INMAN COUNTRY CLUB OPENS

Wedding of Prominent Citizens Celebrated

The town of Inman was the scene of two brilliant functions on Saturday night, February 3, when affairs of no less interest than a wedding and the formal opening of the country club took place, followed by the biggest dance the town has witnessed this season.

The marriage was unique in that it was transacted between two of the town's most prominent young people. The bride, Miss Frances Lincoln Richardson, is a popular member of the younger set, and the groom, Mr. Sam Horton, is a rising young business man. He has recently accepted a position with the Inman Bottling Works.

The wedding was solemnized at seven-thirty in the lobby of Inman, the Rev. Frank Bitzer officiating. Miss Lucy Winn and Mr. Marx Jarman rendered familiar air of "How Happy I Will Be," while Miss Bryte Daniel accompanied them on the piano. Then while the wedding march was softly played, the wedding party descended the stairs. First came Peyton, the young sister of the bride, just returned from boarding school, who bore the ring. She was a picture of youthful loveliness in crisp organdie. Next came Miss Frances Lipscomb, the petite maid of honor, who was charmingly gowned in a soft frock of old lace and Charlotte russe. Then came the bride, a radiant vision in white blanc mange, leaning on the arm of her father, Mr. Ned Richardson. Her long train of sheer curtain scrim was carried by lovely little Miss Sarah Slaughter and debonair little Master Stirling Johnson. They were met at the altar by the groom, who was supported by the best man, Mr. Vic Howie. Then while appropriate music fell upon the air, they trothed their plight. The bride then slipped away to don her going away dress, and as she leaned over the newel post she threw her bouquet out into space. It was caught by little Stirling, who presented it to Mayor Guille. Two suspicious looking characters were seen lurking around the doorway after the ceremonies. They were heavily cloaked and masked and it is supposed that they were the Doones, but they were suppressed by the Mayor. Two addresses were then made, the first, a general welcome by the Mayor, who invited the guests to the formal opening dance of the country club and introduced the speaker of the evening, Judge Hyde. The Judge's speech was devoted to the subject of civic pride. His declaration that Inman was one of the most prominent cities in the world was received with ringing applause.

The dazzling success of the Country Club dance was due entirely to the efforts of the president of the Country Club, Mr. C. Smith. Many other civic improvements, such as the zoo in Inman Park, and the lake and roof garden were brought about by this enterprising citizen and his committee. It was a shock to the community to learn that the four elephants in the zoo have been eaten up by some animal of carnivorous propensities. Every effort is being made to apprehend these fearsome pests, and the results will be published in "Ye Towne Gossip," the town weekly edited by Mr. E. Spivey.

MISS SPINNEY READS THE "ELECTRA"

Delights Audience

During the last week, in every department of study here at Agnes Scott, we were told that Miss Dorothea Spinney, of England, was to give a reading of a Greek drama on Saturday night, February 10. And needless to say we were eager to go.

We went, we saw, and we were conquered. For in Miss Spinney's

MISS RANDOLPH ENTERTAINS EPISCOPALIANS

Ten Girls Enjoy Party at Her Home.

Wouldn't we all like to be Episcopalians though? Why? Because last Monday night when the Presbyterians and the Methodists and the Baptists were boning hard on Chemistry and French, and Algebra, those lucky Agnes Scotters of the Episcopal church just cut work and without a care in the world so's you could notice it, away they went down South Candler Street to Miss Randolph's apartment.

Miss Randolph was giving the party in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Pascam, the new Episcopal minister and his wife, and they couldn't have wished for a nicer place to be introduced to their future friends, for Miss Randolph has the littlest, cosiest, homiest apartment in the world, and when it was packed and full running over, who could help having a good time?

After everyone had been introduced, they talked and talked and talked, and got acquainted all over again. The small daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pascam added a great deal to the enjoyment of the evening, in fact she was so adorable that most of the girls fell in love with her and wanted to kidnap her on the spot, but she, wise child, decided that she was too young as yet to try the strenuous life.

Because Miss Randolph was hostess and because everybody was naturally feeling good—time flew by, then refreshments, delicious ice cream and cake were served, and before they knew it, it was time to sing "Good Night Ladies."

The girls, chaperoned by Miss McCaa, Mrs. Fitzhugh, Miss Miller and Miss Gaylord, were: DeC. Jones, Quennelle Harrold, Anna Meade, Eleanor Hyde, Josephine Schuessler, Louisa Duls, Margaret Prowell, Helena Dismukes, Elizabeth Riviere, and Elizabeth Carrere.

OPEN DISCUSSION MEETING FEBRUARY 6

Quiet Rules Considered

The Open Discussion Student Government meeting for February was held last Tuesday night, February 6. These meetings have been under the Lower House of Student Government this year and have been conducted much more quietly and orderly than formerly. Anyone who has a question to be discussed hands her question to a member of the Committee of Lower House which has this in charge and at the next discussion these difficulties are discussed. Much good has been obtained from these meetings; the faculty granted ten light cuts a semester instead of the former seven and light cut rooms were prepared for both Rebekah Scott and Inman, which makes it much more convenient for girls living in these dormitories and also keeps the rooms in main from being so crowded. And last year the twenty minute late rule when returning from Atlanta with another girl was granted.

There was only one question to be brought before this meeting. The oft discussed problem of what quiet rules should remain over holidays. A questionnaire had been prepared and each girl was asked to give honestly her opinion on each question. The questions were:

1. Has the noise ever disturbed you to any great extent?
2. Do you think there should be any difference in rules the night before and the night after?
3. What time would you suggest that they go on?
4. Do you think the person who wishes to sleep should be considered?
5. What time do you think quiet rules should go on the night before the holiday? the night after?

SOPHOMORE SISTERS CHOSEN

Valentine's Day is Exciting for Juniors and Freshmen

One of the most exciting events of the college year took place on Wednesday when the future Seniors asked the members of the present Freshman class to be their Sophomore sisters. Invitations were dainty Valentines. These came through the mail on Wednesday morning, and were a complete surprise to the Freshmen who were chosen as Sophomore sisters.

Next year's Seniors and their sisters are:

FOLIO SELECTS NEW MEMBERS

Four Girls to be Initiated Soon

At a meeting of Folio held Friday, February 2, new members were elected. Twice during the school year, Folio Club, which is devoted to promoting interest in short-story writing among the Freshmen, holds tryouts, in which all Freshmen are eligible. The first tryouts, held in November failed to receive their due and proper publicity, due to the unfortunate fact that Agonistic was then on its enforced vacation. On this occasion from a rather astonishing number of contestants, Olive Hall was elected to membership. In the recent meeting, the successful stories were written by Grace Augusta Ogden, Virginia Hollingsworth, Louisa Duls, and Margaret Bull. These girls will be initiated in the near future.

The acquisition of new members is in itself an occasion of much joy. However, the old members automatically withdraw at this time—necessity rather tragic to those who must be in Folio no more.

MISS FRIEDMAN SPEAKS IN CHAPEL

Tells of Bryn Mawr Summer School for Industrial Girls

We have often read about the industrial girl and her problems, but we were drawn closer to her than ever before on Monday night, February 6. For we had with us Miss Ernestine Friedman, the executive secretary of Bryn Mawr's eight weeks summer school for industrial girls. This school is conducted by Bryn Mawr every summer for those industrial girls who have the ambition and the will to study something about their relation to the world and their contributions to it.

Miss Davis, our Sociology teacher, has taught up there in the summertime. She introduced Miss Friedman as "the boss who worked me fourteen hours a day."

Miss Friedman told us something about the School and the girls. She made us feel quite ashamed of ourselves when she compared the attitude of the industrial and the college girl. Our industrial sister is terribly in earnest. This eight weeks summer school to her is her opportunity—the difference between a mental life and a mental death, and she is determined to make the most of it. If the teacher fails to come, she, with her classmates, goes to him to demand that the class missed be made up in some way. To the average college girl, on the other hand, a "cut" is the thing to be desired above all things. At the close of her studies, she takes back books and organizes classes among her fellow workers. That is what education means to the industrial girl.

In these summer schools she studies Economics, History, Sociology—the subjects which will enable her to go back and do most for the girls who have not had her opportunity. Every year the definite subjects to

STUDENT VOLUNTEER CONVENTION AT BRENAU

Agnes Scott Well Represented

A conference of the Student Volunteers of the Southern colleges was held at Brenau the ninth, tenth, and eleventh of February. The purpose of this conference was to promote the interests of foreign missions. Mr. J. W. Hassell of Japan was one of the interesting speakers, and Mr. Stauffau, Educational Secretary from New York, and Miss Virginia Pritchard, a traveling secretary of the Y. W. C. A. who was here last week, were also on the program. Eloise Knight also made a very interesting talk.

Agnes Scott was well represented at this conference. They left here on a special car Friday morning. Brenau gave a lovely reception for the delegates and also gave an automobile ride over lovely Gainesville.

The girls who went from here were:

- Emily Guille, representative from Y. W. C. A.
- Lillian McAlpine.
- Josephine Logan.
- Pearl Smith.
- Georgia May Little.
- Ella Smith.
- Emmie Ficklen.
- Mary Goodrich.
- Lucile Phippen.
- Cora Norton.
- Frances Bitzer.
- Marjorie Speake.
- Julia Pope.
- Mary Ann McKinney.

Agnes Scott students will be glad to know that Emmie Ficklen was elected Secretary of the Georgia Student Volunteer Band. She is one of our most enthusiastic workers in this field, and all Agnes Scott is proud of the honor conferred upon her.

CREDIT TOWARD DEGREE FOR PI ALPHA PHI

Pi Alpha Phi Debates on Intercollegiate Subject

It will be interesting to the college community to know that twelve members of Pi Alpha Phi have been chosen as having done such good work this year as to merit receiving one hour's credit toward their degrees. Pi Alpha Phi is one of the most worthy and enterprising organizations on the campus, and the fact that these members are to be rewarded for their work meets with general approval.

The students who are to receive this credit are:

- Sarah Dunlap
- Isobel Ferguson
- Quennelle Harrold
- Margaret Hyatt
- Eloise Knight
- Lucille Little
- Mary Stuart McLeod
- Mary Anne McKinney
- Valeria Posey
- Daisy Frances Smith
- Marjory Speake
- Pocahontas Wight

These girls are to be congratulated for the honor which has been shown them. It is interesting to know that from this number the six intercollegiate debaters will be chosen.

With the triangular debate in view Pi Alpha Phi is beginning to work earnestly for a double victory over Randolph-Macon and Sophie Newcombe. A series of interesting debates has been arranged for the interval between now and March 23, when the intercollegiate conflict will be staged. Pi Alpha Phi will have as questions phases of the subject which was chosen recently by the three colleges: Resolved: That the United States government should cancel the debts owed her by the nations associated with her in the World War.

The first of this series was held last week. Quennelle Harrold and Eloise Knight supported the affirmative side of the question, while Valeria Posey and Daisy Frances Smith were on the negative side.

On Thursday the 8th, Pi Alpha Phi heard a debate on the following subject: Resolved: That cancellation of the war debts is necessary from the point of view of the allies. On the 15th the debate will be: Resolved: That cancellation of the war debts is necessary from the point of view of the United States. Another meeting of the club will take place on the 19th. The question of German reparations will be discussed at this time.

Those who will participate in these debates are Mary Stuart McLeod, Marjory Speake, Isobel Ferguson, Margaret Hyatt, Lucille Little, Mary Breedlove, Mary Anne McKinney, Olive Hall, Pocahontas Wight, Sarah Dunlap, Eugenia Thompson, and Louise Buchanan.

On February 23 the intercollegiate speaker will be chosen. From this time until March 23, when the three colleges will meet each other, there will be a series of debates. At the first the two affirmative speakers will meet two of those who have been selected to receive credit for their Pi Alpha Phi work, but who were not

Y. W. C. A. ENTERTAINS NEW GIRLS

Party in Cabinet Room

Typical of the spirit of sisterly consideration extended to all Agnes Scott girls by the Y. W. C. A. was the party given on last Thursday evening in honor of the new members of our household, the students entering for the spring semester.

Surely no more cordial brand of hospitality can be dispensed than that extended by Eloise Knight and her efficient board of Y. M. C. A. officers.

THE HONOR SYSTEM

The Student Government Association has recently arranged for a series of lectures to be given by several members of our faculty on the subject of the honor system. The first of these talks was made by Mr. Stukes two weeks ago and was of much interest of the student body.

We were glad to receive this week from Washington and Lee University a pamphlet entitled "The Practical Operation of the Honor System at Washington and Lee." This was written by Dr. Henry Louis Smith, the president of the university. President Smith has given expression to the salient facts of the honor system in such a concise and interesting way that we feel sure Agnes Scott students will read with pleasure and profit the following selection which we take the liberty of printing.

THE "HONOR-SYSTEM"

By Henry Louis Smith

Introduction

Such words as religion, democracy, liberty, honor, chivalry, etc., are incapable of exact definition or delimitation. So with that form of self-discipline and idealism known as the student "honor-system." No two campus groups professing to practise it accept the same code of honor or agree as to the exact function and limitations of the "system." In many institutions it is no more than a traditional "verbal asset," the empty husk of a past reality. In its application to student conduct it is often fantastically narrow and one-sided, like the chivalry of the middle ages. It is also sometimes unfortunately harsh in its treatment of individual cases. To many outsiders, it seems, like religion, idealism, and the golden rule, too vague, illogical, and sentimental to be a really workable program with human nature as it is.

Yet a life-time of practical experience with the "honor-system" convinces me that of all the character-building agencies of the American college campus it is by far the most valuable and effective.

Its Definition

Merely abstaining from faculty supervision, "trusting" everybody, and "putting every student on his honor," whether he has any or not, is as far from the honor-SYSTEM as anarchy from ordered liberty.

The "honor-system" is a form of student self-government which, assuming that every student is a man of absolute truthfulness and honesty, takes immediate cognizance of all violations of an accepted code of honor; AND THRU STUDENT ORGANIZATIONS procures the permanent removal from the student-body of all those who, by violating in any degree this accepted code, prove that they cannot thus be safely trusted.

Its Essentials

That the honor-system may be a working reality and not, as it so often is, a mere pretense, at least two things are essential:

1st. The whole student-body must be organized to enforce it, and must accept, willingly and courageously, its heavy responsibilities. In matters embraced by the accepted code the faculty, while reserving its ultimate control, relinquishes its disciplinary function not to the individual student, but to the organized, sympathetic, and willing student-body.

2nd. Campus sentiment must be overwhelmingly in favor of a rigid and impartial enforcement. If a student loses caste for reporting to the honor committee a frat-mate or close associate who has violated the code, the so-called honor-system at that institution is already a corpse.

In speaking of the practical operation of the honor system, Dr. Smith gives four ways in which it has proved successful at Washington and Lee. It will easily be seen that these four are identical with the benefits of the system as put into force at Agnes Scott. First, it has freed examinations and class-room work from faculty espionage. This is one of the greatest advantages of the honor system; and for this reason, more than for any other, it has met with the approval of both faculties and student. Mr. Stukes, by describing to us the conditions under which examinations are taken in colleges which have no honor system, gave us a clear idea of the greater merits of our present method.

Dr. Smith then mentions the safeguarding of personal and college property and the giving to student of absolute freedom in the college libraries as further ways in which the honor system has been beneficial.

In giving the fourth practical operation of the honor system Dr. Smith describes the system of buying and selling which it fosters. At Washington and Lee there is a "Co-op" store "which has a regular counter piled with priced articles where every customer pockets whatever articles he selects, makes his own change out of an open money box, and departs without the notice or intervention of a salesman." This system of buying and selling seems to be widespread on the Washington and Lee campus. Several cases of individual enterprise similar to the "Co-op" store are cited. We have no such store at Agnes Scott, but the Junior Class manages its sales of candy on a

GLASS BLOWERS PERFORM AT AGNES SCOTT

A very unique event of the past week was the visit of the glass-blowers to Agnes Scott. There were three performances of their art—two in the afternoon and one at night.

The glass-blowers came to us under their leader, Mr. Howell, who has studied with the Venetian glass-blowers. They did artistic as well as scientific glass-blowing, and many and varied were the artistic productions.

A glass fountain-pen was given as a souvenir to each girl who was present. The demonstration was very interesting, and wholly novel to most of the spectators.

DEATH OF MADAME SLIFER

Agnes Scott is very grieved to hear of the death of Madame Slifer on February 7, 1923. Madame Slifer was one of the foremost influences in Atlanta for the propagation of the French language and French ideals in the United States. In Atlanta she has been the factor in helping many foreigners obtain homes and positions, and has been for the past few years, the center from which the French element in Atlanta radiated. She was one of the officers in the Alliance Francaise, and showed a great interest in Agnes Scott, having spoken to our French Club a number of times.

FRENCH SONGS

Kindly save these songs and bring them to the next meeting of the French Club.

La Marseillaise

Allons, enfants de la Patrie,
 Le jour de gloire est arrive.
 Contre nous, de la tyrannie
 L'etendard sanglant est leve.
 Entendez-vous, dans les campagnes,
 Mugir ses feroces soldats?
 Ils viennent jusque dans nos bras,
 Egorge nos fils, nos campagnes!
 Aus armes, citoyens, formez vos bataillons!
 Marchons, marchons
 Qu'un sang impur
 Abreuve nos sillons.

Que veut cette horde d'esclaves
 Contre nous en vain conjures
 Pour qui ces ignobles entraves
 Ces fers des longtemps prepares.
 Ces fers des longtemps prepare.
 Francais, pour nous, ah, quel outrage,
 Quels transports il doit exciter.
 C'est vous qu'on ose mediter
 Derendre a l'antique esclavage
 Aux armes, citoyens, formez vous bataillons
 Marchons, marchons,
 Qu'un sang impur,
 Abreuve nos sillons.

Amour sacre de la Patrie
 Conduis soutiens nos bras vengeurs,
 Liberte, Liberte cherie,
 Combats avec tes defenseurs,
 Combats avec tes defenseurs,
 Sous nos drapeaux que la victoire
 Accoure a tes males accents:
 Que tes ennemies expirants
 Voient ton triomphe et notre gloire,
 Aux armes, citoyens, formez vos bataillons,
 Marchons, marchons.
 Qu'un sang impur

like plan. There is an open money box and a supply of candy in one room in each dormitory. These illustrations remind us of the traditional days of King Alfred, when men were so honest that a precious jewel hung from a tree a year without being removed by the passers-by.

We are especially glad to be able to publish the views of Dr. Smith at a time when our Student Government Association is seeking to give an adequate expression to its aims and benefits. We feel that the fact that Dr. Smith regards the honor system as the most valuable and effective character builder in our colleges today is a weighty argument in its favor.

The Young Women's Christian Association is interested in a conference which is going to be held at Bear Mountain, on February 16 and 17. This conference is under the auspices of the Student Volunteer Band, an organization which consists of students who are planning to do work in the foreign field after graduation.

Up at the Bear Mountain Inn, they are going to discuss world problems and world needs. Foreign travelers and missionaries will speak to the students. Then outside—they're going to skate, toboggan, ski, and snow shoe.

At the previous conferences our girls girls who have gone have had marvelous times and they are looking forward to even a better time at this one. For, although we have no organized Volunteer Band here, there are many members of the Christian Association who are interested in its work.—Adelphi.

PI Alpha Phi is one of the most active organizations on the campus. The fact that every member has debated at least once shows that they are wide-awake in their work.

EXCHANGES

The Goucher College Weekly, Baltimore, Maryland, is one of our most enterprising college papers. The material for the December 14, 1922 number is excellently arranged, and a very attractive front page is obtained by this careful grouping. There are articles on the Czechoslovakia question, on a local student meeting, on the first debate, and on the play given by the Juniors. None of these excerpts seem to be a mere outline of the subject in hand, but all of them prove well worth the reader's while.

A very unique and altogether pleasing phase of this paper is what is known as its "Open Forum," a column on the editorial page devoted to the expression of student and faculty opinion on varied subjects. In this column, as the editor tells us "They welcome criticism, but resent mud-slinging." Here is a practice upon which it might behoove all the colleges to enter—with the probable result that there would be a great diminution in the amount of "mud-slinging" done against the colleges and their papers.

In addition to this novel feature, we wish also to commend the able business managers of the Goucher College Weekly on their energetic work in obtaining their great number of attractive advertisements.

THE ABSENT MINDED BEGGAR

"Carter is the most absent-minded chap I ever saw," remarked a clubman to a fellow clubman.

"What's he been doing now?" inquired the other.

"Why this morning he thought he'd left his watch at home, and then he took it out to see if he had time to go back and get it."

"That isn't as bad," said the second man reminiscently, "as the time when he left his office and put out a card saying he'd be back at three o'clock, and then, finding he'd forgotten something, went back to his office, read the notice on the door and sat down on the stairs to wait until three o'clock.—Ladies Home Journal.

whistled weirdly and the air was cold and damp on the outside, the inner temperature was warm, comfortable and cheery, made so by glowing fires and the hearty, happy talk and laughter of the assembled crowd of girls, both old and new.

The gaiety of the evening was added to by the cracking of nuts, toasting of marshmallows, and playing of many unique and unusual games. The party was delightfully informal, and proved to be a genuine "get-together" and "get-acquainted" occasion.

Each new-comer was welcomed with words so apt and sincere that she at once realized that she had been unreservedly received into the happy, jolly home-circle of the most splendid college of the South. This warmth of welcome, like a ray of sunshine on a dismal day, will never lose its heart-warming brightness until memories of Freshman loneliness have drifted into the forgotten past. Despite the fact that the wind

CHICAGO UNIVERSITY ENVELOPED IN GLOOM 'LOVE CAURSE BANNED'

By Rodney Dutcher

Chicago, Feb. 1.—The University of Chicago has passed up its chance to become the most popular institution of learning in the world.

It flatly refused yesterday to install the proposed course in the art and psychology of love, and Chicago co-eds and undergraduates must go through life armed only with such technique as is gained from experience.

Ukeleles and banjos were silent on the campus wednesday night. The atmosphere was surcharged with gloom. For weeks the love course had been agitated by students who wanted to put the academic and scientific spotlight on the tender passion.

They wanted to know how they got that way.

Professor Tells Why

GIDDIE GOSSIP

Dear Aggie Hon,

I almost forgot to write a letter to you this week, I was that busy, until Mary Greene came over tonight and jogged my memory a bit. We don't seem to accomplish so awfully much here, but we're all so awfully busy all the time we simply can't get around to some of the things we want to do. For instance, in the way of correspondence: I write to you regularly every week, and I write home for money regularly every week, but the rest of my correspondence is pretty much of a bit on miss affair—sometimes I dont.

The very biggest, nicest news on the campus this week is that Dr. Arm is back home again. We didn't know we could miss anybody so much, until he got sick a few weeks ago, but now he's back with us again, and all's serene.

Some more faculty news: Miss White, our librarian, had a birthday, not only a birthday, but a party in the Rebecca dining room as well. It seemed queer to have a party in the faculty table, of course the faculty do have birthdays—being, when is said and done, More mortals than the rest of us, but most of them are pretty secretive about the dates. As a faculty member has a birthday, she takes in her own room on that night, lights the candles all by herself, blows them out all by herself, eats the cake all by herself, all by —oh, surely at this point she calls some of her hungry neighbors in! Anyway, we agree with Miss White in liking a dining-room party lots the best, and wish for her many more happy birthdays.

Life for the Atlanta boarding girls out here is just one long party. That's the conclusion I've reached, after watching them pack their week-end bags every Saturday, run home once or twice during the week, and call up the house just anytime of day the notion strikes them, and the lovely mothers who come out every once in so often to see how their daughters are getting on! And, last, (but by no means least in the eyes of a grits and spuds fed Agnes Scotter) what perfectly lovely cake and fudge and sandwiches these mothers bring with them when they come! After all, there isn't any place like home, is there?

Oh Aggie, such important meetings as the juniors have been having here lately! And such discussions about—I really ought not to tell, I suppose, for the Juniors are keeping it all a secret. But you won't get this letter till Wednesday, and by then—Oh goodness, I'm about to tell and I'm afraid I ought not to anyway, you look in your mail-box Valentine's day and you'll know what I'm talking about. Oh Aggie, ain't life grand? And isn't it going to be more fun being a senior next year and having a darling you-know-what in '26? I just can't wait. Yours, walking on air, Giddie.

MISS SPINNEY READS THE "ELECTRA"

Continued from page 1, column 1) rendering of the tragedy "Electra" by Euripedes, we see the results of much work. She gives the characters in all their roles. And by a slight change of the draping of a scarf or the bottom of her costume she changes from one role to another. Her interpretation of the chorus is one of the best. This is one of the most difficult parts in giving a Greek tragedy alone. For the chorus plays the most important part.

Through her own strong personality Miss Spinney makes you see and feel that these are human beings, full of faults and goodnesses like ourselves, even though many centuries have intervened since the drama was written.

Miss Spinney's reading of the "Electra" was much enjoyed by those who were present.

Spivey Tells The Vital News

The "Agonistic" wishes to be generous in recognizing the merits of its rivals. Recently there has sprung up overnight on our campus a publication which threatens to dim the fame of the "New York Times" and the Hickville "Astonisher."

Editor Spivey is a wide-awake person. Nothing in his community escapes his eagle eye. There is news of vital interest from East Point, West End, and Stone Mountain.

Also Editor Virden of "Silhouette" fame has announced her views on love. We await eagerly Mr. Spivey's editorial comments on Alice Virden's opinions.

These are only hypothetical cases, but they will serve to show the lively items of the "Town Tattler."

As yet the "Town Tattler" does not show great development in its advertising department, but we feel sure that this section will have a better showing in the next issue.

STUDENT ELECTIONS HELD

MISS MAUDE ROYDEN HERE ON SUNDAY

Noted Minister Addresses Students

'God is Love' Is Her Subject

Perhaps the most notable privilege conferred on the college community this year through the instrumentality of the Lecture Association was that of hearing Great Britain's distinguished preacher, Miss Maude Royden, on Sunday afternoon, March 11. It was only due to a well-omened accident which a kind Providence provided, that it could be arranged for her to come to Agnes Scott; and it is not too much to say that thanks are still being rendered for her presence here as a guest of the college from noon Saturday till Sunday night.

The theme of Miss Royden's strikingly beautiful address was "God is Love"; and the passage of Scripture was from first John, the fourth chapter. Two impressive things from the sermon itself stand out in one's mind: the truth, the bigness, the healthiness, the beauty of her conception of Christ; and the other, the assuring and lovely idea that the things of good we love in human beings are all a part of the divinity of God, and so, when we love people, we at the same time love Him.

It is the impression of Miss Royden herself, however, that will remain longest in our minds. Her eloquence, her amazing tolerance and understanding of attitudes and points of view entirely different from her own, the simplicity and gracious dignity of her manner, the radiance and earnestness of her feeling, and the attractive, appealing charm of a woman really great, make her a person to whom it is indeed hard to do justice.

The account of Miss Royden in the British Who's Who for 1921 will perhaps give some idea of the wideness of the range of her worth and thought.

Agnes Maude Royden—Assistant Merchant at the City Temple, 1917-1920; founder with Dr. Percy Dearmer of the Fellowship services at Kensington. Born 1876, youngest daughter of the late Sir Thomas Royden, first Baronet of Frankby Hall, Birkenhead. Educated Cheltenham Ladies College, Lady Margaret Hall, Oxford. Worked at Victoria Woman's settlement, Liverpool for three years; lecturer in English literature to Oxford University extension delegacy; joined the National Union of Women's Suffrage societies in 1908; on executive committee, 1908; edited the "Common Cause" until 1914; wrote and spoke chiefly on the economic, ethical, and religious aspects of the Woman's movement. Publications, pamphlets, "Votes and Wages", "The True End of Government", "The Great Adventure", "How Women use the Vote", etc.

Maude Royden is the first woman to be a regular assistant in a great city pulpit. She was selected to help the famous American preacher the Rev. Joseph Fort Newton of the City Temple in London. She "became internationally famous in 1911 and visited America to deliver a series of lectures and to aid in the American suffrage campaign." She spoke at the National Y. W. C. A. Convention in Hot Springs, in April of 1922, and during that time preached in several of the large churches in New York City. In the scope of her field of interests and activity Miss Royden is comparable, perhaps, to America's great Suffrage leader, Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, who, it will be remembered, also began her career, as a preacher.

Miss Dorothy Speer, a recent graduate of Bryn Mawr, and the daughter of Robert E. Speer was a visitor to Agnes Scott also, as Miss Royden's attractive travelling companion.

MISS PALMER GIVES ILLUSTRATED LECTURE

Noted Bible Teacher Speaks At Agnes Scott

On Sunday evening, March 11th, Agnes Scott was greatly privileged in having as the speaker at her Y. W. C. A. service the noted Bible teacher, Miss Palmer, for many years a prominent member of the faculty in Dr. White's Biblical Seminary, New York. Miss Palmer returned just six months ago from a trip to the Holy Land, and is now giving illustrated lectures on her journey, in various colleges of the country. For her presence here we are indebted to Miss Julia Lake Skinner, a graduate of Agnes Scott and now a student at Dr. White's Seminary, who urged Miss Palmer to visit us. The Bible Club was also active in securing her services.

The subject of her talk on Sunday night was the Epistle of Paul to the Philippians. She said that if today a letter written by St. Paul could be discovered, everybody would be eager to read it. The Bible contains many such letters, among them "Philippians," which should be perused with the interest generally accorded the personal letters of great men. In closing Miss Palmer told the story of a little girl who lived in the slums of New York, and had never seen flowers or living plants of any kind. One day in school the child became very interested in trying to copy a pansy from several pictures. Luckily, the teacher received that very day from her home in the country a box of flowers, among them some pansies, which she at once showed the girl. But to the teacher's surprise, the child's face fell, as she sadly exclaimed, "I can't put the velvet on." So it is with our lives. We may make them the best we can but God must "put the velvet on." Miss Palmer also paid a beautiful tribute to the character of Miss Skinner, and said how pleased she was to come in contact with the atmosphere that has produced such a girl.

