all knowledge, from pigs and poultry to religion. You should see me with a knowing air advise a mother to try bathing and a little sunshine if the baby looks thin and peaked. We found one baby three months old that had never been outside the house in its life, and the only opening the house had was one door.

The poverty among these people is simply terrible, worse than anything you could imagine. There are two little girls about eight years old that live about two miles off whom we had nicknamed the "red birds" because they always wore the same little red calico dresses when they came to school, and they only came about three times a week. One of the teachers went to see their mother to find out what the trouble was, and after much beating around the bush she finally confessed they didn't have but the one dress to their names, and so had to go to bed (literally) when it was being washed.

I am teaching six different classes a day, two Latin, three English, and one French. The children are just splendid and keep up with their school mighty well when you consider that the girls have to do all the cooking, cleaning, washing and ironing, and the boys the farm work, water carrying, bringing in coal, building fires, etc. I sometimes wonder how they do as much as they do.

And, my dear, be consoled, for your struggles in Latin were as nothing compared to their's, and I wish you could hear their French pronunciation. Miss Alexander would lose her mind, I'm sure, could she hear them, and when they think the past participle of write is wrote, how can you expect them to know the past participle of aim? I spend more time correcting their English in class than I do their French!

Please give my love to everybody there that cares for it.

ALUMNAE CHRISTMAS CARDS.

Misses Alexander and Markley
Take Orders.

Have you seen the samples of the Alumnae Christmas cards? If you haven't, there is a thrill awaiting you.

Misses Alexander and F. C. Markley have charge of the cards, and this fact leaves no room for doubt as to their quality. The time is limited, however, so it is very necessary that orders be gotten in as soon as possible. In fact, all orders must be gotten in by December 1st.

Don't you think it is lots nicer to walk down one flight of steps (just to room 8 in Main) and choose your cards, than it is to hurry to town and scramble over those on Kress' counter?

Besides getting the cards so easily, just think what a help each order will be!

Fifty per cent. of the proceeds will be given to the Alumnae Building.

Get the Christmas spirit by ordering early and get the Agnes Scott Spirit by co-operating with Miss Markley at No. 8 Main.

LOST AND FOUND COLUMN.

Patronize Our New Department.

The Agonistic wishes to be useful as well as ornamental, so it is organizing a new department. There are a great many new things on the campus, but this new department is willing to compete with any of them for the gratitude and affection of the college community.

We have noticed that a great many articles are lost, and that some articles are found. We have noticed that there is great mourning over those lost and great rejoicing over those found. Then an idea struck us and we gave a shout of gloating joy. Why not have a Lost and Found Column in the Agonistic!

Truly, 'twas a masterly idea, and an unselfish one. We hope to benefit the whole college by this step, which (to mix a metaphor) we wish to be a useful tool. The following rules must be observed to obtain the best results possible:

1. Lost, Found, and Wanted are the types of heading. Use the one which fits your particular case.

2. No joking allowed, and all ambiguities will be censored. We object to articles like this: "Wanted, a French poodle dog by a man with clipped ears."

3. Clear and concise language must be used.

4. A charge of ten cents will be made for each notice printed. All accounts C. O. D.

5. All notices must be in box 62, A. S. C., by five o'clock each Wednesday.

We hope that the college will speedily avail itself of this truly unexcelled opportunity, for our one aim is to save confusion, and do our humble bit in promoting collegiate efficiency.

FRESHIE'S LETTER TO HER PAL

Dearest "Pal":
I've been so excited and thrilled that I really haven't been able to write a sane letter, but now it's all over, and I'm relieved because it turned out fine. Of course you are crazy to know what is it, but when I do tell you you'll say I'm silly, but so worried over other people's affairs. When you get as starved and hungry for romance as I am, you'll understand, though.

You see it's like this—Hester has been my trouble. She got a letter from a boy in New York saying he was going to telephone her Saturday night. You know I've told you how horrible it is to use this phone, and on Saturday especially. Well, all of a sudden it occurred to me how tragic it would be if he were not able to get her while he had the inclination. But after all I need not have worried, for he did get her, and talked ten and a half minutes. I think they both talked at the same time, too, for it was mighty agreeable to both of them. Next day found Hester's room jammed full of roses, chrysanthemums, etc. Oh! I forgot to tell you it was her birthday, so all her flower garden didn't come from that one him. Here I am pining for one man, and she has dozens—tall ones, fat ones, little ones, thin ones. Now doesn't that defeat you?

But Hester isn't the only lucky girl who gets flowers. I wish you could see Margaret McDade's room. It fairly looks like a wedding. Oh! yes, she has a birthday, too, but it's a new kind to me—where truck loads of flowers come piling in. How do you guess people find out when your birthday is? All I've ever told immediately forgot the date, but even if they would remember they'd send old black-eyed Susans.

Oh, "Pal." I'm so wild to tell you something about Martha Lee, but everybody says I talk and know too much for a Freshman, so I guess I better not tell even you. I'll just give you a wee hint, and that won't be telling, will it? S-h-h. There's a man, closely connected with the faculty—the business manager to be exact—who takes her to football games 'most every week. Oh, she hasn't told me a word, 'cause she says I talk too much to, but I've got a little bird that knows how I love gossip, and this little bird told me everything. He's tall, terribly good looking—oh, I must hush or I'll tell you his name, and then I'd be awful scared of Martha Lee.

"Peggy" Murphy and "Jinks" went down to Peggy's home at Newnan last week-end. Of course they had a gorgeous time and everything was "too good to be true." I can believe that all right, but I refuse to believe that Newnan boys are the "cutest in the world."

My dear, lights are winking. Skinny told me that that was a good way to end your letter when you have given out of news. She ends her letters to — that way, she says, but—

Your own,
"FRESHIE."

P. S. No. 1.—Only six weeks 'till Xmas. It's a wonderful feeling every night to be able to strike one more day from the calendar.

P. S. No. 2.—If you want to give a party let me know, for there are two girls here that I can get to write your list for you. Really Quenelle Harold and Nonnie Pe k are great at it—in fact they do everything but provide the food. Ask them if you want them to help you at any time, about the successful one (they think they had) last Sunday.

P. S. No. 3.—I asked Althea Stephens if that huge box really did have flowers in it, and she just giggled (you know). It was four feet long and thrilling looking!!!

LOCAL ALUMNAE SECRETARY.

Miss Frances C. Markley to Have Office in New Alumnae Building.

For the last two or three years the Alumnae Association has tried to keep a local secretary on the campus for the purpose of receiving and answering letters directed to the Association and attending to any matters that may come up.

This year the Association is very fortunate to have as a secretary Miss Frances Charlotte Markley, who graduated last year.

Just at present she is getting out letters to all members of the Association and she would appreciate it if any one who knows of any girl who has been in college here one year or more, who has married or otherwise been disposed of, would kindly report same to her. Her office is Room 8, Main Building, and her office hours are from eight o'clock to nine thirty A. M. It is quite difficult to keep track of all the girls who come here, and any assistance along this line would be appreciated.

When the new Alumnae Building is finished the Secretary will have a new office there.

FOLIO TRYOUTS TO BE HELD.

Freshmen, Prove Yourselves to Be George Eliots.

It has been said that some are born great, some achieve greatness, and some have greatness thrust upon them. All Freshmen who want their greatness to be of any value to them should get right to work on a short story for tryouts in Folio. The best of these stories handed in will be accepted and those who write the best short stories will become members of Folio, the short story club for Freshmen.

It is indeed an honor to be a member of this Club, and so is well worth trying for. Another important reason for trial in this is that it is an invaluable aid in the English course and may give someone a start to be something really worth while in a literary way. Everyone should at least be able to write in an easy and pleasing style, and so it behooves screaming like some wild Comanche Indian, and they played a great part in the college activities.

In other words, be very happy that you are living in the year nineteen hundred and twenty-one.

REORGANIZATION OF ASSOCIATION OF COLLEGIATE ALUMNAE.

The American Association of College Women is not a new organization, but it is two old organizations combined under a new name. These organizations were the Southern Association of College Women and the Association of Collegiate Alumnae. The American Association of University Women still keeps the ideals and ambitions of these organizations, but besides these it has three new ambitions. Its first aim is to have two hundred thousand of the college graduates of America as members. The second is to keep the Club House that they now have in Washington for its members and to place a Club House in every large city in the world. The Club House in Washington has been a great joy to the Association for the last year or two, and in March they are to move to bigger and better quarters and they expect to get much benefit from it. Their third ambition is a highly-paid Secretary to go over the every Freshman to put on her thinking cap and write on original short story, for have you not always wanted to write something which you could really be proud of? Well, now is the chance of your young lives.

This Club is in charge of and directed by Mrs. Dieckmann, who helps to select the members. She is of great aid to the Club and does much to help the girls who are already in it. She criticises the work and in this way helps the girls to improve themselves.

Freshmen are the only ones admitted into this Club, the Sophomore members remaining in it only until the last of the first semester.

Folio leads up to membership in B. O. Z., and anyone who is a member of Folio stands a good chance of becoming a member of B. O. Z.

The tryouts must be brought to room 63, Inman Hall, by one o'clock on November eighteenth.

ASSOCIATE MEMBERSHIP IN THE ALUMNAE ASSOCIATION.

All Agnes Scott Girls Eligible.

Do you, as a student of Agnes Scott, really love your Alma Mater as much as you pretend to? Would you do almost anything to make your college bigger and better? Actions speak louder than words, you know, and if you really are a true-spirited Agnes Scott girl you have the best opportunity in the world to prove it. It's this: Become an associate member of the Alumnae Association.

Probably most of us have always thought of this Association as a distant, far-off thing of the future, open only to those who have completed the B.A. course. This is not at all true. If you have finished one year of academic work you are just as eligible as a Senior. Even if you do not expect to come back next year you may become an associate member and enjoy all the privileges of the Association, such as membership in the Agnes Scott clubs, etc.

The purpose of this Association is to promote the welfare of the college

TWO PLAYS TO BE GIVEN BY BLACKFRIARS.

All-Star Casts.

The first performance of Blackfriars, which the college community has been anticipating with a great deal of curiosity and even more pleasure, will take place Saturday night, November the twenty-sixth. The plays to be produced are "Old Peabody Pew" and Lady Gregory's "Rising of the Moon." Both plays are decidedly different from anything the Club has given before, and the members of Blackfriars hope that the college community will like them.

Rehearsals are being held almost daily under the enthusiastic supervision of Miss Moses. The casts in the two plays have been asked by the Atlanta Woman's Club to reproduce these plays at Eggleston Hall in Atlanta on the Tuesday after they have been given out here, but no definite plans have been made so far. Such a performance is desirable, because naturally every Agnes Scott student is anxious for Atlanta to realize the ability and enterprise of the various organizations of her Alma Mater.

The cast for "Old Peabody Pew" is:

FILE OF SILHOUETTES IN THE LIBRARY.

If you really want to appreciate your hitherto unforeseen beauty, rush to the Library and look at the pictures in the old annuals. The wonderful puffs of today, the charming shorter skirts and even the style of the sweaters can fully be appreciated, even by the most modest girl on the campus, after she has glanced through the nineteen hundred and two Silhouette.

To read these publications is really an amusing and distracting way to spend our spare (?) seconds. To see our teachers and know how they looked a few years ago. Also, the dignified Seniors of this year, and how they appeared when they were unsophisticated Freshmen. These pictures certainly do make us take a greater interest in life and not feel so downcast.

The athletic side of Agnes Scott was not nearly so fully developed a few years ago, as you can readily see by glancing at the various sports then. The game of hockey was unheard of, or, at least, not organized here at that time. The tennis clubs were of more importance it seems, (I suppose it was considered, in nineteen hundred and two, very, very unladylike to race and tear up and down a field, brandishing a hockey club and

HOCKEY GAMES FOR SATURDAY PROVE EXCITING.

More Cheering Needed.

In the hockey game Saturday, November 5, the Seniors played against the Juniors, and the Sophomores against the Freshmen. Once again the hockey field was the scene of a stubborn combat. In the Senior-Junior game, the Juniors came out victorious with a score of 3 to 0. The first quarter of the Sophomore-Freshman game ended with a score of 1 to 0 in favor of the Freshmen. The audience was wildly excited, and the Freshmen forgot to be "seen and not heard." In the end, however, despite the high hopes of the Freshmen, the Sophomores were the winners. The game ended with a score of 5 to 1.

The spirit shown by the Freshman team this year is admirable, and prophesies future laurels. Among the best players of their team Saturday were Rebecca Burke and Josephine Schuessler, who guarded the left wing valorously. As usual, the three halfbacks of the Sophomore team—Weenona Peck, Augusta Thomas and Nancy Evans—formed an invincible line against which the plucky Freshmen battled in vain. The whole forward line of the Junior team distinguished itself by its splendid playing. Among the "stars" of the Senior team were Ethel Ware, Frances Harper, and Alice Whipple.

LECTURE ASSOCIATION PLANS ANNOUNCED.

to us than anything else we will have this year. The first of these lecturers who will come to us this year is Dr. David M. Robinson. He will give us on November 30 an illustrated lecture on "The Comic and Grotesque in Ancient Literature and Art." Dr. Robinson has traveled and studied extensively and has made explorations and excavations in Asia Minor and Greece, and the slides illustrating his lecture are taken from base paintings.

The next speaker will be Dr. Edward Devine, who will come some time in February. Dr. Devine is the most popular professor of sociology and science in Columbia University, and is now connected with the School of Philanthropy, in New York. He is an expert for cities and communities in associated charities and was in Atlanta in charge of relief work after the fire. Dr. Devine was here last year, and all who heard him then and those who did not will be very much interested in his two lectures "Problems of the Pacific" and "Elijah the Tishbite."

The Lecture Association also hopes to bring Amy Lowell to us this winter. It has been said of her that, "Like Deborah of old," she sings, goes forth to war, and judges. She has also been called America's greatest poet of today, and that she brought into American poetry a new spark.

Another lecturer for this winter will be Dr. Stockard, of Cornell Medical School, who is an authority on harmones. He will tell us of the effect on the body of these obscure glands and will show us that all science is not technical.

In order that Agnes Scott may keep in touch with the world movements, we hope to have Professor Earskin with us some time in the spring. This year is the six hundredth anniversary of the death of Dante, and Professor Earskin tries to make Dante mean more to us than a great name.

If the student body supports this Lecture Association they will be able also to bring us another very worthwhile speaker. It has not been decided yet who this will be, but probably it will be some distinguished foreigner.

All of these lecturers are very worth while and we owe it to Agnes Scott to come in touch with them, because they will mean a great deal to us after we leave school.

The season tickets for this course will be three dollars, whereas if we do not have season tickets each lecture will cost us one dollar, so we all see that it will be to our advantage to have season tickets, and it will also enable the Association to bring these speakers to us.

TWELVE HOURS' EXERCISE.