On Monday night, March 12th, under the auspices of the Agnes Scott Bible Club, Miss Palmer delivered a lecture on her trip through the Holy Land, illustrated by many slides made from pictures she had taken, in large part, herself. One of the most interesting of these slides was a picture of an eastern sheep fold, with its one little door. After the sheep have all gone into the fold, the shepherd lies in this little door, so that anyone entering must pass over his body. Miss Palmer told of an eastern shepherd, ignorant of the existence of Christ, who, when asked where the door of his fold was, answered, "I am the door," the exact words used by Jesus in John X: 9. This incident illustrates how much easier it is for Easterners to grasp the ideas of the New Testament than for us. Miss Palmer also told of her dangerous visit to Beer-Sheba, where the savage Bedouins pitch their tents. The entire lecture was most enjoyable, and we congratulate ourselves on having had the opportunity of hearing such a capable and delightful speaker.

A very enjoyable dinner was given on Tuesday evening, in the Anna Young Alumnae House, in honor of Mr. Lane. Among those present were, Elizabeth Ransom, president of the International Relations Club; and three of Agnes Scott's representatives in the inter-collegiate debates, Quenelle Harold, Pocahontas Wight, and Mary Stewart McLeod.

STUDENTS VOTE FOR NEXT YEAR'S OFFICERS ON MONDAY AFTERNOON

Scandrett, Howie, Stone, Brown, Greene and Evans Receive Major Offices

Elections Held Early on Account of Training Council for Y. W. C. A.

On Monday afternoon, March 19, the annual student elections were held at Agnes Scott. This time was a little earlier than the usual date; but, due to the fact that the officers of the Y. W. C. A. will have to go to Training Council next week, the elections were held this week. Nominations were made last week, and both Committee and student nominations were posted at that time.

The members of the nominating committee were in charge of the voting. Hilda McConnell presided, and the other members of the Committee counted the votes. The elections were as follows:

- Student Government
Carrie Scandrett was chosen as the next president by a large majority of the votes. She was secretary of the association this year and all the students feel great confidence in her ability and interest. The vice-presidents are Weeona Peck, Barron Hyatt, and Helen Wright. Mary Ann McKinney, the new secretary, will have charge of White House next year. Louise Buchanan, now president of the Sophomore class, will be treasurer next year. Elizabeth Henry will be the student treasurer. Frances Myers is the new member of College Council, and Cora Morton is chairman of the Auditing Committee.
- Y. W. C. A.
Victoria Howie's opponents for president of the Y. W. C. A., were eliminated by the point system, and she received a unanimous vote for that office. In the same way Emmie Ficklen became vice-president without opposition. Frances Lincoln and Margaret Hyatt are secretary and treasurer, respectively. Frances Gilliland was rewarded for a half year of faithful and successful work as Undergraduate Representative by being reelected to that office.

- Silhouette
A good annual for next year was assured when Polly Stone was made editor of the "Silhouette." Dell Bernhardt, who has done such splendid work on this publication, will be assistant editor. Mary Evelyn Arnold, as business manager, and Ella Smith, as assistant business manager, will attend to the financial end of the annual.
- Aurora
Janice Brown, who is assistant editor of the "Aurora" this year, will be the next editor-in-chief. She is well fitted for this work as she was a member of Folio and is now a member of B. O. Z. and of the Poetry Club. Elizabeth Cheatham, a member of the present staff, is the new assistant editor. The Business manager is Ellen Walker, and the assistant business manager is Betty Little.

- Agonistic
Due to the fact that the "Agonistic" has been made a Senior office, the present editor and assistant editor, Mary H. Greene and Dorothy Keith, were chosen to serve a second term. Caroline Smith and Mary Mann are business manager and assistant business manager, respectively.
- Athletic Association
Nancy Evans, one of Agnes Scott's prize athletes, was made president of the Athletic Association. The song leader is Martha Liu Manly, while Mary Jarman will again direct the orchestra. Emily Arnold will serve as the new fire chief.

- Daughters of Dusk
L. Clement, R. Harrison, A. Johnson, Louise Smith, E. Saxon, A. Carter, D. Ferrell, K. Houston, E. Parham, M. Plunkett, L. Curtis, M. Debele, F. Matthews, E. Randolph, H. Benneson, N. Benneson, E. Moore, E. McCallie.

- Mr. Deickman will compose all of the music for the dances which Miss Randolph and Miss Haynes are at present working upon. The lovely May Queen, the beautiful Indian setting, the variety of costumes and dances, and the musical effects will all combine to make the pageant a much-looked-for event.

MARGARET RANSOM CHOSEN FOR MAY QUEEN

Full Cast for Spring Festival Announced

Margaret Ransom, one of the most attractive members of the senior class, has been elected May Queen and we all are assured that she will grace her position with great charm and dignity. As she is seated upon her royal open-air throne, the lovely pageant, "Maize Moon," will be enacted before her eyes. "Maize Moon" promises to be one of the most successful and beautiful pageants for which Agnes Scott has become famous. In it there will be originality of thought and plot, richness of color, and splendor and daintiness of dance and music.

The five leading dancers and the rest of the cast are as follows:
Rising Sun ..... Dorothy Bowron
Morning Star ..... Hall McDougall
Rising Moon ..... Louise Brown
Evening Star ..... Elizabeth Ransom

Dr. David Eugene Smith the Honor Guest

On first consideration we may not find much poetry in contemplating Log Sin B and its numerous friends, but the members of the Mathematical Club, at any rate, found much food for delightful thought at the luncheon given in their honor Saturday March 17.

MR. LANE LECTURES ON RUHR VALLEY

Brings News Fresh From France

Students Hear Him With Interest

Of exceptionally vital interest to all the Agnes Scott students was the lecture by Mr. Lane on Tuesday evening, March 13. Mr. Lane, who has been leader of the Junior Red Cross of America in Europe for the past three years, is unusually well fitted to speak on the subject, "Franco-German Relations in the Ruhr Valley." Practically all the college community, and especially the six debaters looked forward with great pleasure to hearing Mr. Lane's address.

To the casual outsider, he told us, there seems to be no apparent change in the attitudes of the two belligerent nations; but, to the one who has an opportunity to realize to the fullest the real state of affairs, the fact that France and Germany are passionately against each other, is quite evident also the fact that England, who up to the present time has been virtually with France is certainly not acting with her in the present developments. This drifting apart, Mr. Lane affirmed is vehemently denied on both sides, but is none the less an active factor in determining the outcome of the actual dangerous situation.

Mr. Lane then explained the real basis of French foreign policy, which he stated to be, in a nutshell, fear of Germany. This positive fear dates back to 1867, and in reality even much farther, for France has always feared the rising up of an exceedingly strong power on her northeast frontier. In 1867 when Germany and Austria struggled, France realized that the power of Germany was enormous, and ever since has she been on her guard.

At present, this strained state of affairs is coming rapidly to a head. Germany now is plotting revenge against France, for both she and France realize the growing ascendancy of Germany, who at present has sixty million people, as compared with France's bare forty million—the latter sum decreasing alarmingly each year. If the natural course of events is allowed to take its way, France knows that Germany will soon be overpoweringly strong, so she has resolved that the natural course of events shall not come to pass.

To meet this condition, there are two possible policies for France, both of which she is pursuing. These are, to form powerful allies, and to deal directly with Germany herself. France, being more nearly self-supporting than any other country of the world, seems to be able to follow out successfully her plan of keeping Germany hemmed in. In doing this, France may seem to the world to be merely desiring power, while she really does not seek to be a dominant, but a prominent nation—for she earnestly does not seek war again. France believes firmly that Germany can pay, and that she will not pay until under great coercion—therefore that she, France, is absolutely justified in going in and seizing German soil—the Ruhr Valley, France's real motive in sending her troops into the Ruhr was for gaining a security, and it is on this point that she and Great Britain are at odds.

The situation in the Ruhr changes daily—even hourly. France will never withdraw her troops. Mr. Lane stated, until she has something to show for this, her supreme effort at making Germany pay. The vital factor for France at present is, whether Germany should pay, and in so doing, necessarily accumulate vast wealth and power, or whether she should be kept weak, with the promise of a better future.

INTERCOLLEGIATE DEBATES

The intercollegiate debates scheduled for Friday night are occupying the attention of everybody at Agnes Scott. We are thinking of the enviable record that Agnes Scott has made for herself by winning double victories for the past two years, and we are feeling pride in the good work which our speakers this year have done and are wishing for them a like success.

The intercollegiate debates have meant much to Agnes Scott and to the other colleges associated with her in the triangle. They have kept us interested in each other in a friendly way and have formed an intellectual bond between the three colleges that could have been attained in no other way which would have been so vital and personal to all members of the student bodies. Even the usual link of college publications does not come near to rivaling the debates, as the papers and magazines of other colleges are not widely read by the average student.

At Agnes Scott the debates are the sole way in which the students come into contact with the activities of other colleges. Since we do not have intercollegiate athletics, we meet students from different institutions only in conferences, which can be attended by only a few girls. We hear reports of these meetings and unconsciously receive benefits from them but to most of us they necessarily seem rather remote. The debates, however, come home to us. We hear the speeches, we see our opponents, we help to cheer for our team. The contact is real for every one of us. We truly come to know something of Randolph-Macon and Sophie Newcomb. This contact serves the purpose of freeing us from a narrowness as regards the relative importance of our own place in the world of college activities.

Then in a less broad sense the intercollegiate debates have meant effective training for many Agnes Scott girls. In getting ready for the debates each year, large numbers of students work in preparing material for others and in preliminary debating. Besides the debating class, much of this work was done formerly by the literary societies and is being done now by Pi Alpha Phi. This training in reasoning and speaking is valuable to all who avail themselves of it.

Therefore, we are glad that Agnes Scott takes part in these debates; and an added pleasure is of course, the brilliant victories that we have won and the success which we earnestly hope that our college shall achieve in the future.

NELLE BUCHANAN AT DEBATE

It was with pleasure that Agnes Scott students heard last week that Nelle Buchanan is to be here on March 23 for the debate with Sophie Newcomb. She will act at that time as chairman of the debate.

Nelle was a senior here last year and has friends and admirers by the score. Besides having been Editor of the "Agonistic" and President of Student Government, she is one of the best debaters which Agnes Scott has produced, and a great deal of our success in intercollegiate contests is due to her effective reasoning and pleasing presentation. During the time when she was a student here she was one of our principal speakers against both Randolph-Macon and Sophie Newcomb and each time her team was successful. We feel that Agnes Scott is fortunate in having Nelle as chairman of this year's debate, and we all look forward to her coming with very great pleasure.

WHAT "EQUAL RIGHTS BILLS MEAN

Watch for Anti-Protective Legislation, Says Legislative Committee.

The Legislative Committee of the National Board, Young Women's Christian Association, is deeply concerned over the activities of the National Women's party to wipe out all protective legislation for women. Commenting upon the "Equal Rights" Bills the Committee expresses fear that such proposed amendments or changes will imperil all progress in this direction.

To obtain the eight hour day and a living wage without legislation would require 127 years, judging from the rate of progress to date, the Committee says. Except in States where laws fix minimum standards for women, hours of labor are longer for women than men and wages fall far below standards of living.

To ask for legal protection for women workers is not to ask for special privileges but merely a specific kind of protection which may or may not be needed by men, it points out. Men ask for the kind of protection that is needed by them.

Mrs. Harry D. Nims of New York is Chairman of the Legislative Committee. Miss Margaret Hiller is Executive Secretary.

DR. DAVID EUGENE SMITH LECTURES

Mathematics Gains a Soul

How would you paint a picture of the soul of a truncated prism? That is if you were a cubist artist and somebody had asked you to, two weeks ago? I imagine you would have taken a fiendish delight in making it just as horrid and mis-shapen a thing as possible, all done in the dullest leaden grays and duns and snuff-colored browns. That we have received a new idea of the soul of mathematics we owe to the Mathematical Association of the South-Eastern States, to our own Lecture Association, and to Prof. David Eugene Smith of Columbia University—the Smith of Wentworth—Smith Mathematical text-books and probably the greatest living authority on his subject.

On Friday night, March 9, Dr. Smith, who was here to attend the annual meeting of the Association, which was held at Agnes Scott, Saturday, March 10, gave a lecture in the chapel under the auspices of the Agnes Scott Lecture Association. By the end of this lecture we had begun to catch a glimpse of the beauty and majesty of mathematics, of its inherent truthness in everything, of it as the expression of perfect order and form and proportion. We had begun to see that it wasn't an inhuman instrument of torture merely invented by a group of school-teachers somewhere in order to make miserable the days of students, but that it was a reality the expression of something inherent in the soul of man, which had been gradually unfolding throughout the ages. He enabled us to see Mathematics in this light by tracing its history for us and by giving us a glimpse of those men who were responsible for its development down through the ages.

There were ten ages of Mathematics, said Dr. Smith, "just as many as the fingers on my hand." The first epoch was that of intuition which perhaps began a million years ago. All of nature is naturally mathematics. The crystals of quartz are as perfect hexagonal prisms as would ever be constructed by any instrument. Apple seeds even to the minutest detail are perfectly regular. The world has always been mathematically made—mathematics is only the discovery of (Continued on page 4, column 2)

INSTRUMENTAL CLUB PRESENTS PROGRAM

Mary Jarman Directs Concert

One of the most enjoyable entertainments of the year was given on Saturday night, March 17, when the Instrumental Club of the Athletic Association gave a concert in the chapel. A large crowd was present at the entertainment which began at 8:30 o'clock, presenting the following interesting program:

- I. Selections...Instrumental Club
  - (a) Melody of Love"
  - (b) "Habanera" from "Carmen"—Bizet
- II. Violin Solo.....Isabel Clarke "Meditation" from "Thais"—Massenet
- III. Selections...from musical plays
  - (a) "Waltz"—from Merry Widow"—Sebar.
  - (b) "Chinese Lullaby" from "East is West."
  - (c) "Waltz" from "Gloriana"
- IV. Flute Solo.....Mary Jarman "Canzonetta"—De Lorenza
- V. Violin Virtuosity.....Bryte Daniel
- VI. "Toy Symphony" (Hayden).....The Children
- VII. Vocal Selections, Lillian Clement
- VIII. "Waltz".....Instrumental Club "Blue Danube"—Strauss

The whole program was admirably rendered. Every number was well done and received much well-deserved applause from the audience. The selections which were especially pleasing were Isabel Clarke's violin solos, "Chinese Lullaby," Mary Jarman's flute solo, Bryte Daniel's violin virtuosity, Lillian Clement's songs, and the "Blue Danube." Agnes Scott is proud that she has an instrumental club which is capable of presenting such a well-chosen and beautifully executed concert as was given last Saturday night.

MISS ALEXANDER DESCRIBES OLD STUDENT GOVERNMENT RULES

Miss Alexander was the second member of the faculty to talk on Student Government and the Honor System at the regular Student Government meeting last Tuesday night, March 13. Mr. Stukes several weeks ago told what Student Government should mean and the trials of being in a college where the Honor System was not used.

Miss Alexander gave a most interesting talk on the beginning of Student Government at Agnes Scott and its growth. It was founded in 1906 at the urgent suggestion of Miss Hopkins who was then Lady Principal. The student body then was much smaller than it is now and the Senior class numbered only six. The students were very well satisfied with Faculty rule and their privileges and were loath to take on Student Government which would bring them a share of the responsibilities. Miss Hopkins persisted though and insisted that the students petition the faculty for a charter. She carried her point and the faculty eagerly received the petition and appointed a committee to help Miss Hopkins draw up the charter. This was done and the same girl who was then President of the Y. W. C. A. was elected the first President of Student Government.

Of course the growth in numbers was apparent to all and Miss Alexander read a few of the rules and privileges of these years and we realized how many, many, more privileges we have today.

Miss Alexander said the faculty rejoiced in the success of the experiment and they were confident that it would continue to be successful.

These meetings have been most interesting to the students and we look forward to other meetings when we shall hear other members of our Faculty.

ise of no dividends to France. Germany is perfectly capable of making some payments for the first few years until she is strong enough, and then of refusing France. And as the situation seems to have come to a deadlock, Mr. Lane stated that he would like to see the United States take some position, such as the following, since, if Germany does not pay, England and the United States will have to bear the brunt of the whole war. Mr. Lane suggested that a committee composed so as to eliminate any party questions should be sent by the United States to investigate foreign questions, for the express purpose of discovering whether or not Germany can pay. The policy of the United States has been, for the past few months, to ignore European politics, but to keep up the morale of the people by public relief, such as the work done by the Red Cross. This policy, he stated, is not a sound policy for a nation to follow.

It is the duty, Mr. Lane concluded, of the American people to administer to a "mind diseased", and they are falling short of their obligations. Every hour awaits expectantly news of the situation, and also of the position of the great nations on earth; and the United States, which so fully recognizes its obligation in the one respect (that of the Red Cross Relief) should not be much longer in realizing her much more profound obligation in other lines as well.

The Blue Ridge Committee of the Tech Y. M. C. A. has appointed sub-committees including Publicity, Public meetings, Delegates and Finance. Many plans were made to strive for a big Tech delegation at Blue Ridge in June. North Carolina's motto this year is to beat Tech. We are wondering what Tech's reply will be.

The many wonderful advantages offered by Blue Ridge are best described by those who have been there—Memories of long hikes in the mountains, swims in the invigorating pool, of athletic events, of talks with men of wide experience—these and many other attractions show what Blue Ridge really is. One is benefited in every way by attending the conference.

For the diversion of the women of the faculty the men of the faculty of Wellesley played bits from "Treasure Island." The four scenes presented were: one in the Admiral Benbow Inn; one in the High Street in Bristol; another, the good ship "Hispaniola;" fourth, "Treasure Island."

The play was so well done that it was repeated for the students for the benefit of the Wellesley Fund.

The students of the University of Mississippi are planning to set aside a special day this spring on which their mothers will be invited to look over the institution. There will be a special program for the occasion which is to be known as "Mother's Day." If the plan proves to be a success it will be made an annual affair.

LUNCHEON FOR MATHEMATICAL ASSOCIATION

10, in Rebekah Scott dining hall. The members of the Agnes Scott Mathematics Club felt it indeed an enviable honor and distinction to meet Dr. David Eugene Smith socially, as well as to hear him lecture. As special guests of honor, in addition to those who were here in the Mathematics Association, were Dr. Smith, Dr. Gaines, Dr. McCain, Miss Hopkins, Mr. Rankin, Miss Gaylord, and Miss Howson. The girls who are majoring in mathematics and who were present at this most enjoyable luncheon were Philippa Gilchrist, Elizabeth Hoke, Ruth Almond, and Otto Gilbert, one of last year's seniors and a Fellow in Physics. There were about thirty-six in all who attended the luncheon.

The menu consisted of the following:

- Creamed Chicken on Toast
- Stuffed Celery Turnovers Olives
- Peas Potatoes
- Tomato Salad
- Grape Nut Ice Cream
- Coffee

A young man with a pretty but notoriously flirtatious fiancée wrote to a supposed rival, "I've been told that you have been seen kissing my girl. Come to my office at 11 on Friday. "Oh, yes sir, pretty often," answered the boy.

"What brand do you generally smoke?" asked the gentleman.

"Robinson Crusoe, sir" answered the boy.

The gentleman pondered a little.

"I never heard of that brand," he said.

"It's name I've given 'em myself," announced the boy. "You see, Guv'nor, old Crusoe was a cast-away."

The Joke

Sydney Smith was walking one day in the rain without an overcoat. A friend remarked: "I wonder you don't catch cold—you never wear an overcoat."

"No, I never was," came the reply. A man who had heard this story was so amused by it that he deliberately went without an overcoat in the hope that somebody would address the same remark to him. Nobody did—and he caught pneumonia. When on the verge of death he was heard to mutter, in his sleep, "You never wear an overcoat."

The doctor who overheard him, knowing the original story, guessed rightly that the man might be saved if he could only be allowed to work off this joke.

As soon as the patient awoke, he said, "I suppose you never wear an overcoat?"

The sick man's eyes glistened with joy. Chuckling to himself, he sat upright in bed and replied, "No, doctor, I never did."

Then, slowly realizing that he had lost the great opportunity, he gave a groan of self-reproach, and died.

BASE-BALL SEASON OPENS

Sophs Defeat Freshies

"Batter up," shouted the umpire, just before the first struggle between the Sophs and the Freshies. These two classes have upheld the traditional reputation for enmity; but last Friday, the 9th, was the first time the battle was staged on a base-ball diamond. At the end of the first inning, the Sophs had 14 runs while the Freshmen had only 1. The Freshies put in a new pitcher and began piling up their score. At one time, the score was 26-25 in favor of the Sophs, who broke loose and ran up to 33 with the Freshies close at hand with 29.

Line up:

Sophs
Spivey ..... catcher
McKinney ..... pitcher
Phippen ..... 1st base
Strauss ..... 2nd base
Brawley ..... 3rd base
B. Walker ..... short stop
E. Thompson ..... center field
F. Alston ..... right field
Blalock ..... left field

Freshies
Turner ..... catcher
Tucker, Zellars ..... pitcher
Carpenter ..... first base
Hall ..... 2nd base
C. Davis ..... 3rd base
E. Fain ..... short stop
Zellars, Tucker ..... center field
Redding ..... right field
Sophomores, 33.
Freshmen, 29.

Umpire—Miss Randolph.

Batting Record to Be Kept

The baseball manager, Daisy Frances Smith, will keep a record of the number of runs each player makes for the entire season.

The organization of the orchestra is as follows:

First Violins,
Isabel Clarke, Virginia Browning, Virginia Hollingsworth.
Second Violins,
Frances Formby, Margaret Tufts, Viola Smith.
Flutes,
Mary Jarma, Alice Greenlea.
Bells
Louise Buchanan.

Guitars,
Frances Bitzer, Catherine Shields, Nonie Peek, Corena Burman, Philippa Gilchrist.
Piano
Bryte Daniel.
Drum,
Mary Ann McKinney.

GIDDIE GOSSIP

Dear Aggie:

Well Aggie elections are all over but the shouting; that's still going on. It seems so queer to be getting ready to turn things over to the juniors—giving the management of all the big organizations to the little juniors. But they'll rise to the occasion; you wait and see. Right after the nominations had been posted last week, I found a freshman standing in Main hall reading them. She was sniffing about something and when I came up, she said "Oh Giddie—isn't it awful? Do you know not a single Senior got nominated for anything!"

Speaking of elections, I guess Quenelle and Polly feel elected over the new phone up in their room. Quenelle's brother gave it to her and Polly's brother had it put in for them last week. It certainly is convenient to have a phone right in your own room—just like being at home. They have invited some of their friends to use it just any time and there has been a perfect stream of people pouring into 73 Main ever since it was installed. Jinks Burt calls Hal up every nite over it, and Mary Walkie Perry bought a phone pad and put it up there by the phone, just to post her calls on.

Aggie, do you remember that formerly honored and respected member of Society, Emmie Ficklen. Well the worst has happened. She has been restricted for a whole week by that heartless, reputation-snatching exec, and now here we behold Emmie, almost finishing her Junior year, completely crushed. It is the first time in her college career, otherwise so successful. Restricted for a whole week—her reputation is gone forever!

Another bolt from the blue descended into our midst last Wednesday morning. Elizabeth Cheatham spent the night out here, and White House did not have hash for breakfast! Mirabile dictu! Elizabeth has spent the night out here numerous times both last year and this, and Wednesday was the very first time hash failed to beam at her from the breakfast table. All things—even a surcease from hash—come to her who waits.

You know what they said about the Senior class, don't you? That all but two of them were engaged? Well, I'm afraid the statistics will have to be changed, for since then Maud Foster gave an announcement party in the dining-room, and Potater Molloy—well, its a long story, mates. It started when Charlotte Keesler wrote Potater's name and address on a dollar bill as she was leaving for home. And it ended—well, perhaps it hasn't ended yet, but it has progressed to the stage where Potater gets a letter from a poor but honest taxi-driver on Luckie street, with a very romantic soul.

How do you like the Agonistic this year, Aggie? We don't know how anybody else may feel about it, but we got a letter from West Point the other day saying that we were getting out a corking good paper down here, now, what do you think of that? It isn't exactly tooting our own horn to tell you either, but just passing on a toot somebody else gave us.

More next week, Giddie,

The dinner proved an especial source of pleasure and profit to these girls, for they discussed the different phases of the reparations question. Mr. Lane is an authority on this subject, for, he has just returned from the Ruhr Valley, and he gave them important suggestions on the subject of the coming debate.

After dinner the other debaters, and members of the International Relations Club, were invited to have coffee with Mr. Lane, so that they too, might have the pleasure and privilege of discussing with him the subject of German reparations.

Y. W. C. A. NEWS

Have you already planned how you are going to spend your vacation? If you haven't, the very nicest way possible, would be to spend the first ten days of it at Blue Ridge, N. C., at the Y. W. C. A. Conference. Agnes Scott has a lovely cottage there that will accommodate about twenty girls which makes an ideal arrangement for all those who go. In the living room of this cottage there is a big open fire place that makes everything cozy and cheerful on the cool nights, when the girls come in after meetings, hikes and social gatherings.

The climate at Blue Ridge in "The Land of the Sky," is all that anyone can ask. The Alleghany mountains provide beautiful scenery. Make the weather pleasantly cool and afford the best possible opportunities for hiking and swimming.

Not the climate alone, but everything else, it seems, is ideal too. All the Y. W. C. A. leaders are there and many speakers who are known all over the United States. Last year Miss Burner, Miss Lumpkin, Miss Pritchard and Miss Ruth Slack were there and Dr. Gilky from Chicago and Dr. Fleming from Philadelphia also were there. This year some of these and many others as well will be there to furnish help and inspiration to all students who attend.

Schools all over the South are represented at Blue Ridge and for many years Agnes Scott has been well-known there. Last year Ruth Scandrett was elected president, which was quite an honor to Agnes Scott because this was the first year this

TEA FOR MISS PALMER

Last Monday afternoon from five to six the girls who major in Bible were delightfully entertained by Mrs. Sydenstricker at a tea given in honor of Miss Palmer. Miss Palmer, who is a teacher in Dr. White's Bible School, told about the work and purpose of this school. Her talk was very interesting and inspiring, especially to those who expect to continue the study of the Bible. After Miss Palmer's talk, delicious refreshments of tea and cake were served.

The girls enjoyed this hour very much, and they were especially pleased to have the opportunity to meet and talk with Miss Palmer.

When you go home for spring holidays talk to your families about going to Blue Ridge when school is out and convince them that the inspiration and fun that you will have there will do more toward starting the summer off right than anything else. You will also be inspired to do better work here in our local Y. W. C. A. next year. Conferences and small group discussions give excellent opportunity for finding out how other college Y. W. C. MR. DAVID EUGENE SMITH LECTURES

The second epoch was that of deduction, in which the first glimmerings of progress were beginning to be made. It numbered among its great heroes of mathematics, Thales and Pythagoras. On down through the epochs of Exposition in which liver Archimedes and Euclid, whose geometrical books have gone through more editions than any other book except the Bible; through the epoch of Application in which came about the invention of zero by some unknown mathematician of Central America; through the epoch of Poetry, of which "at its best, mathematics is almost entirely composed;" through the epochs of Transmission, of Symbolism, of Higher Analysis—through all these periods in which earnest men, men who were the most serious kind of thinkers, strove after the ideal of discovering the rules for the proportion of the universe and of formulating them into mathematical rules. Dr. Smith led us. He made us realize the human side of mathematics, its vital value to all in its development, made us see that it is in the same class with poetry and great literature.

After the lecture we had a chance to meet Dr. Smith personally—as well as the other mathematical celebrities who were here—at the reception given by the Agnes Scott Lecture Association in Rebekah Scott Lobby. Saturday morning at 10:30 A. M., Dr. Smith gave an address to the Association on the "Teaching of Mathematics," which was open to the students as well. This was another extremely interesting lecture.

We feel very grateful to both the Lecture Association and the Mathematical Association for the treat they gave us in allowing us to hear Dr. Smith. We hope Prof. Rankin, who is the secretary-treasurer of this Association, will bring about another meeting of it here at Agnes Scott, so that we can have another like treat sometime in the near future.

INTERCOLLEGIATE TEAMS DEBATE AGAINST EACH OTHER MONDAY

The first of the series of the debates between our own teams of inter-collegiate debaters took place on Monday evening. The subject was the real question for the inter-collegiate debate which will take place on the night of March 23, Friday. The question is stated:

Resolved: that the United States Government shall cancel the debts owed her by the nations associated with her in the last world war.

The affirmative was up-held by Pocahontas Wight first. And the first speaker on the negative was Quenelle Harrold, leaving Valeria Posey for the negative's second speaker and Daisy Frances Smith for that of the affirmative. Both sides made a staunch fight. The decision was rendered in favor of the negative.

This was a strong, spirited debate. Yet one thing was lacking. How can we expect our debaters to do their best and put their whole soul into these preliminary debates when they are forced to speak in an empty chapel—or nearly so. Do please help your debaters by coming. You can do a better deed by bringing someone with you.

BANQUET GIVEN FOR DR. SMITH

Mr. Rankin Acts As Toast-Master

Mathematics can be used to some good purpose after all. At least that is the conclusion that was reached by all those who attended the delightful banquet, given in honor of Professor David Eugene Smith, on Wednesday evening. Archimedes, himself, might have felt that his work had not been in vain to have produced such gratifying and enjoyable results.

Those who were chiefly interested in the speeches could not be utterly oblivious to the delicious supper.

- Fruit-Cocktail
- Chicken a la King
- Cranberries
- Green Peas
- Stuffed Celery
- Cauliflower
- Hot rolls
- Lettuce Salad
- Strawberry Shortcake
- Demitasse

Between courses the guests were supplied with food for thought, by some of the most prominent mathematics professors of the country. Mr. Rankin did honor to the occasion as toastmaster. Dr. Peed of Emory, Professor Fort of the University of Alabama, Professor Coleman of the University of South Carolina and Professor Nichol of Louisiana State entertained with most interesting addresses. And lest our own mathematicians of Agnes Scott should be omitted, Philippa Gilchrist and Lib Hoke spoke before the august party. Last of all Professor Smith gave a most interesting talk.

The company could not linger long after supper, for everyone was eager to attend Professor Smith's lecture. They adjourned, feeling that the evening had been spent most enjoyably and advantageously.

Public Sales

We have purchased 122,000 pair U. S. Army Munson last shoes, sizes 5 1/2 to 12, which was the entire surplus stock of one of the largest U. S. Government shoe contractors.

This shoe is guaranteed one hundred percent solid leather, color dark tan, bellows tongue, dirt and waterproof. The actual value of this shoe is $6.00. Owing to this tremendous buy we can offer same to the public at $2.95.

Hurrah! the much discussed, long talked of idea of a stadium for our athletic field has at last evolved into more than mere talk. That "Ole Miss" will possess a fine concrete stadium from which the spectators can view her athletic conflicts is indeed an assured fact. Already considerable progress has been made toward the erection of a big up-to-date stadium. It will not only be a pleasure while witnessing games but also will be quite a considerable addition to the completeness of our campus and a source of great pride to all connected with our University.—Mississippian.

FOLLOW THE GLEAM

To knights in the days of old
Keeping watch on the mountain heights,
Came a vision of the holy Grail
And a voice through the waiting night:

"Follow, follow, follow the gleam
Banners unfurled o'er all the world!
Follow, follow, follow the gleam
Of the chalice that is the Grail."
And we who serve the King
And loyally him obey
In the consecrated silence know
That the challenge still holds today.
"Follow, follow, follow the gleam—
Standards of worth o'er all the earth;
Follow, follow, follow the gleam
Of the light that shall bring the dawn!"

Y. W. C. A. Song.

MY RIVAL

I go to concert, party, ball—
What profit is in these?
I sit alone against the wall
And strive to look at ease.
The incense that is mine by right,
They burn before her shrine,
And that's because I'm 17
And she is 49.

I cannot check my girlish blush,
My color comes and goes;
I redden to my finger-tips
And sometimes to my nose.
But she is white where white should be,
And red where red should shine.
The blush that flies at 17
Is fixed at 49.

I wish I had her constant cheek,
I wish that I could sing
All sorts of funny little songs,
Not quite the proper thing.
I'm very "gauche" and very shy,
Her jokes aren't in my line!
And worst of all I'm 17
And she is 49.

But even she must older grow,
And end her dancing days,
She can't go on forever so
At concerts, balls and plays.
One ray of priceless hope I see
Before my footsteps shine;
Just think: She'll be 81
When I am 49.

AGNES SCOTT COLLEGE, DECATUR, GA., WEDNESDAY, APRIL 25, 1923

No. 5

LIFE OF DR. F. H. GAINES, PRESIDENT OF AGNES SCOTT COLLEGE

Thirty-Four Years of Good Work in This College

Dr. Frank Henry Gaines, our beloved founder and president of Agnes Scott College and one of the leading educators of the South, died Saturday morning, April 14, at the Piedmont Sanatorium. Dr. Gaines had been ill only two days. Wednesday morning he led the chapel services as usual, and feeling a little unwell Thursday, he went into Atlanta to consult his physician. Later Thursday he entered the Sanatorium where he died Saturday.

Dr. Gaines was born July 25, 1872, in Tellico Plains, Monroe County, Tenn., the son of John Rhea and Sarah (Rice) Gaines. On his father's side he came of a family distinguished in the annals of Virginia. It gave to the war of Independence the noted patriot and jurist of the Revolution Edmund Pendleton and at a later period, General Edmund Pendleton Gaines, a gallant officer of the War of 1812, who earned the soubriquet of the "Hero of Fort Erie." On his mother's side his family was renowned for its contributions to the Presbyterian pulpit and its long line of educators. He secured the foundation of his education in the schools of his community, then entered Cumberland University, from which he graduated with honors in 1870. After spending sometime in Missionary Work in the mountains of his home state, he entered the Union Theological Seminary in Virginia from which he graduated with the degree of Bachelor of Divinity in 1876. During that year he was ordained to the Presbyterian ministry and immediately entered upon the pastorate of two churches in Kentucky, at Clintonville and Hopewell. From 1878 to 1884 he was pastor of Hebron church in Augusta County, Virginia. From 1884 to 1888 he was pastor of Falling Springs church in Rock Bridge County in Virginia.

While a student at the seminary Dr. Gaines met Miss Mary Louise Lewis and in 1877 they were united in marriage. Mrs. Gaines is from Augusta county, Virginia, and her pioneer ancestor John Lewis, founded the town of Staunton. Her parents were Dr. William Wellington and Mary (McFarland) Lewis. Her maternal grandfather was the Rev. Francis McFarland, D.D., a trustee of Washington and Lee University and one of the most learned and distinguished ministers of Virginia. Another of her ancestors was General Andrew Lewis, a noted Revolutionary commander and at his death one of the largest landholders of Virginia. Dr. and Mrs. Gaines have but one son, Dr. Lewis McFarland Gaines, a prominent Atlanta physician.

In 1888 Dr. Gaines accepted a call to the Decatur Presbyterian church, where early in the course of his work, he was to lay the foundation of one of the South's greatest institutions of higher learning.

Dr. Gaines soon recognized the great need in Decatur for schools and especially the importance of a Christian Education for girls. He began discussing privately with the leaders of his church and the community in general, the possibility of establishing such a school. His suggestions were received with favor, with the result that on July 17, 1889, before he had been six months in his new pastorate a meeting was held in his study and there the foundations for Agnes Scott College were laid.

Colonel George W. Scott, a splendid citizen, a devoted Christian and a man of wealth and public spirit, offered the resolution adopted at that meeting "to establish at once a school of high character. As soon as possible a charter was obtained incorporating the institution under the name of Decatur Female Seminary. Dr. Gaines was appointed to visit Virginia to engage teachers. After diligent search and inquiry he arranged

STUDENTS HOLD MEMORIAL SERVICE FOR DR. GAINES

His Favorite Scripture Readings Given

It was with feelings of deepest reverence and love that the faculty and students of Agnes Scott filed into the chapel on Sunday morning, to attend the student memorial service in honor of Dr. Gaines, our beloved President, who lay in state on the platform. First we sang, "Come Thou Fount of Every Blessing" which was one of Dr. Gaines' favorite hymns. Next Hilda McConnell told how grateful the students were for being allowed to show our love for Dr. Gaines by holding this service. Eloise Knight read from Dr. Gaines' own book some of the Scripture passages he had selected to be read in time of grief. After that, Mary Goodrich led us in prayer, asking that we might be comforted for our loss and might, with gratitude take to heart the many lessons which we have learned from Dr. Gaines, and show, in our lives, the influence which his life has had on us. Then Frances Gilliland and Lillian McAlpine sang, "My Faith Looks up to Thee" and after this, our service, beautiful in its simplicity, was ended, and only the guard of honor, composed of a number of students, was left in the Chapel.

with Miss Nannette Hopkins, our beloved dean, to become principal and Mattie E. Cook to become assistant principal. A subscription of $5,000 was raised, a building rented and in September, 1889, the Seminary opened.

Under the charter the pastor of the Decatur Presbyterian church was ex-officio chairman of the board and in general charge of the school. This continued until 1897 when Colonel Scott was made chairman and Dr. Gaines secretary, his duties as head of the school making it advisable to relieve him of the additional responsibility of chairmanship. In the meantime Colonel Scott made his great gifts of the permanent site with a fine building and equipment. The name was then changed to Agnes Scott in memory of Colonel Scott's mother. In 1895 Dr. Gaines resigned as pastor of the Decatur Presbyterian

DR. GAINES IS PAID LOVING TRIBUTE BY CHARLES MURPHEY CANDLER

A Trustee of Agnes Scott College Writes of its Founder and President

Dr. Gaines was as full of good work as any man I ever knew. In his death the Presbyterian church and the cause of Christian education has suffered the greatest loss. He came to Decatur from Virginia in the winter of 1888 to assume the pastorate of the Decatur Presbyterian church and continued as such until 1896, when he resigned in order that he might devote his full time to Agnes Scott College as its president. His pastorate was greatly blessed; his church growing in spirituality and members.

He preached the gospel pure and simple. He believed the church to be the ordained instrumentality through which God's kingdom was to be established on earth. His texts were from the Bible, not from current newspaper chronicles.

His work, as his life, was marked by simple child-like faith in God and His promises. He was a man of prayer. He carried everything to his God and his prayers were answered.

Not long ago he showed me the original of a signed agreement between himself, Colonel George W. Scott, and Captain Milton A. Candler, two of the elders and trustees of Agnes Scott College, executed many years ago, in which they obligated themselves to pray daily for the blessings of God on Agnes Scott College, the only agreement of its kind of which I have ever heard.

Thirty-four years of his life were consecrated to the Christian education of young women in Agnes Scott College.

The college was his conception and for its upbuilding he spent his strength and gave his life. Through his presidency he inaugurated three separate endowment campaigns. At times others doubted their success but Dr. Gaines labored and prayed and each was successful and today the college has a plant and invested endowment of a million and a half dollars, and a student body of young women from a score of states. It stands as answer to the prayers of a consecrated man of God.

FUNERAL SERVICES OF PRES- IDENT OF AGNES SCOTT

Dr. Gaines Laid to Rest in West View Cemetery.

On Monday, April 16, 1923, the students and faculty of Agnes Scott gathered in the First Presbyterian Church of Decatur to pay a final tribute to our beloved president, Dr. Gaines. There, gathered together, sorrowing, we read together the ninety-third Psalm and the fourteenth chapter of John, which were Dr. Gaines' favorite passages of Scripture, and sang together some of his favorite hymns. And after that, we prayed—prayed God to bless us, deprived of our leader, thanked God for giving us that leader to lift us up by his life. We thanked Him, too, for the assurance that there had been a place prepared for this one whom we loved, a place where there will be no more death, neither sorrow nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain.

After these services, led by Dr. Lacy, of the Atlanta Central Presbyterian Church, Dr. Lyons of the Atlanta First Presbyterian Church, and Dr. McGeachy of the Decatur Presbyterian Church, we carried our president to his final resting place in West View Cemetery. There, after a short but poignant service, we laid to rest the man who more than any other had made Agnes Scott and the Agnes Scott spirit possible. There, too, in especial token of their love and sorrow, the Seniors of Agnes Scott each dropped a rose into the open grave. And while we sorrowed there we yet seemed to hear again the words read that morning: "Let not your hearts be troubled. . . . I go to prepare a place for you." And we know that they would have been the words of Dr. Gaines himself to us in time of sorrow. And so we were comforted.

And what a monument. Three names will be, in connection with this great institution, perpetuated through time, F. H. Gaines, George W. Scott, Samuel M. Inman, a trinity of prayerful, consecrated Christians.

There is grief today in the hearts of thousands of young women of the South who have been privileged to sit under the teachings of Doctor Gaines and to observe his daily walk with his great Teacher.—Atlanta Journal.

DR. GAINES AND THE MAK- ING OF AGNES SCOTT COLLEGE

His Influence on the Progress of the College

The death of Dr. Frank H. Gaines, president of Agnes Scott College, brings clearly to mind his work for this college. When the thought of what he has accomplished as its founder and president comes, the wish to tell once more his wonderful work as an educator is irresistible. That Dr. Gaines was a great and good man is evident to all who know the history of the college which is a lasting monument to his influence and achievement.

It was in 1836 that the first college which conferred degrees upon women was founded—Wesleyan College. This meant the beginning of an interest in higher education for women, but even after this time higher cultural opportunities for women were neglected. The Presbyterian church had attempted to establish schools in Georgia but had failed and after 1872 had taken no part in educational matters. In 1888 the Presbyterian church of Decatur called as its pastor Rev. Frank Henry Gaines. He had long been interested in the idea of higher education for women and was impressed with the need of establishing schools and colleges. Early in his service in Decatur he noted the advantages of this city as a location for a school and began influencing others to help him in founding a school for young women at Decatur. He met with an enthusiastic response from Colonel George W. Scott and others and in 1889 the "Decatur Female Seminary" was founded with Dr. Gaines as chairman of the Board of Trustees and head of the institution. Thus he laid the foundations for the Agnes Scott of the present. If he had done nothing else for the school, we should owe much to him as instigator of the idea of the institution and as the one man possessed of the energy and ambition needed to found it. Dr. Gaines was truly inspired by noble ideas of education in the days when the higher branches of learning were almost wholly denied to women.

The "Decatur Female Seminary" seems wholly inadequate in our eyes, but at least it was a beginning. There were sixty-three pupils and four teachers. Five thousand dollars was the amount of money invested in the school. But however meager were the material advantages, the "Agnes Scott ideal," though not then known as such, had been formulated and the school had truly a better foundation than statistics show. The following is the ideal, expressed in Dr. Gaines' own words:

1. "A liberal curriculum fully abreast of the best institutions of this country.
2. "The Bible a text book.
3. "Thoroughly qualified and consecrated teachers.
4. "A high standard of scholarship.
5. "All the influences of the college conducive to the formation and development of Christian character.
6. "The glory of God, the chief of all."

The school continued to grow and in 1891 was renamed, being known now as "Agnes Scott Institute." Colonel George W. Scott had given funds to the trustees to erect the present Main Building and the new name was in honor of his mother, Mrs. Agnes Scott. Mr. Gaines at this time resigned as pastor of the Decatur Presbyterian church and became the first president of Agnes Scott Institute. Thus, his name is again linked with the history of the progress of this college.

The Institute continued to prosper and to raise its standard each year. Finally it was ready to become a college preparatory school and then in 1906 it was admitted into the "Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools of the Southern States." The work of the Institute was continued

IN MEMORIAN

"Sunset and evening star,
And one clear call for me,
And may there be no moaning of the bar,
When I put out to sea.

But such a tide as moving seems asleep,
Too full for sound and foam,
When that which drew from out the boundless deep Turns again home."

Dr. Gaines has gone Home. One day he stepped out of his office,—not just across the hall to be away for a moment on some errand of service, but into the Radiant Life to be gone for always in the perfect service of the King. Just the fact that he has gone away is so strange, so new, so difficult to comprehend that we, who in our love for him would have him near, cannot think yet of Agnes Scott without him; we cannot think of the campus, the chapel, his office,—HIS college, without his own familiar, beloved figure. But through all the strangeness and sorrow of these past days, there has been shining into our hearts the light of one quiet thought: he has but gone Home. Quietly from his family, from his friends, from his college and his girls, Dr. Gaines has passed on. Because we know that he has but laid down his life and his work to take it up again, we cannot mourn without comfort when "that which drew from out the boundless deep, turns again home." Because the source of his life and power was God always, there can be no sting in death, or victory in the grave. Though in sorrowing for our friend, we have passed through the valley of the shadow, yet even in sorrow we have irresistibly felt that the death of him whose strength was God was triumphant,—the triumphant entering into Life. We thrilled to that conviction as, in those last, simple, loving sentences, we sang his favorite hymns; as we listened to the reading of those passages of the Bible which he himself had many times read for the comfort of the distressed; as we stood by his open grave and witnessed the last tribute of his Senior class. And even as we go about the doing of the little and the big things that make up our lives, we shall thrill again to that same conviction of the greatness of triumphant living and dying.

We grieve that he has gone from us in person. We miss him so. But our sadness is touched with the light of a great thankfulness,—thankfulness for the life which he lived in simplicity, in strength, and in sincerity; for the college which he dreamed of, and toiled for, and loved into being; for his spirit that is inseparable from the spirit of Agnes Scott. May it be given to us, the students of the college that is the dream and the crown of his life, that with something of his goodness, his faith, his vision of high things, we may carry on.

DR. FRANK HENRY GAINES

To the hearts of thousands who knew and honored him the death of Dr. Frank Henry Gaines, president of Agnes Scott College, brings the lament of the poet-king of old, "There is a prince and a great man fallen this day in Israel." Princely he was in devotion to life's noblest leadings, and great in the good works that he wrought. His talents, abounding in executive and constructive power, would have won rare fortune, no doubt, had they been exerted in the business world. But freely and joyfully he spent them in a realm whose glory is service, whose wisdom is humility, whose values are eternal, whose riches are unsearchable. And with the light of that kingdom full upon him, he took his leave.

The annuals of Agnes Scott College and the career of Dr. Gaines are inseparable. From the small beginnings of 1889, when the Decatur "Seminary" was established with hardly half a hundred pupils and most meager equipment, on to the far-shining institution of today with a prestige that is nation-wide and an influence that is measureless, his has been the presiding genius. Through trials that would have shaken and crises that would have overwhelmed a courage less manful and a faith less firm than his, upward he labored with heroic resolution, and came at last to the mountain top of his "vision splendid."

Writing a few years ago of what Agnes Scott has done for the hundreds of young women who have come within its gracious sway, Dr. Gaines declared: "It has given them the true conception of education; a high standard is an honest standard. It has given them something real and true, not a veneer or a sham." How well do the words reveal his personality! And how widely are his spirit and his purpose portrayed in these: "It has given them real training, that is, cultivation and strengthening of all their faculties. In doing this it has made them problem-solvers in the great battle of life. It has sought to develop in them the highest type of Christian character. The moral nature is supreme in the human soul. To develop and furnish this nature so that it will dominate life is the highest, the most essential feature of education. This Agnes Scott has ever sought to do."

A great educator he truly was, a builder, a leader, a benefactor; a man strong in the strength that comes from a lofty purpose and a valiant faith; a doer of the noble, an immortal work, "and by it he being dead yet speaketh."—The Atlanta Journal.

OPERA WEEK IN ATLANTA

Spring with her magic wand is calling the trees and flowers back to life and beauty after their long wintry nap; the warm sunshine mingled with the soft breezes of April spreads a glowing warmth over all the earth. Into this beautiful and appropriate setting a week of brilliant opera is ushered. Atlanta is aglow with its many visitors and parties and has the traditional festive atmosphere.

The most beloved and finished artists are making their appearance this week before crowded and appreciative audiences. Among the prominent and well-known stars acting the leading roles this year such names as the following call our special attention: Galli-Curci, Lucrezia Bori, De Luca, Rosa Ponselle, Antonio Scotti, Orville Harrold, and D'Angelo.

The splendidly chosen operas all presenting exquisite music, setting, and ballet are indeed worthy of the large, interested, and gorgeously attired audiences assembling Monday evening and Tuesday matinee. "Romeo and Juliet" opening the season on the night of the twenty-third was a colorful, artistic, and thoroughly romantic opera sung in the court language of the world, French. The stars rendered their parts masterfully and were called back many times by the admiring listeners.

The matinee on Tuesday was also greeted with much applause. In fact "Aida" was so beautifully rendered that the audience became enthralled in the melodramatic and impassioned scenes.

The remaining five operas which have great promise in store for the rest of this week are: Wednesday evening, "Lucia Di Lammermoor"; Thursday, "Don Carlos"; Friday evening, "L'Africaine"; Saturday matinee, "La Boheme"; and Saturday evening, "William Tell."

church to become in name as well as fact, president of the institution.

By cutting off the lower grades and adding higher the institution gradually but steadily developed its educational standard and in 1905 it became a college. In 1912 the academy was discontinued.

In 1893 Dr. Gaines wrote the "Agnes Scott Ideal." He declared the supreme aim to be the glory of God, and the plan of accomplishing that aim embraced seven specifications. First, a liberal curriculum, fully abreast of the best institutions, of the land; second, a sound curriculum with text books in harmony with the Bible; third, the Bible as a text book, with a Bible course necessary to graduation; fourth, thoroughly qualified and consecrated teachers; fifth, a high standard of scholarship; sixth, the institution a model Christian home; seventh, all the influences to be made conducive to the formation and development of Christian character.

How well time has vindicated the wisdom of Dr. Gaines is well known. With undeviating consistency he adhered to his Ideal. Of course the rise of the college was slow and not without obstacles and difficulties. The courage of Dr. Gaines never faltered. He was always the recognized leader. He personally engaged nearly all of the teachers. He assumed responsibility for the various changes in the college's upward growth. Today it is rated as a class "A" college by the American Association of Universities. Its graduates are admitted without examination to such graduate schools as Columbia University as candidates for the master's degree. Its students come from all the southern States and from the East and West. Its buildings, grounds, and equipment are conservatively valued at $750,000 and its endowment aggregates $750,000.

Dr. Gaines inaugurated and led to success three separate campaigns for increased endowment and when others were doubtful, his faith never faltered. His trust in God was implicit and absolute. His prayers were constant.

Although his heavy burden of executive responsibilities left him little time for sustained literary work, he yet found time to write a series of text books for Bible study which are considered among the best in this country, and to deliver frequent sermons which were characterized by a rare charm of diction and original thought. Davidson college conferred upon him at different times the degree of D.D. and LL.D., the latter in

as Agnes Scott Academy until 1912-1913.

It will be interesting to note the progress of Agnes Scott under Dr. Gaines' leadership. In the matter of education, Agnes Scott has developed from a seminary for young girls to a college of first rank. Of the Class One colleges for women Randolph-Macon, Goucher, Newcomb, and Agnes Scott have taken the lead in the Southern states. At Agnes Scott from a faculty of four there has been an advance to a faculty of over fifty. This progress toward education of the better kind fulfilled the dream of Dr. Gaines' life. It was his most ardent wish that he might further the cause of higher education for women; and, when one thinks of the opportunities and advantages, that Agnes Scott has offered to thousands of young women who sought knowledge, one realizes that before his death Dr. Gaines was able to realize his ideal and to know that his labor had not been in vain.

Agnes Scott has advanced as much in a material way. It began its first session in a rented building and with funds amounting to only five thousand dollars. Today the college owns twenty acres of land on which are located twenty-two well-equipped buildings. It is hard to realize in this day and time when people are glad to give money to aid the development of colleges what energy and determination were needed to finance a school twenty or thirty years ago. Then the idea of education for women was new, and people were not as liberal to this cause as now. Those who are in a position to know say that the school and later the college were able to overcome their financial difficulties only through the generosity of Colonel Scott and the untiring efforts of Dr. Gaines.

The greatness of a college consists of more than a high standard and beautiful and well-equipped buildings. Its greatness lies in the influence which it has had on its students. Dr. Gaines' own words, quoted from his "Story of Agnes Scott College" show how much the college in working for which he spent the best years of his life, has meant to the students.

"What has Agnes Scott done for them? It has given them the true conception of education. A high standard is nothing more than an honest standard. By holding its students to a high standard it has given them something real and true and not a veneer or sham, something which will stand the test of after life.

"It has given them real training, that is, the cultivation and strengthening of all their faculties. In doing this it has to a large degree made them "problem solvers" in the great battle of life.

"It has sought to develop in them the highest type of Christian character. The moral nature is supreme in the human soul. To develop and recognition of "eminent services rendered the cause of education."

The Agnes Scott girls when first meeting Dr. Gaines thought him austere, but they soon learned that underneath the diffident, modest manner was a sympathetic heart, eager to help and be a friend to each girl who was under his care; and he has sent many fine young women out from his college to be a blessing in their communities.

In his death Agnes Scott, the Presbyterian church and the cause of higher Christian Education have lost a firm supporter, friend, and benefactor.

Intercollegiate News

Athletics for girls is sure to become a big factor at Millsaps in the very near future. Very recently a forward step in that direction was taken when the Girls' Athletic Association was organized. A very enthusiastic meeting was held in the chapel and officers were elected. These officers backed by every faculty member and student of Millsaps can place athletics for girls in its proper place.

Of the 20 activities supervised by the Yale Athletic Association only football is on an entirely self-supporting basis, according to a report just made public. Of the other sports, baseball came closest to the self-supporting, while the crew and track were far the most expensive.

A Spanish Main cruise has been arranged by Dean A. Wellington Taylor of the Graduate School of Business Administrations of New York University. It is expected that a large part of the company will be made up of college students who will be able to combine an interesting and instructive vacation with an opportunity to gain from two to four points toward a college degree. Those seeking such credits will be required to attend lectures given en route by Dean Taylor and by Prof. Paul J. Salvatore of the Department of Spanish of the Stevens Institute of Technology. The lectures will deal with the economic, political, and historical phases of the countries visited. The Pautores, the home of the tourists throughout the cruise, will leave New York July 21 and will be back in New York August 9. furnish this nature so that it will dominate the life is the highest and most essential feature of education. This Agnes Scott has ever sought to do, that is to say, to form and develop the highest type of Christian character.

"It has sought to give its students the highest conception of life, as an opportunity for service, and as responsible unto God.

"It has sought to lead them to Christ. Scores have confessed their faith in him, and scores have had their spiritual life quickened and deepened."

Dr. Gaines is due honor as a great man whether we judge him by his work or by his character. It is true that it is almost impossible to speak of one without mentioning the other, so closely was his work a product of his ideals and ambition. As the first to express the idea of establishing a school in Decatur, as the founder of the school, as its first and only president, as its leader during its growth from a preparatory school to a Class "A" College, Dr. Gaines commands the respect and admiration of all who are interested in education. That his was a great work can be denied by none. In character Dr. Gaines was marked by strength and nobility. He had a simple trust in God and he led a life of service for man. Hundreds of young women who have been inspired by days spent at Agnes Scott hold his memory in honor and reverence.

TENNIS

Carlton Smith Coming

The Tennis Department announces that Carlton Smith, Georgia's Singles Champion, will come to show the Agnes Scott girls the correct method of playing tennis. He will play on Monday afternoon, April 30th. Lois McClain, tennis manager, says that on the night of the 30th there will be shown a slow motion film exhibiting the best tennis form and technique. The film will show William Jolsaston and Gerald Patterson in action. The former was national champion in 1915 and 1919. The latter was captain of the Australian Davis cup team 1922. The performance will depict every form of stroke and will be presented in such a way that the technique can be grasped by a novice.

Our tournament will be played off by May 10th. The upper-classmen have proclaimed Hilda McConnell, singles champion and McConnell and McClure, doubles champion.

ONE ACT PLAYS ARE READ BY THREE MEMBERS OF EXPRESSION DEPARTMENT

On Wednesday night, April 18, the Department of Spoken English gave a very interesting program in the form of three one act plays: "Dregs" by Frances Pemberton Spencer, "Columbine" by Colin Campbell Clements and "A Set of Turquoise" by Thomas Bailey Aldrich.

"Dregs" was read by Valeria Posey. It tells the story of Jim, a criminal, who had drugged and kidnapped the adopted son of the judge who had sentenced him to prison. It is only after the child has been killed by an overdose of morphine, that Jim discovers that the boy is his own son. The other character in the play is Nance, Jim's wife, who is mis-

EXCHANGES

We note with interest that again this summer is Winthrop College to have its summer school. This session is probably one of the largest of the summer sessions, as it had 1,548 students on its campus doing work last summer. The term is to be as usual, six weeks, at the very low rate of thirty-six dollars for the entire time. Winthrop is achieving great success along this line, and we are truly fortunate to have such an institution here in our south land.

According to the "Davidsonian," Dr. Lane, who lectured at Agnes Scott several weeks ago, just lectured there on the "Lucerne Conference." Dr. Lane was enthusiastically received, and gave a lecture which was equally as interesting as his lecture here on "Conditions in the Ruhr."

Y. W. C. A. News

Agnes Scott girls have always a deep interest in Y. W. C. A. affairs, and especially at this time when the old officers step down from their place of duty yielding their position to newly elected ones. Installation service, one of the most beautiful and effective services of the entire year, was held Sunday night, April 22, in the chapel, which was lighted with the soft candles, rendering the service sweetly solemn. The old members of the cabinet at this time, laid down their responsibilities, duties and privileges of being leaders to the new who are as capable of successfully carrying on the splendid task given to them. The old president, Eloise Knight, in an impressive talk, gave over the charge of being the guiding spirit of Y. W. to Victoria Howie, who accepted gracefully this undertaking. She showed that she is remarkably fitted for occupying the position with which she has been trusted. She set forth the goal to be reached and the standards to be raised during the coming year. Lillian Clement rendered a charming solo which was enjoyed.