There is a course which every student on the campus must take year in and year out during her career at Agnes. It is not to be scorned or passed lightly over, but must be pursued with gusto. The twelve hour course in exercise! Who has not gritted her teeth with something resembling anger as she donned baggy bloomers and a pair of flat, dirty, uncomfortable tennis shoes and trotted over to gym? There Miss Wilburn and Miss Randolph forget their usual consideration and actually ask one to jump the "horse" or to hang suspended in the air from the boom. This is followed by a rapid march punctuated by many "wheel rights" and "to the rears." Finally the agony comes to an end, and, breathing relief, the gym class wends its way homeward, happy in the possession of one of their twelve hours exercise. However, after four such periods of trials and tribulations, the unhappy Agnes Scotter still finds herself with eight hours exercise to be taken!

Affairs now develop into a mad rush for tennis courts and a hurried promenading through the dormitories in search of a racquet. Tennis shoes come into evidence again and a vast amount of energy is used in hunting for lost balls and in chasing those which were knocked too far or not far enough. Tennis is not the end of our troubles, but hockey must also be indulged in! The wrinkled bloomers here make their appearance again and the third period of feverish flitting around begins. This probably ends in a broken finger or a skinned knee and the four so laboriously attained in gym.

Now the third period, or that of promenading through the avenues and boulevards of Decatur arrives. Now, it would be fine if one could stroll up to Smith's and eat a chocolate tau; and then, on arriving home, put down an hour's exercise on one's exercise card. But, not so! The walking must be done without intermission for at least an hour at a time.

A TOUR OF THE ALUMNAE HOUSE.

dream and offered $15,000 if the alumnae would raise the rest. They did. On August 15th their dream began to be a reality, for on that day the foundation of the Alumnae Building was laid. There was one condition that the Trustees made, and that was that a committee of six, three from the Trustees and three from the Alumnae Association be appointed. This committee is composed of Mr. J. J. Scott, Dr. Gaines, Mr. Samuel Inman, Mrs. A. C. Guy, '13, F. M. Donaldson, '12, and C. S. Wey, '12.

It's all so wonderful, but there are so many more things needed. Take for instance the bedroom furnishings, in that they have not been arranged for, or the linen. Everybody can help in this great need.

Then about the new tea room. Miss Bishop has a most wonderful plan for maybe opening it from 9:30 to 10:00 at night, just when hunger seizes one the most. There will also be a gift shop in connection with the tea room.

AGNES SCOTT GIRLS PREPARE TO GET THIN.

The reducing craze has struck Agnes Scott! In Rebekah Scott several young ladies, who think they are blessed with too much avoirdupois, stand on their heads, roll on the floor, and perform various other foolish-looking antics. Everybody wants to get thin. If, by chance, there happens to be one string-bean damsel at the college, she is envied, and all declare that she is favored by the gods. The general wail from morning till night is, "Oh, if I were only thin."

Last week the college community was a scene of confusion all because of one Freshman. She merely remarked at mail call that she had been to the reducing class in gym. There was immediately a stampede. All of the husky Hebes wanted to know at what hour the reducing class was held. The poor girl was asked a million questions. Her accounts did not satisfy the mob, so they attacked Miss Randolph. But the chubby ones were disappointed, for they were assured that there was no such thing as a reducing class at A. S. C. The Freshman had exaggerated slightly. She was rather immense and was taking I. G. (individual gym), but I. G. is for those who are not strong enough to take the regular exercise.

Well, we walk for four hours every two weeks whether we want to or not, and at every step we bewail the fact that walking upstairs does not count at all. Nothing could be worse! However, as we turn in at the gate at the end of our last walk we breathe a sigh of relief that for this week we have exercised faithfully for twelve hours. And we never think that we have worried twenty-four while we were doing it!

A. S. C. CLUB OF DECATUR.

plans were discussed for the painting of a portrait of Miss Anna Young. This picture will be placed in the Alumnae Building.

Another idea of the ever active Decatur Club is to present at an early date a play—"Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch." With Miss Emma Jones, whom all the old girls know, as director-in-chief, the drama bids fair to be unusually attractive.

Agnes Scott girls who have graduated hold for Agnes Scott girls who hope to graduate a peculiar charm. It is with greatest interest that we learn of Alumnae activities.

They have some weakness which can be remedied by I. G.—by special exercises. In the same gym class with the Freshman are a few girls who are about as fat as toothpicks.

Agnes Scott does not need a reducing class, even if a large per cent. of the students are slightly over weight. Reducing classes are for middle-aged women who are too old to play tennis, hockey, etc., and for men with bay-windows. Girls are not supposed to try to reduce by taking violent exercise. None of the girls are what people call "fat and forty" yet.

About the best way for the girls to get thin, since there is not a reducing class, is to swim, play tennis, hockey, baseball, hike and study. If a girl studies constantly she will surely lose many pounds. The girls are trying another way, too. Instead of eating the fattening grits and butter, butter and grits, and other heavy foods which the college table offers a bunch of girls are on a strict diet and eat at the tea room. If you want to get thin, and be beautiful, don't ask Miss Randolph to let you join the reducing class—there is no such thing,—but ask the fat ladies about the meals at the tea room.

Requirements for May Day Scenarios

GREEK MYTHS IN DEMAND.

When outsiders hear Agnes Scott spoken of they usually think of May Day. For this is the event of the year that sets Agnes Scott before the public and portrays her artistic and interpretative ability. Back of these, however, must be the story and the plan for the whole fete. This story has not yet been written nor the plan organized. If you like to write or have any idea that could be put into a play you are invited to take part in the "try-outs."

The play is usually in the form of an allegorical myth, which will be set to music by Mr. Dieckmann. You have for material all the best dancers in the college, as many good musicians as you need for the actors and the great outdoors for a stage.

These are the requirements for the try-outs:

- Synopsis of story.
- Main characters.
- Number of groups (and number of people in each).
- Suggestions as to costumes, colors, etc., (if you have any).
- Dramatization of story (episodes, scenes, etc.).
- Due November 26th.
- Additional information may be had from Ruth Keiser. Start your imagination working hard, then combine with your common sense, and you'll be surprised at the results.

Agnes Scott's Delegates Leave for Simmons College

NELL BUCHANAN AND HILDA McCONNELL WILL BRING BACK NEW PLANS FOR AGNES SCOTT.

It is with the greatest pride that we send our two delegates to the Northern Intercollegiate Association Conference. We are proud in one way because we feel that Nell and Hilda are as attractive as any delegates who could be sent, and we are also proud because of the college which they represent. Agnes Scott is one of the three Southern colleges which will be represented at this Conference in Boston, Randolph-Macon and Sophie Newcomb being the other two. The Conference is to be held at Simmons College this week.

After the Conference is over Nell and Hilda will return from New York by boat and will probably not arrive until Thanksgiving. It is needless to say that our wishes go out for them that they will have a glorious time and come back with still bigger plans for our Alma Mater.

THE SURE AND ACTIVE ROAD TO HEALTH
TAKE PLENTY OF EXERCISE

ALL WORK AND NO PLAY MAKES JACK A SICK BOY.

To be "healthy, wealthy and wise" we should run on an "eight hour" schedule.

Eight Hours of Work
Eight Hours of Play
Eight Hours of Sleep
Make a Healthful Day.

Do we, in college, see to it that we have eight hours of play and eight hours of sleep? (We don't have to see to it that we have eight hours of work—oh! if eight hours were all!!!) If we don't, isn't it time for us to begin those things which will make for the greatest health possible?

Whenever possible sleep alone, because greater rest is secured that way by not being cramped for space to stretch.

Sleep is better than medicine.

A MATTER OF HISTORY.

Man was an outdoor animal in the primitive days. He lived, worked and slept in the open air. Man's skin was exposed to the open air and he ate hard fruits, nuts, roots and raw things that required thorough chewing. As a result, man was happy, healthy and strong. Soon it came about, in the gradualness of time, that prepared foods replaced raw foods, heavy clothing replaced light clothing, and indoor living and working replaced open air living and working. Then man began to lose his resistance and hardihood. Our steam or furnace-heated houses of today are very far removed from the open caves or even tents. We are living under the disadvantage of houses, so let's overcome it in a measure by staying outdoors as much as possible.

PREVENTION IS WORTH MORE THAN CURE.

We've often heard it said that "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," and it certainly applies in the case of health.

- Good Health requires plenty of air and sunshine.
- Good Health requires plenty of exercise and proper rest.
- Good Health requires plenty of proper food and clothing.
- Good Health requires plenty of work and of play.

Man has tried to fit himself to his living conditions and has failed. Good hygiene says living conditions must be fitted to man.

Added interest in the University of Georgia's $1,000,000 endowment campaign has been created by a message from President Harding in which the national executive strongly endorses the movement.

IT TAKES ALL SORTS OF THINGS TO KEEP THE WORLD HEALTHY AND WELL.

Some of us who feel we have no talents which we can use for the good of people in general, will be glad to hear of some things we can do. We can help see to it that in our city or country district there is a good food supply and distribution, good working conditions and factory inspection, good houses, good schools, a clean milk supply, pure food laws and good food for children, a working, efficient department of health, good play space and good street cleaning and good garbage disposal.

If we all pull together, we can have a healthy, happy world.

PROGRAM FOR HEALTH WEEK.

The week of November 27th to December 3rd has been set aside as Health Week. Each morning in chapel a part of the time will be given to the subject. Dr. Gaines has graciously consented to this and he is very much interested in the movement. Miss Randolph is to talk along lines of health at Y. W. service on Sunday. Then there will be a humorous debate one night and a health playlet another night. A set of tableaux will be the program another time and best of all will be the progressive demonstration party on Friday night. Dr. Sweet and Miss Randolph will give a lecture on mental health some time during the week, which will be very interesting. The meetings will be short, snappy, memorable and worthy, and no one can afford to miss them.

FIFTEEN RULES OF HEALTH.

Turkey and Cranberry Sauce at Agnes Scott

HOCKEY GAMES AND EVENING DRESSES PROVE EXCITING.

Thanksgiving! That first holiday! The box from home! Turkey!

Again comes Thanksgiving to Agnes Scott. The old girls know what that means—know that, besides the traditions hallowed since the days of the Pilgrim Fathers, Aggie observes certain cherished customs of her own. All of us admit that Thanksgiving celebrated at home is the jolliest of all, but the old girls know that the festivities at Aggie run it a dangerously close second.

Each Freshman, no doubt, has already written wistfully to mother that the turkey won't taste right without father to carve it. Reviewing in nostalgic retrospect the joys of last Thanksgiving with its bustling family reunion, she longs gloomily to be home. Aunt Hester will be there with the twins, and Uncle Art, and Cousin Edwin. But remember, my dears, that Great Uncle Abner will also be present with his dyspepsia in full swing and his sour disapproval of short skirts. We really shouldn't talk thus profanely of anything connected with home, except in order that you may know that Thanksgiving at Aggie has its advantages.

Excitement will begin on that notable Thursday around 10 o'clock, when the final hockey game of the season will be pulled off. Think football games are thrilling? Wait till you see Aggie's teams struggle for the hockey title! Every class will be out with flying colors on the field to yell for its side. The question of the hour is, who will win the silver cup?

After lunch (which, rumor has it, is to be a sketchy affair in view of the culinary marvel to come), some will take a hike—a jolly long hike through red-brown woods where leaves are swirling down. Others—those born under lucky stars or with proverbial silver spoons in their mouths—will don furs and yellow chrysanthemums and newest hats to go to the football game. Tech-Aur-burn!

But six-thirty is the magic hour, for it brings a real, honest-to-goodness Thanksgiving dinner. There's "capon and pudding and cranberry sauce" and everything that's nice. The gloomiest Freshman brightens and forgets her heart-rending homesickness. Why, the turkey's as brown as Aunt Cindy's at home, and the sauce looks identically like that mother used to make! The tables themselves, conscious of their huge importance, verily shine with festivity.

And as for the girls—why you can't tell who's who, so glitteringly dressed up they all are. That girl looks familiar, but you can't seem to place her in evening gown. When a girl appears every day in middy and muddy tennis shoes, it's disconcerting for her suddenly to blossom into satin or taffeta or pale georgette. The change from "honest, mean habitments" to celestial robes, as it were, is so alarmingly sudden! Eventually, however, everybody grows accustomed to the thrill of dining in evening gown and consumes almost as much food as though the father were piling her plate high at every opportunity.

Such is Thanksgiving at A. S. C. But wait! The best is yet to come. Late that night is a midnight feast—the proverbial kind you used to read about in "Betty Wales" and "When Patty Went to College." You used to think, before you came to college yourself, that they were a regular nightly event, along with making fudge in the wash basin. This Thanksgiving feast comes up to the requirements of all the best authorities. The unutterable ecstasy of

A LETTER OF APPLICATION A LA CHINESE.

MOST HONORED SIR:
Understanding that there are several hands wanted in your honor's department, I beg to offer you my hand. As to my adjustments, I appeared before the matric examination at October but failed, the reason of which I shall describe. To begin with, my writing was illegible. This was due to climatic reasons for I having come from a warm to a cold climate, found my fingers stiff and very disobedient to my wishes. Further, I had received a great shock to my mental system in the shape of the death of my only fond brother. Besides, most honored sir, I beg to state that I am in very uncomfortable circumstances, being the sole means of support of fond brother's seven issues, consisting of three adults and four adulteresses, the latter being the pain of my existence owing to my having to support two of my own wives as well as their issue, of which, by God's misfortune, the feminine gender predominates.
If, by wonderful good fortune, these few lines meet with your benign kindness and favorable turn of mind, I, the poor menial, shall ever pray for your long life and prosperity, as well as your posthumous olive branches.
Most sincerely yours,

OUR ADVERTISERS.

In common with most other publications of its kind The Davidsonian is largely dependent upon advertisements for its income. It is the men who advertise in its columns, then, who really make the paper a possibility and the student body is in a real sense indebted to them. It is of this indebtedness that we would speak.
No matter how ardent a supporter of Davidson a man may be, he cannot reasonably be expected to continually advertise in a paper which can bring no results. However, if we can show him that his advertising really pays, it will be no trouble to retain his advertisement. We believe that advertising in The Davidsonian does pay and we are calling on the student body to help us prove this fact. Here is a sure yet simple way of showing your college spirit and supporting your college paper.
Notice the advertisements in the columns of The Davidsonian and patronize its advertisers. When in Charlotte do not go to the store, restaurant or hotel which refuses to advertise in your paper, but to the man who does. By letting it be known that you are a Davidson man and that you come in response to space taken in The Davidsonian, you can prove that his advertisement was worth the

QUEENS COLLEGE EXTENDS HONOR SYSTEM.

Charlotte, N. C., Oct. 17.—The student council has been busy getting the Honor System installed and in working order. All of the boarding students have signed the pledge cards, which carries the system into the class room as well as on the campus and in the dormitories. Similar pledges will be signed by the day students within the next week.—Davidsonian

THE Y. W. C. A. BUDGET.