JUNIOR CLASS PRESENTS "THE MAKER OF DREAMS"

Charming Play Pleases a Large Audience

Dreams—light, airy things, companions of youth, and spring, and daffodils—from whose irresistible charm none of us are exempt! Whence do they come? Who is the weaver of these delicate fabrics, without which life would be intolerable? On Saturday night, April 7th, the Junior Class presented to an enthusiastic audience the Maker of Dreams himself, in a delightful one-act play entitled "The Maker of Dreams." The famous French dancers, Pierrot (Victoria Howie) and Pierrette (Dell Bernhardt) are giving a performance, which, somehow, does not go as successfully as usual; and Pierrot's little poems, composed now and then for the benefit of the audience, fall flat. Pierrette is violently in love with her partner, but he, selfish man, thinking only of himself, does not see it, and goes away immediately after the dance. Pierrette, left alone, falls asleep and has a dream, which is beautifully interpreted by two graceful dancers (Fannie Swann and Mary Freeman). Then Pierrot returns, and the Maker of Dreams (Frances Amis) comes in. This marvelous wizard tells Pierrot that the girl destined for him has light brown hair and blue eyes. So Pierrot goes away; but, after a long and fruitless search for his girl, comes back, only to recognize, for the first time in his life, that Pierrette has light brown hair and blue eyes. She confides to him that she has always

FRANCES GILLILAND GIVES RECITAL

Miss Frances Gilliland gave a most enjoyable recital in the chapel last Thursday evening at half past eight o'clock. There was a large crowd present to hear her sing. Miss Gilliland has a contralto voice of pleasing quality and has taken a leading part in the musical activities on the campus, having had important roles in the Glee Club operettas, "Gitana" and "The Egyptian Princess." Her recital was one of the most delightful ever given at Agnes Scott. She was assisted by Miss Lillian McAlpine, soprano, and by Mrs Lewis H. Johnson, accompanist. The program was as follows:

1. Air—"The Lord is Risen" (The Light of the World).....Sullivan
2. a. Aria—"Connais-Tu Le Pays?" .....(Mignon) Thomas
- b. Elegie .....Massenet
3. a. Love's in My Heart.....Woodman

7. Duet—"Quis est Homo", (Stabat Mater) .....Rossini

JUNIORS TO PRESENT WILLIAM GREEN HILL

Everyone has reveled in the pranks of William Green Hill, or suffered with him when he was sent to bed by the merciless Aunt Minerva. This well known hero is coming to Agnes Scott, not as a book but as a real person. The Junior class will present "William Green Hill" Saturday night, April twenty-eighth. This play promises to be a great success, for it was dramatized by a member of the Junior class and the leading characters, "William Green Hill," "Miss Minerva" and the "Major" are played by Frances Amis, Polly Stone, and Mary Greene.

wanted to wear his smile; and so the play ends with Pierrot singing his newly found love into the land of dreams. Pierrot and Pierrette, dressed in the traditional costumes, made most charming lovers; while the Maker of Dreams, clad in a sort of Quaker outfit, could not have been unsurpassed. Of the two dream-dancers, we need only say that they were forced, by a boisterous encore, to give their performance a second time.

The college community showed excellent appreciation of the rare talent of the Juniors, for the Chapel was crowded. During and after the play, the Juniors sold candy and ice cream cones. The total receipts from the performance were about thirty dollars.

WILLIAM W. RANKIN, JR., ENTERTAINS SENIORS

The Senior class were very much pleased when their president told them of the invitation from W. W. Rankin, Junior, to spend the hour from four to five of the afternoon, Friday, April 6. The whole class looked forward to this first afternoon after the holidays.

Mrs. Rankin had her lawn fixed for the party, with rugs and pillows scattered about. There were chairs, too, for the older and more dignified members of the party. On a table in the center were some white carnations—a gift to William Junior—the silver loving cup given him by his Senior Sisters at Christmas. And last—but by no means least—the small white birthday cake with one wee white candle.

Of course, since it was a birthday party, every one joyfully sang "Happy Birthday to You." The spirit of the afternoon had been further carried out by the Seniors, one and all presenting the young gentleman with some toys of every description—there were ducks to float in the water, and ducks to walk on land. Every kind was well represented.

Then games were played suitable to this occasion—as an example, "She's got a face—what kind?" Then there was a contest of songs. The prize—a picture of the baby himself—was for the best lullaby. Nannie Campbell was the lucky person. Some were so bashful that they had to sing in unison—a quartet. In this number Lucile Little was very promising.

And of course, every one must have her picture taken with the young host. Dr. Armistead participated in this sport.

To end the good times Mrs. Rankin served the whole group with awfully good ice cream and cake. Then because it was getting late, reluctant good-byes were said.

DEBATERS SEE THEMSELVES AS OTHERS SEE THEM

Interesting Program On at Pi Alpha Phi

No longer need A. S. C. girls or rather we should say, our debaters wish for the gift to see themselves as others see them, for they had this opportunity in Pi Alpha Phi last Friday night.

A most interesting debate was held one which is of vital importance to Agnes Scott, "Resolved that Agnes Scott should win every intercollegiate debate." The affirmative was upheld by Mary Anne McKinney as Pocahontas Wight and Lucile Little as Daisy Frances Smith; the negative by Isabelle Ferguson as Valeria Posey and Olive Hall as Queville Harrold.

Altho the judges were requested to render unprejudiced decisions it is feared that they let their feelings at least assist them in the matter, as the decision was in favor of the affirmative. Of course this is not to be held against them as even those with the broadest minds must not go against popular opinion and I have heard absolutely no criticism of the decision. Every one sat entranced listening to the soft voice of "Pocahontas." They waited expectantly for "Quenelle" to bring up her old favorite of "62 years" and for "Valeria" to produce her cards so carefully lettered, but the climax came as they ceased breathing waiting for "Daisy" to carelessly drop her cards on the table and fold her hands for the last spurt.

Little did the debaters realize when they were dashing about the campus, bent on their intellectual pursuits, that there were those studying their every move in order to be as near like them as possible, but now they realize that those did not study in vain.

LILIAN MCALPINE GIVES VOICE RECITAL

On Thursday April 12th, one of the most delightful events of this year was enjoyed—namely, the recital by Lillian McAlpine. The department of music sponsored this recital, and offered also as assisting Lillian, Frances Gilliland, contralto, and Mrs. Lewis H. Johnson as accompanist.

Lillian has a lovely high, clear and sweet soprano voice, and her ability as a charming singer has been shown many times this year and last, when she has sung many pleasing solos, and her full possibilities as a singer could not have been shown to better advantage than in this recital which offered such a marked range in difficulty and variety.

The program opened with the lovely air, "Oh Mighty Pens" by Hayden, which was followed by three delightful lighter selections. Then Frances Gilliland sang two very pretty songs; and after several other splendid selections by Lillian the program was closed with the beautiful duet "Tutti i Fior" from "Madame Butterfly" by Puccini. The department of music is to be congratulated on having such a splendid singer as Lillian in its midst and on presenting such an entertaining program.

LIFE OF DR. J. D. M. ARMISTEAD.

Head of English Department Passes away Monday Morning

All Agnes Scott was grieved to hear on Monday morning, April 30, of the death of Dr. J. D. M. Armistead. The knowledge came as a shock for he had attended his classes as usual on Friday morning, and it was not fully understood that his illness was of such a serious nature. The loss of one so admired and loved as he, is deeply felt by the students and members of the faculty who have been intimately associated with him on the campus. A feeling of profound regret and sorrow because he is no longer here pervades the college.

Dr. Armistead was born in Lynchburg, Virginia, on January 9, 1871—fifty two years ago. After completing his preparatory work for college, he entered Washington and Lee University. He graduated there at the age of nineteen receiving an A. B. degree. Three years later he received a Ph.D. degree from the same institution.

Dr. Armistead devoted his life to teaching. First, he taught for some time at the Lynchburg High school, and in 1905 he came to Agnes Scott as head of the Department of English. He continued to hold this position until the time of his death. During this period of service his high and noble ideas of what is best in education and his earnest advocacy of independent and liberal thought and opinion inspired hundreds of students who were members of his classes and who learned from him far more and better things than are contained in text books.

Signal service for the students was performed by Dr. Armistead. Always holding their interests uppermost in his mind, he organized B. O. Z., a writer's club for Sophomores, Juniors, and Seniors; Pi Alpha Phi, a debating society; and Gamma Tau Alpha, an organization which at Agnes Scott upholds the same standard of scholarship as Phi Beta Kappa. He showed marked interest in all student activities, especially in the intercollegiate debates between Agnes Scott, Newcomb, and Randolph-Macon.

Dr. Armistead was a member of the Delta Tau Delta fraternity, and for a number of years he was president of the Atlanta Alumni organizations. He was also a member of Phi Beta Kappa.

Great sympathy is felt here for Charlotte McMurray, the niece of Dr. Armistead. She was a student at Agnes Scott three years ago and made many friends who sorrow with her at this time. Dr. Armistead is survived also by a nephew, Armistead McMurray, a student at the Union Theological seminary at Richmond; and by an aunt, Mrs. G. A. W. Payne of Lynchburg.

In honor of the memory of Dr. Armistead the doors of the college were closed on Monday. At four o'clock on that day over a hundred students and members of the faculty, as a final token of love and esteem, gathered at the Peachtree station from which he was sent to Lynchburg for burial.

Funeral services were held at Lynchburg at four o'clock Tuesday afternoon, and at the same time a memorial service was conducted by the students in the chapel at Agnes Scott. Mr. and Mrs. Dieckmann were present at the services at Lynchburg.

Dr. Armistead was one of the most popular teachers in the college. The feeling of the students for him was more than that of earnest pupils for a brilliant teacher—it was a warm and personal regard for him as a great and good man. This esteem had been expressed for him in numerous small ways. The "Silhouette" was dedicated to him a number of times, and this year he was chosen by the Senior class as a faculty member and was the speaker who addressed them at Investiture.

His influence will long be felt on the campus and in the classrooms of

DR. ARMISTEAD'S GREAT SERVICES AS A MEMBER OF THE FACULTY

Held Interest of Students at Heart and Worked for Them

Dr. Armistead, as Professor of English, came to Agnes Scott in 1915, the year it became a college. From its very beginning, therefore, he has been associated with the institution, and from the beginning he was deeply and unselfishly concerned with its development, both in scholarship and in the fulfillment of the ideals for which it stands. He worked untiringly and without ceasing for a higher and higher standard in curriculum. At the same time he did an inestimable amount in securing Agnes Scott's favorable recognition in collegiate circles.

From the time that he came, and that is ever since Agnes Scott has been a college he served as Secretary of the Faculty. His work on committees was perhaps more extensive than that of any other person. For a long time he was chairman of the Electives Committee and also of the Committee on Secondary Schools. At the time of his death, although his work in that line had, because of his ill health, been lightened in recent years, he was chairman of the Faculty Committee on Debating Societies and of the Catalogue Committee, and was a member of the Committee on Curriculum.

It was in the relation of teacher to students, however, that Dr. Armistead's helpful influence was most far-reaching. As English Professor, until two years ago, he taught almost every girl who came to Agnes Scott in one semester of Freshman English; and thus he came into contact with more students than almost any member of the faculty. His higher English courses were in Debating, in History of the English language, in advanced Composition, in Anglo-Saxon and Middle English, and in the development of the English and American novel. In all of these, through his very real scholarly attitude, the clearness of his thinking, his broad tolerance.

Agnes Scott, and his memory will be cherished by hundreds of young women who have enjoyed the privilege of knowing him and of being students under his guidance.

DR. VOORHEES OF PHI BETA KAPPA PAYS TRIBUTE TO MEMORY OF DR. ARMISTEAD.

Tells of the Founding and of the Purposes of Great Organization

It was very fitting indeed that we should have had Dr. Voorhees, to speak to us on Monday night, April 30, the night of the day in which we lost Dr. Armistead. For Dr. Voorhees is the General Secretary of Phi Beta Kappa and in giving us a glimpse of the meaning of this, the national honor society of the United States, gave us a better glimpse of the meaning of the life of Dr. Armistead who was a member of this society and an untiring promoter of it at Agnes Scott.

Dr. Voorhees told us Monday night, quite informally, of the origin of Phi Beta Kappa at William and Mary College, in 1776. It was a movement arising from the students, who felt there was need for such a society honoring those students who best attained its goal, the "love of wisdom." Since its founding, Dr. Voorhees went on to tell us, it has counted among its membership those who have later reached the highest pinnacle of success. In the late disarrangement conference, all four of the United States representatives were members of the society, the Chinese representative was an honorary member, and the French representative was also an honorary member. Of the women who have been admitted to its ranks, one is president of Bryn Mawr College, another the president of Radcliffe, and a third Dean of Women at Browne University. The first and so far the only woman to have been appointed a justice of a State Supreme Court is a member of Phi Beta Kappa.

The visit of Dr. Voorhees to us was largely obtained through the efforts of Dr. Armistead. As an earnest exponent of that "love of wisdom" which is the fraternity's watchword, he had long sought to establish a chapter of it here at Agnes Scott. He together with the other faculty members of Phi Beta Kappa had established Gamma Tau Alpha at Agnes Scott, an honor society having the same ideals and

DR. ARMISTEAD AND COLLEGE ACTIVITIES

Founder of Gamma Tau Alpha, Pi Alpha Phi, and B. O. Z.

No member of the faculty at Agnes Scott has ever been more active and helpful in encouraging student activities than has Dr. Armistead. He came here as a teacher the first year that Agnes Scott became a college; and in the eighteen years of his service he not only founded three of the most important student organizations but he also made possible, through his unflinching interest and tireless efforts a score of other activities which have enriched the life of the Agnes Scott girls.

The establishment of Gamma Tau Alpha at Agnes Scott was due to Dr. Armistead. He himself was a member of Phi Beta Kappa and was always eager to encourage true scholarship and high ideals in learning at this college. For this reason, together with the other faculty members of Phi Beta Kappa, he founded Gamma Tau Alpha as an honor society for the recognition of those students, who, in words which he often used himself, should endeavor with earnestness and with some small measure of success "to know the truth and by that truth to become free."

B. O. Z., a club for encouragement of literary production among upper classmen, was perhaps dearer to Dr. Armistead than any other organization on the campus. It was founded by him in 1915. He had a feeling of great personal interest in the members of this club, and it was the only one of the organizations which he established which held its meetings in his study. B. O. Z. has always been a source of pleasure to the students who have belonged to it, and it has done much to aid those who desire to write the short story.

Pi Alpha Phi was one of the last of the student organizations to be founded. Dr. Armistead was very much interested in training debaters and had for several years devoted much of his time to the triangular debates. It was chiefly through his help and instruction in his debating course that Agnes Scott has been able to make her brilliant record. Both the students and the college owe him a great debt for his work along this line for the success which Agnes Scott has won in debating has given her among other colleges, prestige of a kind which is not easily gained.

Besides these organizations which were founded by Dr. Armistead, there are others to which he has been an inspiration. He acted as a kind of an official faculty member for the staff of the three publications, "Silhouette," "Aurora," and "Agonistic." It was always to him that the editors went for advice and suggestions, and it was from him that they received invaluable aid. Also, at the time of the founding of the "Agonistic" he was of great help to the students in the difficult details of the work.

One service performed by Dr. Armistead which is not generally known to the students was his urging that they might be allowed to attend plays and also to present them. At the time when he first came to Agnes Scott only Shakespearian plays were enjoyed by Agnes Scott girls, since the theatre was regarded as essentially immoral. Dr. Armistead was the first to attack this idea and to introduce more liberal views on the subject. Finally, through his efforts the students were allowed to attend four plays a year and, still later, to be free to go to as many plays as they liked. Dr. Armistead was also actively connected with Blackfriars and did much to encourage amateur dramatics in the college.

No member of the faculty was better fitted to assume a position of leadership in student activities than he, for until the last few years he taught every girl who entered Agnes Scott as a freshman. Therefore, he knew the students personally and because of his sympathy with them and understanding of their needs was able

FUNERAL SERVICES OF DR. ARMISTEAD MARKED BY SIMPLICITY.

Only Relatives and Friends are Present.

A dignified simplicity marked the funeral services of Dr. Armistead. They were held Tuesday, April 31, at the home of his aunt, Mrs. G. A. W. Payne, in Lynchburg, Virginia; and only his relatives and personal friends attended. As Dr. Armistead was a member of the Floyd Street Presbyterian church in Lynchburg, the pastor of that church, Dr. Williams, conducted the ceremony. Dr. Palmer, pastor of the Westminster Presbyterian church, to which Mrs. Payne belongs assisted Dr. Williams.

Dr. Armistead believed that music was too trying at such a time and in respect to his wishes the entire service was read. At the home of Mrs. Payne, his favorite chapter of the Bible, the fourteenth of John's Gospel, was given, and this was followed by the reading of "How Firm a Foundation."

Dr. Armistead was laid to rest in the Presbyterian Cemetery in Lynchburg. Here the services were concluded by a prayer and the reading of portions of the Scripture and of another Hymn, "Oh, God, the Rock of Ages," which he had often heard the students at Agnes Scott sing.

A beautiful part of the ceremony was the placing on the grave of the many beautiful flowers, which had been sent as last marks of love and esteem. This was done by three former Agnes Scott students, who had been members of Dr. Armistead's classes and who had known and loved him for a number of years. They were: Anne Kyle, Caroline Hutter, and Mrs. Brannon, formerly Gladys Camp. Mrs. Howard, the mother of Lucy Howard who is a senior at Agnes Scott this year, also assisted in placing the flowers.

Mr. Howard and Mr. Kyle, both fathers of Agnes Scott students, acted as pallbearers.

Among Dr. Armistead's relatives who were present and for whom Agnes Scott feels a great sympathy were: Mrs. Payne, his aunt; Rev. McMurray, his brother-in-law; Charlotte McMurray, his niece; and Armistead McMurray, his nephew.

DR. ARMISTEAD.

He's gone.
 I do not understand.
 I only know
 That as he turned to go,
 He waved his hand,
 And in his eyes a sudden glory shone;
 I was dazzled by a sunset glow,
 And he was gone.

Wilfred Gibson's words about Rupert Brooke, England's young soldier-poet, aptly described Dr. Armistead's going. The steady courage with which he performed the round of common tasks in the months when death was near, stirred daily our loving admiration and sheds over us now a sunset glow.

This fearlessness was matched only by the singleness of purpose with which he worked for sixteen years at Agnes Scott. Believing in the liberalizing power of knowledge, he enthusiastically devoted himself to making our campus "a home for the spirit of learning." Through his genuine scholarliness and his stimulating teaching, his fine discrimination and his sure judgment, his genial friendliness and his gracious courtesy, his students gained a real conception of the culture about which he delighted to talk with them.

So, living he "built a house that is not for Time's throwing," and dying he has left us a "gift rarer than gold": the memory of a presence filled with sweetness and light, and the desire to follow, with him, "knowledge like a sinking star." We shall miss his cheering smile and his inspiring greeting from our campus, but his influence cannot fail. Nor can we have any doubt about the way to pay him our tribute of loving gratitude, for the waving of his hand as he turned to go says unmistakably, "Seek Truth; find her; do not yield."

FROM A FORMER STUDENT

Dear Editor of the Agonistic:—

I don't know whether I am presuming or not, but I have just heard of the death of Dr. Armistead, and as one of his old students feel that I want to express a few words of gratitude for what he did for me. It may be too late, and I know what I have to say isn't worthy from a literary standpoint, but if you care to, use it. It has been a long time since I was at Agnes Scott, but the picture of the campus and the people I knew there comes to me over and over. And almost daily I am reminded of something that Agnes Scott did for me, not so much in the classroom lessons I learned, but in the way these lessons and the teachers I met taught me to think and feel, and in the things they led me to love. It is in these daily memories that I shall ever think of Dr. Armistead. I was fond of him when I was in his classes, but it has only been since I have experienced more in life that I have realized how much he gave me to take with me out of my girlhood. He will ever be for me, and I know that in saying this I speak for all those who knew him well, the truest possible representative of all that is finest, in scholarship, in class-room relations, and in sincere friendship. His was a rare gift—that of imparting an inspiration that will never cease to grow in the lives of his students, and will always help them to appreciate what is best and truest in life.

I like to think of all Agnes Scott girls having him, at some time, for a teacher; I am sorry there must be those of whom this cannot be true; and I am grateful for my share of what Agnes Scott and Dr. Armistead gave to me.

MEMORIAL SERVICE FOR DR. ARMISTEAD HELD IN CHAPEL TUESDAY AFTERNOON.

Students Give Last Expression of Love and Esteem Felt for Him

It was with a feeling of love and sorrow that the Agnes Scott students and faculty gathered in the chapel Tuesday afternoon for a service in memory of one whom they had greatly esteemed and admired. At the same time the funeral services of Dr. J. D. M. Armistead were held in Lynchburg, Virginia. The memorial service gave the college the privilege of showing its sympathy for the friends in the distant state and an opportunity to gain the comfort and blessing of God, the Father of our Agnes Scott family which had been touched by distress. All that was said was marked by a feeling of Christian gladness in the victory and freedom from suffering of the one who had left us to be with God in His heaven. Dr. Armistead, the friend of every member of the college community, had left high ideals for us, and our love and respect for him filled the service.

The first hymn was "Ten thousand times ten thousand." Then the president of the Y. W. C. A. read from the Holy Bible what was said concerning the life of a believer after this life of temptation and struggle. A lovely solo telling the glories of Paradise was sung by Miss Curry. Again the word of God was turned to, and "a sweetly solemn thought" of hope and comfort came to us through the familiar words. A prayer of thanksgiving for the life and influence of Dr. Armistead and of seeking after God's comfort and guidance in our sorrow was offered by Miss Preston. The last hymn was "O, Mother dear Jerusalem." Quietly, after the Y. W. C. A. benediction, we went out with the comfort and peace of God in our saddened hearts and uppermost in our minds, the loving memory of one who had meant much to us in many ways.

MAY DAY AT AGNES SCOTT

"Maize Moon," an Indian Story, Presented

Many People Present to See The Pageant

Margaret Ransom is Crowned as Queen of the May

The May Day pageant, "Maize Moon," was presented at Agnes Scott on Saturday afternoon, May 13, at four o'clock. It was beautiful in every detail, and the novelty of the Indian theme made it doubly appreciated. A large crowd of spectators was present.

The scene for "Maize Moon" was lovely and picturesque. A semicircular stage had been arranged under the May day oak in front of Inman Hall. Tall, thick branches and bushes made a background of green against which the brilliant coloring of four totem poles made a striking contrast. A moss-covered mound at the back of the stage was the center of action.

At four o'clock the May Queen, Miss Margaret Ransom, entered with her six maids: Miss Christine Evans, Miss Margaret Turner, Miss Mary Keesler, Miss Lucy Oliver, Miss Elizabeth Malloy and Miss Josephine Douglas, Miss Ransom was dressed in a simple, yet handsome dress, of white canton crepe; while her attendants wore lovely dresses of white georgette crepe and lace. The maids carried wreaths of sweet peas. The procession advanced to the center of the stage where the queen was crowned by her attendants. After this they all took their seats on a raised dais at one side of the stage, and the pageant was enacted before them.

"Maize Moon" is an Indian story which tells a story of the wooing of Morning Star, a maiden of great beauty who has spent her life among the Daughters of the Sun, by Rising Sun, an Indian chieftain and the last of the great race of the Suns. This story gave an opportunity for the use of many lovely and striking costumes. Morning Star wore an Indian costume of white with sky-blue beaded belt. Rising Sun was also dressed in white with red stitching and motifs. The Sun Goddess' costume was of gold with a semicircle of golden rays around her head and shoulders. Evening Star wore blue and gold, while the Moon Goddess was dressed in green and silver. Besides the costumes of these principal characters, those of the Indians were colorful and picturesque. Among the nature spirits, the flaming orange of the costumes of the Daughters of the Sun, the purplish blue of the Daughters of the Sun, the black and orange of the fireflies, the gold of the stars, and the gray and blue of the smoke dancers were especially artistic and beautiful.

The dances were well executed and showed careful training as well as native ability. They were all the work of Miss Randolph and Miss Haynes of the Physical education department, who also trained the dancers. The music was melodious and well suited to the atmosphere of an Indian theme. It was composed by Mr. C. W. Dieckmann of the Music Department, who also directed the Orchestra for May Day. Some of McDowell's Indian compositions were also used. Great thanks are due to Miss Randolph, Miss Haynes, and Mr. Dieckmann, for without their faithful work and great ability the May Day pageant could never have been a success.

Those who took leading parts in "Maize Moon" are as follows:
 Rising Sun ..... Dorothy Bowron
 Morning Star ..... Hall McDougall
 Sun Goddess ..... Louise Brown
 Evening Star ..... Elizabeth Ransom
 High Priest ..... Mary Jarman
 Moon Goddess ..... Louise Brown
 A solo dance was done by Miss Lois McLane as an Indian Warrior.

"Maize Moon" was written by Miss Marjorie Lowe, a student at Agnes Scott. She has won many honors for her work along literary lines, having been a frequent contributor to the "Aurora" and having had a poem in Schnittkind's "Anthology of College Poetry." Miss Lowe's artistic and beautiful story assured half the success of May Day.

The cast of characters is as follows:

NEW HOASC MEMBERS ELECTED

Scandrett, Stone, Davidson, Greene, Howie, and Smith are Chosen.

Saturday morning, May 5, Hoasc announced its new members of the Class of '24. The announcements of Hoasc are probably the most interesting events of the year. Twice a year, once in the fall and again in the spring, they elect the girls of the next years Senior class who have shown most clearly their love and willingness to serve their Alma Mater, to membership in Hoasc.

This time Dr. McCain gave a short talk about the ideals for which Hoasc stood and its purpose, which is not to honor its members but to allow those who have proved most eager to serve Agnes Scott to be the quiet leaders for the next year. He also told a few of the things Hoasc has brought to the campus since it was founded in 1916; the intercollegiate debate between Randolph Macon, Sophie Newcomb and Agnes Scott, the Lecture Association and the Poetry club and many others. He then told a few of the requirements for membership in Hoasc, efficiency in leadership of the right kind, a certain scholastic standard and a willingness to serve. Then he announced the new members of the class of '24, Dick Scandrett, Victoria Howie, Beulah Davidson, Mary Greene, Polly Stone, and Daisy Frances Smith.

These girls have all been prominent in the different activities on the campus; Dick Scandrett in Student Government of which she is next year's president; Beulah Davidson and Victoria Howie, who is the 1924 president, in Y. W. C. A. work, Polly Stone is Editor of the "Silhouette" for 1924 and Mary Greene Editor of the "Agonistic" have done much for the publications and Daisy Frances Smith has efficiently upheld Agnes Scott for two years in the Triangular Debates. They have each caught the vision of the ideals of Agnes Scott and with their willingness to serve have done much for their Alma Mater.

BLUE RIDGE GIRLS GIVE STUNT

With the excitement of commencement and coming holidays come plans for Blue Ridge. Although Agnes Scotters need very little preparing to arouse enthusiasm, yet the old veterans of Blue Ridge gave a stunt for the benefit of those who have never taken the trip, just to show them how much fun and inspiration it really is.

The stunt was very elaborate, having two whole scenes. The first scene showed much chaos and upheaval, in short the living room was trying to get decorated. This was finally accomplished after much thought by using articles of apparel to cover the pillows and many scraps of cretonne to make curtains for the one window.

The second scene represented a typical evening hour. There were jokes and laughing and much talk, but through it all it was easy to see and understand the real spirit of Blue Ridge. This scene seemed so vivid that the mountains and the sunset could almost be seen from the window.

The results of the old mountaineers have been successful so far, and they are hoping for many more recruits. At present the girls signed up to go are: Victoria Howie, Frances Gilliland, Helen Lane Comfort, Eugenia Thompson, Dorothy Keith, Josephine Schuesler, Margaret Powell, Margaret Tufts, Margaret Hyatt, Dick Scandrett and Frances Lincoln.

MISS MINERVA AND WILLIAM GREEN HILL GIVEN

Juniors Present Clever Stunt

Miss Minerva and William Green Hill has always been found to be a most charming story, and all of its merits were certainly ably brought out by the Juniors on April 28 in the chapel. Its fame had spread all over Decatur by the arrival of the auspicious night; and posters, of stern Miss Minerva and mischievous Billy succeeded in drawing one of the largest audiences of this year to the chapel.

Polly Stone, as Miss Minerva, was superb, with her long black skirt, tight white waist, and high collar—all of which was accentuated by her severe headdress (even as Miss Minerva herself must have worn) and high bone collar, to say nothing of her pious voice and mincing gait. Fanny Swann made an admirable Billy, and she and Dick Scandrett (as Jimmy) delighted the hearts of all present, especially the small children of Decatur who could be heard to cackle out when poor little Billy and "good" little Jimmy were proved to be victims of Miss Minerva "the particular woman they is." No one could have been a better Major than Mary Greene and the love scenes between Miss Minerva and said Major were screamingly funny.

We have, all of us, imagined, ever since we first read this little story, just how the character would look and act; but it was left to the genius of the energetic juniors to make these thoughts reality. This they did with marked success. Every detail was well worked out, and there was even the fitting climax of a corsage for Miss Minerva! Everyone enjoyed this stunt thoroughly. The Juniors have proved that anything they undertake they make a success and they did indeed give everybody a very pleasant evening.

MAY DAY BASKETS.

Sophomores Surprise Senior Sisters.

"Morning's at seven, all right with the world!" So might the Seniors have echoed back Wordsworth's immortal verse when they awoke on the first day of May to find the gift of love from their Sophomore Sisters. "Say it with flowers" was illustrated in many lovely ways when the "little sisters" of the class of 1925—as elves that flit in the night—left out—side the door of each big sister a May basket, filled not only with spring-time blossoms but with an overflow of love and best wishes for success outside the portals of our beloved Alma Mater.

INTERCOLLEGIATE NEWS

The Athletic Board of Goucher College has formed the "Goucher Athletic Legion." The Legion does not wish to confine its limits to the girls who actually come out for sports in college, but to anyone who is interested in anything pertaining to athletics, practical or theoretical. A list of about 200, Seniors, Juniors, Sophomores, and Freshmen were invited by the Athletic Board to join the "G. A. L." The meetings will be devoted to general discussions on subjects relating to athletics which may be enlightening to the athletic body as a whole. The discussions are to be short and to the point. After that there will be stunts of some variety. The meets, which are to be held once a month, are to be purely social and will in no way take the place of the business meetings of the general Athletic Association. The only requirement for membership is a written application to the Athletic Board, and, after having been enrolled, to attend the meets regularly. The Athletic Board invites and will welcome criticism, preferably of a constructive character, for it realizes that the Legion will only be a vital factor in the life of the individual if each contributes her aspirations.

The students of Bryn Maur College seek the dropping of Latin as a required subject and suggest the installment of the three following courses: major and post-major courses in music; an elective course in modern English prose, poetry, and drama; and an elementary course in German. The undergraduates also suggest, in the opinion on curriculum united by Marion Edwards Park, president, the abolition of quizzes, and the substitution of more written and oral reports. Required work, in the opinion of the students, should be cut to a minimum and should be completed by the end of the sophomore year. It should include two years of English and one of Science, History, Philosophy and Psychology. A student upon entering college has sufficient knowledge of Latin, according to the report of the students, unless she is majoring in the subject.

The Annual Conference of Mid-Western students is to hold its next meeting at the University of Tennessee. This conference will mean a great deal to the University for it will bring to the student body the viewpoint of the leaders of students through all of the largest mid-Western institutions.

American young men who look forward to careers as ambassadors, foreign ministers or other representatives of their government abroad may now be trained for such a career, according to an announcement by the New York University. Scholarships are now operative at this university, which were established by the late Ambassador Frederic Courtland Penfield; these scholarships will be awarded to candidates whose qualifications best indicate a fitness for careers in the foreign service.

Reports from college bureaus of student self-help prove that any young man can get an education if he has industry and vigor to work part of his time for his sustenance. At Yale, 1202 students working at all kinds of jobs earned $161,530. At the University of North Carolina, 1280 students out of a total of 1700 worked, their earnings amounting to $384,000.

Gipsy Smith, Jr., in a talk before the faculty and student body of Louisiana State University, sent out a ringing challenge to all present to make service a bigger part of their lives and to forget "self." He declared, using the words of Socrates, that to know one's self was the greatest education a person could receive.

LAST AURORA GOES TO PRESS

Again, and for the last time this year, the curtain rises, and reveals to us who look, one brief act in the drama of life; men and women, boys and girls hurrying to and fro in the various vicissitudes of fortune now falling, now rising, laughing, weeping, loving and living. This is another way of saying that the last "Aurora" for this year is out; and that those of us who peer between its covers will find there real living people who think, and feel and have the same experiences as we ourselves; will find stories and poems and essays, brimful of events and emotions and pleasing thoughts.

The stories in the "Aurora" this time are especially fine and certainly prove just as interesting as the ones we love to read in the "American." The poems, too, are excellent. The knowledge that one of them is a product of Marjorie Lowe's genius is incentive enough to make us want to read it, but the further knowledge that this poem is among Marjorie's best should certainly be sufficient to cause a rush for the "Aurora." A special page of child's poems is included, also; and having been once, carefree curious, wondering children we shall all enjoy these.

"Salmagundi" is more humorous and spicy than ever. In addition, there is a special feature peculiarly interesting to Freshmen taking Miss Laney's English, a delightful book report on "Sense and Sensibility," entitled "Comparison of the Women of the Eighteenth Century with Present-day Women." "A word to the wise is sufficient," and therefore we feel confident that, having received this little hint of the value and interest of the last "Aurora" every Agnes Scotter will count it a pleasure to peruse from cover to cover this magazine which means so much to our college.

GIDDIE GOSSIP

Dearest Giddie:—

Well, would you think it, exams are posted. Here it is almost time for commencement and I'll tell you the truth, it seems only a month or more ago since last semester exams. I am just holding my head with fear and trembling, I'm afraid it will crack with all the knowledge it is going to hold these next few weeks. I'm afraid I'm a little unbalanced already.

Say Giddie, I'm all bandaged up on one side. Oh, no, I have not fallen down the steps or slipped on the pavement or anything like that but I laughed so much the other night that I actually cracked a rib or something. The Juniors gave "Miss Minerva and William Green Hill," and do you know I simply shook from beginning to end—I mean from the beginning of the play to the end. Polly Stone was the best Miss Minerva you ever saw; why she even beat the real one. Say I wonder if all old maids do finally get that way? Well, here is one that is going to take advantage of every chance she has and if she is an old maid, it will not be her fault. I was surely relieved when the Major was so "masterful" and brought Miss Minerva around. Fannie Swann was the cutest thing as Billy and Dick Scandrett was a typical "Jimmy" Why I got real home sick for my kid brother. I'm thinking very seriously of suing those Juniors for damage; I couldn't help laughing so much.

Oh, Giddie, I wish you could have seen the seniors those May baskets. They were the prettiest things. I cannot wait to be a senior and find such a basket out side my door on the first of May. But, I don't know, from the smiles of those sophomore sisters, I believe I'd much rather be a little sis and have the fun of taking it to my big sis. Well, I'll tell you right now if I don't get to studying on that History test I have for tomorrow I won't be a sophomore or any thing else; the faculty will politely request me not to honor the campus with my presence next year—inferring that I haven't the sense to stay here—please forgive me for this atrocious letter but my brain is such a blank and I'm in such a frenzy over exams that I can't do any better as always

and understanding of the viewpoint of others, his philosophic sense of humor, his ability to give so well to those whom he taught a helpfully vivid conception of what education in its broadest sense should mean, Dr. Armistead succeeded in giving to his students a very precious glimpse of the sweetness and light of true knowledge.

He was more than an excellent teacher however: He was to scores of girls a very real friend, always ready to understand and help, to listen and encourage and laugh. He never failed to see things through a student's eyes; and in every measure under his consideration, it was the students that received his first thought. It is this intimacy of comradeship that is missed almost unbearably now. The charm of Dr. Armistead's personality, and in return, love and admiration for him, prevailed the entire campus, and that is why we grieve so deeply at his going. It was a privilege that was indeed without price to have known him, and we are earnestly grateful.

She took my candy and my books,
She took that lustrous wrap of fur,
She took those gloves I bought for her.

She took my word of love and care,
She took my flowers, rich and rare,
She took my ring with tender smile,
She took my time for quite a while.
She took my kisses, maid so shy—
She took, I must confess, my eye—
She took whatever I would buy,
And then she took another guy.

SENIORS PRESENT OPERA, "LUCI DE LAWN-MOWER"

King Tut Bargains with Boozsella Audience Enthralled

The annual opera of the Senior Metropolitan Company was presented last Saturday night in the chapel. At eight-thirty the enormous and harmonious orchestra struck the initial chords and the curtain rose on the first scene of the terribly tragic "Luci de Lawnmower."

The story, familiar to opera goers, is heart-rending. It tells of the fatal infatuation of Luci, the daughter of King Tut, for the socialistic Proletario. The bass harmonies and the villain are furnished by Boozsella, the villain, and Anti Prohib, the court intriguer and sister of King Tut. The story centers around the delivery of some rare hooch for which the king promises Luci's hand to Boozsella. Naturally, the end finds the whole crowd dying gracefully, leaving the unhappy Luci to push the lawnmower over the garden and to stare darkly into the future.

Translated into English, the cast was as follows:

King Tut ..... Ruth Almond
Queen of Sheba ..... Elizabeth Lockhart
Luci ..... Elizabeth Ransom
Proletario ..... Dorothy Bowron
Boozsella ..... Eloise Knight
Anti Prohib ..... Lucille Little

The stage was decorated beautifully for each act. Two scenes were laid in King Tut's garden, waving palm trees, with a desert waste and the River Nile at the back formed the atmospheric setting for first act. The court presented an elaborate throne room. Lofty columns rose to the ceiling of the palace, and King Tut sat on a throne of golden horses.

Never has there been an opera presented at Agnes Scott which was more original and entertaining.

order:

'Mood.'
'When I was Small 'Twas Natural.'
'Sacrifice.'

If Agnes Scott was proud of the admirable work of her Poetry club before, she is doubly proud because of the praise and encouragement of real poets. Elizabeth Cheatham is especially to be congratulated on her unusually good work in the club. Everyone is happy that Alice Virden, Lucille Little, Ellen Walker, and Marjorie Lowe received the encouragement of Mr. Heyward and of Mrs. Baker.

Elizabeth Cheatham's poem is as follows:

MOOD

They say I cannot write until I live,
Still grief, or deepest love, alone can give

True meaning to the halting words
I make.
My spirit stands stiffly in the wake
Of rushing human heart-beats. This they say.

I know. With clear intensity to-day
I somehow sense the blankness of my youth,
Perceive the strange irrefutable truth
That makes me cold and far as some dim moon.

And yet do I not love the April?
Soon
Will I not rise to kiss the wet-leaved day,
And lift my face, caress the cool smooth spray
And laugh?

Perhaps I do not need to know the grief
And love of men. Perhaps this brief,
Swift loveliness of April's silvered rain is all that I need know of joy or pain.—E. C.

DR. ARMISTEAD AND COLLEGE ACTIVITIES

to work with and for them as no other could have done.

For these labors he was rewarded by the love and gratitude of the students. Perhaps no other professor at this college has maintained such a lasting and universal popularity as did Dr. Armistead. His loss means to the students a real sorrow. They think of him as a brilliant teacher, a faithful adviser, a promoter of the best and noblest in student movements, and last and greatest of all as a true friend who leaves a pleasant memory, a great work accomplished in this college, and an influence that will affect future generations of students upon whom the story of his life and accomplishment will be bestowed as a precious heritage.

SOPHOMORE "REIGN OF TERROR"

Rules Read in Darkened Chapel Last Week

"All Freshmen are requested to meet in the chapel immediately after Student Government." These brief words announced to the Agnes Scott community that Sophomore Week had begun. The Freshmen were escorted to the chapel by Sophomores in order that they might hear the rules that would seal their doom. Two hundred Freshmen trembled in the dark as they listened to their sentence read by the gleam of a flash light. Having heard the orders they were to abide by, the Freshmen began their obedience by marching single file between a double row of Sophomores and doing whatever they were commanded.

Breakfast the next morning saw the full prints of the night before. Strange looking creatures with slicked back hair and pig tails, rouged noses, and lip-sticked eye brows skipped across the Colonnade, balancing an umbrella in one hand, and bowed themselves into the dining room. As each Senior took her place, the Freshmen at her table arose and remained standing until she was seated. The meal was rather an interrupted one on account of the Freshmen aiding the tardy waiters in pouring water and passing grits. Furthermore, out of the kindness of their hearts (or probably the order of a Sophomore) they informed the faculty of the time—cuckooing the hours and nodding their heads the number of minutes. With all these duties there was hard-

Y. W. C. A. TEA FOR FRESHMEN HELD IN SUMMER HOUSE

Girls Wear Visiting Cards For Identification

Last Thursday afternoon the Y. W. C. A. gave the freshmen a tea in the summer house, which was almost unrecognizably dressed up in trailing vines and big bows of pink and white crepe paper.

Of course "tea" is mere poetic license, because the tea was punch, of which there was such an abundance that it even lasted until after the sing that night. Not because the freshmen didn't come to drink it, however. They came in swarms and droves and flocks. You couldn't see any of the summer house for the green organdies and rose-colored georgettes and lavender voiles and to complete the costumes, a visiting card was pinned neatly on the dress of each lady. So much easier and so much more breath-saving than introducing a hundred or more people, don't you know.

After much punch and more conversation, the party adjourned. The old girls all felt exceedingly virtuous over knowing so many of the new girls and the freshmen had made the surprising discovery that the Sophomores and Juniors and Seniors were not very terrifying after all. With all that to its credit, you might say enthusiastically that the tea was a success.

NEW STUDENT OFFICERS

During these first days of school several student offices have been filled through elections. Mary Evelyn Arnold, business manager of the "Silhouette," did not return to school this year; and Ella Smith, who was formerly assistant business manager, was chosen by the students to fill her place. At the same time Araminta Edwards was elected to the position which Ella Smith had held.

Mary Jarman, the orchestra leader of last year, is not at Agnes Scott again. Isabelle Clarke, who was one of the most gifted and enthusiastic of last year's orchestra, will hold the position of orchestra leader.

K. U. B., the journalistic club, elected officers for this term last week. Daisy Frances Smith is the new president and Elizabeth Griffin the new secretary.

ORGANIZATIONS ON THE CAMPUS

Officers and Purposes in Student Activities

As an aid to the Freshmen, the "Agonistic" wishes to give the following information about the organizations on the campus and about the officers of these organizations.

Y. W. C. A.

The purpose and work of the Y. W. C. A. will, of course, be understood by all. It arranges our Sunday evening services in the chapel and takes charge of the Sunday-school. Other functions which may not be so well understood are the care of the bulletin board in Main, publication of the Y. W. C. A. hand-book, social service work among the industrial girls in Atlanta, and arrangement of the church affiliation program. The officers are:

- President—Victoria Howie.
- Vice-President—Emmie Ficklen.
- Secretary—Frances Lincoln.
- Treasurer—Margaret Hyatt.
- Undergraduate Representative—Frances Gilliland.
- Chairman of World Fellowship Department—Frances Amis.
- Chairman of Religious Work—Lilian McAlpine.
- Chairman of Social Department—Margaret Powell.
- Chairman of Social Service Department—Frances Bitzer.

Student Government

The plan of government at Agnes Scott is the honor system. Each student is responsible to the others for any breach of this system. The making and enforcing of these laws is in the hands of the officers of this organization, who are:

- President—Carrie Scandrett.
- First Vice-President—Weenona Peck.
- Second Vice-President—Barron Hyatt.
- Third Vice-President—Helen Wright.
- Secretary—Mary Anne McKinney.
- Treasurer—Louise Buchanan.
- Member College Council—Frances Myers.
- Student Treasurer—Elizabeth Henry.
- Chairman Auditing Committee—Cora Morton.

Athletic Association

The Athletic Association not only arranges the schedule for interclass games but also is in charge of the "sings" and of the publication of the song books. The officers are:

- President—Nancy Evans.
- Vice-President—Lilian McAlpine.
- Secretary—Emily Spivey.

SOMETHING NEW BESIDES GIRLS

New Parlors, Dormitory and Rugs.

After the returned Hottentot greets her old chums and looks over the new members of the tribe, she casts her loving eyes on her surroundings. What has changed since last year? What improvements have been made?

First, her attention is called to the parlor. How comfy and "homey" it looks in its new furnishings! No wonder the students have to be requested to use it for company only! The same refined and artistic atmosphere is retained in the new soft grey rugs. The bright tints of orange in the light shades and candle sticks are just the warm touches needed to light up the mahogany and subdued upholstery. New furniture has been added. Four chairs and two tables! More "date-space" to sell Sophs!

The parlor is not the only part of our household that has undergone changes. Gaines has become a dormitory. With a touch here and a few boards there, it has been turned into an envied resort. About twenty students are now rocking comfortably along in the wicker chairs it boasts of.

Inman has received her share of the bounty of new furnishings. We are now walking, not on beds of roses, but on pretty, soft, new rugs.

NEW FACULTY AT AGNES SCOTT

Agnes Scott Graduates Among New Professors

School time has again rolled around bringing with it the old friends and many chances to make new friendships. The campus has been filled with, seemingly, strangers, but in reality they all belong to Agnes Scott.

These new students are not the only new faces on the campus, for the faculty as well as the student body has received new recruits. There is a full dozen new faculty. Some of them are "for keeps" and some are only to fill temporary vacancies.

Dr. Salyer is the new English professor. He taught first for seven years at the University of Georgia, and then five at the University of Oklahoma. Dr. McCain secured him for us from Sweetbriar.

Miss Campbell is to fill the vacancy left by Miss Torraene as assistant professor of Latin and Greek.

Miss Emily S. Dexter is to have the assistant professorship of Education and Psychology. She has been teaching in the Missouri Wesleyan College.

Miss Jackson is one from the North, for she has come from Russell Sage College, Troy, New York, to take the place of Assistant Professor of History.

Miss Phythian, known already to every Agnes Scotter, has come to assist the French Department. She should have much to "parler" of, having had a year in France.

Miss Cooper, another Agnes Scotter, has deserted the North Carolina College for Women in order to join the rank and file of Agnes Scott faculty. She is to teach the doughty deeds of William the Conqueror.

Miss Margaret Bland has come back to be a member of the French faculty. She has been teaching at North Avenue School, in Atlanta, and in the schools of Charlotte.

Miss Janet Brownlee, of the North, will replace Miss Goodwin as instructor in Latin. She comes from Washington Seminary, Pittsburg.

Miss Walton is to be the assistant in piano and voice. In this way, she will fill the vacancies of both Miss Curry and Miss Sutphen.

Philippa Gilchrist will assist in Chemistry, Elizabeth Hoke in Mathematics and Physics, and Ruth Pirkle in Biology.

The list of the new faculty in full is: Dr. S. M. Salyer, English, B. A. (Amherst) Ph. D. (Harvard).

Mary Campbell, Latin and Greek, B. A. (Bartlett) M. A. (Columbia)

OPENING EXERCISES IN CHAPEL

Many Interesting Speeches Heard

Agnes Scott was formally opened on Wednesday morning, September 13. Special exercises were held in the chapel at this time and several interesting addresses were made by friends of the college. Dr. McCain, who became president near the end of last year, presided at these first opening exercises under his leadership.

Dr. R. O. Flinn, pastor of the North Avenue Presbyterian Church of Atlanta, and a member of our Board of Trustees, made an interesting talk at this time. He told something of the need of the world for the enlightened guidance of college women, especially of Christian women.

Mr. J. K. Orr, chairman of the Board of Trustees, also spoke to the students at this time. His wit and originality never fail to delight his audiences, and Agnes Scott girls hear him with especial pleasure. His stories of how "green" he was as a college freshman found sympathetic listeners among the Agnes Scott freshmen.

Mrs. Harold Wey, president of the Agnes Scott Alumnae Association, welcomed the students in behalf of that organization. She also told of the Alumnae Tea Room, which is

Y. W. C. A. RECEPTION FOR NEW GIRLS

Dutch Effects Carried Out in Decorations

At last we had a chance to meet all those interesting-looking new girls whom we had been seeing all over the campus ever since we came! The Y. W. C. A. as usual, was our benefactress. On Saturday night, September 15, she gave a reception for the class of '27, with the added attractions of fruit punch and evening dresses and hand-painted souvenirs, and a receiving line composed of the faculty and the Presidents of the Y. W., Student Government and the Athletic Association. A special feature and one which made it doubly joyful was the presence of so many of "those who have gone on before"—Hilda McConnell and Sara Till and Eva Wassum, who were just visiting, and Philippa Gilchrist, "Lib" Hoke, Ruth Pirkle and Miss Margaret Bland who are the new alumnae members of our faculty. Whether one was an "old girl" or a "new girl, she could not help enjoying this final taste of the "beau monde" just before she had to settle down to the stern realities of A. S. C. life.

The illusion of being far, far away from all things connected with work was further created by the Entertainment Committee in Dutch costumes, who served punch and distributed souvenirs, and the Dutch dance by Harriet Fearington and Mary Freeman and the solo by Miss Wal-

SECOND HAND BOOK STORE SAVES STEPS AND COIN FOR ALL

Co-operation Is Asked In New Enterprise

Girls, did you ever see anything vanish into thin air like ready cash! Of course if we were all Croesuses it wouldn't make much difference—we should still have enough to purchase an ice-cream cone occasionally. But, being just plain humans, we have to sort of hang on to fragmentary coins, if we hope to array, even scantily, the yawning shelves of the bookstore.

This would be a heavy job, even for Napoleon, if we did not have help—but girls! that's just what we have! There's something new on the campus—something that is spelled in terms of efficiency and satisfaction. Just ask the freshmen what the "Second Hand Book Store" has done for them. For the first comers it has saved trotting from third floor Inman to third floor Rebekah in a fruitless search for such and such a text. And for the old students it has meant an end of all painful endeavor towards providing vacant space for their numberless books, and of all wild speculation the following year as to original prices.

Girls, let's co-operate. It's going to be a big thing and a great help to us all.

FIRST Y. W. C. A. SERVICE

The first service of the Y. W. C. A. was held on Sunday night, September 17 in the chapel. This service gave the keynote to the program for this year and expressed the ideal of the Y. W. C. A. for the college year at Agnes Scott.

Dell Bernhardt acted as organist at this time and played a beautiful prelude to the service. Lilian McAlpine and Frances Gilliland sang a beautiful duet, "God is Love."

Victoria Howie, the president of the Y. W. C. A., led this first service and gave the talk for the evening. She welcomed the Freshmen to Agnes Scott in the name of the Y. W. C. A. and told them something of the hopes and aspirations of that organization for this year. She gave Christian fellowship as the central idea of this year's work and asked that each student co-operate in making this ideal a reality.

Margaret Hyatt also took part in the service.

THE STUDENT'S QUEST.

Freshmen, on entering a college, are often prone to think of the college as a place where one studies but especially where new friendships will be formed, where much practical experience will be gained by participation in college activities, and where a sense of independence and of initiative will be developed through the varying relations of college life. It is true that a college offers all of these benefits to its students, and none the less true that these are among its richest gifts to young men and women. Yet, if this were all that a college had to offer, equal benefits might be found on the athletic field, to use a familiar example; for there, certainly, a sense of fairness and a world of energy and independence are gained and many happy friendships are formed.

There must be, then, some high aim of a college not recognized as a goal in other organizations and institutions. This ideal is learning, and the independence sought for is independence of thought. Every college worthy of the name seeks to impart not only knowledge but knowledge made beautiful by good judgment, by liberality of thought, and by generosity of spirit. The college strives to give a vision of what is highest and best in intellectual attainment and, in a Christian college, to temper all with the spirit of understanding and of universal love which characterizes the teachings of Jesus. The student's golden opportunity, then, is the quest for the "sweetness and light" of true learning, and inasmuch as he presses toward this noble ideal has he realized the full joy of intellectual and spiritual development which the college has to offer.

A TESTIMONIAL OF LOVE.

Dr. Armistead's scholarly and interesting library, which he gave at his death to the college library is another eminently lovely and peculiarly appropriate testimonial of his love for Agnes Scott. In comparison with his eighteen years of unselfish, happy work for the college and its students, even this generous gift is inconsiderable; but we, of course, are grateful indeed for something that belonged so intimately to Dr. Armistead as his books. The English room has been designated as a convenient place for them to be used; and thus his influence, felt so deeply among all who knew him in past years will live on not only in their minds; but in those of coming college generations.

His library is an unusually well chosen and complete collection and will constitute a decided addition to the Library. One of Dr. Armistead's most magnetic traits was the breadth and variety of his interests; and quite naturally his selection of books reflects this. There are collections of all the great novelists, English, French and American, both past and present; classics in Greek, Latin and German; poetry from Anglo-Saxon times to the present; drama, classic, Elizabethan, contemporary; history; biography; books on the technique of writing, short story, poetry, journalism; and a large amount of critical literature. Dr. Armistead's library is indeed an appropriate memorial to a beloved teacher and friend who "loved learning for its own sake."

such a popular resort of the students, and asked our co-operation in making it once more a success.
Dr. D. P. McGaughey, pastor of the Presbyterian Church of Decatur, gave a short talk of welcome, as the representative of the Decatur ministers. He said that he wished to help us in any way that he could—that he was even willing to lend his "preacher's suit" for any of the stunts which might be given by the girls.

OLD FACULTY ENTERTAINS NEW PROFESSORS AT PINE HILL

A Good Time Was Had By All

Bacon Bat! What fun that does spell! And weiners and rolls and a big camp fire, besides good singing and glorious moonlight.

Well, the word meant all that and more to the faculty on Saturday afternoon. For in the faculty phone room the nicest poem was tacked up ever so nicely on the book case, inviting the new faculty to one of these lovely Saturday afternoon soirees.

At four-fifteen about twenty-nine of the faculty, old and new, gathered on Main back steps with all their paraphernalia—all set to go to Pine Hill! Some of the liveliest there were some of the usually most dignified, we have it on good authority. There was a superabundance of food—weiners, bacon, tomatoes and lettuce, with mayonnaise, and mustard, cheese toasted over the fire, rolls, and marshmallows. To this long list were added apples and pears. Now who dares say the Agnes Scott faculty are not royal entertainers?

The crowd that went was one of the jolliest that ever started on the road to Pine Hill. Dirt was not spurned by any. Indeed, this fact is so true that, we have it on good authority, our own Dr. Sweet, an M.D., when she had picked her club sandwich from the ground and had handed it to a new faculty member, made the remark that she would just die if she didn't get to eat that sandwich. And that remark was typical of the whole crowd.

After this bountiful feast was over a circle was made around the campfire and joyful voices joined in pleasing song. Each one hated it when the moon rose so high that it showed it to be time to desert Pine Hill.

PI ALPHA PHI TRY-OUTS TO BE HELD MONDAY NIGHT

Subjects For Talks Are Given Below

The old girls have been cordially invited to "try out" for membership in Pi Alpha Phi, the Debating Club of Agnes Scott. The invitation to Freshmen was postponed until next semester—not because they lack eloquence or the ability to sway the audience, not at all. Their time will come, for it has surely been said: "Every dog has his day." So, next Monday night, the 1st of October, the judges will be ready. Each applicant is entitled to five minutes before the judges in which she will speak on any subject she may choose. Suggested subjects are:

- (1) Resolved: That intercollegiate athletics should be abolished.
- (2) Resolved: That A. S. C. should offer a course in journalism.
- (3) Resolved: That Student Government should be introduced in the public schools.
- (4) Resolved: That six hours exercise should be required of every student at A. S. C.
- (5) Resolved: That a course in debating should be a standard college requirement for graduation.
- (6) Resolved: That the successful standing of a psychological test should be a standard college entrance requirement.

It is hoped that some good debating material will be developed in this way. Another channel for development—and perhaps one with a firmer foundation, is in Dr. Salyer's class in debating. There are about sixteen members out of which Pi Alpha Phi should have at least a majority.

Thursday night, the 27th of September, Pi Alpha Phi will hold its opening meeting under the leadership of President Daisy Frances Smith. Mrs. Alonzo Richardson, an Atlanta woman, will address the club on the subject of Parliamentary Law.

October 4th, initiation of the new members will take place.
October 11th, a debate has been scheduled.

Hoase

Hoase is an honorary society composed of members of the Senior class. The members are: Carrie Scandrett, Victoria Howie, Polly Stone, Mary Greene, Beulah Davidson and Daisy Frances Smith.

President—Beulah Davidson.
Secretary—Mary Greene.

Y. W. C. A. NEWS

With the present plans and program for the coming year the Y. W. C. A. gives promise of having one of the most successful years it has ever had. By comparing notes with other colleges at Blue Ridge, it was decided that the main theme of the year should receive more emphasis, thus when the cabinet came down on Friday, September 7, for a camp at Cascade Springs, where they could make plans for the coming year, they had a fine nucleus from which to work.

The girls spent a delightful week-end in which they enjoyed camping while working on the program. As a result we are anticipating a most delightful program for the coming year. As it reads at present it is for September Welcome, Co-operation, and Membership. October 7th will be Recognition service for the freshmen. The rest of October it is Service, Budget and Industry. November it is Church Affiliation, Interracial, Student Friendship, and Thanksgiving. December it is International Peace and Christmas.

We are looking forward to having Miss Lumpkin with us for at least one meeting and are hoping to have several other people of prominence during the year.

Vic Howie opened the year with a lovely talk of welcome to both old and new girls. She set forth the ideals of the Y. W. C. A. and talked of the theme for the coming year, which, as is shown by the program is centered around fellowship.

We certainly could have no finer theme than this in a time when the world needs fellowship more than anything else to bring about a clearer understanding among peoples and nations.

The National Y. W. C. A. is certainly doing its part to bring about Christian fellowship as we all know. This is what one of the Y. W. C. A. members says.

ALUMNAE NEWS

Agnes Scott wishes to welcome to her faculty several new teachers, who are alumnae of A. S. C.: Miss Margaret Bland, '20, French; Miss Alice Cooper, '20, History; Miss Philippa Gilchrist, '23, Chemistry; Miss Elizabeth Hoke, '23, Mathematics and Chemistry; Miss Ruth Pirkle, '22, Biology; Miss Margaret Phythian, '16, French.

The lure of Agnes Scott was 289 much for the '23 girls; and so, when the college bells began to ring again this fall, quite a number of last year's graduates, either from plain force of habit or from the irresistible fascination of our campus and girls (we trust it was the latter), came back to visit at A. S. C. Among the visitors were: Christine Evans, Mary Goodrich, Hilda McConnell, Pearl Smith, Eva Wassum, and Anna Meade. Of course we all asked them that question proverbially put to graduates, "What are you going to do?" and this is what they said: Christine spends this winter in New York studying for her A. M. degree at Columbia; Mary is staying at her home in Atlanta, where Hilda is living with her; Hilda is teaching psychology in the Atlanta Normal School, and has a class that can boast married women as well as single girls; Pearl is teaching at her home in Rome, Ga., and Eva in Macon, while Anna expects to travel North later on this winter.

Agnes Scott graduates, more than those of other standard women's colleges, have always had a reputation for assuming the bonds of wedlock, nor did the class of '23 fail to furnish its full quota to the ranks of the married. Those Agnes Scott graduates who have prefixed "Mrs." to their names since the publication of the last A. S. C. catalogue are as follows:

- Miss Helen Faw, '23—Mrs. Jas. W. Mull.
- Miss Roberta Love, '22—Mrs. Eugene Brower.
- Miss Minnie Lee Clarke, '23—Mrs. Guy Cordle.
- Miss Eileen Dodd, '23, Mrs. Augustine Sams.
- Miss Nell Frances Daye, '21—Mrs. Jas. Clarke.
- Miss Julia Watkins, '21—Mrs. Harry Hubert.
- Miss Margaret Hedrick, '21, Mrs. Wm. Nichols.
- Miss Margaret McLaughlin, '21—Mrs. Wm. Hogshead.
- Miss Margaret Smith, '22—Mrs. Jas. Lynn.
- Miss Claire Elliott, '19 — Mrs. Robert McKay.
- Miss Frances Glasgow, '19—Mrs. Patterson.
- Miss Ora Mell Tribble, '19—Mrs. Jess Flemming.
- Miss Mary Black, '16—Mrs. Locklin Menorwinn.
- Miss Elizabeth Bulgin, '15—Mrs. Gilbert Hamilton.