Many of us do not realize what a wonderful work our Agnes Scott Y. W. C. A. is doing. We know that it provides many helpful and interesting lectures, suggestions as to choice of vocation, many good times, etc. We feel that we could not get along without the Y. W. C. A. on the campus. Yet we do not often realize how extensive is its work.
Tuesday morning in chapel its work was presented to us and an opportunity given to every member to support this splendid organization. The Y. W. C. A. has always depended on voluntary subscriptions. The money might have been added to the general student budget, but the Association felt that it would mean more to each girl if she contributed of her own free will. In other words, as Dr. Erdmann explained, we are to be stewards who shall take advantage of an opportunity. The members of the Y. W. C. A. have always responded generously to the presentation of the budget and this year, we are sure, is to be no exception.
The budget consists of the expenses of the Association for the year for both local and general needs. Here in college each department of the Y.

W. has various expenses which have to be met, and each department is helpful in its own way. For example, some of the social service fund is used for a summer school scholarship.

Beside the local expenses the Y. W. C. A. has a general fund which is far-reaching indeed, even to Korea, where some of the money goes to help support a missionary. Miss Emily Wynne, an old Agnes Scott girl, is aided in her work by the girls back home. We also have a part in keeping up a Foyer in South America. There are seven colleges in the Orient to whose support American students contribute $100,000. (Do not be alarmed; we give only 1/4,000 of it.)

Nearer home we have Nacoochee, a mountain school, in which we are all interested. The budget assists girls to go to Blue Ridge, and another provision helps girls through college. For several years this college loan fund has been growing, for each year $50.00 is added. The sum is now $300.00. The Association each year brings to us a speaker who can talk to us about Christian fundamentals. The National Y. W. C. A. dues are provided for and a fund for sending delegates to conventions. Beside these we have an improvement fund. This is to be used, probably, for adding to the attractiveness of the cabinet room, day students' rest room, etc. Last of all the emergency fund must be set aside for the unexpected, which always happens.

The budget is as follows:

Local Expenses.
Finance Department	$10.00
Membership Department	7.00
Publicity Department	25.00
Religious Department	20.00
Local Department	75.00
World Fellowship	43.00

Loan Fund	50.00

THANKSGIVING JOYS

HOW MISS AGNES SPENDS THE DAY.

To some Thanksgiving means a delicious turkey dinner; to others, a football game; and to others yet, a gala holiday in which to meet friends and to take in the town, so to speak. What does it mean to you? How are we Hottentots going to celebrate?

Well, to begin with, we start celebrating the night before. The proctors won't be running around in the corridors and to various rooms, looking wise and sternly giving the warning "sh-sh." Just so we do not wake up the faculty (if they happen to be asleep), all will be well. So with rules off for the night before, Thanksgiving ought to begin better than any day yet.

But in all our festivities let's not forget the significance of the day. Let us prove worthy of our Pilgrim ancestors, who gave the first Thanksgiving feast many years ago in New England with the Indians as guests.

With this fundamental idea in mind, we will spend our first holiday well. Everybody is going to be happy and gay. After we have sung a great deal and worked off some of our high spirits, as it were, we will be quite ready to dispose of the turkey, Thanksgiving's typical bird. Yes, everyone will be prepared. Just think how attractive the dining room will look with everyone in evening attire; and that turkey and dressing full of oysters, and cranberries, and celery—but what's the use to tell you all about a Thanksgiving feast? Anyhow, as a grand finale, there will be Charlotte Russe! What could be sweeter?

And after that we'll all go over to the gym. There you will hear music that will not allow your pedal extremities to remain still. Nor do you want them to do so. Can't you hear that drum right now, coming out strong on the accented beats? From the piano will come familiar, popular tunes that will range from "The Sweetheart of Sigma Chi" and "The Rosary" to "All By Myself" and the "Wang-Wang Blues." Then, too, everyone will be happy, so everything will be as the old song says:

"It's always good weather
When pals get together."

After several hours thus spent, we'll all go home realizing that we've never had a better time. And we'll be ready to get up the next morning with renewed vim and with the determination to work like trojans. The best part about this anticipated day is that it is not a vague, misty dream of the distant future, but a real sure enough day, which comes this week.

HAVE A CHURCH HOME.

Here at Agnes Scott every girl looks forward to Christmas and the first of June, and perhaps the spring holidays. For these holidays signify a time in which we go to the place longed for all during the year here—namely, home.

There are many kinds of homes. But one that we should all have in mind here at school is the church. Therefore one and all should affiliate with some church, either in Atlanta or Decatur. The church with which we affiliate should be our church home.

Don't think of this church affiliation as a bore. For really it isn't. Just think of all the advantages. In the first and foremost, if you go to your affiliated church as regularly as you do at home, why think of all the good people you can meet. And who knows what the outcome of the acquaintances may be? Perhaps some invitations out for dinner or supper, or even for the week-end. And think of the many people these invitations could come from.

Then if you affiliate with a church you don't feel lost when you go to a city church on Sunday. There is a feeling that you belong in that church as much as anyone else. And that is a feeling we all like to have—of belonging.

FRESHIE'S LETTER TO HER PAL

Dear "Alumna":
I really haven't a thing to write you this week, for everybody has been too busy to allow romance to enter into their schedule, and you know romance is my favorite topic in writing. I, myself, have been as busy as old Santa Claus, so haven't even had a chance to pry around.

V. Ordway, however, in spite of her millions of notes, hasn't been too busy to talk to someone in Anniston. Why, Saturday night I was quite calmly walking down the steps when somebody—I didn't know who it was at the time—came rushing by me at such a speed that her breeze nearly knocked me down. I just knew something awful had happened, so I started after her, running as fast as my faithful legs would carry me. But by the time I got there Virginia was already firmly launched in a deep conversation with somebody. Happy? Ye gods, if it had been physically possible, I do believe that girl would have spun on her head like a nickel top. I thought she rated joy over a long distance call from "a fine friend," but next morning when a special arrived from the same creature—well, I just fell out. What on earth do you reckon he had to say that took a telephone call and a special?

Yes, Saturday night was very prosperous for more persons than one. Why, Vic Howie was sporting the best looking man around the dining room Saturday night. Everybody at her table made desperate efforts to vamp him, but shucks! it didn't do any good for any of them, for Vic had too much sense than to bring a man among so many susceptible girls unless he was mighty well trained.

You remember Margaret Colville, don't you? Do you know that she has a man so head over heels in love with her that he never even thinks of writing a plain letter—it's specials, specials, specials—it seems that "Jessie" just never gets tired of writing. I hear that Margaret never gets tired of reading "Jessie's" specials, either. I don't blame her a bit, why I'd almost cut a class to get a special.

My dear, you remember the Cotillion Club that started last year? Well, it got terribly active last week and took in twenty-five new members—and I, simple little Freshie—was one of the twenty-five. I felt like the doughnut hole when I danced before that committee of voters. My feet were as big as elephants and I did so want to put them in my sweater pockets. It may be my imagination, but anyway I think they looked at me harder than anybody else, just 'cause I'm a Freshman and can't help myself. Some of them nearly turned a "tumble-sets" to watch my feet, and some nearly went cross-eyed trying to follow every movement, but I don't care for I got in, and feel bold enough now to even try out for Blackfriars.

Well, alumna dear, I must go to meet the committee—oh, yes, it's all the style to go there and—talk.

Ever
Your "Freshie."

SHIP FUND HEADQUARTERS. FROM STUDENTS FRIEND- 129 East 52nd Street, New York City.

New York, Nov. 14.—The place which American students are now taking in facing and helping solve world problems is shown in this statement of Conrad Hoffman, of Geneva, Switzerland, on the work being done by the European student relief forces with funds contributed by college students of the United States.

"They have given a new grip on life," said Mr. Hoffman, "to 70,000 students who, seeing their own aspirations shattered, were losing faith in a righteous and just social order. That European students wield an influence with their governments such as has never been enjoyed by those in America is an established fact. The feeling of gratitude toward the students of America established through this relief movement will certainly be a powerful instrument in promoting better understanding between nations."

The relief work was carried on last year in one hundred and twenty colleges, enrolling 250,000 students in these eleven countries: Asia Minor; Austria; Czecho-Slovakia; Estonia; France; Germany; Hungary; Latvia; Poland; Switzerland and Turkey. Russia will be included this winter.

"In Prague," said Mr. Conrad, "nearly 7,000 students must be given one meal a day and almost as many need help with boots and clothing. Two Czech doctors have recently been added to the relief staff and a clinic has been opened in the studentsky domov which takes care of all who cannot pay for medical help. During three months 780 have passed through this clinic and of these 35 per cent. were tubercular. This is due to undernourishment and bad housing.

"This year the sugar crop, which is the government's greatest asset in Czecho-Slovakia, is a failure, and as a consequence there is great depreciation in currency and great unemployment."

Students are in a bad plight in Austria also. There are 29,000 students in Vienna, many of them Hungarians, Czechs, Poles and Ukrainians. Most of them are very poor. About 6,400 were helped by the European student relief, but more are in need. The clothing situation is especially bad. Last year there were 300 special cases—students who needed special rations of nourishing food. This number will be increased to 800 this winter.

During the terrible massacres of A FIRM STAND NEEDED.

Young wife: "My husband likes your cooking, Delia, but he wants to know if you can make your toast a trifle thinner."

Delia: "Tell him no, ma'am, from both of us; why, if we'd be givin' in to him now, in six months there'd be no livin' with him."

1914 in Turkey and Asia Minor at least half of the students lost either a parent or some relative. These countries have been continually at war since 1909, so there is great poverty. The colleges give tuition free to students aided by the European relief on condition that they do a certain amount of work, and money is advanced to help the students with their clothing. The living conditions are terrible and the cold is severe, for houses are not heated.

Since Russia has opened her doors to relief the desperate situation of students there has become known. Every one of them is in need and everybody is doing manual labor. The soviet government allows some students a ration of one pound of bread and four pounds of meat or fish a month, but no student ever gets his full portion. Proven need has been the only criterion for this student relief work, which has been administered impartially without regard to race, nationality or creed. Of it Frank A. Vanderlip, the economist and financier, has said, "No other work is so necessary to rehabilitate civilization;" and Secretary Herbert Hoover, "No greater service can be performed than keeping alive the institutions through which the social recovery of Europe must come."

The European student relief work will be continued this winter with the $500,000 Student Friendship Fund which the students of America are now raising with campaigns in every college and university in the United States. It is the answer of American college students to the challenge of internationalism.

ALUMNAE NEWS.

Miss Mary Wallace Kirk, of Tusculumbia, Alabama, is here on an extended visit. As we all know, perhaps, she is President of the Agnes Scott Alumnae Association. She was at Agnes Scott before school started this fall to help with plans for the Alumnae Building and attend to other duties as president of the Association. She is here now on a pleasure trip chiefly, and we hope to keep her until some time in December. It is quite fitting that the President of the Alumnae Association will be one of the first people to stay in the Alumnae House. She will also enjoy the Thanksgiving house warming.

Emily Hutter (Stewart), a graduate of 1921, visited in Decatur last week. She came over to speak to her friends at Agnes Scott.

Sarah Fulton, who graduated last year, was at Agnes Scott last week.

FRITZ LEIBER.

When you have been boning and boning over the subject you hate the most or (perhaps I had better say love the least), when you feel as if just one more hour over that huge volume in the library will be your finish; when you worked, or maybe failed to work, psych experiments on yourself, till you see "after-images" of all your deeds of the day, haunting the hours of the night; then isn't it a grand and glorious feeling just to turn loose for an hour or so and forget it all? Isn't it nice then to pretend that your notes aren't behind, to make believe that you're not swamped under collateral readings, and, dear as she is to our hearts, to forget old Aggie for a while? Or perhaps it would be nice to take Aggie along and give her a glimpse of the world of real romance.

That's just what some of us did last week when we went to see Fritz Leiber in his Shakespearean roles at the Atlanta. Any of us who saw him play the lover as Romeo (and who accidentally have heard some German student mention the subject too) will testify that he surely deserves his name of Leiber. We actually heard romantic sighs and probably shed a tear for lovely Juliet, with the prosaic world of realities left behind us. We held our breath with a thrill so real that we almost lost that breath too, while we watched Leiber play Iago, the crafty villain, neither were many of us ashamed to weep for poor Desdemona when we felt the cunning and cruelty of Iago's villainy as Mr. Leiber showed it to us.

In fine we forgot all about this twentieth century and our college days and became for an hour the heroines of Shakespeare's day—ladies loved by knights of old. But it was not just for that hour that the thrill lasted. Shakespeare's genius is too great for that and Fritz Leiber, though he may be still a young actor and not the deepest of tragedians, played his parts so well that in Shakespeare's lines he gave us a gift that we carried back to our books with us. Why actually we found those dry old volumes a little interesting! What had happened? Mr. Leiber must have made us each a gift of a pair of the rose-colored glasses of romance that show us the fun and the beauty and the thrills right here at A. S. C. Perhaps Aggie got a glimpse of that world of real romance and took it home with her to try it out in practice.

IT SEEMS TO US THAT:

Knees (see latest fashions) are gone but not forgotten.

ONE WAY FRIENDS.

In every city there are one-way streets. In other words, thoroughfares where traffic in one direction, only, is allowed. Had you ever stopped to think that there are one-way friends just as there are streets?

Some fellows are always asking their friends to carry their laundry to town for them. Yet when the same friends want them to return the favor they are always overloaded or are not going in the direction of the laundry.

Some boys borrow money off their room-mates and others. Let friend room-mate get hard up and want to borrow some and the borrower is broke or has a use for what cash he has.

Thus it goes. I could name numerous examples of how friendship on the part of some folks has the one-way signal flying at all times.

It might be wise for the readers to take stock of themselves after reading this and determine whether or not they are of the species described.

If you are, there is no better time than the present to make of your life a both-way traffic, give and receive.—The Oglethorpe Petrel.

Snappy Hockey Games on Saturday

SOPHOMORES AND JUNIORS TIE FOR FIRST PLACE.

It takes a great deal of courage to defy Jack Frost on these cold, wintry mornings. But Friday morning, November 11, bright and early (or is it bright at 6:20?) the Juniors and Sophomores again met on the hockey field. If they started out stiff with the cold they soon limbered up, and before the game was finished they fairly radiated warmth and enthusiasm. The Junior forward line played unusually well, breaking successfully through the Sophomore defense. The Sophs stiffened in the last quarter, making their two only goals then. The Juniors were the winners, with a score of 4 to 2.

The following morning, Saturday, despite the cold, there was another game between the Freshmen and the Seniors. Both teams played with "pep" that soon put an end to the chattering of teeth and trembling of knees. The Seniors won the snappy contest with a score of 4 to 1.

The game on Friday morning was the first defeat of the Sophomores, leaving them so far tied with the Juniors for first place, each team having lost one game to the other. The Seniors hold second place, and the Freshmen last.

DAY STUDENT ACTIVITIES.

The day students held their fourth hike on Thursday afternoon, November 17th, at 2:15. There were about twenty present. Although there has been some trouble in finding a time convenient for most of the day students interested in hiking, yet there has always been a jolly bunch for every hike, and many of the girls are hoping for numerals.

The day student dancing class on Monday afternoon at 4:15 seems to be progressing very successfully.

About thirty girls are taking part. We wish to thank Miss Randolph for undertaking this new venture, which has made it possible for the day students to look forward to May Day with the expectation of possible participation.

Gift Shop in Tea Room

THAT PRESENT FOR MOTHER CAN BE FOUND THERE.