FIRST MEETING OF SUNDAY SCHOOL HELD LAST SUNDAY MORNING

It looks as if Agnes Scott is going to have an enthusiastic Sunday School if we judge by the way it started off September 24.

There was present a crowd of enthusiastic girls who are willing to put their best into the Sunday School, and that is the thing it needs to make it a success.

Dr. McCain made a delightful talk which put new inspiration into the undertaking, for he put it on a basis of being a real test of our devotion to our Alma Mater. He says that when Agnes Scott has started a thing in the past she has put it over. We didn't need to be told that, but it was certainly a splendid reminder. Now, we don't want to let her fail in this.

Different courses are going to be offered and we may choose the one we want. Juniors and Seniors are going to teach Freshmen and Seniors are going to teach Sophomores, while faculty is going to teach Juniors and Seniors.

It can't help being a success if it is backed by the crowd with which it was backed Sunday and with the splendid Y. W. C. A. Cabinet to give it incentive.

"Do you use Colgate's tooth paste?"

"No, I don't room with him this quarter."

LECTURE ASSOCIATION DISCUSSES PROGRAM FOR THIS YEAR

Many Interesting Lecturers Mentioned

The Lecture Association of Agnes Scott College held its first meeting for this year last Monday night in the faculty parlor. The members who were present at this time were: Miss Hearon, Miss Laney, Miss McKinney, Miss Davis, Mr. Rankin, and Mr. Stukes from the faculty; and Janice Brown, Leone Bowers, Mary Keesler, Dick Scandrett, Mary Greene, Victoria Howie, and Dell Bernhardt, the president, as student members. Plans for the coming year were discussed and arrangements for beginning the sale of tickets and a publicity program were made.

Suggestions for lecturers were given by the members and the possibilities of securing these were discussed. It is hoped that a poet, a lecturer on politics, a scientist and lecturers on other lines can be brought to Agnes Scott this year. Among the names mentioned were those of Paderewski, Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, Hugh Walpole, Amy Lowell, Dean Saunders, of Hamilton, John Erskine, Dubose Heyward, and Lloyd George.

Dell Bernhardt, the president this year, is planning to conduct this year a more extensive and enthusiastic campaign than has ever been managed before. It is hoped that the entire student body will join the Lecture Association this year.

GIDDIE GOSSIP

Dear Giddie:

Why haven't I written in so long? Well, if you were as busy as I am you wouldn't write either. Why, I'm carrying six hours a week, not to speak of the eleven I'm dragging.

Then there are so many other things more interesting than lessons. I just love to find out all about the new faculty—how hard they are 'n everything. And everybody spends lots of time visiting freshmen, even if the old girls are jealous of their good looks. But in spite of our jealousy we are crazy about them all. I think boys must like them right well, too, if you can judge from the amount of candy they have and the phone calls they get. I think it always looks so popular to be able to pass around candy, don't you?

But you bet the Sophomores took the freshmen down a peg last week. You wouldn't have known the fresh young things with cold cream all over their faces, rouged noses, and lip-sticked eye-brows. I wish some of these handsome beaux of theirs could have seen them! No, I don't wish so, either. They might stop sending candy and we would starve in between meals.

Now here I am, talking like the freshmen were the only pebbles on the beach. Don't think for one minute that the old girls aren't holding their own. Lots of them went to co-ed summer schools and conquered a man, and some just stayed at home and got one. They are always talking about frat pins. You have heard me speak of E. Shaw. Well, she says there isn't any fraternity like the K. A. But Mary Breedlove says she still likes Phi Delta Thetas the best. I don't guess I'll ever even have a safety pin to dispute about!

Really, it seems as if I'm the only girl in school now who hasn't got a beau. M. Greene (you know she is the editor of the Agonistic) says there isn't anybody crazy about her either. But I think she just says that so I won't feel bad, 'cause she is always hunting some one to chaperon her for a ride. And when you ride with girls you don't have to have any such animal along!

Well, it's about time for lights to go out, but I just must tell you about the tragedy of M. Chapin, (a little freshman from Virginia.) She forgot to register when she went to the infirmary. I know it's so 'cause she told me so herself.

Just the same devoted,

ly time for them to practice for the entertainment they were scheduled to give for the amusement of the Sophomores. At various places on the campus, freshmen, with disturbed countenances, wondering how they could get to 8 o'clock classes, stood with toes together and heels apart and waved at arms length to all the Sophomores and upper classmen who passed by. All through the day any one passing in the halls, though she were not Sherlock Holmes, could detect the rooms in which freshman classes were being held by the sound of jingling bells which penetrated through the doors. As the freshmen suffer such indignities, they whisper among themselves that next year things will be different—that they will be angels of mercy to the incoming freshmen; but the blase upper classmen are waiting to see. They have an impression that in the dim past they have heard these same words.

But the most fun of all was in getting acquainted with each other, with some for the first time, and with some all over again after our three months' separation. It is this aspect of the reception which has become so dear to the hearts of Agnes Scotters that the reception has been made an annual affair and one of the red-letter days in our student calendar.

SOPHOMORES WIN CAT

Hoasc Announces Seven New Members

Amis, Hyatt, Brown, Evans, Ficklen, Gilliland, Peck, Admitted Saturday

On Saturday morning one of the most important events of the college year took place when Hoasc announced its new members. Seven seniors were admitted into the society at this time. These were: Frances Amis, Barron Hyatt, Janice Brown, Nancy Evans, Emmie Ficklen, Frances Gilliland, and Weenona Peck.

The announcement took place in the chapel at 9 o'clock. At this hour a procession of Hoasc members in caps and gowns entered the chapel as Mr. Dieckmann played "Ancient of Days." The Hoasc members present were: Beulah Davidson, the president for this year; Mary Greene, Victoria Howie, Carrie Scandrett, Daisy Frances Smith, Polly Stone, Mary Goodrich, Ethel Ware, Janef Preston, Margaret Bland, Quennelle Harrold, Emma Jones, and the faculty members, Mr. Holt, Dr. Sweet, and Dr. McCain.

Miss Margaret Bland, who is now a member of the French Department, announced the names of the new members, making an appropriate speech. She told something of the high ideals of character and of service for which Hoasc stands.

Hoasc is a society, founded in 1915, which aims at promoting all that is best and noblest in love and service for Agnes Scott. Its members must be leaders and are chosen from among the students who have shown during their years at Agnes Scott an unselfish devotion to their Alma Mater and an unbounded capacity for laboring toward ends which will insure the realization of "The Agnes Scott Ideal." Thus, membership in

Miss Alexander Gives Tea

Last Tuesday afternoon Miss Lucille Alexander was hostess at a lovely afternoon tea given in the Anna I. Young Alumnae House in honor of Miss Margaret Bland and of Miss Phythian. During the afternoon about a hundred of the Agnes Scott Alumnae of Decatur and Atlanta and of the Agnes Scott faculty called.

The house, which is well suited to entertaining, was beautifully decorated in autumn colors. Baskets of marigold and goldenrod were placed in the reception rooms and in the halls. Lighted yellow candles in brass candlesticks shed a soft light on the lovely scene.

Miss Alexander, Miss Phythian, and Miss Bland formed a receiving line, while Mrs. Harry Alexander in the hall served punch from a bowl garlanded with grapes and vines. Mrs. Lewis Gaines poured coffee.

Miss Phythian and Miss Bland are both graduates of Agnes Scott and have returned this year as members of the French Department. Since graduating, Miss Bland has taught in high school in North Carolina and has been a member of the faculty of the North Avenue High School in Atlanta. Miss Phythian, since leaving Agnes Scott, has taken her master's degree at Cincinnati and recently has continued her studies at the Sorbonne in Paris. Both of these new members of the college community have already won the affections of the Agnes Scott students and of the faculty here.

Miss Bland and Miss Phythian have

SOPHOMORES PRESENT "ON THE INSIDE, LOOKIN' AT THE OUTSIDE."

Freshmen On Board S. S. A. S.

Dr. Sweet Presents Cat.

The annual contest of wits between the Sophomore and Freshman classes took place in the chapel Saturday night, October 6, when the Sophomores again won the Black Cat. A large crowd of spectators was present to see the stunts and to give encouragement to the two classes. One side of the chapel was decorated with the Freshman colors, black and gold. Streamers from four corners met in the center, and along them were hung black ships. The walls also were decorated with these ships and with the black and gold of the Freshmen. The other side of the chapel was Sophomore territory. On the walls were pictures of prison windows with wise owls looking out. The columns were wrapped with red and white, the Sophomore colors, and a row of cat's foot-prints up the sides of the columns led to a big black cat at the top.

The front seats of the chapel were reserved for the Freshmen and Sophomores. At 8 o'clock they entered with their cheer leaders—the Freshmen coming first and then the Sophomores. The Freshmen were assisted in giving their yells by the Juniors; and their leaders were Martha Lin Manly, Junior, and Elizabeth Norfleet, Freshman. The Seniors and Sophomores joined their forces with Nancy Evans, Senior, and Helena Hermantz, Sophomore, as leaders. The yells were especially good this year and both classes showed that they were giving their most enthusiastic support to the casts of the stunts.

The Freshman stunt came first. Programs in black and gold colors were distributed among the people in the audience, announcing that the Freshmen would enact the events described in "The Log of the S. S. A. S." The curtains were drawn back and showed a scene on deck of the ship whose officers were Captains Coleman, Lingle, Smith, Cooper, Fearington, and Fain. Besides a number of sailors the following passengers were present: Mr. Tanner, Mr. Wentworth Smith, Cicero, and Mlle. Oberle.

The voyage began on September 12. The chief event of this scene was Mr. Wentworth-Smith's entrusting of a valuable casket to Captain Coleman. Everything seemed to be progressing nicely, when on September 20 the ship ran into a gale. The most terrible loss came when all the cosmetics were washed overboard. At this point the sailors began to show a marked discontent which resulted in mutiny on October 6. Captain Lingle was overcome and the precious casket was captured. The crew opened this and found that it contained the coveted black cat. Thereupon the stunt came to an end with the whole cast singing, "Don't You Wish You Were a Freshman, too."

Those who took part in this clever stunt were: Mary Ferguson, Marcia Green, Mary Weems, Sue Marie Wilds, Elizabeth Clark, Frances Buchanan, Maurine Bledsoe, Catherine Mitchell, Ernestine Black, Nancy Lou Knight, Phyllis Roby, Edna Anderson, and Catherine Johnson.

This stunt was very entertaining. The lines were bright and clever, and the music and dancing were especially good. The sailor's horn-pipe was one of the most attractive parts of the stunt. The Freshmen are to be congratulated for presenting such a creditable stunt.

Blackfriars Cast Plays For October 30

Pi Alpha Phi Holds Opening Meeting

Friendly advice has proved helpful more times than once. The ex-officers of Pi Alpha Phi, through experience and observation came to these conclusions:

- (1) Freshmen should not be allowed to try out for Pi Alpha Phi until the second semester.
  - (2) A study of Parliamentary Law would be beneficial to the club.
  - (3) It would be well for Pi Alpha Phi to co-operate with Blackfriars in "fixing up" one of the Society Halls for the use of both clubs.
- The officers and members being of a progressive turn of mind, decided to adopt these resolutions, and act accordingly. They "acted accordingly" immediately by securing Dr. McCain to give a lecture on Parliamentary Law, which was extremely beneficial as well as interesting. The usual order of a meeting is:
- (1) Calling to order.
  - (2) Reading and approval of the records.
  - (3) Announcements.
  - (4) Reports of special Committees.
  - (5) Reports of Standing Committees.
  - (6) Elections.
  - (7) Special assignments.
  - (8) Unfinished business.
  - (9) New business.
  - (10) Program for the day.
  - (11) Adjournment.

Dr. McCain also said that this so-called usual order was subject to change according to wishes of the club. Fine points concerning parliamentary form were discussed and when the lecture came to a close, every member felt that she was capable of stopping, starting, hindering, helping—yea, even of filibustering legislation.

Initiation of new members was planned for the night of October 11th. Marjory Speake, vice-president, announced the following schedule for debates:

- (1) October 18th—Resolved: That

Mrs. Fitzhugh Writes Letter

Last May the college was distressed to hear of the sudden and tragic death of Mrs. Fitzhugh's mother and two sisters. The following letter was written by her to the students at Agnes Scott:

Box 95.
Clarksburg, W. Va.
Sept. 18, 1923.

Miss Carrie Scandrett,
Agnes Scott College,
Decatur, Ga.

My dear Carrie:

Just a line to wish the students at Agnes Scott a prosperous year, and to thank the girls for their kindly expressions of sympathy and love.

This letter is meant to be an expression of my appreciation and love for the girls at Agnes Scott. God bless you all and may He so direct your footsteps that you may always reflect credit on your Alma Mater. I have suffered so much this summer I cannot yet say that I have recovered my normal balance.

Write to me sometimes.
Lovingly,
MARGARET O. FITZHUGH.

"Lima Beans," "Twelve Good Men And True," "The Lights Of Happyland" To Be Given

Blackfriars had their first meeting on Friday, September 21, at which time plans for the coming year were discussed. Miss Gooch, under whose able leadership the club accomplished so much last year, gave an outline of this year's program. Instead of the usual three groups of plays, Miss Gooch is planning to put on four groups, the first of which are to be on October 30th. Three one act plays will be presented then: "The Lights of Happyland" by Marion Short; "Twelve Good Men and True," by Bessie Springer Breene, and "Lima Beans."

All of these are one-act comedies, and are exceedingly clever. The casts of these are as follows:

The Lights of Happyland:
Margery Gordon—Mary Freeman.
Emily May (her aunt)—Carolyn Smith.

Mammy Lou (her colored nurse)—Eugenia Thompson.
Lee de Claviere (Prince Charming)—Vic Howie.

For "Twelve Good Men and True":
No. 1 Real Estate, Frances Lincoln.
No. 2 Milliner—Margaret Powell.
No. 3 Manicurist—Isabel Clarke.
No. 4 Club Woman—Ellen Walker.
No. 5 Schoolteacher—Helena Hermantz.

No. 6 Secretary of Woman's Party—Wenona Peck.

No. 7 Bride of Six Weeks—Joe Schuessler.

No. 8 Housewife (mother of nine)—Margaret McDow.

No. 9 Housewife—Nan Lingle.

No. 10 and No. 11, Spinsters, (twins): Elizabeth Cheatham and Elizabeth Griffin.

No. 12 Prima Donna—Frances Gil-

Plans For Biblical Club

The Archaeological and Biblical Club sound formidable but not a whit more so than the Lecture Association. Moreover it brings noted and distinguished speakers to our Alma Mater, too. In fact, the Biblical Club may almost be called a rival of the Lecture Association.

The first meeting took place Monday night. It was purely a business meeting and the purpose and plans of the club for the year were discussed. A tentative program was presented for the approval of the members. It has several novel and a great many attractive features. At the November meeting Dr. Campbell Morgan will meet with the members. He will not be able to give a lecture but the opportunity to meet and know him personally will be coveted by all who have heard him speak. In December a noted archeologist will address the club. It is hoped that Miss Lewis will speak at the February meeting on the subject of "Christ in Art." It is a subject in which she is well versed and if the present plans hold the club will be very fortunate in hearing her speak. The club members are to present the April program and the May meeting will be taken up with plans for the next year.

Everyone who takes Bible is eligible for membership in the Biblical Club. One does not have to take Greek nor be a Bible major. Margaret McDow is president, Sallie Horton is vice-president and Josephine Schuessler is secretary and treasurer.

THE LECTURE ASSOCIATION.

During the past week the Lecture Association of Agnes Scott College announced its plans for the year and conducted its annual sale of season tickets. The results of this sale were not as encouraging as the officers had hoped, and another such sale will be conducted in the course of the next month, as has been announced.

The Lecture Association is an organization which, we feel, can hardly be praised enough. It furnishes the students of Agnes Scott a means of seeing, of hearing, and sometimes of really knowing men and women who are leaders in the world today. As one of our professors remarked, "Hearing noted lecturers will probably not mean more to you than your class work; but, after you have left college, it will be the thing that you will remember with most pleasure." At any rate the presence on our campus of people, eminent in the world of art, of music, of literature, and of politics, gives to us a contact with the great and a first hand knowledge of "the best that is being thought and said," which is of untold value to us in the broadening of our outlook and in the increasing of our general culture. These speakers give enough stimulus to our intellects to keep us from a "bookish" habit of mind, which, in our opinion, is the worse fate which can befall a student.

Agnes Scott has been especially fortunate in the lecturers who have come to us through the auspices of the Lecture Association. Last year we had Hamilton Holt, an authority on the League of Nations; Bert Johnson, one of America's most famous sculptors; Dhan Gopal Mukerje, the young Indian poet; David Eugene Smith, the author of many books on mathematics, and Miss Maude Royden, the only ordained woman minister in England. Such a list of speakers cannot fail to excite enthusiasm among those who care for things that are worth while.

This year the Lecture Association is planning one of the most interesting programs in its history. Speakers who have been mentioned include Hugh Walpole, Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, John Erskine, Dubose Heyward, and Paderewski. We feel that any organization which brings to Agnes Scott such men and women as these deserves the unanimous support of students and faculty, and we wish to urge that advantage be taken of this next opportunity to buy season tickets.

where convicts 24, 25, 26 and 27 were breaking rocks. Many complaints were heard from 27 who had just been sentenced to four years at hard labor. Wardens Hopkins, Smith and Holt kept things going, however. The first scene ended with a song, "Waiting For the Evening Mail," sung by the four prisoners.

The next scene was at night. No. 27 was seen trying to escape as Mr. White came in to examine the surroundings. After his departure all seemed well until No. 26 caught No. 27 in the act of escaping. Then the poor little convict had to bloom like a rose and wrestle with temptation until temptation overcame him.

The next morning No. 24 received his pardon; and 25 and 26 were promoted. They left No. 27 alone, telling him that Twelve Hour Pass and Three Hours Merit would soon make his lot easier. These soon appeared and the triumphant No. 27 with them led the cast down the aisle and out of the chapel.

This was one of the best stunts ever given here. Every line brought forth a laugh. The appearances of H. S. Beowulf, and Note course were especially appreciated as were also those of Big Dec, Little Dec, and Silhouette T. Room. The Sophomores deserved the honor of winning the cat for their stunt was original, well written, and well acted.

Those taking part were: Mary Freeman, Frances Cooper, Sarah Slaughter, Edith Coleman, Helena Hermantz, Isabel Clark, Edith Carpenter, Corinna Burman, Ellen Fain, Florence Perkins, Margaret Tufts, Grace Augusta Ogden, Ruth Rogers and Dorothy Owen.

Dr. Sweet, Miss Bland, and Miss Gaylord were judges; and Dr. Sweet made the announcement that the cat again is the property of the Sophomores.

HOASC ANNOUNCES SEVEN NEW MEMBERS.

Hoasc is the highest honor, excepting membership in Gamma Tau Alpha, which can come to a student of this college.

The girls who were admitted Saturday have shown throughout their college life the Hoasc spirit. All in the college community are congratulating the new members and are truly glad that they have received this honor.

The Husband—Montie Sewell.
The Wife—Rosamonde Neissler.

Work on these plays has already begun and a pleasant evening is promised to all who come to this group of Blackfriar Plays—a group which has never been approached before by the scope of the former Blackfriar plays.

At the first meeting of the club, after the above plays had been discussed and cast, a demonstration was given by Montie Sewell and Mary Freeman.

It has been the purpose of the club to have one such feature at each meeting and although they are not done in costume, they are nevertheless very entertaining, especially when they are done as well as Montie Sewell and Mary Freeman did this last one.

It is the comprehensive plan of Blackfriars to include everyone in

First Meeting Of Sunday School Classes

Miss Margaret Bland Is Superintendent

After hard and continuous training, Agnes Scott girls had learned to sleep through the Sunday morning breakfast bells and to awake for at least one day out of the week at 10:30, a thing much more desired than the daily 6:20 rising. But alas! the severe training was all for naught; another bell has begun to ring at 9 o'clock and it would in all probability take them at least two years to adapt their slumbers to this excessive noise.

So with patience they must accept the bells and awake regardless of their former training. The bells are the chimes calling Agnes Scott to its own Sunday School. It was here that Dr. McCain addressed the students and told them what Sunday School really meant to their college life. He said that Agnes Scott aims always "went through" and that this year he expected to see the college Sunday School succeed.

So last Sunday all arose with enthusiasm at the first tap of the bell. At 9:15 the college community had assembled in the chapel and Miss Margaret Bland, the new superintendent led a most appropriate assembly exercise. At 9:30 the assembly adjourned and the girls went to the various classes. These different groups decided on the kind of study each wished to pursue, and what's more they arranged for the cherished bacon bats. The classes were dismissed promptly at 10:00 o'clock, and this rule will continue throughout the year in order to give the students ample time to go to Atlanta for church.

The faculty and older students have entered heartily into the Sunday School plan. Nine juniors and seniors have agreed to teach classes for the freshmen. These girls are: Mary Mann, Nonie Peck, Nancy Evans, Louise Buchanan, Beulah Davidson, Barron Hyatt, Marjorie Speake, Frances Lincoln, and Margaret Hyatt. Cora Morton, Emmie Ficklen, and Helen Wright have classes for the Sophomores; while Mrs. Sydenstricker is going to offer a course in "Revelations" for the Juniors and Seniors. Miss Margaret Bland, an old Agnes Scott girl who is now a member of its faculty, will act as superintendent for this Sunday School, and all feel that under her guidance the Sunday School will live up to the college's record and succeed.

Not only will our Sunday School train the students for after life, it will lend a beautiful spirit of Christian fellowship to the campus life of today; it will make Sundays happier and week days more pleasant.

the club in some play during the year, and something quite new in the line of plays has been devised. As is generally known, there is a prize offered each year by Miss McKinney for the best play of standard length. As this is a very hard goal to attain, Blackfriars has decided to offer a prize for the best one-act play submitted during the scholastic year. The whole student body is included in those eligible, and great interest is already being manifested in this new contest. It is hoped that the time will not be far off when Blackfriars will present, as the spring play, one of these plays written by the students. Until this time, however, all Blackfriars can do is to present plays (not create them) and we are sure, especially when it is rumored that they are contemplating doing "Little Women" soon, that anything they may present will be delightful.

Concerts In Atlanta This Fall

Paderewski Will Play Next Month

If Atlanta cannot always come to Agnes Scott, yet Agnes Scott can at least almost always go to Atlanta, and that is what she is planning to do more than once this winter. For Atlanta is offering unusual attractions this season—particularly to music lovers. First, of course, is the annual civic concert series, offered by the Atlanta Music Study Club at the Auditorium Armory. The program, which is generally acknowledged to be unusually good this year is as follows:

On October 30, Rosa Raisa, soprano, and Giacomo Rimini, tenor, will appear in concert. Both are members of the Chicago Grand Opera Company and are acknowledged by those who are in a position to judge, to be two of the most promising stars on the musical horizon.

On November 28, the night before our Thanksgiving holiday, by the way, Paderewski will make his second visit to Atlanta. Both because of his unrivalled prestige as a pianist and his unique personality as a statesman as well as a genius, this is an exceptionally golden opportunity.

On December 21, Louis Graveure, celebrated baritone, will be presented in concert.

On January 24, Erika Morini, probably the woman violinist with the highest rank of the times among musical critics will give a concert. Not only is she a great genius, but she is a youthful genius as well and doubly interesting on that account.

On March 19, the Ukrainian Chorus will be here again. All who remember their wonderful choral singing at their former appearance will want to grasp the opportunity of hearing them again, and those who failed to be among those present last year, certainly cannot afford to let such a chance slip by again.

The season tickets for these concerts are already on sale at the Cable Piano Co. The price of these tickets in the arena and dress circle is ten dollars; in the balcony, six dollars. The single seat sale will begin about October 15.

Besides this series, the Atlanta Music Study Club is offering a series of Intime Concerts at the Woman's Club Auditorium, consisting of three attractions: Alberto Salvi, harp virtuoso, Ignaz Friedman, Polish pianist; and the Flonzaley Quartet.

This year, Atlanta seems to want to add even greater meaning to her title as the "Music Center of the South." At the Wesley Memorial Church during this winter, there will be given three concerts particularly interesting in their quality. GERALD

Poetry Club Holds Pleasant Meeting

The Poetry Club met for the first time this year last Thursday night, September 27, in the Alumnae House.

There were a number of the members present and a great many delightful poems were read. Among those that were especially enjoyed were Polly Stone's "My House by the Sea," and Ellen Walker's "The Moon," "My House by the Sea" is a delightful description of a dreamland house, of a sunny shore, and of waves that "spill the water from their hands." Ellen Walker gave two very charming pictures of the moon, one as a miser, the other as a spendthrift.

Although many members have graduated, the plans and the enthusiasm of the present members insure many pleasant meetings of the Poetry Club this year.

After the discussion of the poems and new plans delicious refreshments were served by Miss Preston, the hostess of the evening.

A Birthday Bacon Bat

If any girl ever had a "happy birthday" that girl was Miriam Preston. It was a success all round, but the crowning glory was the bacon bat, given by Miss Janef Preston, in honor of her niece.

At six o'clock on the evening of Saturday, September 29, Miss Preston, Miriam, and nine guests set out. The favored ones were: Janice Brown, Frances Gilliland, Margaret Tufts, Mary Ferguson, Virginia Owen, Ruth Owen, Dorothy Owen, Marjorie Wakefield, and Marguerite Russell. A brisk walk proved an excellent hunger-sauce, and soon a bright fire was built and the feast brought forth. And such a feast! Never were there such club sandwiches. Afterward, everyone lay around the fire and told stories and sang songs; for what would a camp-fire be minus the marvelous yarns and peppy songs? Then back to A. S. C. once more and everything just the same, except that each girl had another golden memory to lock within her treasure store.

dine Farrar, Kreisler, Rachmaninoff, magic names in musical circles, each of these will appear in concert. The price for a season ticket downstairs is six dollars; in the balcony $4.50; in the gallery, $3.00.

When we remember that Atlanta, in addition to the musical feasts above enumerated, will bring Grand Opera to us in the spring, we feel that we are in deed and in truth indebted to Agnes Scott for being so close to such a generous mother-city, and resolve to make the best possible use of such beneficence.

Day Student Affairs

No more do we day students need to complain of ruining perfectly good eyes trying to study on the Arkwright Special to Agnes Scott. If said d.s. will only go to the basement of the library they will find there a charming cosy little place of seclusion where they can study. This room has not the forbidding atmosphere of a regular class room, nor the too intellectual appearance of the library itself, but is just the kind of place where you would like to spend a few hours—and spend them profitably, “mentally, morally and physically,” as some of our well known debaters would say. Whether you while away your time with the elusive intricacies of Analyt or are engrossed in the delights of “Bewulf,” this room is ideal for any such purpose. Also is it ideal merely to rest therein after the labors of the day, for are there not two couches there now (’tis true one did use a dictionary for a pillow) and several lovely pictures on the wall to give you fanciful dreams? This is a fine cool place where you can study now, fellow day students, so let’s make use of it.

Have you seen our room in Gaines Cottage? Well, just go see it and you’ll immediately make a dash for the first bed. This room opens off a beautiful sleeping porch and is as attractive as any other room on the campus. Ssh—there’s a full length mirror there, too! But hearken unto Sarah and don’t forget the sheets and pillows!

“Nassah, boss, ah earns mah own living.”

Our Complete Debt—Teacher: “We borrowed our numerals from the Arabs, our calendar from the Romans, and our banking from the Italians. Can anyone think of any other examples?”
Willie Willis: “Our lawn-mower from the Smiths, our snow shovel from the Joneses, and our baby carriage from the Bumps.”
—Judge.

Real hard luck: “Just my luck,” said the prisoner, as he threw the magazine across his cell in disgust. “Nothing but continued stories, and my execution’s fixt for next Friday.”

“Bill,” the poet gasped to his friend, “I wrote a poem about my little boy and began the first verse with these words, ‘My son, my pigmy counterpart.’”
“Yes, yes?”
The poet drew a newspaper from his pocket. “Read,” he blazed, “see what that compositor did to my opening line.”
The friend read aloud: “My son, my pig, my counterpart.”

Food for thought. Her: “Don’t you think Gorma Nish is just thrilling in ‘Wild Oats?’” Him: “Yeh. That’s her best cereal.”

GIDDIE GOSSIP

Dear Giddie:

A. S. has gone through a great transformation since I last wrote you. Yes, everybody has settled down to work. Why, you wouldn’t believe that those gay young freshmen were capable of so much mental labor! The ones on our hall get up at 5 every morning to study and none of them look the worse for wear. And yet, in spite of all the tests and other work with which the cruel faculty is burdening us, some girls still have time for dates. For instance, the other night three boys came to see Clarkie Davis. Just think of having three dates at once. I think three a year would be a reasonable number!

And Clarkie is not the only girl who has dates. If you could have seen A. S. last Saturday night you would have thought it was a society school. You know it was stunt night, so just garbs of our Tech and Emory friends came out to enjoy the wild excitement. “Our friends”—I flatter myself!

By the way—I guess you’ve heard some of the A. S. girls who visited me this summer speak of Mr. Stukes, the head of the Psychology Department? Well, I have just found out that he was a high official in the army. I never had heard it before but I guess it’s so, because a certain girl told me the other day that she was getting a Psychology Major. She isn’t bashful about it, is she?

As long as people are getting things I think Mary Weems, one of the freshmen, ought to get a social secretary. She only receives six phone calls and two specials a day!

Well, Giddie, you are always telling me to answer your questions and I’m always forgetting to do it. But I’ll bet you my monthly allowance of 15c that I won’t forget to do it any more. You want to know whether we have day students at A. S.? Why, of course we have. I just hadn’t mentioned them much because they are so timid about the attention they (Continued on Page 4, Column 2.)