Agnes Scott has signed her Declaration of Independence! Under the guidance of the Alumnae Association she has freed herself forever from her bondage to Atlanta stores during holiday time; from the tyranny of the motormen whose horrid old street cars simply crawl along when there's only five minutes left in which to reach the campus; from the boredom of clinging to car straps after a tiresome day shopping, when you've tramped all over town without finding that elusive "different" gift you've planned to give mother. For Agnes Scott has a holiday gift shop all her very own. Down in the Tea Room (is there any Agnes Scott girl who needs further direction?) you can do your Christmas shopping while you are munching an ice cream cone or drinking hot chocolate. There are going to be handmade collars, cuffs and vests—the very things you've been looking for for Mary Ann; handmade paper dolls that will cause little sister to squeal with delight; and all sorts of hand-painted articles which will rejoice your soul and at the same time be reasonable in price. Furthermore, as you buy, you may also know that your pennies will return to you fourfold. For will they not be invested in that pride of Agnes Scott, the Anna Young Alumnae House, which is going to contain that long-anticipated new tea room?

Go, look and order your Christmas gifts now from the samples which will be displayed on the tea room counter.

TEAM WORK IN HOCKEY.

"United we stand, divided we fall."

Must we confine this old and well-tried motto to international policies and world issues, or may we not stretch it to apply to Agnes Scott in general, and to hockey team-work in particular? Have you ever just happened to notice it's the united eleven that gains the victory? The team which is one in spirit, one in aim, and one in play is bound to be successful. Perhaps it may not be composed of the most brilliant individual players, nor even the swiftest and most dashing of goal defenders, but if that good old team-work is present, then the rest is easy. If every player realizes that she is merely a unit of the whole—a very important unit, of course—and if she is confident that in every play she has the individual support of the team, then most of the blunders and fumbles that take up the precious minutes of the last half when the score is tied and you're dying to win, can be avoided. You'll see fewer fouls, have fewer penalties, and fewer accidents if you "get together" and "stick together" through the whole fray.

And then, too, all good, well-organized team-work is simply a type of true sportsmanship, for the ideal has been reached in athletics when we have a team of strong individual players—strong in their technique of the game of course, but especially strong enough to sacrifice their desire for personal glory for the good of the team. Reach that ideal in your hockey games. "Pull hard" together for the team and you'll find that you'll be more than successful. Take as your watchword on the field—"In union there is strength."

Dr. Erdmann at Agnes Scott

LARGE AUDIENCES HEAR HIM SPEAK.

Very few people would be surprised if they discovered that a professor in a college for men should understand young men perfectly, but it is indeed a novelty to find that that same man understands the hearts and minds of girls. Perhaps that is why we love Dr. Erdmann so.

More than one girl had pictured to herself the back work she would make up in the extra hour the lights were left on during Dr. Erdman's lectures, but the back work of each one who attended the Sunday night talk is still undone. He fascinated his audience by his interesting delivery, the lucidity of his lecture, and his charm of manner. Each girl who heard his first lecture attended as many of the others as possible—and it was usually possible.

Best of all was the message he brought both in his talks and conferences. Many girls took advantage of the conferences and the opportunity to discuss religious questions with the prominent divine.

On Tuesday night of his stay at Agnes Scott, the Y. W. C. A. gave a reception in Rebekah Lobby, where every girl had the chance to meet Dr. Erdmann personally.

Blackfriar Play to Be Presented Saturday

TO BE GIVEN IN ATLANTA ALSO FOR WOMAN'S CLUB.

Have you ever been "in" a real play? Don't you know there's no other thrill except commencement equal to it? If you haven't had a part, ever, and are craving an actress' career, don't fail to come to the Blackfriar plays Saturday night, when Agnes Scott's dramatic ability, as a whole, will be seen. For the Blackfriars have launched an innovation into the sea of drama, by which the laity, so to speak, will be given a chance to display talent. We are forbidden to reveal the means by which this will be done, so the only way to find out is to "come and see." Therefore, don't forget Saturday night, at 8:30.

At this time the Blackfriars are going to give us two short plays, Kate Douglas Wiggin's "The Old Peabody Pew," and "The Rising of the Moon," by Lady Gregory. Almost everyone knows and loves the first of these, and will immensely enjoy seeing it. Although "The Rising of the Moon" is not so widely known, it is bound to be interesting for the very good reason that the author is an Irish woman of unusual charm, and with a deep understanding of her nation.

MY LITTLE SIN.

Will you forget my little sin,
And let me in?
It was a trifling thing, and slight,
And yet it whispers in the night
And makes my soft green days less bright.

Ah, will you let me in?

A bold, bad, daring fault, and deep,
Breaks not my sleep.
But this—this is a shallow shame,
A petty word, scarce fit for blame,
A little, biting, burning flame,
To sting and leap.

Your eyes may say you do not know
What hurt me so.
But if you open wide the door,
Then I shall enter as before,
And that small sin, my own no more,
Will turn and go.

So won't you fling your closed door wide and shut my little sin outside?

HELP OTHER STUDENTS THROUGH IT

Vol. VII AGNES SCOTT COLLEGE, DECATUR, GA., TUESDAY, DECEMBER 7, 1921 No. 10

Student Friendship Fund

129 East 52nd St., New York.
 "He who would study now must be a hero."
 An observer of Russian students living as they are today wrote this, addressing the students of American schools and universities on present conditions in Europe. In Russia today it is not so much a question whether a young man or woman desires an education as whether he can endure the struggle against starvation and the political conditions which decide whether he is to be "free" or not.

"Conditions are now more difficult than last year," writes Conrad Hoffman, executive of European student relief work. "There is little hope of firewood for either hostels or private lodgings, for it has not been collected during the summer, and probably many students will be left without any food ration, particularly junior students."

In Moscow a food ration was set for students last fall. The second term it was reduced fifty per cent. and the following two months only bread and fish were received. Money was received every two months in the autumn term; every four months in the second term; and withdrawn completely the last term. The original food ration included thirty pounds of bread; twenty-nine pounds of potatoes; seven pounds of cereal and five pounds of meat or fish. The relief commission estimates that the minimum standard on which a student can live and study is forty-five pounds of bread; thirty pounds of potatoes; ten pounds of cereal and seven pounds of meat.

The regulations on admittance of new students in Russian universities this fall includes first the "workers" (Continued on page 4, column 4).

ALUMNAE PLAY

Chapel May Have To Be Enlarged.

We take a pride in being proud of our alumnae. Moreover, they're proud of themselves. They have a right to be. An alumna herself told me that the very best play of last year was produced by the alumnae. The same alumna told me that the play this year will even surpass the one of last year.

This play is to be given the night of December the tenth. It is to be "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," dramatized by Miss Emma Jones, of the class of 1918. Everyone has spent happy hours reading the book and now we are to have the pleasure of seeing it cleverly produced by the members of the Decatur branch of the Alumnae Association.

The cast of characters tickles our fancy as much as the play. Miss Louise Ware, of Decatur, Ga., is to be Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch. Great things are expected of Mr. Lewis Johnson in the role of Jimmy Wiggs. Miss Wilburn, as Billy Wiggs, will show us that she can do other things than teach us to "deep breathe" and rise up on our toes. Miss Frances Charlotte Markley will give play to her native wit in the portrayal of Asia Wiggs. Mrs. Mary Ellen Harvey Newton, in spite of her married estate, will make a very childish Europena. Miss Emma Jones, who has dramatized the familiar story, will be Australia. Miss Janef Preston will make a very nervous Miz Hazy. Our curiosity is aroused as to just how Miss Fanny McCaa will be able to portray one-legged Chris. Miss Isabel Randolph, who was once in a play coached by Maude Adams, and has an interesting friendship with that famous actress (for further particulars, see Miss Randolph), will be Pete. Miss Cousins will have the role of Miss Lucy, and Mr. Samuel Guerry Stukes will play opposite her as Mr. Bob.

The scene will be laid in Mrs. Wiggs' home, the Cabbage Patch, Louisville, Kentucky.

HELP OTHER STUDENTS TO GO TO SCHOOL A WHOLE YEAR IN COMFORT BY SUBSCRIBING TO THE STUDENT FRIENDSHIP FUND

Student Friendship Fund

Headquarters Southern Area,
 410 Palmer Building,
 Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 3, 1921.

Dear Fellow-Student:
 A letter from Dr. Mott has gone to the president of your institution telling how the World's Student Christian Federation is trying this autumn to raise a contribution for the relief of European students. Letters have been sent by Miss Blanchard and Mr. Porter to the Y. M. and Y. W. organizations throughout the country regarding the student friendship fund; and you have doubtless received by now a sample outfit of the printed matter to be used in the campaign. Most schools and colleges will raise their part of the fund, in cash, during November. The work should be completed, if possible, and reports in by December the first.

As far as practicable the campaign should be carried on by your own college people, with the help of the printed matter sent you from the area office. Additional supplies of literature can be secured from this office on request. The work is being undertaken with the utmost economy; a dollar saved here will mean from five dollars upward when it reaches the half-starved students of Europe. Enlist as your speakers any students or faculty members who have been in Europe recently or who are notable in the community for their grasp of international affairs.

The Student Friendship fund is not to be placed on the basis of competitive giving. No quotas have been assigned. After a clear presentation of the distressing needs of the European student class, the campaign team will solicit gifts from faculty and students. If you should want a suggestion about the amount your institution might expect to raise, we should say this: It is hoped no school or college will give less this fall than it gave for the student friendship fund of 1917, and that every student will give at least the

Calendar for December

December holds for us many surprises. Although our minds immediately jump to holidays, there are several intervening pleasures which will help us keep our equilibrium until the 20th comes. The list of interesting things which are to happen is as follows:

December 1st—Dr. Robinson's lecture. Dr. Robinson is one of our great celebrities, and gave the first of the series of lectures which we are to enjoy throughout the year. Dr. Robinson is an archeologist of much note and Agnes Scott considers herself quite fortunate in having him.

Still another event came off the evening of the first. A health pageant was presented by the Health Committee. This was quite entertaining and sustained the reputation of the amusing lectures given by this committee in the earlier part of this week.

Dec. 3rd—Cotillion Club dance. This was one of the most attractive and entertaining parties of the season. An orchestra came out from town, punch was served, and of course there was quite an array of beautiful clothes to complete the program for a real party.

Dec. 10th—Alumnae play. Those who saw the alumnae play last year will need no second invitation to attend any production given by the alumnae. When I tell you that Mr. Stukes will figure as leading man, you will be sure that this play can speak for itself.

Dec. 12th. The science organization will have its first meeting. As to the secrets of the new organization on our campus you will have to learn them from some one else. Anything which relates to Miss McDougall or Mrs. Rhothard will, of course, be worth hearing about.

Dec. 18th—Choral Society presents the "Messiah." Then, on that last Sunday before Christmas, there will be no use in trying to keep your spirits down because only two days more and the National Headquarters, 129 East 52nd St., New York, October 19, 1921.

My Dear Association President:
 Cold, hungry, weary with years of insufficient food, bodily strain and disease, their moral and spiritual reserve lowered by the isolation of the suspicion and prejudice which surrounds the countries of Middle Europe, the men and women who were midway in their studies and preparation for professional life when the war broke out, are attempting to finish their work and put their training at the disposal of their countries.

Last year the students of twenty-six countries united their gifts to the sum of $600,000 to help the students and professors of the eleven neediest countries of Central Europe, bringing relief to 70,000 men and women in 120 universities.

Now we must go forward for another year. To put the Student Friendship Fund before American student bodies will provide an immediate and practical expression of good will which will be of immense significance to the moral and spiritual recovery of the world. Your representatives discussed this fund at summer conferences, and the student committee has had resolutions from all parts of the country urging us to go forward. We ought to proceed at once; winter in Europe will not wait; the World's Student Christian Federation must carry on its work of relief. We have, therefore, in co-operation with the Y. M. C. A.'s, proceeded to organize the Friendship Fund.

Dr. John R. Mott has written the president of your institution in regard to this matter. Student Y. M. C. A. leaders have also received word of these plans, and may I ask that you immediately confer with the Y. M. C. A., if there is a Y. M. C. A. in your institution, and faculty members to arrange a meeting of representatives of the entire college from which a committee may be organized to plan for the presentation of this appeal.

Dr. David M. Robinsons Lectures at Agnes Scott

THE GREEKS HAD FUNNY BONES.

Because of the very delightful lectures given by Dr. David M. Robinson, of Johns Hopkins, on last Wednesday evening and Thursday morning, the Lecture Association is congratulating itself on the success of this, its first venture this term, and has hopes that the other lectures in the series will be enjoyed as much.

On Thursday night Dr. Robinson's subject was "The Grotesque in Greek and Roman Art," and he exhibited more than a hundred lantern slides to prove that centuries ago Greece had a funny bone and Rome an almost over-developed sense of the ridiculous. Most of these slides were made from drawings on vases and vessels. Dr. Robinson said that the love of burlesque is deep-seated in human nature. The Greeks and Romans did not have comic supplements or humorous magazines, so they vented their love of the ludicrous in caricature.

Most of us were surprised to discover that the ancient philosophers possessed well-developed senses of humor as was proven by what Dr. Robinson called one of their "standing jokes." "Woman is happy but twice in her life, first when mated, and then when cremated."

The Romans especially enjoyed both personal and political satire. They originated the political cartoon. It was a Roman who discovered that you could most deeply humiliate a man by drawing a funny picture of him.

The subject of Dr. Robinson's morning lecture was most interesting to students not only of Latin and Greek literature, but of English also, "Sappho and Her Influence on Latin Literature." Quoting Swinburne, the English poet and critic, Dr. Robinson said that Sappho was nothing less than the greatest poet that ever was. He spoke at length of the great influence which Sappho's poetry exerted upon various ancient and modern writers. Tennyson, Swinburne, Byron, Moore, Rosetti and Addison all came under her spell, and among contemporary writers, he mentioned Sara Teasdale, Alan Seeger, Percy Mackaye, Maurice Thompson and John Myers O'Hara.

Sappho kept a select school for girls, Dr. Robinson said, and her business was to train these girls to sing at marriage festivities. In order to furnish fresh and high grade words for high-grade music, she composed much poetry. She loved her work and her girls so fully and deeply that for their sake she mastered the art of poetry and perfected herself in it as hardly anyone has since done. She was not understood in her own day, but more and more we are discovering and believing that the great Grecian poetess was really only a twentieth century woman whose fate it was to live six centuries before Christ.

Agnes Scott counts itself especially fortunate in having heard Dr. Robinson and in knowing such a distinguished person. Everyone was given the opportunity of meeting him at the reception after the lecture Thursday night. He is professor of classical archaeology in Johns Hopkins University, the editor of Art and Archaeology, editor of the Art Bulletin, president of the Classical Association of the Atlantic States and is associated with several other of the art magazines to which he contributes articles and reviews. But perhaps he interests us most as an archaeologist, since he has really taken part in excavations at Corinth and Sardis. He has also made explorations in Greece and especially Asia Minor.

STAND BY THE STUDENTS OF EUROPE—WHY?

With few among its young people who need face more than ordinary obstacles in the pursuit of an education, America feels secure in the constant replenishment and increase of the number of her citizens who have a trained equipment of mind as well as of heart and hand. But can America find reasonable contentment in her own extraordinary blessings; can she feel secure; can she feel assured of the future, when in most of the countries of Europe the student generation, which means the future intellectual fibre, is fighting against desperate odds for just that kind of education which hundreds of thousands of American students are obtaining under normal conditions and advantages?

Our own future is more closely bent with the future of the peoples of Europe than with that of any other continent. Yet in Europe heroic but woefully handicapped groups are struggling for an education. If we fail to help them how immeasurable will be the loss to us and how convicting will be our failure to have served as fully as we should the call of friendship and of duty!

America is so rich in educational opportunities that it is hard for her students to realize the European situation. American students must stand by Europe in her hour of need. In Central Europe there are 250,000 students struggling under almost insufferable conditions to gain necessary training. There are large areas almost destitute of professionally trained men and women. The further decadence of the intellectual fibre of Europe can be prevented only through aiding its present student generation. What an opportunity is given American students to help solve present world problems.

It is a well-known fact that the students of today are the greatest single force in the creating of international good will among the thinking population of all nations. Scholarship in Europe is deteriorating because of lack of books, under-feeding and physical problems. If the American students can visualize thousands of students, underfed, housed scarcely better than beasts, calling for help in the name of common learning and common religion, they will contribute the amount needed for the Student Friendship fund.

CHRISTMAS IN THE AIR.

Do you know it? Can't you feel it? Doesn't the faintest little quiver sort of excite you unaccountably every now and then? It's the first whiffs of Christmas in the air!

"Mighty feeble ones, at that," says Gloometta, swamped with quizzes and ubiquitous rain. Of course, Christmas isn't here yet with all its happy-go-lucky gladness! Exams must be, and must be flunked—even Christmas in the air cannot remove that immutable truth. But when you're boning over trig and grinding out Latin prose, it makes things oodles easier to think to yourself. "Two more weeks and then—!"

These last two weeks will creep snail-like, no doubt. December 20th, arriving with its proverbial procrastination, will be "as slow as Christmas." Some unseen witch (out of all keeping with Yule-tide tradition) will be heard to chant in baleful, tomy tones: "Double, double, toil and trouble, Strew the school girl's path with stubble;

Make her quizzes double double."

But what does it matter? Always the compensating thought recurs most opportunely: We forget witches' dirges and think of that quaint old ditty that begins:

"Now Christmas is come;
Let us beat up the drum
And call all the neighbors together."

Lurking in the background of our consciousness these days and hardly growing more important are misty vis-

BLUE TRIANGLE NEWS

More and more we are realizing that our Agnes Scott Y. W. C. A. is not a thing unto itself, but is a part of a great organization. We feel this whenever we come in contact with other branches of the Y. W. C. A. Several weeks ago our Y. W. C. A. explained to its members how vital is the connection between the industrial girl and the student. The debates and stunts, given at that time, impressed us greatly. Some of us have been wondering how this real interest, which our Y. W. ought to show, could be shown. Just a word about the "how."

In Atlanta we have an industrial commission composed of five students and five industrial girls. It is interesting to know that we are represented by Ruth Virden, Vic. Howie, Beth McClure, Josephine Logan and Eloise Knight. Then there is a girl from Block's candy factory, a printer, a telephone operator, a girl from Rich's and a garment maker. This commission makes a special study of problems referring to work. There are other commissions in other towns which are interested especially in health or education.

Agnes Scott also has two representatives to the industrial commission of Atlanta. This larger group is composed of all kinds of women interested in the Y. W. C. A. There is the woman lawyer, the business woman, the society girl, etc. To this representative group we feel that our members have a real contribution to make in settling the problems of all girls.

Last Wednesday the industrial committee had the pleasure and great benefit of a visit from Miss Florence Simms, head of the industrial work of the National Y. W. C. A.; Miss Louise Leonard, secretary of the South Atlantic field, was also in Atlanta. Miss Leonard came out to Agnes Scott the following Tuesday to meet with those girls who are interested in studying women in industry and in visiting industrial girls in Atlanta. She made the students feel that the industrial girl and student should work together for the interests of both since the interests of both are the same. Perhaps we have had a certain interest in people of the industrial world because of our study of economics and sociology. But now through our Y. W. C. A., we can have a real humane interest in them, and a feeling of fellowship toward them.

Not only is the Agnes Scott Y. W. C. A. broadening its interests to other branches of the organization, but it is seeing that it has the same Christian ideals that are true of the Y. M. C. A. Last Sunday night a group of students from the Emory Y. M. C. A. led the Sunday evening service. We enjoyed very much having with us these representatives of the Y. M. C. A.

MEMORIAL WINDOW UNVEILED AT FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

Agnes Scott Girls Show Appreciation of Work of Mr. Samuel Martin Inman.

On Sunday, November the 27th, at the First Presbyterian church of Atlanta, a window was unveiled to the memory of Mr. Samuel Martin Inman. As most of the Agnes Scott girls know, Mr. Inman was probably the greatest benefactor of the college, as he gave us Inman Hall and many other gifts, in all amounting to about one hundred thousand dollars. Then, too, he contributed much to many things in Atlanta. In token of these gifts, many of the Agnes Scott girls attended this church and sat, in a body, in the balcony. Under the direction of Mr. Johnson, they sang a hymn, "Crown Him," which expressed their gratitude to the memory of this man.

The window, unveiled, was the sixth of a series of windows that are found in the Presbyterian church. This window had as its subject the "Ascension," and was very striking and beautiful in its portrayal of the ascending Christ.

Dr. Gaines gave the unveiling prayer, and as Mr. Inman was such a staunch supporter of Agnes Scott, it was very fitting that the president of ions of a train bound for home, of mistletoe and holly and mysterious packages, all ribbon-tied, of the glow of the hearth at home, and of Christmas dances.

Three rahs and a 'ray—for Christmas is coming!

BLACKFRIAR PLAYS.

Saturday night, November 26th, was a memorable event of this year, for that was the night of the first Blackfriar play. Of course, we expected them to do well, but it was a bit hard to realize that those sturdy Irish policemen guarding the quay on a moonlight night were really just our own Agnes Scott girls, and that as soon as the play was over, presto, change! and they'd be just girls again in spite of the thrilling experiences of the night.

When the "Rising of the Moon" was over and the applause had just died away and we were singing some Agnes Scott songs, the speaker got up and announced that the second play would begin. Just as we were eagerly watching the stage to see the players come in, the door at the back of the chapel opened and the dearest little lady in the quaintest costume came walking down the aisle. She had on a dress and a bonnet and shawl just such as our grandmothers wore and little side curls like they had back in the sixties when there were rose-gardens and moonlight paths and—but that's another matter. Then another came, and another, until we all felt like we were living back in the days grandmother loves to tell about. We could just see the little church with its worn-out carpets and dusty pews, and there was the old empty Peabody pew, too. We just felt like a part of it until the lights went off and suddenly made us realize that instead of living in the sixties we were living in nineteen twenty-one, where there were chapel seats instead of Peabody pews, and it was all over.

In fact, the play was a tremendous this institution should take part in the exercises. In his prayer, Dr. Gaines spoke of the goodness and kindness of the much-loved Mr. Inman and his entire dependence upon God.

Then Dr. Lyons, of the Presbyterian church, delivered the sermon and in it explained the subject matter of the windows and how, in them, the founding and continuing of the church would be pictured and how one window followed the preceding one in perfect sequence. Then he spoke of the character of Mr. Inman and how he was loved by everyone with whom he came in contact.

The unveiling was very beautiful and touching in its simplicity, and the hearts of everyone present that morning were touched by the love shown to Mr. Inman's memory.

Washington, D. C.,
October 12, 1921.

My Dear Mr. Hibbard:

I have your letter of September 24, 1921, describing the plans of the World's Student Christian Federation for relief work in Europe and asking my personal support in your undertaking.

At this time, the movement among American students to assist those who must, in the natural course of events, become leaders in the re-establishment of a peaceful and progressive civilization, seems to me of outstanding importance. I am very glad to assure you of my hearty approval of your work and of my sympathy with its purpose.

Very sincerely yours,

FRESHIE'S LETTER TO HER PAL

DEAREST PAL:

I wouldn't dare to even try to tell you how terribly busy poor old Cupid has been this week. Why, everybody on the campus has been just "thrilled to death over his coming up from home," and, why, the gang of girls who have been hanging around Miss Hopkins' door "to go in town to lunch with him" would make an army. Between the Tech-Auburn game and the Georgia-Dartmouth game, I do believe everybody's T. L. was here. It was wonderful to see so many cute boys drifting around Atlanta with so many of our girls attached to them.

I said I wouldn't try to tell you about any of the girls in particular, but I can't resist telling you about Elizabeth Dabney. That girl must have enjoyed her holiday—if she didn't I know who did—her date. Why, he took her to the game, to dinner and about a dozen other places all in one day. I think he's from Emory, but I'm not right sure, for she was so excited that I couldn't understand her well.

Oh, Pal, I must tell you. I've really gotten enough to satisfy my unlimited appetite this week. Have you ever heard me say that before? Everybody here has gotten so many cakes and so much candy that they are just begging people to eat. Poor Miss Randolph must hate Thanksgivings, for at least a hundred girls since the arrival of boxes, have gone to her beseeching her to reduce them for Christmas. It is lamentable, how many dresses just have to be discarded on account of their friendly fit.

Everything had calmed down the other night and men had taken their places in the back of everybody's tired heads, when Ruth Pirkle came flossing into White House dining room with two men. The whole dining room sat up and looked, but Ruth wasn't a bit embarrassed—she's used to it by now for she has so many dates at supper.

Our telephone pad has been more prosperous than ever since the arrival of so many "old girls." It seems awfully natural to see V. Burum's, Pou's and Julia Hagood's names on the pad with very important by it, not to mention all the others' names.

Mary Stuart Simms certainly is a floss. Do you know that I saw her coming out on the car with three boys one afternoon last week? I don't know where she had been, where she was going or anything, but just the fact that she had three boys all well entertained seemed wonderful to me. I wonder if I could keep even one man from yawning in my face. Laura Bell Stubbs seems to be right talented in that respect, for it seems that her date from "home" simply couldn't see enough of her. She was mighty happy herself for she hadn't seen him in a long time, she said, and he was "so cute."

The day students haven't been asleep during all the romance this week. From what I hear they've all enjoyed a very thrilling week for they haven't had time-limit and lights to cut Cupid out of some good hours. Evelyn Melton surely has had things her way—at least she did Thanksgiving—but I'm not going to tell you how. You'll have to ask her.

Pal, dear, if you'd only come down and go in the parlor and have me tubed. Wouldn't it be wonderful, and nobody would have to know it was only you. And wouldn't it be jolly to be able to tell everybody that I had an out-of-town friend up to see me! (Your name would be yours and my secret.)

Always yours, "FRESHIE."

WOODROW WILSON'S LETTER TO DR. MOTT.

Washington, Oct. 10, 1921.

My Dear Dr. Mott:
It gives me pleasure to express my deep admiration for the loyal support and co-operation of the students and professors in universities and colleges for the work in Europe which is being done through the World's Student Christian Federation, and to say it seems to me, beyond the immediate and immense good that such efforts have done and will do, their moral is even greater than their material value.

Cordially and sincerely yours,

HEALTH PAGEANT.

Since early fall we have been hearing whispers at Agnes Scott of "Health Week," and last week we all enjoyed the many talks, tableaux, pageant and other things that reminded us that health is our greatest blessing, and the thing that we should guard more closely and to which we should give more attention than anything else.

One of the most enjoyable features of health week was the pageant given Thursday night. The story opened with an old man, the keeper of the sands, trying to erase the black spots on the white road of time. While he was doing this, a little child came along and asked him why he was cleaning the road; why it was dirty, and why he tried so hard to keep it clean. The old man pointed to some dark shadowy figures standing on the side of the road and told the child that the dark spots were left there by those people—Hate, Dark Days, Cloudy Moods and Unhappiness—and that if he did not keep the dirty spots cleared away that he would not be able to walk on the road of time. While the old man was talking to the child, Health appeared in the distance with Beauty on one side and Happiness on the other. Why asked who she was and when Health, Beauty and Happiness came nearer, Health told Why that she was the instigator of Beauty and Happiness, and that they could not live without her and she also told Why that if she would follow her directions she could have beauty and happiness. Why was unwilling to follow Health's directions because she would have to give up selfish things, so she turned away from her. Health left and before she was out of sight the dark shadowy figures crowded around Why and begged her to come with them. Why was frightened and broke away from them and ran and fell at the feet of Health and asked her what she could do to be a true follower of her. She told the child again that she must be unselfish about little things, think of others and always be considerate of other people.

The different features of health week have only reminded you of things that you must and can easily do to receive this greatest blessing of all, and it is left to you to do these things. Let us all strive to make every week of our lives a week of good health.

SCIENCE CLUB ORGANIZED.

The members of the elective classes in mathematics, physics and astronomy, met on Monday evening, Nov. 28, for the purpose of organizing a science club at Agnes Scott. The need for such an organization has been felt for some time, but for the past few years we have not had one. Miss Howson, Miss Gaylord and Mr. Rankin told the girls about clubs of this kind to which they had belonged in other colleges and universities, and gave us fine suggestions for attractive programs at the meetings. It was then unanimously decided that we form this club, and the following officers were elected: Mary Barton, president; Elizabeth Hoke, vice-president, and Emmie Pickland, secretary. It was then decided that the club meet once every month, and that the programs should be interesting and entertaining, as well as instructive. The club was named after a very distinguished woman mathematician, Agnesi, an Italian.

DR. WOOD VISITS AGNES SCOTT.

Gives Reading Of His Poems During The Chapel Hour.

It is not often that we have the pleasure of hearing a poet read his own poems, but on last Wednesday in chapel we had the pleasure of hearing Dr. Wood read several of his own poems. Dr. Wood, as Dr. McGeachy told us, is a former schoolmate of Dr. Gaines' and is a Presbyterian minister of Baltimore, Maryland. Many of his poems, which have been published in the Atlantic Monthly, Harper's and many other of the leading magazines, have probably been read by some of you.

Reading poetry is a pleasure, but hearing poems read by the poet himself is a still greater pleasure. Dr. Wood read as his first selection for us his beautiful poem about "Grandmother's Hair." He informed us before reading his poem with this advice in the last line, "Go, Maiden, go and dance," that he was an orthodox Presbyterian and that the advice was purely figurative, but the poem, we think, was lovely. His last poem, the talk between an angel and a man, was beautiful and left a thought in everyone as to how thankful we should be for the sorrows as well as the joys of this world. Agnes Scott was charmed with both Dr. Wood and his poems and we hope that he liked Agnes Scott enough to pay us another visit.

NEW FOLIO MEMBERS.