You just know it’s a Muse creation!

ALUMNAE NEWS

Miss Llewellyn Wilburn, '19, who was Miss Randolph's assistant at Agnes Scott in 1922, is now a member of the Physical Education Department of the University of Michigan. Miss Wilburn took her M. A. degree at Columbia University last summer.

Dr. India Hunt, a former student at Agnes Scott, has the honor of being the first woman professor of the University of Virginia.

Miss Elizabeth Wilson, '22, of Atlanta, is returning home from New York this October, for her vacation. She is assistant editor of the "Woman's Press."

Miss Ruth Evans, '22, and Miss Sarah McDowell, ex '24, have both reserved rooms in the Alumnae House for Thanksgiving Day.

Mrs. Harriet Scott Bowen, '22, announces the birth of a son.

Miss Mary Jarman, ex, '25, famous at Agnes Scott as last year's orchestra leader, is now holding a position as director of music in the schools of Cedartown, Ga.

The friends of Miss Peyton Stinson, who was a Sophomore here last year, will be sorry to learn that she is now indisposed at a hospital in Memphis, Tenn.

Much to the joy of us all, Master Willie Rankin, mascot of '23 and Mrs. Rankin have returned to the campus from North Carolina, where they spent the summer.

Quennelle Harrold, who was vice-president of Student Government last year, and who was also a Hoasc member, is a visitor at the college this week.

Ruth Scandrett, president of Y. W. C. A. 1921-1922, is the author of an interesting article which appeared in the last issue of "The Woman's receive that I can't keep up with them. However, I have managed to get a few pointers this time. Mary P. Caldwell enjoyed the California moons this summer, and she says that although she has never tasted moonshine, she is quite sure that moonlight is more intoxicating.

A Greenlea is another popular day student. You know, I can't help but be jealous of Alice because she captures men with such romantic names—say "Ferdinand," for instance. All of which reminds me that I must stop and get ready for my date with Protagoras. That sounds romantic, n'est-ce-pas?

But I must tell you about the debate that Katherine Johnson and Frances Craighead had. The question was, "Resolved, that woman should have a career." F. upheld the affirmative, while K. argued strongly for the negative. M. Gholston finally came in and cast the deciding vote for the negative. Pi Alpha Phi will miss some good material if these three don't try out.

Well, it is time for lights to go out so I must stop. (It really isn't, that is a good way to end a letter, don't you think?)

Ruth is well qualified to write on this subject, for since she graduated from Agnes Scott she has held a position with the Atlanta Y. W. C. ### EXCHANGES

The Hornet—Furman University.

The freshman number of the Hornet is very appropriately printed in green and "is dedicated to the freshman class and its untold promise." This is a tribute which should inspire and encourage all freshmen, and give them an idea of the great responsibility which is theirs as freshmen, and as college students.

The Hornet announces that its next edition will be printed in purple, as a tribute to the Purple Hurricane.

Dr. George W. Quick, of Greenville, in a recent talk to the Furman students, gave them some sound advice. He said, "You should never be anything less good than you are now. Never be less enthusiastic about your work than you are now. It is up to you what your college life will mean to future generations."

Again Dr. Quick has said: "We'll never be safe in this world unless we are busy. Handle the opportunity of service. Grasp your opportunities, make good while you can. Don't wait until it is too late."

"Let's all strive for a better Furman and consequently we will better ourselves."

Furman has organized an International Relations Club which is planning to have renowned speakers come to the University to discuss topics of world interest. Such a club is invaluable to college students. It never fails to stimulate a keen interest in foreign affairs, besides those of our own country.

Notice Girls!

Furman is becoming co-educational! Five girls have matriculated for work this year, though only two will be regularly enrolled. The question which seems to be most engrossing to the boys, in relation to the co-eds, is that of rat caps. The Hornet says: "Both the new co-eds would require a special size cap. And would look nifty in such decorations."

First co-ed: "John's moustache makes me laugh."

Second co-ed: "Yes, it tickles me, too."

When a fellow is allowed to muss a girl's hair, he considers it a net gain.

Y. W. C. A. NEWS

On Sunday, October 7, one of the most beautiful and impressive Vesper services of the year was held. Recognition service is not a new thing to the old girls for we have known of and loved it since we as freshmen, walked down the aisle and lighted our candles at the altar of love and good-fellowship as represented by the Y. W. C. A. Though it is not new to us it gives us a feeling of joy to think of other girls being able to start their college career with this wonderful light to hold before them.

Vic made a talk which will not soon be forgotten by those present, for it was based on that song which means so much to every college girl, "Follow the Gleam," and her talk made us love it even more.

Frances Gilliland is making plans for the student industrial commission meetings which start very soon. This is a movement of which comparatively few of the girls know. It is formed of a number of students and working girls who meet at the Y. W. club rooms in Atlanta every two weeks in order to know each other better and to discuss the problems of the day. Last year one of the questions studied was that of unemployment. Outside of the fact that we learn much from these talks and investigations we find the working girls delightful companions and we learn to value their friendship. Frances is hoping to have several girls out to talk to us this year, which will give an opportunity to those who can't be on the commission to know the girls.

Poetry Club Holds First Meeting For Year

Cheatham, Foster And Walker Honored

Souls of Poets dead and gone, what Elysium have ye known, happy field or mossy cavern, choicer than the Poetry Club of Agnes Scott College? An organization, sufficient to turn green with envy the eulogies of the much-praised Mermaid Tavern, it offers a haven of refuge to the poetic souls of Agnes Scott, whither they may hasten to read in undisturbed peace their own "efforts," however lengthy, to enjoy the general poetic atmosphere and, it must be confessed, to feast themselves on something more substantial than reason. All of these qualities, together with a beautiful, blazing, open fire were combined when the club held its fortnightly meeting with Miss Laney, October 8, at 8:30 o'clock.

It was a most interesting meeting. Several poems by the members themselves were read and discussed, and in addition, Miss Laney read a lovely sonnet by David Morton. In particular, was interest aroused by the exhibition in pamphlet form of the results of the National Students' Poetry Contest conducted last year. Agnes Scott was especially proud of one of her own girls—Elizabeth Cheatham, whose poem was ranked eighth in the list of contributions. The poem which she sent in—"Mood"—was published in one of last year's AURORAS and is familiar to all of the old girls. It is interesting to note that Harriet Munro ranked "Mood" as third best out of all the poems submitted and it is also interesting to note that while Agnes Scott had three names on the Roll of Honor—Elizabeth Cheatham, Ellen Walker, and Maud Foster, she was the only Southern Woman's College given a place there at all, though Randolph-Macon, Sophie Newcomb, Hollins and others entered the contest.

As the club will only celebrate its third anniversary this year, we are very proud of it, indeed, and are excited.

Five New Members Admitted To Pi Alpha Phi

Tryouts Held October 4; Results Pleasing

On Thursday, October 4th, distracted-looking girls walked about the campus, hurriedly murmuring to themselves such phrases as "The Japanese situation is—" or "Six hours of exercise are absolutely—" or "The Standards of the College would not be lowered by—" A casual observer might have thought that much learning had made them mad. But, to the initiated, the explanation was simple: these were the brave spirits who were shortly to try out for Pi Alpha Phi.

Thursday night, these girls gave, in the chapel before a terrifying audience of learned professors and eloquent debaters, their carefully prepared speeches. At least they fondly hope that that was what they gave; some of them have confessed that they could not swear to a single word that passed their lips. The hearers, however, seem to have been satisfied with the ability shown, for five new members were taken into Pi Alpha Phi: Catherine Graeber, Emily Jones, Dorothy Keith, Ruth Rogers, and Ellen Walker.

Here's to the new debaters. May they make even more illustrious the debating record of A. S. C.

Methodist Girls Entertained

Delightful Party Given By Decatur Sunday School

A party! How excited the Methodist girls at Agnes Scott were as they stepped into the cars which were waiting in front of Main to take them to the party they had heard so much about. Yes, they had heard lots about it, for Mr. Gibson had extended an invitation in Chapel and Dr. Sweet and Miss Skeen had been talking it on the Campus. When the cars stopped and they had alighted, they were ushered into the new Sunday-school building, which was decorated with flowers. They realized that our ladies knew something of Agnes Scott for purple and white paperies were in evidence, and purple was the best ever tasted—was purple. The girls were given a hearty welcome with the punch, and after talking awhile, they were told it was time for the presentation of a program which had been prepared.

After short speeches of welcome by Mr. Gibson and Mr. Eakes, the pastor, everybody sang several songs together. All realized how poor their efforts were, however, when to the extreme delight of all, Mr. Durham, of the Shrine Chanters, sang. He was encored again and again and then the guests were requested to go one by one into an adjoining room to register their names and home addresses. As one after another went in, squeals and shrieks were heard which, in time, were justified by the disclosure that electric shocks were being given the guests.

The next thing on the program was ice cream and cake—purple and white ice cream and angel food cake with fancy icing. This, of course, was enjoyed. Mr. Gibson continued by displaying the wonderful insight and mind-reading ability of Baron Mind. Why, when blindfolded, he declared an object to be a bell, when someone rang it!

A new president had recently been installed in the class and so the outgoing one was called to the front to be presented with a "p. g." This took the shape of a tray loaded with glassware; but before it reached its destination it was changed into shattered "smitherines"—due to an untimely fall of the precious cargo. Imagine the embarrassment of the new president, who had been discoursing on how surprised she was and how welcome would be the gift.

The grand finale came when a camera was brought forth to take a flash-light picture of the contented ensemble. This object met with the same disaster as the unhappy glassware, for instead of the noise of the usual explosion came the clatter of the upsetting of the camera!

After a final cup of punch and such

Miss Davis Hostess At Bacon Bat

Miss Tucker, Y. W. C. A. Secretary Is Honor Guest

Saturday afternoon Miss Davis gave another one of her famous bacon-bats. The weather was ideal for a hike into the woods and supper cooked over a camp fire, and when the hike turned into a long ride out in Miss Phythian's car, nothing could have been more perfect.

Miss Davis is an experienced hostess at these cooked-in-the-woods suppers, and she knows just what to carry in the way of utensils and food. While she cooked delicious steaming chocolate over the fire, her guests toasted bacon, rolls, and cheese.

K. U. B. Elects Five New Members

Speake, Duls, Caldwell, Tufts, Henderson Are Chosen

Tryouts for K. U. B., the journalistic club on the campus, were unusually large in number and among the best the club has ever had. Five new members were taken in. These are Margaret Tufts, Louisa Duls, Margery Speake, Mary Palmer Caldwell and Elizabeth Henderson. The tryout for this club consist of two papers, one written up as if for one of the Atlanta papers, and one as if for the Agonistic. One of the requirements for membership in K. U. B. is that a girl must have had experience either on the Agonistic or some other paper.

K. U. B. is planning a busy year and expects to send the important news of the week at Agnes Scott to the four Atlanta papers for each Sunday edition. This has already been done and on October 6 K. U. B. had a column. Not only are articles sent to the Atlanta papers, but also to the DeKalb county paper and to the home papers of the students. In this way it tries to keep Agnes Scott in touch with Atlanta and to send news of interest to the home papers.

The old members of K. U. B. are Daisy Frances Smith, President; Elizabeth Griffin, Vice-President; Frances Amis, Secretary and Treasurer; Frances Gilliland, Louise Buchanan, Janice Brown, Victoria Howie, Mary Greene, Dorothy Keith and Georgia May Little.

Hoasc Banquet On Wednesday Evening

Twenty-five Members Are Present To Enjoy Occasion

The Hoasc banquet, in honor of the new members who were taken in last week, was held on Wednesday evening, October 10, at 8 o'clock, in the Tea Room. A long table was stretched across the room and was decorated in yellow and black, the colors of the society. Tall, yellow candles and baskets of yellow dahlias were used.

The following guests were present at the enjoyable occasion: Beulah Davidson, Mary Greene, Victoria Howie, Daisy Frances Smith, Carrie Scandrett, Polly Stone, Frances Amis, Janice Brown, Nancy Evans, Emmie Fichken, Frances Gilliland, Barron Hyatt, Weenona Peck, Lucille Little, Mary Goodrich, Hilda McConnell, Ethel Ware, Emma Jones, Elizabeth Wilson, Janef Preston, Margaret Bland, Almada Hutchinson, Miss Hopkins, Dr. Sweet, Dr. McCain, and Mr. Holt.

Miss Walton In Recital

One of the most delightful events of this year was the recital given Saturday night, October 13th, by Miss Walton, assisted by Mr. Johnson, tenor; Mrs. Morgan-Stephens, violinist, and Mr. Dieckmann, pianist, and Mrs. Johnson, accompanist.

Miss Walton is a graduate of the Toronto Conservatory of Music, and has also studied with Mr. Hubbard, of Boston. She is now the contralto soloist in the choir of All Saints' Church in Atlanta. Her beautiful contralto voice and the charm and poise with which she sang made this a very pleasant evening for all who attended.

The following program was given: Lord to Thee Each Night and Day, Handel

Student Volunteer Council

College Representatives Meet At Agnes Scott

On October the fifth and sixth, Agnes Scott a second time had the privilege of acting as hostess to the Council of the Georgia Student Volunteer Union for foreign missions. We entertained this Council last year and thus were doubly glad to have the opportunity again.

This Council consists of the Executive Board of the Georgia Union and delegates from each one of the Georgia colleges in which there are Student Volunteers. The purpose of the Council is to plan the year's work for the state and give inspiration to the members in order that they may contribute to the spiritual life of their own colleges. This year, plans for the Quadrennial Student Volunteer Conference to be held in Indianapolis, December 28-January 1, inclusive, were discussed, and the relation of each college to the conference explained.

This Quadrennial Conference, as its name indicates, is held every four years, and includes students from all over the United States. Every college has the right to send one delegate for every hundred students and only one-third of these delegates may be Volunteers. Agnes Scott, thus, will send five delegates. The expenses for such representatives will be paid either by the college or the Y. W. C. A. and the students selected will have the opportunity of hearing world-famed speaker on topics of world interest to all thinking Christians. Mr. Milton G. Stauffer, representing the Student Volunteer Headquarters in New York, explained all of the details clearly and interestingly.

Beside our own representatives at the Council meeting—Emmie Ficklen, Secretary of the Georgia Union and Lillian McAlpine, the delegate from the Agnes Scott Volunteer group—ten colleges were represented. The girls were our own guests and the boys, the guests of Emory. Brenau, Wesleyan, Shorter, Bessie Tift, LaGrange, Georgia State College for Women, Georgia State Normal, Mercer, Georgia Tech, and Emory—delegates from these were all present.

It will be of especial interest to Agnes Scott to learn that in the course of the meetings, Emmie Ficklen was elected as representative from the State for the National Council meeting in Yonkers, N. Y., next February. We who know Emmie as vice-president of our Y. W. C. A. know how well she will represent the state and how much she will bring back to us, as well.

We were glad to have the Student Volunteer Council with us. We hope it will meet with us again next year and we wish it the best possible success in its work.

Miss Stephens "Roseanne" Presented

Agnes Scott Alumna's Play Produced In New York

"Gone are de days" of the negro "mammy" and of the old banjo; gone are the sunny plantations, and with them a people whom all true Southerners love—the old-fashioned negro.

But Miss Nan Bagby Stephens, of Atlanta, has contrived a plan for bringing them back to us, at least for a night. She has written a folk play, entitled "Roseanne," and taken from the life of the Georgia negro at his best. The play has been bought by Lee Schubert, Rachel Carothers, and Mary Kirkpatrick, producers, of New York City; and will be presented first on October 25th.

Interesting Plans For The Silhouette

Date Of Publication Will Be In June

Last week the editor of the Silhouette called a meeting after Chapel to decide when the students wanted the annual to be published this year. A vote was taken, and June twentieth was agreed upon as the time. By fixing the date a month after school closes the pictures of May Day, which is such a gala occasion, and the tournament returns, will be included.

All pictures will again be taken by the White Studio, of New York, which did such excellent work last year, and the photographer is expected to arrive sometime this month so that the pictures can be used for Christmas presents. It is also planned that each girl will have at least two pictures in the Silhouette, one with her class and the other in a snapshot. The faculty, too, will have their photographs in the annual, a thing which has never been done before. The Campus views will be especially attractive, as they were taken in May, when the grounds were at their loveliest. Other features are the pictures of the interiors of the various buildings, which will not let us forget the scenes of so many happy hours.

Not only are the pictures going to be exceptionally good, but equally so is the art work. That department is in the capable hands of Del Bernhardt, and we are expecting some charming work from her.

Last year's staff managed so well that they were able to bequeath a goodly sum to the present staff, and it is the latter's wish that they may do as well as their predecessors, and with the following students in charge of it, we know that the Silhouette will be a wonderful success:

Bible Club Holds Interesting Meeting

Longfellow's "Judas Maccabeus" Read by Students.

Among the many live clubs at Agnes Scott is the Bible Club. It is quite different from any preconceived idea one might have, for it is not long faced or Puritanical. On the other hand, it is full of pep and go.

The first meeting of the year was held Monday night, October 8, in the Mnemosynean Hall. There were about fifty girls present. Considering how many other meetings there were on that night, the attendance was good. The social part of the program came first. The dramatization of "Judas Maccabeus," by Longfellow, was read by different members of the club. Then Mrs. Syderstricker read part of "Oratorio Judas."

This social hour was followed by a business meeting. The first Monday night of every month, from 7 to 8, was taken for the regular time of meeting. Plans for the next meeting were made. Dr. Perry, professor of English at Tech will talk at the next meeting.

Everyone is looking forward to a full year with Margaret McDow, President; Sallie Horton, Secretary, and Josephine Scheussler, Treasurer.

MISS BLAND'S SPEECH AT THE ANNOUNCEMENT OF THE NEW MEMBERS OF HOASC.

When Grover Cleveland first heard of his election as president of the United States, he stood for a moment at the window of his office to look into the street at the surging, triumphant crowd gathered to do him honor. The sight was nearly too much for him; in an almost broken voice, he said: "I never before realized what was expressed in the phrase 'a sea of faces'—look at it now as beautiful and yet as powerful as the waves of the ocean."

Whenever I stand in an assembly of Agnes Scott girls, these words of Grover Cleveland come to my mind—"a sea of faces as beautiful and yet as powerful as the waves of the ocean" and I am almost awed, awed at the beauty that may lie in your thoughts, your dreams, your eagerness of mind, awed at the power of the lives that lie ahead of you.

Whether or not you are a member of Hoasc, it is for you to show the beauty of your thoughts, the power of your lives; it is for you to show yourself worthy of Agnes Scott and, necessarily, we must sometimes fail in its pursuit. But it is our ideal that every student elected to Hoasc, must be worthy of Hoasc. And what is it to be worthy of Hoasc? To divide your attention equally between books, friends, and college activities, that is to be worthy of Hoasc; to remember that the education upon which you are entering is not merely a college course but a life course for which your four years here is but a preparation; to feel that in coming to Agnes Scott you have "joined a family whose honor is your honor, whose welfare is your own, and whose interests are your first consideration," that is to be worthy of Hoasc; to set yourself a standard so high that it will be glory to live up to it and then to live up to it—that is to be worthy of Hoasc; and, above all, to be worthy of Agnes Scott, that is to be worthy of Hoasc.

In our chapel services for the past two weeks, Dr. McCain has been giving us sketches of the history of Agnes Scott. We have learned how by the help of friends on the campus and friends in town, Agnes Scott has developed a high standard of scholarship, has enlarged its endowment and has increased its buildings and property. This morning, I want to tell you of the growth, by the help and interest of the students of something more intangible than buildings and endowment, more intangible even than standards of scholarship. I want to tell you of the growth of the Agnes Scott spirit.

As Agnes Scott grew from a tiny, preparatory school to a college of recognized standing, there was growing also in the minds and the hearts of the students, a greater loyalty and a greater devotion to their Alma Mater.

In the spring of 1916, a group of girls felt that there should be some organization which would give recognition to students who had shown unselfish devotion to Agnes Scott, an organization which would bring together those who had most served Agnes Scott that, through united effort, they might render more untiring service to their Alma Mater. After having talked over this plan with Miss Hopkins and other members of the faculty, they presented to the faculty a plan for the organization. Thus the organization under the name of Hoasc was first given formal recognition and sanctioning.

Since its beginning, Hoasc has continued to grow in ideals and in service. It is now sponsored by three members of the faculty—Dr. Sweet, Dr. McCain, and Mr. Holt. Its membership is composed of a small group of Seniors. It is difficult to describe the standard by which these members are elected because this standard is an ideal.

NEWS FROM OLD FACULTY.

It is always interesting to hear of our friends who have not come back this year and from those who are back for the summer months. The faculty had a very interesting summer and those who have not come back this year are engaged in many lines of interesting work.

Miss Hale and Miss Glendenning spent the summer in France. Miss Glendenning spent September in England and Switzerland and will spend the winter at the Sorbonne.

Miss Culberson is at Columbia University this winter working for her doctor's degree.

Miss Goodwyn was unable to return on account of the death of her father and is now teaching in Richmond, Virginia.

Miss Fitzhugh is spending the winter in Clarksburg, West Virginia.

Miss Torrance is at the University of Chicago on an Honorary Fellowship, studying for her Ph. D.

Miss Gibbons is teaching Economics this winter at the University of Wyoming.

Miss Sutphen is teaching music in Washington this year. Her father died this summer and she is now staying with her brother.

Miss Curry was married the first of September. She is now Mrs. Crandal Prescott and is living in Canada.

Otto Gilbert, of '22, assistant in physics, married this summer.

Sarah McCurdy, assistant in chemistry, class of '20, was married this summer.

Canna Burgess, class of '22, and assistant in history last year is now teaching in Charlotte, N. C.

Miss Fanny McCaa, class of '21, and assistant in biology is now teaching science at Anniston, Ala. She is coming Thanksgiving.

Miss Hearon spent the summer in Washington at the Congressional Library writing her book.

Miss Davis has just had an article published.

FACULTY ACQUIRES PETS.

Perhaps some will be quite surprised to learn that our fair-minded faculty have pets! Oh, no! The students are not so fortunate as to be classed among the favorites. Dogs, cats, moths, and gold fish make up this favored few.

Miss Bland seemed so attractive to a certain little white dog that he couldn't resist the temptation of following her from Decatur to Gaines. And everywhere that Miss Bland goes the dog is sure to go—whether it be to classes, to dinner, or to faculty meeting.

The fortunes of this little creature have been greatly changed during the last few days. A week ago he was entirely without a home. Now he is claimed and cared for by five kind members of the faculty. It is rumored that his name is "Jerry" Gissing.

However, the faculty seem even more partial to cats than to dogs. And the singular part is that they didn't adopt the cats, but the cats adopted them, so says Miss Campbell, the owner of a lovely black feline. Being swept with a hearth broom is the hobby of this cat. It looks brutal, but it feels good, says Miss Pussy.

Three times a day some inhabitant of Lupton is seen to carry from the table some of the most delicate dishes of the meal for this little animal. But Miss Daugherty says that she doesn't believe in spoiling children, so she makes her cat go to the dining room for meals.

All these pets are quite attractive, but the prettiest ones on the campus are owned by Miss Rothermel and Mr. Baker. Miss Rothermel's moth won the beauty contest, while Mr. Baker's gold fish ran it a close second.

You ask where all these pets come from? No one can be quite sure, but it has been rumored that Mr. Tart was the former owner of them all.

FIRE DEPARTMENT HAS NEW RULES.

The fire department at Agnes Scott has been reorganized and the horrid wet towels will not have to be taken down stairs in the wee small hours again. This does not mean that fire drills are no more but that the latest methods of fighting fires are to be used.

Dr. McCain and Emily Arnold, the fire chief, asked both the fire departments of Atlanta and Decatur for suggestions so that in case of a fire the dormitories could be emptied in the quickest and easiest and safest manner. Acting on these suggestions the following changes have been made: At the sound of the bell every girl is to pull down the windows in her room, put on her bed-room slippers and kimona and form in a line of twos on her wing and march downstairs to the lobby. The lieutenants on each wing must see that every room is empty and every window down before leaving her wing.

This system will be much less confusing than the old one of dashing down stairs, making as much noise fussing as possible. It will be much more quiet and orderly and in case of a fire the danger of anyone's being hurt will be greatly lessened.

A fire chief for each dormitory has been elected and they have appointed lieutenants for the wings.

Miss Laney taught at the Byrn Mawr Summer School.

Miss Gaylord received her M. A. degree from the University of Chicago this summer.

Miss Martha Stansfield took graduate work at the University of Chicago. Miss Stansfield in the class of '21, has been assistant in Math and Latin and secretary to the dean for the past two years.

Miss Smith went West to the Annual Meeting of American Association of University Women in Portland, Oregon, and spent the rest of the summer in California.

Miss Skeen took graduate work at Emory University.

Mr. Stukes was awarded his Phi Beta Kappa from Davidson this summer.

Mr. Rankin taught at the summer school of the University of North Carolina.

Miss McDougall is at Columbia University working for her Ph. D. on a scholarship for excellent work which has never been awarded to a woman before.

Miss McKinney represented Agnes Scott at the International Association

B. O. Z. HOLDS FIRST MEETING OF YEAR.

B. O. Z. held its first meeting for this year on Friday evening, October 5, in 26 Inman. Mrs. Dieckmann was a guest of the club at this time and interested the members with anecdotes of the former history of this literary organization.

The following members were present: Vivian Little, Ellen Walker, Polly Stone, Elizabeth Cheatham, Janice Brown, and Mary Greene. An interesting informal essay was read by Polly Stone, and Mary Greene read a one-act play.

Janice Brown and Mary Greene were hostesses for the evening.

pecting to see it this year under the leadership of Ellen Walker, its President, win even greater laurels for itself and for Agnes Scott.

Miss Laney has received the following letter about the results of the National Poetry contest.

Southern Methodist University,
Dallas, Texas.
April, 1923.

Miss Emma May Laney,
Agnes Scott College,
Decatur, Ga.

Dear Miss Laney:

Agnes Scott sent in a very fine group of poems; Miss Cheatham is 8th, Miss Walker 20th, and Miss Foster 25th. No other school sent such a fine set of poems except Mount Holyoke and the University of Montana. You are doing splendid work. The pamphlet I am sending you gives the details of the contest.

Very truly yours,
JAY B. HUBBELL.

Miss Alexander spent the summer in Asheville, N. C.

Miss Rothermel spent the summer at home.

Miss Randolph and Miss Haynes spent the summer in camps.

FOLIO PLANS.

Although Folio is technically known as an organization for Freshmen, it might as properly be termed the Sophomore Short Story Club. Up until February of each year its officers and the majority of its members are Sophomores. In fact, just at present, it boasts not a single Freshman on its membership roll.

This condition is soon to be remedied, however, for the first tryouts for Freshmen have already been announced. The closing date for manuscripts to be handed in is October 26. Every Freshman who aspires to short-story writing is cordially invited to submit a story by that time. The next tryouts will be held in January, after which the Sophomore members will gracefully retire and leave the field clear for the budding genius of '27.

The old members held their first meeting for the year on Friday, October 12. They attended five-strong; and Mrs. Dieckmann, Folio's Official Guardian, was right on the spot. Following the reading of the stories, light refreshments were served and plans for the year were excitedly discussed.

It might be well to mention that not only are Freshmen invited to try-out. If they are successful they will be received with open arms—and they will be quite thoroughly ushered into the mysteries of Folio!

ALUMNAE NEWS

Miss Eleanor Carpenter for one, still has the love and welfare of Alma Mater uppermost in her thoughts. She has recently given to our college library quite a number of most desirable books, this being the second valuable donation she has made our library. Miss Carpenter graduated in the class of '21, and lives in Louisville, Ky. The books, which were shipped October 1st, are:

Civil Government in United States, Fiske, 1904.

Critical Period of American History, Fiske.

Alexander Hamilton, an Essay on the American Union, Oliver, 1923.

Alexander Hamilton, Ford, 1920.

Life of Thos. Jefferson, Mussey, 1918.

The American Revolution (2 Vols.), Fiske, 1891.

Jas. Madison (Edit. by J. T. Morse, Jr.), Gay, 1898.

The Conqueror, Atherton, 1916.

The Federalist and Continentalist, (Edit. by J. C. Hamilton), Hamilton, 1864.

The Federalist (Edit. by H. C. Lodge), Hamilton, 1923.

History of American Constitution, (2 Vols.), Curtis, 1854.

The following items concerning A. S. C. graduates were sent to Dr. McCain by Miss Ruth Virden, '22, sister of Miss Alice Virden, who graduated here last year:

Miss Marguerite Watkins, '21, is teaching at Biloxi, Miss.

Miss Julia Watkins, '21, is married.

Miss Ellen McClean has been married, and is living in Birmingham, Ala.

Miss Annie Tait Jenkins, '14, was secretary pro-tem in the State Y. W. C. A. office, Jackson, Miss., while the state secretary was away on a three months' leave. Miss Jenkins is active in Girl Reserve Work.

Miss Mary Kate Parks, '19, has received her M. A., and is going back to N. Y. C. this winter to do corrective gym work in clinic and health centers.

The following Agnes Scotters attended Camp Nakanawa, Maryland, Tenn., during the past summer: Misses Margaret Rowe, '19, Mary Kate Parks, '19, Anne Houston, '20, and Llewellyn Wilburn, '19.

On the last night at camp, at a banquet, Miss Wilburn, who had charge of land sports, was presented by the campers with a loving cup, inscribed, "To the Ideal Counselor of Nakanawa from the Campers of '23." This was the first time a cup had been presented to a counselor. Miss Wilburn is to teach gym in the University of Michigan.