The fateful Friday has passed and nearly two months ago, too, leaving in its wake four "brand" new members of Folio. Some said the door of Folio didn't swing wide enough to let in anyone, but those who knew nodded their heads sympathetically and remarked: "It takes time to write a story and time is something a Freshman hasn't." But several hard working little Hot-tentots did take the time to set down on paper some of their romantic and humorous views of life. No doubt it was hard to work on an old story when some others downstairs were proclaiming that their "bones were gwine to rise agin." Nevertheless the stories were written.

Next morning in the mail boxes of four of these girls were the nicest, most mysterious looking notes that said in a polite way that the ladies to whom they were addressed were now members of Folio.

Larsen Mattox, Elizabeth Cheatham, Georgia Mae Little and Margaret Wood secured these notes, and such squeals of delight and singing of songs that did take place! What dignified and important beings they were to be. They wrote home about it; they told their roommates; they told their "dates"; they told everybody.

The old members sat around smiling slyly and watching their joy. The new members think of the joy of being in Folio and have forgotten initiation. But it's coming, and if the little birds whisper correctly, it's coming before very long. Then, will the squeals and songs be those of joy, we wonder?

Anyone who can write a Folio story can stand initiation. Who wouldn't suffer a little just to be able to bear a Folio pen? When it's all over the new members will have much to say on the subject. 'Til then, "luck be with them!"

No, Oswald, we take it back. Snoring is not "sound sleeping"; it's "sheet music."—Mississippian.

ATHLETICS

BASKET-BALL BEGINS.

With Thanksgiving and the last hockey game past, the athletic world of Aggie turns its attention to basket-ball prospects. The first game of the season is planned for some time in the week of December 12th, probably Wednesday night. With that goal in view our very badly-treated basket-ball begins to be knocked about again.

Practice began in earnest last week, showing at even this early stage good speed and endurance. The Freshmen seem to have worlds of fine material, so much so that it will be difficult to pick a team. The other classes have their regular players from last year, but would be much benefitted by some new prospects. Moral: If you have any taste for basket-ball come out to practice, and if you have never played before come just the same. You may get on the team! Regular practices are posted on the athletic bulletin board. Let's back our classes with all the energy and pep and spirit we have and make of the basket-ball season a great big success.

ALUMNAE PUT UP GOOD FIGHT VS. STUDENTS IN BASKET-BALL.

"Here we come, decrepit and gium, we are all on the bum, you see, limping footsteps and toothless of gum, we're not what we used to be!"

Even though the Alumnae (nine members), came limping into the gym Friday night, singing the above refrain, they afterwards proved that they were the most non-decrepit bunch out of captivity. They challenged a team representing the student body to a basket-ball game, the night after Thanksgiving at 9 o'clock. On the battlefield these valiants proved that their limping was all camouflage.

This was one of the hottest, peppiest games ever played in our old gym. Rooters, spectators, fans, etc., were there galore. Nancy Evans, the able cheer leader, fired the student body with as much enthusiasm and spirit as Tech showed at the Auburn game. The younger generation were spurred to victory, which left the final score 36-34, much to the delight of the student body.

SOPHOMORES WIN HOCKEY CHAMPIONSHIP.

Defeat the Juniors By a Score of 3 to 2.

On Thanksgiving morning at nine o'clock, before the biggest audience of the hockey season, the Juniors and the Sophomores played off the tie for first place.

After the Junior victory over the Sophomores some weeks back, which left the two tied in the race for first place, every hockey fan was wondering whether the Freshmen could defeat their sister class in the 6:20 game on Tuesday, November 22, or whether the Seniors could win their game with the Sophomores the next morning, and thus break the tie. The athletic atmosphere was decidedly intensified when the Juniors came out victors in a close 3-2 contest and the Sophomores won their game 5-1. Inevitably there was to be a Thanksgiving match between the two equally matched teams.

Despite a cloudy sky and a field still slick from heavy rains, every player was ready and eager for the whistle to blow. The contest was very close and exciting. End of the first half found the score 1-0 in favor of the Sophs. The Juniors soon made a big leap, however, and the last minutes of the game found the score 2-2. Good fortune threw a goal in the path of the Sophomores, leaving the score 3-2 in their favor and giving them the hockey championship. This was perhaps the hardest-fought and best-played game of the season, reflecting credit on both teams.

The hockey season has been wonderfully successful this year. Every team, whether winning or losing, has put up a good game and shown a true athletic spirit. Though the Seniors are in third place they smile when they remember their Sophomore sisters are first, and though the Freshmen happen to be last this year they think of the Juniors who came out second, and more than that, they look forward to a run for the championship in 1922.

ALUMNAE NEWS

About fifty alumnae were at Agnes Scott during the Thanksgiving holidays and quite a number have visited us since that time. We were sorry that the Anna Young Alumnae House was not ready for the house-warming, but hope that many of our alumnae will come back for that event.

Sarah Stansell, of Chattanooga, was here Thanksgiving. She is now teaching English in the Chattanooga High School.

Marion Cawthorn spent about a week at Agnes Scott. She is staying at home in DeFuniak Springs, Fla., this year.

Lena Parry came out to Agnes Scott last week. She is taking a business course in Atlanta.

Frances Whitfield, of Hawkinsville, Ga., visited Agnes Scott during the holidays.

Amy D. Glover, of Marietta, Ga., spent Thanksgiving at Agnes Scott.

Gertrude Manly and Marion McCamy, of Dalton, Ga., spent a week at Agnes Scott.

Julia Hagood, president of Student Government in 1920, was at Agnes Scott during the holidays.

Margaret Bland spent last weekend with us.

Louise Abney, of Athens, Ga., spent the holidays at Agnes Scott.

Eleanor Carpenter, or "L'Enfant Terrible," as she is known by her pupils, visited us the week after Thanksgiving. She has an excellent position at Greenville Woman's College in South Carolina.

Marjory Moore, a graduate of 1920, spent the holidays with her parents in Decatur. She visited Agnes Scott while here.

Lois Eve, of Augusta, Ga., spent Thanksgiving here. She is now teaching in her home town.

Katherine Seay, known to most of us as "K," was at Agnes Scott last week.

Emma Jones has been over here quite often during the last two weeks, helping make plans for the alumnae house, and also joining in our Thanksgiving festivities.

Mary Eakes (Rumbel), of Adairsville, Ga., was over at Agnes Scott last week.

Mary Louise Green, of Corinth, Miss., spent a few days at Agnes Scott last week.

Clotile Spence, of Newnan, Ga., was here for several days last week. She is teaching this year.

Myrtle Blackmon, of Columbus, Ga., is visiting at Agnes Scott. She teaches in her home town.

Alice Jones, of Jacksonville, Fla., spent last week-end at Agnes Scott.

Maryellen Harvey, a graduate of 1916, was here Thanksgiving.

Nelle Frances Daye, of Huntsville, Ala., spent a few days at Agnes Scott last week. She is teaching at home this winter.

Helen Wayt and Betty Floding came out on the 26th for the Blackfriar plays.

Julie Sanders, of Valdosta, Ga., spent Thanksgiving here.

Coma McCaskill, who teaches at North Avenue High School, was here one day last week.

"Crip" Slack, a graduate of 1920, spent a few days at Agnes Scott last week.

Sarah Hall, of Newnan, Ga., spent the holidays at Agnes Scott.

Sarah Gilbreath, of Tennessee, who came to Agnes Scott in 1920, spent last week with us.

faculty." The "workers' faculty" is supported by the government and is for the preparation of working people for universities or technical high schools. There are special classes for illiterates. Secondly there are those students recommended by the government party in power. The third class must compete in examination for the few remaining places. Second class students have no state duties and must work for their living, so that they have very little time for study. Other students have neither the right or time to earn money privately by work. All students in medicine, agriculture and technical courses are required to do a certain amount of work for the State.

The shortage of lodgings also is serious. Students live in hostels where they do all the work themselves with as many as ten together in one room. The temperature was from two to twelve degrees (Reaumur—freezing point 0) in these places all last winter, while a temperature not below 10 degrees is necessary for normal health. The students suffered from lack of fuel and many who could not find lodgings had to leave Moscow and discontinue their studies. In other cities outside Moscow the students receive even less from the government.

Because Russia has opened its doors to assistance this winter, the European student relief organization is making a special effort to meet demands. The outstanding fact is that Russia is in desperate need of students. Since 1914, 30,000 physicians or one-third of the country's medical personnel have died as a result of war and pestilence. Two Russian universities, Samara and Saratoff, are in the famine area and several others in the partial famine area.

Students of no country are in greater need than in Russia, relief reports show, and there is no country in which it is more important that leaders be educated and encouraged in right thinking and the spirit of international friendship. Relief for the Russian universities is included in the appropriation for European student relief now being raised in the schools of America. This is the $500,000 Student Friendship Fund to which every student in the United States will be asked to contribute this month.

"No greater opportunity has ever faced American students to help solve present world problems and guide the future," says Dr. James Rowland Angell.

THE JUNALUSKA WRITERS' CONTEST.

Ye writers, take notice! It's all very well to dream of living a life of picturesque poverty in a garret, but that sort of thing is out of date, you know. The modern motto for scribblers (gifted and otherwise) is "shekels!" Here is an opportunity to win a sizable sum along with literary laurels. Read about it:

We have girls at Agnes Scott who can write and who like to write. It is perfectly possible for some of them to rank creditably with other writers entering the Junaluska writers' contest, concerning which Agnes Scott has received formal notice. Think of the joy of seeing one's story published, not to mention $20 or so added to one's meagre pecuniary stipend!

The Junaluska writers' contest is staged by the Junaluska Woman's Club, and is for the purpose of giving amateurs an opening and discovering original talent. The prizes to be offered are as follows:

Class 1. Children's work. (This does not interest us!)

Class 2. For the best story not exceeding 4,000 words by a young person between the ages of 14 and 18, $10.

Class 3. For the best short story (story not exceeding 6,500 words), $20.

Class 4. For the best Epworth League story not exceeding 6,500 words, $20.

Class 5. For the best song about Junaluska, $10.

Class 6. For the best hymn or sacred song adapted to child life and worship, $20.

Class 7. For the best play or pageant suitable for use in some department of church work, $30.

The contest opens April 30 and closes June 1, 1922. All manuscripts must be entered between those dates, and must be addressed to "Prize Contest, Junaluska Woman's Club, Lake Junaluska, North Carolina." The rules of the contest are:

1. Every production must meet the following requirements:

a. It must possess some literary merit.

b. It must be typewritten.

c. It must be accompanied by postage sufficient for its return.

d. It must have a title page easily removable from the body of the manuscript, stating the writer's name and full address, in what class the entry is made, and, if a story, the number of words.

2. A contestant may enter two productions in the same class and enter productions in different classes.

He: "Coach has developed a fine line this year."

She: "Oh, Charlie, introduce me to him, won't you please."

Alumnae Present "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch"

MUCH CREDIT DUE MISS EMMA JONES.

Flourish! Drums and Trumpets! Enter Ye Alumnae Players of Decatur.

In "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," presented Saturday evening, December tenth, in the Chapel, the Decatur Alumnae "done done deyse'f proud"—to appropriate Mary Cox's felicitous phrase. The play was in all particulars an unusual success.

Firstly, be it said that especial thanks and credit are due Miss Emma Jones (alias Nancy) whose clever pen developed the far-famed story by Alice Hegan Rice into a most charming play. The book was not at all adapted to dramatic presentation; certain scenes must be selected, certain incidents omitted, others supplied, and the whole wedded into an acceptable drama-ette. All this was accomplished with delightful effectiveness.

"Mrs. Wiggs," as Miss Jones told us one morning last week in Chapel, was a tale of combined gladness and sadness. "Happiness thrust thru with sorrow" was the intriguing motive of the play. Verily 'twas true. The varying vicissitudes of the Wiggs' household brought forth from an entranced audience tears and laughter and giggles and sighs. It was most diverting, too, to see our esteemed and revered faculty in unwonted roles and attitudes. Mr. Dieckmann played some jazzy dance music (as advertised); Miss Wilburn divulged some interesting ideas about bread and soup; Janef Preston, heart-rendingly lacrimose, offered profound views on matrimony; and Mr. Stukes was seen to make love most soulfully.

Conspicuous among the various luminaries of an all-star cast, was Miss Louise Ware, who played "Mrs. Wiggs" to perfection. Her delightful interpretation of the role impressed that good lady's cheery philosophy, which she sums up thus: "It ain't no use putting up your umbrella till it rains. There ain't no use dying 'fore your time comes. Looks like everything in the world comes right if you wait long enough."

The cast of characters was as follows. It will be observed that much illustrious Blackfriar talent appears in the ranks of the Decatur Alumnae. Mrs. Wiggs Miss Louise Ware
Asia Miss Frances Charlotte Markley
Europea Mrs. Henry Newton (nee Maryellen Harvey).
Billy Wiggs Miss Wilburn
Mr. Bob Mr. Stukes
Miss Lucy Miss Marguerite Cousins
Miss Hazy Miss Janef Preston
Chris Hazy Miss Fanny McCaa
Pete Miss Randolph
Sunday School Children Acquired from Decatur by the Alumnae.

We are interested to know that the proceeds of the production (admission of 35 and 50 cents was charged) will be used to put an oil painting of Miss Anna Young in the Alumnae building.

The war memorial fund that the University has been working on for the past month has been oversubscribed. The goal of $1,000,000 by Armistice Day was reached and surpassed, the Red and Black stating that at the last report $48,000 over the million mark had been subscribed. The end in view for which the fund was sought is the better provision for buildings, equipment and the instructors' salaries. A notable occurrence connected with this drive was that when its success had been announced Chancellor Barrow, of the University, seized a freshman cap and tore toward that college bell, there to make the welkin ring for quite a time.—Emory Wheel.

DECATUR NEWS

FOR A STRONGER BOND BETWEEN A. S. C. AND DECATUR.

Decatur forms a very vital part in the life of the Agnes Scott community and Agnes Scott also forms an important factor in the life and history of Decatur. The two seem to be rather complements of one another.

The staff of the Agonistic realizing this have decided to use a column each week for Decatur news. So often we girls on the campus use Dec. as only a place to buy Taus instead of making it a kind of new "home town." If we really become interested in their social, educational and political events we will come to find ourselves feeling more at home in Decatur and with their worthy citizens.

The Agonistic owes many thanks to Mr. Pilcher, City Manager of Decatur, for his interest in this new enterprise. Mr. Pilcher said, "Put the City of Decatur on the subscription list for your college paper. We want to know what goes on in your world."

At a meeting of the Board of Commissioners of Decatur held Monday evening, December 6th, a street resolution was passed. The resolution was to extend Adair street through the woods to Druid Hills and Ponce de Leon avenue.

An effort is being made now in Decatur to collect taxes.

Primary elections were recently held. The elections were for positions on the Board of Commissioners. These are of course very important positions since those who are chosen to hold them hold the reins of the affairs of the City. R. E. White, Mrs. James Campbell, John A. Campbell and Homer F. George were the candidates. The last two were chosen to run in the regular election which will be held on the 7th. It is interesting to note that a woman was on the Primary Ticket. Mrs. Campbell lives in the first house on the right on Church street as we come from the underpass. Stop and notice the home of the celebrity sometimes, you who have lofty political aspirations.

The P. T. A. of Decatur High School held its regular meeting in the gym of the new High School on last Thursday. The "Cecilian Trio" from Agnes Scott rendered a very interesting program. Miss Dorothy Keith at the piano, Miss Mary Jarman with the fluet and Miss Pochahontas Wight with the violin form the trio. The program was as follows:

- Trio—
- By the Waters of Minnetonka
Theodore Lievrnwce.
- Gondoliera from Venetian Suite
Ethelburt Nevlin.
- Violin Solo—
- Andantino from Prelude to "The Deluge"
Camille.

Two Vocal Solos—

- By Mrs. Bailey, of Decatur,
Accompanied by Mrs. Christy.

An address by our own Mr. Stukes closed the program. Mr. Stukes talked on the connection between P. T. A. and preparation of students for the colleges.

The D. A. R.'s will hold their regular meeting Friday morning, December 9th. They held a delightful social meeting last Friday.

A reception was held at the U. D. C. club rooms for the new Baptist pastor, Mr. Haymore. He has been receiving a warm welcome from those of his own flock and the other citizens in Decatur.

Agnes Scott has a new granddaughter in Decatur. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Scott. It will be several years before the young lady can claim Agnes Scott as an Alma Mater, too, but she will be very welcome when she comes.

The members of the Presbyterian church were hosts and hostesses to the Agnes Scott girls for supper last Sunday evening. After a lovely, homey Sunday evening supper the girls were taken to church. The people can never realize what a happy memory they have made for us.

Drive Agnes Scott's Blues Away With Some New College Songs

ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION OFFERS PRIZE.

Well, girls—you're all going home for Christmas and you're thinking about what you're going to give Mother and Dad and Johnny and Aunt Mary and Little Sister, but have you thought about what you're going to give Agnes Scott? Just imagine poor old "Aggie" up here all alone at Christmas time, with all her children gone and not even a visit from Santa Claus to look forward to. Don't you know she gets lonesome? So I have a nice little plan for you. Let's all get together and surprise her with a shower of just what she needs most—and that is—college songs.

She really needs them badly and tho' you may think just at present that "A few more days till vacation" is sufficient, just remember that soon it will be months till vacation and we won't be able to sing that with much pep and we've "Whooped 'em up" till we can hardly whoop any more. Age may improve time and friendship—and sometimes songs, but while we still love the old songs things are lots livelier when we have some new ones occasionally.

So please give Agnes Scott a new song for a Christmas present—and if you do there's a nice secret. The Athletic Association offers a prize of five dollars to the one who writes the best song, so your gift might turn out to be "bread cast upon waters."

While you're enjoying Christmas Agnes Scott is blue,
Because her many children
Are far away 'tis true.

Just think how very lonesome
She'll be on Christmas Day—
So write a song for Aggie
And drive her blues away.

Some Extracts From the Poems of Sappho Which We Wish to Remember

After hearing Dr. Robinson's lecture on Sappho, some of us decided that Greek is not so dull after all, and that it might be interesting as well as profitable to know a little of that much maligned language; while those of us who knew even a little of it felt more than ever superior to our less enterprising fellow students who had never had the pleasure (?) of studying Greek. But even if we can't read Sappho's lyric in the original, we can read translations of them that make us realize that Sappho is indeed a writer of "immortal verse," and understand how to the Greeks she was "the poetess." Here are some fragments which Dr. Robinson read in his lecture, which he thought would particularly charm us:

"I have a fair daughter with a form like a golden flower, Cleis the beloved, above whom I (prize) nor all Lydia nor lovely—" Literal of Sappho's lyric No. 85.
"I have a child, a lovely one,
In beauty like the golden sun
Or like sweet flowers of earliest bloom;
And Cleis is her name, for whom
I Lydia's treasures, were they mine,
Would gladly resign."
J. H. Merivale.

"The silver moon is set;
The Pleiades are gone;
Half the dark night is spent, and yet I lie alone."
J. H. Merivale's adaptation of Sappho's lyric No. 52.

Alan Seeger uses this in his "Do you remember once
Under the western seas
The pale moon settles and the Pleiades,
The freight sinks; Outside the night winds moan;
The hour advances and I sleep alone."

Santa Claus Will Visit Main This Year

CHRISTMAS DINNER IN HOME ECONOMICS BUILDING.

We wonder if there are any girls in the college community who are not aware of the fact that Christmas is coming. There are two reasons why we are all so thrilled over the idea and knowledge. First, because it will bring two weeks of rest and fun. If it is not rest, it will at least be a time for a different kind of work from what we are now doing. And then we can go home. That is, the most of us can. There are a few whose homes are so far and time so short that they find it useless to try to go home. So, very quietly they are going to stay here in good old Main.

Although Christmas will not be what it would be at home, these few girls are planning to enjoy their holidays to the utmost. They will all live in Main and will do co-operative housekeeping in the way of eating and drinking in the Home Ec building. There will probably be just enough here to make the crowd seem like a house party.

But there are some conditions under which one can remain here. The first and foremost is registration with the Dean. This is extremely important and should be attended to immediately, if not sooner. The second is that one moves over to Main building into rooms left vacant by other vacationers. The next is that one does not eat too much and so get sick, for this is a vacation for Miss Dougherty also.

So now, let's all give three cheers for the girls—and faculty—who intend to make old Main ring with their Christmas greetings.

AT PARTING.

He spoke to me in softest tones
And, leaning low above my chair,
He slipped his arm around my neck;
I was too desperate to care.
I felt his gaze upon my mouth
And—well, hear the shocking truth;
I tightly closed my eyes, prepared
For him to pull my tooth.

EDITORIALLY SPEAKING.

'Twas the night before Christmas (holidays) I was packing my trunk with sweaters and presents and all kinds of junk,—my chemistry book that I meant to review, which I knew in my heart that I never would do; with presents for people I never had seen—half-cousins and in-laws, you know what I mean; boxes of mouchoirs I packed by the score, and I fervently wished I had purchased some more. Everybody was stirring, including the rat, who was eating the straw off my last summer's hat. We were busily packing and singing in glee, while the housekeeper tossed on her couch sleepily; yet we still shouted on in our young girlish mirth, no happier beings existed on earth, and then when I'd finished, I locked up my trunk, I locked up the mouchoirs and chemistry junk. The alarm clock I placed 'neath my pillow with care, in hopes that the morning soon would be there. My roommate was nestled all snug in her bed, while visions of mistletoe danced in her head, but I slept unvisited by visions like these, she had all the cover and left me to freeze.

So as she expected, I patiently froze, while the cold night winds blew on my shoulders and nose. When, under my head there arose such a clatter, I sat bolt upright to see what was the matter. Under my pillow I reached in a flash, unearthing Big Ben who fell out with a crash. The hour it was three, and my train left at four. Do you think in your heart I could hesitate more? The morning was cold, and indeed so was I, as I put on my hat, kissed my roommate good-bye. The street car arriving, I hopped on with glee, entirely forgetting my gloves and the key to my trunk—but what matter, for everyone knows, the truth of the very old saying which goes—

"Christmas arrives only once every year.

Let every one have spirits brimful of cheer."

Yes, Christmas is with us and ever will be as long as there stands one lone cedar tree, as long as there are stockings to hang on the wall, and someone to fill them with goodies and all the gifts that make joyful the heart of the owner, and make blessings descend on the head of the donor.

CHRISTMAS DINNER.

Better Than Thanksgiving.

We all know now how wonderful the long-looked-for and much-talked-of Thanksgiving dinner was with its lovely turkey baked brown and seasoned so well, and its cranberries, and all the other things that go with a real Thanksgiving dinner. How pretty all the girls and ladies of the faculty were in evening dresses and how handsome the men were in dress suits! We wonder if anything else at Agnes Scott can be quite so lovely as Thanksgiving dinner?

Yes, there is another time when we are even more excited than at Thanksgiving because then it is almost time, in fact just two or three days until we will all be bidding Miss Agnes good-bye and, in spite of our heavy suitcases, hurrying for dear life to get the first car for the station to start home—really home. We are all excited over this. Then some night we will go down to supper, not expecting anything unusual, and we will find the dining room all decorated with holly and candles and everything looking real "Christmasy." Well, you thought you were all excited Thanksgiving, but you will realize that you didn't know what real excitement was. You can just see the dining room at home all decorated with holly and mistletoe and your own family getting ready to sit down to Christmas dinner! Now this is a family getting ready to eat Christmas dinner, too. Miss Agnes gathers in all her family and just tries herself then to see how good she can make everything taste and how happy she can make everybody. We all sing Christmas songs and everybody gets into the real spirit of Christmas. All you new girls just can't imagine how it is—it is one thing you just have to live through and enjoy to be able to even conceive of.

Just one week from today we will all either be home or nearly there but, during this time there is one thing going to happen that we will all remember a mighty long time and that is Miss Agnes' Christmas dinner.

Just smile, says Charles M. Schwab, and times will be better. The trouble is that most people, upon reading this advice, are likely to spoil everything by laughing out loud.

"Have you read Beowulf?"
 "No, but I've read 'Be'er Rabbit.' Isn't Uncle Remus adorable?"

"It's all off for the night," she cried, as she wiped her face with a towel.

Botany Prof.: "There is a certain plant that will grow on anything, on an ordinary carpet, for instance. What is this plant?"

Intelligent Stude: "B r u s s e l s sprouts."

Tip to fishermen: The best place to dig for worms at this season of the year is in ten cents' worth of chestnuts.

The Y. W. C. A. service last Sunday evening was in charge of the Student Volunteers. In this service an illustrated slide lecture was given, presenting in a striking way the needs of the world.

The first slide was a picture of Woodrow Wilson with his famous words, "To make the world safe for democracy." Then we were shown how our own United States is not safe, because of wretched conditions in the New York slums.

"New York is our greatest missionary field—and our supreme missionary challenge." We were told of this vast city where a child is born every six minutes and where there is a marriage every 13 minutes.

A picture of a beautiful Mormon temple in Salt Lake City, and of a Buddhist temple in Southern California, made us realize that foreign missionaries are needed in America.

Then large factories in Japan, where industrial workers are needed, and the Peking University, where teachers are needed, were shown. Perhaps we cannot realize that people are actually starving to death today. However, when we saw a picture of a starving Chinese the fact was made more real. In Africa, too, there is a dire need for workers. Think of patients sometimes walking 200 miles to a Christian hospital. Just one little African baby out of ten lives.

"Half the world has never heard the Gospel," is a startling statement that makes one think.

After this lecture an illustrated song was given, followed by a short talk on "Every man's life a plan of God."

After Dr. Erdman's lectures many girls felt a need for some definite plan to aid them in choosing their life work of Christian service. At this service an affiliation plan was presented. Every girl who was interested in finding God's plan for her life was asked to affiliate. Under this plan further study of the world's needs will be made in the hope that each girl will see that she is needed in a mountain school or in saving people from the Mormon missionaries, or working on the foreign field, or wherever her place may be.

JOHN McCORMACK AT THE AUDITORIUM.

Great Irish Tenor Delights Audience.

There is something about a crowd and a big place and bright lights and especially about a stage that thrills every one of us in spite of ourselves. We must admit—even our civic-spirited, Atlanta day-students—that the Atlanta auditorium is not the most beautiful place in the world and yet even that bare old building usually thrills most of us; but what an especial thrill it gives us when we see John McCormack come out on its unlovely stage to sing to us. And so we all (all that is who were not too busy with the pursuit of learning, or by reason of the approach of Christmas too "broke") reveled for two delicious hours Wednesday night, in that great singer's voice. It was not, however, so much his glorious voice that delighted us as the sort of songs he sang. Of course we listened in wide-eyed, open-mouthed wonder to his splendid rendering of his classical program. But it was not the program that we liked half as well as we did the selections that were not on it. It is John McCormack's encores that make us all love to listen to him, his little songs, his folk songs, and (I wonder if Aggie is this sentimental) perhaps his love songs. We sighed when he had finally ceased giving us "just one more," and pushed our way out and into a crowded car. And at last we went to bed in the dark still longing for more.

AGNES SCOTT HONORED THROUGH MISS RANDOLPH.

We always did know that Miss Randolph was the best ever—we could "tell the world" that. But something has happened now so we won't have to tell it to this old planet, for our physical director has been elected to the committee of the Woman's Foundation of Health. This is one of the most powerful health organizations in America. It has a large committee, made up of representatives from the fifteen leading American colleges for women. A smaller and very important committee of three has been selected to carry out the definite plans of the organization. This more important committee consists of: Dr. Gilman, of Vassar; Dr. Kenyon, of Smith and Miss Isabel Randolph, of Agnes Scott. This is a very great honor and we are all indeed delighted that it has been bestowed upon our instructor. Now the next time you hear "Left wheel and backward—march!" just remember that you are receiving orders from one of America's foremost health officers. This perhaps will inspire you to obey a little quicker and keep better posture (?).

BLUFF KING HAL.

A boy in a Welsh school essayed to write on Henry VIII, and a London paper reports him as beginning thus: "King Henry VIII was the greatest widower that ever lived. He was born at Anno Domino in the year 1066. He had 510 wives besides children. The first was beheaded and executed. The second was revoked. She never smiled again. Henry 8 was succeeded on the throne by Mary Queen of Scots, sometimes known as the Lady of the Lake."—Boston Transcript.

MRS. COIT TELLS AGNES SCOTT ABOUT NACOOCHEE.

Mrs. Coit, wife of the president of Nacoochee Institute, made an extremely interesting talk at Agnes Scott last Wednesday night. Dr. and Mrs. Coit have been at Nacoochee many years. As Mrs. Coit has been teaching in the school she has been thrown in personal contact with each of the pupils and knows them all quite well. As Agnes Scott is taking some money from the budget each year to support a pupil there, we are very much interested in the work that is being done. She told us all about Nacoochee, first describing the wonderful scenery around it, and the equipment of the school. But the boys and girls were the most important things she told us about. She explained their work and duties and described the life there among these boys and girls. Besides being a gifted speaker, Mrs. Coit has a charming personality, and all of us enjoyed having her at Agnes Scott.

EMORY MEN AT Y. W. C. A.

On Sunday night the cabinet of our Y. W. C. A. entertained the cabinet of the Emory Y. M. C. A. at tea. The meeting of the Y. W. C. A. which followed was led by President Perry Mullinaa, of Emory, assisted by a member of the Department of Theology at Emory and a member from the Department of Medicine.

The subject of President Mullinaa's talk was "Soul Winning," and he made a forceful and interesting talk on this subject, discussing Soul Winning as a passion.

It is to be regretted that more girls did not receive the benefit of President Mullinaa's helpful talk. Since the meeting happened to come on the same Sunday as affiliation day in the Decatur Presbyterian Church many of the girls were out for dinner and so were not present at the Y. W. C. A. We hope that the Emory Y. M. C. A. may be present at our services again soon and be greeted by a larger audience.

FRESHIE'S LETTER TO HER PAL

"Pal" dearest:—
Just 10 days, 22 hours and 36 minutes till I'll be home, with a capital H. I'm too thrilled to write. And then, too, it's gotten so cold and Christmasy feeling everybody's started thinking about holly and mistletoe and everything.

This cold weather has had another happy effect besides the grand and glorious feeling it gives us cause it has served as a gentle reminder to some of the Devoted Ones that the lights of their lives might be chilly. You should see Mary Evelyn Arnold and Charlotte Keesler strutting around in their new sweaters. They won't tell us who sent them, but we feel quite sure it wasn't "mother."

Oh, Aggie! You should have been here last week. It was Health Week. There was something doing every minute—tableaux, a play, a party and just lots of snappy little talks. The thing that impressed me most—one of the "stump speakers" said, any girl that had good posture and took care of her health could get a frat-pin easy! I can't wait to try and see if it'll really work. Some of the girls have tried it already I think 'cause I've noticed several new pins in the last few days. Lillian Thompson is the proud wearer of a new pin. It's a beauty, too.

Some girls were just born lucky. Dot and Lib and Lois spent the day in town the other day and all day long they kept "open house" for Tech boys! They must have put out a lot 'cause the phone pad has been worked over-time ever since.

Speaking of the phone pad and phone calls—Sara Morehouse got four the other day and all from a different boy! You should see how calmly Sara takes it. If I were ever to see my name up there, somebody had better call Miss Dougherty 'cause I'd certainly faint.

Hazel says it's awfully good to have a boy from home out at Tech. I saw her coming back from town the other afternoon all spruced up. She'd been to lunch at the Ansley with a Little Rock boy and then to a show. It must be wonderful. But it isn't just the Little Rock boys that Hazel is popular with. Why the other night she had a date with a boy from Virginia. Poor me! I can't even get a date with one of the Decatur boys.

Everybody had the best laugh they've had this fall Monday night at the basket-ball game between the faculty and students. We did get a bit of a shock when we saw Miss Torrance presiding as cheer leader. But there were other things just as funny—Miss Smith playing on a comb and Miss McKinney chewing gum! Even if we did beat them we'll have to say the faculty are the best sports ever. I'm going to keep my eyes and ears open 'cause after this demonstration of the faculty's pep it won't surprise me a bit to hear some gossip about some of them.

I've saved the best till last. Friday morning General Foch was in Atlanta and we had several hours holiday and went in on a special car and saw him. Wasn't that great? Everybody was so surprised they almost fell over. Really I think the faculty must have been sick or some radical change has come over them. But be that as it may, everybody's just thrilled to death over it.

Mercy, the supper bell is ringing and I'm starving as usual. Here's hoping we don't have liver! Much love.

Freshie.

COMING—THE MESSIAH.

Every one has already counted the days and hours, yes, even the minutes until time to go home for the holidays and too, everyone is saying, Sunday, December 18th, will be the last Sunday, the very last. Thrills in abundance! But the Choral Society, under the direction of Mr. Johnson, has another thrill to add to that great number, and will present Handel's "Messiah" to the college community and all friends of the college on Sunday afternoon, December 18th, at 3 o'clock in Agnes Scott Chapel. The Choral Society, composed of numbers of good voices from Emory and Decatur, has been doing excellent work and is well prepared to give a most intelligent rendition of the Messiah. Our own Miss Eunice Curry will be contralto soloist, Mr. J. Foster Barnes, of Emory, bass, and Mr. A. W. Browning, of Atlanta, tenor, both of whom are soloists at Ponce de Leon Avenue Baptist Church, and both of whom sang in our rendition of the Messiah last year, will be welcomed by all who have heard them. Miss Margaret Battle who came from Augusta to North Avenue Presbyterian Church as soprano soloist will also assist. Mr. Dieckmann, head of the Piano Department, and Organist at the First Baptist Church, will accompany the chorus on the organ. Mr. Johnson will direct the chorus in his customary excellent and pleasing manner. Both Mrs. Johnson and Miss Sutphen have done much toward making the "Messiah" a success by playing the accompaniments at rehearsals.

The program will be as follows:

HOPKINS ADOPTS NEW SYSTEM OF TRY-OUTS.

The Johns Hopkins Dramatic Club has adopted a new system of tryouts. Formerly the tryouts were all arranged for the same time, but now it is planned to do the testing in small groups. Each candidate will be required to turn in to the president of the club a schedule of his working hours at the university. These men will then be ordered to report to the "studio" during their spare hours as per schedule turned in. One of the members of the club will always be on hand to superintend the trials. Those men who do not qualify for some special role will, however, be given work in the business department or the stage managing of the club.—Goucher College Weekly.

LECTURE ASSOCIATION CALENDAR FOR THE YEAR.

Although this is only the second year of the Lecture Association's existence, it is one of the strongest and most helpful organizations on the campus. It is popular, too. One girl expressed one point of view, when she bought her ticket saying, "I'm buying 'cuts.'" Of course, that is a petty, contemptible appreciation, comparatively speaking. We all realize what an opportunity we have in directly hearing the thoughts of the best authorities in the country.

The first opportunity came November 30, when Dr. James Robinson, of Johns Hopkins, read his lecture on "The Comic and Grotesque in Ancient Literature and Art," which he illustrated with lantern slides. Considering the sudden out-burst of laughter in Chapel that night as the slides were changed, it is plausible to say that we truly appreciated the "Comic and EXCHANGE.

Miss Katherine Lumpkin, Y. W. C. A. Secretary in the South Atlantic field, spent the week-end at Queens. On Saturday evening she conducted an old-fashioned "sing," which was thoroughly enjoyed by every one present. Her talk at the vesper service on Sunday was very impressive and helpful. She came to Queens from Winthrop and is planning to visit other colleges in the South.

Grotesque" part. The following morning Dr. Robinson spoke in an interesting, enlightening way on "Sappho."

On February 1, of the coming New Year, Dr. Edward Devine, Associate Editor of "The Survey," will come to us to deliver two lectures, one on "Problems of the Pacific and Disarmament," and the other on "Elijah, the Tishbite." He is quite in the lime-light as a social worker, and has proved himself worthy of his reputation by his services during the war.

The latter part of this same month of February, Dr. Chas. R. Stockard, of the Medical Department of Cornell, will speak to us on "Hormones," a subject which has to do with the ductless glands, about which much has been discovered of late. Dr. Stockard has done a great deal in the field of research. For instance, he has thoroughly studied the effects of alcohol on development, the growth of tissues, the regeneration of the lost parts in animals, the cancer problem, and the origin and development of blood. It is hoped that he will deliver a second lecture on the "Physiology of Development," which will be of special interest to students of Biology.

Sometime in March, Amy Lowell, the distinguished modern poetess, will come to us direct from Charleston where she will have spoken to the Poetry Society there. We are anxious to hear her read some of her poems and also for her to tell us something of "New Poetry."

Besides these definite engagements, the Lecture Association may be able to secure one or two more, thus lavishing treats upon us—all for two dollars.

THE INDUSTRIAL RALLY.

The Y. W. C. A. Rally in Atlanta was a splendid success. The Agnes Scott Industrial Commission and other girls enjoyed a delightful cafeteria supper with the girls of various Industrial Clubs. It is interesting to know that the industrial girls sing "Follow the Gleam," and know that favorite of ours, "Skinny-m-rinky." After the supper yells were heartily given.

Miss Simms, the National Y. W. C. A. Industrial Worker, then talked to the girls on the subject, "Everybody's World." She reminded us of how likely each girl is to live within her own little circle and forget that there really is a world outside. However, our responsibility outside is very great for it is the duty of the younger generation to prevent future wars. Miss Simms is a most magnetic speaker and thoroughly understands girls.

Everyone who went felt that they were well repaid for the time taken from school activities. The Y. W. C. A. hopes that more girls will find time to attend the rallies which are held from time to time. It is one of the ways we can enlarge our circle to include more than the campus and to aid in making the world truly "Everybody's World."

IT'S very often the little things that make such a world of difference in the smartness of a suit or coat. The flare of a cuff, the clever placing of an ornament of the angle of a pocket.

We have paid attention to the "little things", as well as the big essentials of fashion, fabric and fair pricing.

COTILLION CLUB ENTERTAINS AT A DANCE.

Gymnasium Transformed Into Fairyland.

We were all quite excited and thrilled on last Thursday morning at chapel when Quenelle Harold invited the college community to a dance to be given by the Cotillion Club on Saturday night, December 3, in the gymnasium, for who is there at A. S. C. who does not like to "trip the light fantastic?" On Saturday many were the bright evening dresses brought out by the girls. Indeed every one looked so lovely in the light dancing frocks of all colors and the gay silver slippers that one simply couldn't keep still when the orchestra began.

We who have only seen the gymnasium in gym working order with bare walls and "dumb animals" could hardly recognize the fairy land of green and white. The walls were banked with green; and green and white streamers were festooned from one side of the room to the other and fluttered above the dancers. It was truly lovely and a beautiful setting for the lovely girls in their rainbow frocks. The orchestra was wonderful and kept you dancing until the last note died away. All during the evening delicious fruit punch from a beautiful bowl in a lovely green corner was served to the dancers.

After many waltzes and fox-trots and much pleasure, the end of this, as of all other lovely things, had to come. The Anges Scott girls and the college community greatly enjoyed it and they wish to express their thanks to the Cotillion Club members for the lovely dance.

SHOW YOUR INTEREST IN BASKET-BALL.

It's almost too soon to talk about New Year resolutions, but it's not too late to start the end of the old year right by coming to the first basket-ball game of the season to be played the week before holidays, either Wednesday night the 14th or Friday the 16th.

Hockey was not favored with very many cheerers along the side lines during match games, but with the audiences of the Alumnae and Faculty games as examples the gym has come to the conclusion that it has room for decidedly more spectators than it has seen during past basket-ball seasons.

With Christmas holidays only a few days off couldn't we show our energetic, joyous spirit by giving the players a peppy audience for inspiration? Come out to the game and look forward to Christmas.

HIKE TO DRUID HILLS.

"Merrily we roll along"—it was not exactly roll, but Saturday afternoon was such a beautiful, spring-like afternoon, that the boarders could not resist the temptation to stroll out Ponce de Leon to Druid Hills and back. This stroll had the dignified name of a hike, and although there were attractions at the neighboring schools, picture-shows and theatres, "gobs" of girls rejected their winter wraps and took part in the pleasant two hours' walk.

Saturday afternoon hikes are always the best for there is that holiday spirit prevalent—no need to rush back and study for the library is closed, and the next day, Sunday, is a complete rest day. This hike was no exception to the rule. Amidst the laughter and chatter, candy, peanuts and other favored luxuries were passed back and forth among the bunch. Give a girl a holiday, food—especially candy, and let her talk as much as she cares to; then, the result is the happiest girl in the world. Such was the band of Agnes Scotters on Saturday afternoon.

A pretty young girl in a fury

But the jury said, "We're from Missouri."

FACULTY-STUDENT BASKET-BALL GAME.

One of the most exciting events of the college year occurred in the gym the other night when the faculty played the students in a well-fought basket-ball game. Those lucky enough to get two inches of space in which to sit were rewarded by a most excellent view of the faculty professional led by "Miss Souz Anna" (perhaps better known on the campus as Miss Torrance), brandishing a baton (which looked suspiciously like a curtain rod). The band was truly wonderful! Various musical instruments were in evidence, combs, tennis raquets and castanets being particularly in favor. Miss Curry presided at the piano and Miss Goodwin at the drum. With this pair accompanying the rest of the band, the music produced would have made Dick Tope tremble for his laurels. To the tune of the song whose words follow, the team filed in, clad in suitable costume with one black and one white stocking.

"Played last week,
Played the week before,
Gonner play tonight as we never played before.
When we play we're rough as we can be
For we are members of the facultee."

This was only one of a number of songs which were as clever as could be.

The applause rose again to resounding heights when the student team appeared with hair down and toys very much in evidence. A spectre clad principally in test papers and flunk slips headed this procession and presented to Miss Randolph a corsage of one flower, which she was gracious enough to allow each facultee to smell.

The game was very hilarious and the crowd of spectators were beside themselves with excitement. The faculty played extremely well and the students would not be outdone. No serious accidents occurred, altho' there were several casualties on the side lines following a wild scramble for the ball. Miss Rothermel was apparently knocked out in the second half and medical attention was rendered by Dr. Sweet; after which the game proceeded.

The faculty and students had quite a singing contest trying to prove which loved the other the most. What surprised us most was that whenever the faculty weren't shouting—

"Who's on the faculty,
A. B., M. A., Ph. D. and D. G.,
All women,
No men,
Hood and mortar, boards and sheep-skin" they were chewing gum vigorously. Some say said gum was presented by Miss Smith and others say by Miss McKinney, but far be it from me to decide.

Those distinguishing themselves on the faculty team were Misses Gibbons, center; Wilburn and Goodwin, forwards; Rothermel, side center; West and Randolph, guards; Laney, Culbertson and Preston, substitutes.

Junior: There are songs that have never died. They go riding down through the ages.

Soph: Yes, and my girl for the past six months has been trying to kill two or three each evening, but they never, never died.—Technique.

When you're feeling sort of blue,
And nothing seems to suit you any more—
Don't begin to growl and droop,
Don't let your shoulders stoop,

To greet the noise and worry with a smile,
So hold out a glad hand,
Show us you've got the sand—
That's the Blue Triangle kind of style."

(With apologies to Kipling.)
I've taken my grades as I got them;
I've passed and I've flunked in my time;

I've had my pickings of teachers,
And most of them have been fine;
One was a teacher of English—
Fair and as square as could be;
One was as cross as on old rail fence,
And always "railed" at me.

Now I'm not any hand with old history;

I'm dense as a fog on French;
I always must cram on chemistry,
And bone by the hour on a bench.

Now a little advice I'll give you,
For there are times when you know you won't pass;

But the way to get by with a new faculty
Is to bluff as you did with the last.

SOME EXTRACTS FROM THE POEMS OF SAPPHO.

(As o'er her loom the Lesbian maid
In love-sick languor hung her head,
Unknowing where her fingers strayed
She weeping turned away and said—)

Oh, my sweet mother, 'tis in vain,
I cannot weave as once I wove,
So wildered is my heart and brain
With thinking of that youth I love.

THE BALLY BLIGHTER.

One of those nights,
The last in the year,
When you can sit in a swing,
Just before the sofa
Takes its place.
"Dearest," said he,
"Just one more
Before I go."
She seemed willing,
And held her pretty head
In an attitude of waiting
With her blue eyes closed.
Whereat he reached over
And selected another
Bon-bon from the box.

MY LIFE.

I would be true, for there are those that trust me;
I would be pure, for there are those who care;
I would be strong, for there is much to suffer;
I would be brave, for there is much to dare;
I would be friend to all—the foe, the friendly;
I would be giving and forget the gift,
for there is much to give;
I would be humble, for I know my weakness;
I would look up, and laugh, and love,
and lift.

Long faces, expressions bored;
All nice plans immediately floored,
Cross moods, everything wrong;
What's the trouble? Exams here now—

During.
Book in hand, midnight oil,
So much cramming we nearly spoil.
Industry written on our brow;
What's the trouble? Exams here now—

After.

Away with study and text books punk
The things are over even tho we flunk.

And all that cramming is only a bubble.
Which bursts as soon as they are o'er,