The following A. S. C. graduates contributed to the Woman's Press of October:

Y. W. C. A. NEWS

The Y. W. C. A. had one of the most interesting and inspiring programs of the year on Sunday, October 14, when Mr. Hoffman, Secretary of the European Student Relief spoke on "Student Relief" in the stricken countries.

And how they are suffering. Those of us who have lived sheltered lives cannot realize what it means for thirty-one thousand students to live on one scant meal a day.

Last week something was said of Frances Gilliland's plans for the Student Industrial Commission. These plans bid fair to be the most successful ever followed.

Every week a group of the girls from here are to go in to a church home for working girls and visit on club night. We hope to work out a number of programs with the girls and become real friends.

Those to serve on this committee are: Frances Gilliland, Emmy Ficklen, Ruth Johnson, Gertrude Green, Martha Lynn Manley, Mary Ella Hammond, Elsa Jacobsen, Eleanor Al-bright and Eugenia Thompson.

We acknowledge the receipt of the following exchanges: THE DAVIDSONIAN. THE EMORY WHEEL. THE CADET. THE HORNET. THE TIGER. THE SPOKESMAN. THE RED AND BLACK. QUEENS BLUES. THE WATCHTOWER.

We extend a warm welcome to these friends and hope to enlarge greatly our circle of acquaintances.

The Watchtower.

THE WATCHTOWER is a brand new publication of Wesleyan College, and promises to be great among college weeklies. Faculty and students alike are giving it enthusiastic support.

THE WATCHTOWER has our very best wishes for many, many happy and prosperous birthdays.

The Emory Wheel.

Emory is growing fast. Her enrollment this year is expected to exceed two thousand. The number enrolled for the Liberal Arts School alone totals over three hundred already.

The Tiger.

Clemson has been doing quite a bit of growing herself. Her buildings are becoming too limited to accommodate all the students.

The Hornet.

Furman certainly ought to be proud of its HORNET. The paper gives to the world the spirit and atmosphere of the University, as well as its news, and perhaps the former is more important. The staff is to be congratulated upon the merit of THE HORNET.

The Davidsonian.

The Student body of Davidson has instituted an Honor Store, or "Serve Yourself." All kinds of student supplies are priced, placed where students can obtain them and the cash drawer is left open so that they can make change.

The funds derived from the store will eventually be used for some phase of student life.

Davidson will have a fine Glee Club this year. The club will be under the direction of Mrs. Coral Baker, who is one of the best vocal teachers in the South.

Day Student News

"How doth the busy bee, improve each shining hour" is typical of the ceaseless activity of the day students. You have all doubtless heard of the plans for their rummage sale. Well, now the sale is not an event of the future but is now almost a historical fact.

Day students are still shining in various other ways. Ruth Rogers went to the Pi Alpha Phi tryouts, debated, was admitted into the society, and will soon be initiated into that august and awe inspiring assemblage.

The mystery deepens! and the occupants of the day students' room in Main are wondering "Whence came the Black Cat?" It is a conspicuous fact that everyone walks around the cat. No, we are not superstitious. Most likely a Soph put it there as a reminder of the recent victory.

Mrs. Boggs: "Why, dear, you've got your shoes on the wrong feet."
 Prof. Boggs: "But, Henrietta, they're the only feet I've got."

Into Eternity.

First Girl in A. S. C. mail room, (very annoyed): "It does seem as if she'll never get through at that telephone."
 Second Girl: "She's talking to her fiancé."

First Girl: "Ah, yes; she wants a lifetime connection."

WE'LL SAY SO.

"How is it that Arthur never takes you to the theatre nowadays?" queried Marie.

"Well, you see," her friend replied, "one evening it rained, and we sat in the parlor."

"Yes?"
 "Well, ever since that we—oh, I don't know; but don't you think that theatres are an awful bore?"

The A. S. C. faculty became athletically enthusiastic the other day and turned out to play hockey against our renowned seniors. Miss Randolph had explained the game in minute detail and the faculty had taken their places ready for the onslaught when Miss Phythian's enthusiastic voice was heard from the back line with these words, "Oh! Miss Randolph had I better get a stick?"

Still Going Strong: "How long did it take your wife to learn to drive?"
 "It will be ten years in September."

Pretty Customer: "Of course, I want my shoes to be plenty large enough, but at the same time I want them to look neat and trim, you know."

Shoe Clerk: "I see. You want them large inside, but small outside."

Waiting for Information—Tourist: "To what do you attribute your great age?"

Oldest Inhabitant: "I can't say yet, sir. There be several o' them patent medicine companies bargaining wi' me."

All Prepared—An excited gentleman dashes into a store. An assistant inquires:

"Do you wish anything, sir?"
 "Yes, I have lost my wife!"
 "Mourning department on first floor."

A young customer went into a Jew store and bought a suit at a very cheap price. The next day he hurried back and complained to the owner of the shop that the suit was full of moths. "Vell," said Ike, "Vat did you expect to foind — humming boirds?"

Passenger (after the first night on board ship): "I say, where have my clothes gone?"
 Steward: "Where did you put them?"

Passenger: "In that little cupboard there, with the glass door to it."
 Steward: "Bless me, sir, that ain't no cupboard. That's a porthole."

Citizen: "That's my car. A thief is just fixing a blowout."

Policeman: "All right, I'll go over and arrest him."

Citizen: "Sh'h-h! Wait till he gets the tire pumped up."

Not overcrowded—It seemed that when Rastus and Sam died they took different routes, so when the latter got to heaven he called Rastus on the phone:

"Rastus," he said, "how yo' like it down thar?"

"Oh, boy! Dis here is some place," replied Rastus. "All we have to do is to wear a red suit wid horns, an' ebry now and den shovel some coal on de fire. We don't work no more dan two hours out of de twenty-four down here. But, tell me, Sam, how is it with you up yonder?"

"Mah goodness! We has to git up at fo' o'clock in de mawnin an gathah in de stahs, den we has to haul in de moon and hang out de sun. Den we has ter roll de clouds aroun' all day long."

"But, Sam, how comes it yo' has to work so hard?"

"Well, to tell de truf, Rastus, we's kin' o' short of help up here."

Caller: "Bobby, do you believe in fairies?"

Boston Bobby: "No, madam, I find no evidence of their existence either in The Origin of Species, The Descent of Man or Outline of History."

An Easterner, visiting a Middle West town, was talking to a prominent citizen with reference to the one paper the town boasted.

"Well," observed the citizen, "I'll say for the editor that he can be the most sarcastic fellow that ever was when he tries."

"How so?"
 "Why, in last week's issue the department entitled 'Local Intelligence' was only about three inches in length."

MISS STEPHENS' "ROSEANNE" PRESENTED.

Miss Kirkpatrick, one of the producers, who is to manage "Roseanne," is also a Southern girl, formerly from Alabama, and was a student at Agnes Scott during the days of the Academy. During her stay in New York "she has risen to the highest point in managerial circles. She has been called "the most vital person in the theatre today."

Miss Stephens, author of the play, is known to the Southeastern states for her musical talents as well as for her dramatic abilities. She is now third vice-president of the National Federation of Music Clubs.

Questioned in regard to her play, Miss Stephens said, in part:

"* * * I have tried to give a picture of the negro at his best, the kind of negro whom you and I know to be the best, that of Joel Chandler Harris and of Thomas Nelson Page."

METHODIST GIRLS ENTERTAINED.

an uneasy though delightful time, the girls reluctantly bade their hosts and hostesses adieu and returned to Agnes Scott with their chaperons, among whom were Dr. McCain, Dr. Sweet, Miss Skeen and Miss White. During the all-too-short ride home the girls discussed the pleasant evening and decided that being a Methodist and having nice parties "wasn't so worse," after all!

GIDDIE GOSSIP

Dear Giddie:

There are as many thrills in the life of Agnes Scott as Wesley Barry has freckles! Everybody on the campus seemed to be happy last week. Maybe it was because football had begun, or maybe it was for some other reason. You never can tell.

Why, Frances McColgan was like another person all week. She packed up her lessons and her troubles in her old kit bag and didn't do a thing but get telephone calls and have dates. Well, you've heard it said that a girl always falls for the man with a uniform on. And since V. M. I. played Tech I think you can figure it all out.

By the way I write you would think that A. S. girls couldn't get along without boys. But that isn't the case at all. We are perfectly capable of having a gay time without a boy anywhere around. One of the most exciting tennis games that Agnes Scott has witnessed in years is to be played this week and it will be strictly a "hen" affair. "Hop" Owens and Ed Carter can't hold a candle to M. Greene, V. Howie, D. Keith, and E. Griffin.

I could rave on all day about the tournament, but I just must tell you about S. Gordon. I went to her room the other day to study Greek, and what do you think she had? About ten pounds of candy, a huge cake, a gold pencil and pen, and then some more. She said her relations had sent the things to her for her birthday. They really are the kindest relatives (?) I ever heard of!

Well, I couldn't think of writing a letter without mentioning at least one of those who has resigned from "The Select Society of Sophisticated Long-haired Girls." Yes, Edith Richards and Frances Lipscomb departed from the straight and narrow path last week. Edith is always saying that she is a man hater, but it won't be long before she is a full fledged flapper.

And speaking of bobbed hair—do you remember how we used to all have a permanent wave? Well, the style down here seems to be a straight bob and all those who have permanents just wet their hair all the time to take the curl out. I'm really afraid some of them are going to mildew their brains. And Dr. Salyer will think mine has been mildewed if I don't start on my book report!

As ever,

AGGIE.

Dr. W. E. Dodd And Frank Swinnerton To Give Lectures At Agnes Scott

Famous Historian And Author Are To Come Here Soon Under Auspices Of Lecture Association

The Agnes Scott Lecture Association wishes to introduce to the students the first two prospective lecturers of the season of 1923-1924: Dr. William E. Dodd, Professor of American History at the University of Chicago, and Mr. Frank Swinnerton, celebrated English novelist, literary critic and lecturer.

Dr. Dodd is scheduled to deliver a series of three lectures on "Liberty and Authority", in the auditorium of Emory University, November 7, 8 and 9. He has been requested to speak at Agnes Scott on November 6, the night previous to his first engagement at Emory.

Dr. Dodd is, by birth, a North Carolinian, and was educated in Virginia. He is the author of "A Life of Jefferson Davis", "Statesmen of the Old South", "The Cotton Kingdom", "Woodrow Wilson and His Work", and other historical books. Emory University has conferred upon him the honorary degree of LL.D. It is interesting to note that the speaker was the first lecturer presented by the Agnes Scott Lecture Association at its beginning, four years ago.

Mr. Frank Swinnerton is expected to lecture here later on in the season. He is "one of the ablest of the younger English novelists," and is well known to all educated and thinking people both in England and in America. Mr. Swinnerton's fame was first assured by the enthusiastic acceptance of "Nocturne", the marvelous story of a single night in the lives of two girls. This book shows "a peculiar quality of sympathetic interpretation—a flash of absolute genius, as it were." His latest, longest and most ambitious novel is "Young Felix." Others of his stories are "Coquette", "The Three Lovers", and "Shops and Houses."

Mr. Swinnerton is the expert literary advisor of the publishing firm of Chatto and Windus, London. As a literary critic he is of very high standing, being a contributor to the Manchester Guardian, the most famous newspaper of Europe. His critical works are two, one on George Gissing, author of "New Grub Street," and the other on Robert Louis Stevenson.

As a speaker he has unusual charm, due to his own personality, his vast knowledge of tendencies in modern literature, both English and American, and his wealth of anecdotes of well-known authors, coupled with a

Senior Caps And Gowns

"You can tell the Seniors by their caps and gowns, You can tell the Freshmen by the way they run around, You can tell a Junior by her worried looks and such, You can tell a Soph but you can not tell her much."

Attention Freshmen! All you who have been making the unpardonable error of taking "high and mighty" Seniors on our campus for Sophs or Juniors will soon be saved from all further embarrassment. The Senior caps and gowns have been ordered and will be here before long.

The wearing of the cap and gown is a very old custom, and is supposed to symbolize knowledge. So is it any wonder that the Seniors will be so very, very proud of them?

Of course the ordering of the caps and gowns brings on more talk, all about investiture and things that have a very mysterious sound—but that is a topic for future scribes so I shall leave it to them to unravel the mystery concerning it!

Sociology Department Brings Interesting Film To Agnes Scott

Labor Conditions Among Women Workers Shown

A most instructive and interesting moving picture of the right and wrong conditions among working girls and of the effect of such conditions upon the girls, was presented by the Sociology Department of Agnes Scott College, in the college chapel on Thursday, October 18. This film has been issued by the United States Department of Labor for the purpose of "broadcasting information concerning the present deplorable conditions of women employees, and thereby stimulating effort to bring about the ideal conditions as advocated by the Woman's Bureau; that is, an eight-hour day, half-holiday on Saturday, proper lighting contrivances, wages based on labor, not sex, etc." The picture, together with advertising matter and additional information, is sent to any college or organization desiring it, for the payment of express. It has just come from the Arkansas State Fair, and from Agnes Scott will be taken to the Atlanta Y. W. C. A.

The advertising material is unusually attractive. There is one semi-circular platform covered with dark blue cloth, and on either side of it a straight, narrow platform. The semi-circular support bears miniature figures representing real and ideal conditions of working women. Behind this, a life-size young man and young woman, made of cardboard, together hold up a miniature nation. The straight platforms support huge colored posters of some of the problems working girls face. There are, also, small pasteboard theatres, in which

Bacon Bat At Stone Mountain

Sunday School Classes Enjoy Picnic

Saturday is always a day of days to students at Agnes Scott. All because of a Saturday afternoon. And the past Saturday, October 13, was no exception to a certain group.

For Marjory Speake and Frances Lincoln took their Sunday School classes out to Stone Mountain to cook supper. This jolly bunch, with Mrs. Syderstricker for chaperon, left for Stone Mountain on the four-thirty car. These cars are as different from the Decatur street car lines as a Pullman from a day coach. So the journey out was very agreeable.

The crowd then joyfully, although with many groans and sighs, climbed this far-famed mountain of stone. Unfortunately they reached the top too late to see a sunset—(although they couldn't have seen it had they been on time, for it was very misty.) The climb, or rather slide, down the mountain was much more exciting than the one up. It ended with a grand bon-fire by the spring at the foot of the hill. Everyone enjoyed roasting weiners and frying bacon. Plenty of good Decatur rolls were at hand. Hot potato chips and toasted marshmallows ended up the feast. This pervading spirit of joy caused an exultation of song. There was a lot of that good "old-fashioned p-e-p!" in it all.

This tired, but happy bunch came back wondering why there couldn't be a Sunday School Bacon Bat every Saturday on Stone Mountain. Those who thought this were: Margaret Hines, Ruby Hall, Lilly Pearl McElwaney, Willie White Smith, Frances Rainey, Virginia Carson, Audry Peacock, Naomi Shaw, Ruth McDonald, Catherine Graeber and Catherine Pitmann.

Three Blackfriar Plays, Presented Saturday Night, Much Enjoyed

A Calendar Of Events For November

Hoasc Stunts, Alabama Glee Club, Alumnae Play Scheduled

November promises to be a month filled with a great variety of events on our campus. The Cotillion Club will give a dance to the college community in the gym on November 10. This occasion is always greatly enjoyed, not only by the members of the club, but by the general student body.

Hoasc has reserved the night of November 17 for its annual group of stunts. These will be representative of the various activities on the campus, showing the work and purpose of each.

The Alabama Glee Club will, in all probability, come on November 20, but there has, as yet, been made no definite arrangement.

The Alumnae, it is rumored, have asked for one date during the month and will present a play at that time. The Alumnae plays are always very entertaining and the whole college campus is looking forward with great pleasure to whatever they may decide to give.

But November holds still another attraction—the visit of Dr. Campbell Morgan from November 18-23. All of the old girls remember with great pleasure the few days he spent with us last year. The new girls have heard so much about him that even they are eagerly awaiting his arrival.

Then last but not least, Thanksgiving Day is coming, bringing with it our first holiday. So November will be a busy and happy month.

First Issue of "Aurora" Appears First Week of November

Stories, Poems, Essays By Students Will Make Magazine Attractive To All At Agnes Scott

In Virgil we often read passages to this effect—and then Aurora, the rosy goddess of the dawn, came up out of the east to announce the approach of the coming dawn. In the book of our college year, we can boast of only four such passages. Our "Aurora," the rosy (figuratively speaking) goddess of the dawn of local literary talent, appears on our tables to announce the approach of the coming day of American genius.

The editors and contributors are not planning to let "Aurora" stop on the horizon to do her proclaiming, but are going to send her up into the sky of worth. From that height, she will read to us, mere mortals, the secret opinions of the critics on the latest books, bits of philosophy, clothed in essay, and the flights of poetic imagination and fancy in the forms of story and song. In the coming day of the future, we may proudly produce a copy of the 1923 "Aurora" to re-read the early works of the leading American writers and poets.

Janice Brown, the editor, has already sent the material to press and is expecting the magazine to be ready for distribution to the students during the first week of November.

Among the contributors for this first issue are: Elizabeth Cheatham, Ellen Walker, Polly Stone, Olive Hall, Mary Greene and Miss Margaret Bland.

"Lima Beans," "The Recompense," And "Twelve Good Men And True" Are Played Before Large Audience

Three one-act plays were presented by Blackfriars on Saturday night, October 20, "The Recompense", "Lima Beans", and "Twelve Good Men and True." All of these comedies were acted by clever performers, and an evening of fun and mirth was enjoyed by all.

"The Recompense" is the story of a girl who, because her spinster aunt was disappointed in love, was so kept in seclusion that she was unable to love, or be loved, by mankind. Without her aunt's knowledge, she slips away one night to a ball and there discovers her "Prince Charming." A series of difficult situations follow which are finally untangled to the satisfaction of all. An unusually good cast includes:

The Girl—Mary Freeman.
Her Aunt—Carolyn Smith.
Mammy—Eugenia Thompson.
Prince Charming—Victoria Howie.

The next play, "Lima Beans", is a clever farce. All those who intend to become housewives were especially urged to see the comedy. The cast was as follows:

The Wife—Rosamond Neisler.
The Husband—Mary Ann McKinney.

The Huckster—Georgia Mae Little.

The last of the series was entitled, "Twelve Good Men and True." This illustrates to perfection woman's inability in the political realm—especially in the jury box. The cast of characters was:

No. 1, Real Estate—Frances Lincoln.

No. 2, Milliner—Margaret Powell.

No. 3, Manicurist—Isabel Clark.

No. 4, Club Woman—Ellen Walker.

No. 5, School Teacher—Helena Hermance.

No. 6, Secretary of Woman's Party—Weenona Peck.

No. 7, Bride of Six Weeks—Josephine Schuessler.

No. 8, Housewife (mother of nine) Margaret McDow.

No. 9, Housewife—Nan Lingle.

Nos. 10 and 11, Spinster Twins—Elizabeth Griffin and Elizabeth Cheatham.

No. 12, Prima Donna—Frances Gilliland.

The characters had practiced faithfully in order to present these plays on Saturday night, and a large and appreciative audience greeted them and secured for themselves an evening of genuine fun and wholesome entertainment.

Freshman Elections

On Monday night, October 15, the Freshman class assembled after chapel amidst a great deal of excitement and elected Nancy Lou Knight as their president. Much talking and speculation were in evidence. Goodness, don't misunderstand me! It was not speculation of a monetary nature, but as to who was going to be president, for that official was to be elected.

Evelyn Powell, who has so ably filled the office of chairman for the Freshman class, presided over the meeting. Several nominations were in order and after the noise of battle cleared away Nancy Lou Knight was found to be elected. She made a graceful little talk, thanking the class for the honor bestowed upon her. And under her guidance, we know that the Freshman class will be a winner.

WHY THE COLLEGES?

The following article, taken from "The New Student" of October 20, and signed "L. P.," we consider worthy of attention:

"Something is fundamentally wrong with American Colleges. When students emerge from them in a state of wide-eyed bewilderment and, when faced with even the most every day realities have no idea what it is all about and no equipment for forming their own conceptions or judgments, either these students are dolts or something has happened to stupefy them.

"When young people will sit for four years and passively accept whatever ideas are handed out to them without questioning whether or not it is true or whether or not they want it, and then will snatch their diplomas with sighs of relief and prepare to settle back for the remainder of their lives in an established world it looks as though they had acquired an unsound idea or two during this "training," for they are refusing to utilize that intellectual alertness which society expects from them.

"It is easy to blame all of this upon the faculty, the trustees or someone else. But until American students become more conscious of what they are doing and why things are so, such blame is mere laziness. Students do not have to conform to worn out systems, but as long as they sit docilely by and politely listen to what is being said by teachers who are products of the same machine, these teachers have a good excuse for treating them like the vacuums they are.

"Our cry now is for Academic freedom. But academic freedom which would 'free' some of our present student bodies would be rather awful. They either have nothing to say or are shrieking 'radical' sounding words which some one else has passed on to them.

"Our present system has produced some mentally stagnant people. It has also stirred up a few sentimental radicals who, spluttering about revolt, lose sight of the purpose of any education.

"If our colleges can not be influential in the development of keen, living people, sincere and honest in the search for what is true, mentally and physically well balanced, and with 'wide thoughts and much feeling for the rest of the world as well as themselves' they must give place to something which can."

A CORRECTION.

In the first issue of the "Agonistic" a mistake was made in giving Bartlett College as the Alma Mater of Miss Mary E. Campbell of the Greek Department. Miss Campbell is a graduate of Barnard College, Columbia University. The "Agonistic" regrets that this mistake was made and is glad to make the correction.

Y. W. C. A. BUDGET SUBSCRIBED.

Large Amount Is Pledged to Organization.

Last week the Y. W. C. A. presented its budget plan to the students; and, after having asked for pledges, the organization found that $1,844 had been subscribed by the students and faculty of Agnes Scott. The Y. W. C. A. was very gratified to receive this amount as only $1,800 had been asked for and as all pledges have not yet been made.

This money will be used to meet the current expenses of the Y. W. C. A., to help support an Agnes Scott girl as a missionary in Korea, to establish a loan fund to give financial aid to an Agnes Scott student, to aid the Nacoochee School, to send delegates to conventions in New York and Indianapolis, and for many other worthy purposes.

SENIOR CLASS GIVES HALLOWE'EN PARTY IN INMAN ATTIC.

College Community Has Its Fortune Told.

The Senior Class entertained the college community at a delightful Halloween party on Saturday night, October 27. The scene was the spooky fourth floor of Inman. This was appropriately decorated in the color of the time-honored pumpkin. Weird lights hung from the ceiling and cast a ghostly glow over the room. White sheets concealed the figures of the well-known seniors, but the guests imagined that supernatural powers were abroad.

The party began at 8:30 o'clock. The guests ascended the stairs to the fourth floor by way of the narrow back steps. At each landing they were greeted by ghosts who extended terrible hands to be shaken. One hand was cold and clammy; one was "slippery," one was prickly. Premonitory chills began creeping up the spines of the visitors even before they entered the portals of fourth floor.

There pandemonium was exemplified. Everybody was rushing to get her fortune told by the wizards whom the senior class had secured for the night. These strange creatures, in the normal light of day known as Dell Bernhardt, Frances McColgan, and Virginia Baird, foretold such important events as the various marriages which each guest would contract; the journeys to be made, the

Dear Giddie:

I have a most alarming secret to whisper to you. Don't ask me how I found it out, but just take my word, 'cause a reliable little bird told this to me and I know he can't be mistaken. So here goes! There were thirty dates at A. S. Saturday night and twenty of them belonged to freshmen. Now don't you consider those statistics alarming? Would that we could find the fountain of youth and be popular once again (?)!

Carolyn Smith says she isn't at all worried about the state of affairs. Well, no wonder! If I had a date every night like she does and was wearing a Delta Tau Delta pin, I don't guess I would be disturbed either.

About the most popular person on the campus now is Frances McColgan. The girls found out that she could read palms so she has been getting the rush of the season. Mellie Zellars says Frances makes lots of mistakes, but K. Mitchell says that isn't so. You see, Mellie was told that she wasn't at all fickle, and K. was informed that she had lots of boys on the string. Oh, yes! And Frances Gilliland is going to be famous.

Have you ever heard me speak of Grace Carr? Well, she has the best time of any girl on the campus, I do believe. A crowd of us were coming back from the fair the other night, and who should we meet but Grace and her date. She was spending the week end out and they had been to a show. Some people are just born lucky!

Oh, yes! I mustn't forget to tell you about P. Roby. She gets a "special" every day. I asked her if her mother sent it to her and she said "no." Just imagine anybody outside of your family caring enough about you to send you a special every day.

There are so many lucky girls that I hardly know which ones to tell about. But what makes me more jealous of a girl than anything else is to see her with her father. M. Powell's father was here last week. Then, too, G. Henry's mother came to see her.

Well, I must go to Blackfriar practice or Miss Gooch will be washing her hands of the play.

Devotedly,

personal characteristics of each person, the number of divorces and love affairs which would lend excitement to common, everyday life. It was quite thrilling to most of those present to find that they would have at least six husbands, four dozen proposals, and five or six journeys to Europe.

Several other important features of the entertainment were diverting. One side of the attic was swept clean of cobwebs, and apples were suspended from the ceiling. Frantic girls, failing to get a good, juicy bite, tried to swallow the apples whole. The "Feast of Spooks" was well attended but not much enjoyed.

Refreshments were served throughout the evening. Apples, ginger cakes, and stick candy proved an appropriate material background for the phantom party. Attractive halloween favors were given to all who were present.

At 10 o'clock the guests returned to their places of abode with a comfortable sense of having been well scared, and well entertained.

Much of the success of the senior party is due to the work of Miss Margaret Powell, the senior class president.

EXCITING HOCKEY GAME TO TAKE PLACE ON FRIDAY AFTERNOON.

Alumnae Will Encounter Varsity Team.

On Friday morning in chapel Emily Spivey, representing the Athletic Association, challenged the Alumnae of Agnes Scott to a game of hockey which is to be played on Friday afternoon at 3:15. Miss Margaret Bland was spokesman of the alumnae in accepting the challenge.

Emily Spivey's witty challenge is as follows:

"Whereas, we, the athletically inclined students of Agnes Scott, hav-

JOKES.

Something to worry about: "What kind of fellow is that efficiency expert?"

"Well, he never enjoys an ocean voyage because there is so much salt going to waste."

Heard on the back row of Mrs. Sydenstricker's class.

Mary: "Who was the shortest man mentioned in the Bible, Sarah?"

Sarah: "That's easy, Bildad the Shuhite."

Visitor: "Does Mr. Crawford, a student, live here?"

Landlady: "Well, Mr. Crawford lives here, but I thought he was a night-watchman."

Student: "To whom was Minerva married?"

Professor: "My boy, when will you learn that Minerva was the Goddess of Wisdom. She wasn't married."

IS IT?

Blake: "I've bought a book on etiquette. I'm pretty well up on it, now."

Drake: "Then I'd like to ask you a question. Is it polite for women to smoke when men are present?"

NIGHT NOISES.

"Here," said the salesman, "is a pair of pajamas you'll never wear out."

"Er-yes, they are rather loud for street wear, aren't they?"

Doting mother of a green "Freshie:" "Now Miss Gooch, I wish that you would see to it as quickly as possible that my daughter joins your exclusive club called Blackfriars."

SO WOULD I.

Judge: "Ten days or ten dollars—take your choice."

Mortimer Fleming: "I'll take the money, your honor."

Professor Baker: "Now Miss Smith, can you tell me what this word means?"

Miss Smith: "I'm sorry, Professor, but I don't know either."

Miss Smith: "And now, can you tell me what are the famous words of our immortal Caesar?"

Enthusiastic freshman: "I came sore and conquered."

Jack: "What kind of a fellow is Blinks?"

Bill: "Well, he is one of those fellows who always grab the stool when there is a piano to be moved."

—Oregon Lemin Punch.

Question: "My dear Mr. A. S. Bestos:

"I am in love with a poor girl and a rich one—which shall I marry?"

Ans: Marry the poor one and send me the rich one's address.

Green: "Did you ever hear an after-dinner speech that was really worth while?"

Dean: "Only once. Last night I dined with an old acquaintance and he said: 'Waiter, bring me the check.'"

—American Legion Weekly.

Heard in A. S. C. parlor: "Young man, lights go out in this place at ten o'clock."

Tech Sheik: "Oh, that's all right—don't leave 'em burning on my account."

Brother: "Now, really, sis, all that red lip-stick on your lips is not in good taste."

Sister: "How do you know?"

Teacher: "Johnny, can you give me a good example of a coincidence?"

Johnny: "Yes, mam. My mother and father were married on the same day."

Seen on Maine bulletin board: "Lost, one K. A. pin. Will finder please return it to Miss Hopkins?"

The Mercer Cluster.

Mercer expects to have an enrollment of 1,000 students this year. But not only has the number of students been increased. Sixteen new members have been added to the faculty and the number of courses has been augmented. There are now four hundred courses in fourteen departments offered.

The following schools are now open to the student body:

Graduate School, College of Arts and Sciences, School of Law, Theology, Commerce, Journalism, Education, Pre-Medical, Pre-Engineering, Pre-Legal, Night School of Commerce, Summer School, Boy Scout Executives of the Southeast and the Woman's Institute for Training in Civic Leadership.

The Wheaton College Record.

October 27 will be a great day at Wheaton, for then the alumni will gather for the Fall Reunion. There is also to be a big football game with the Northwestern College. Other features of the Reunion will be a big Pep-Meeting, and the "W" Club Banquet and Reception.

The Record quotes the Lehigh College weekly:

"Facts essential to a good beginning for all Freshmen:"

1. Study hard.
2. Be courteous to your professors.
3. Recognize upperclassmen as upperclassmen at all times.
4. Remember you are on your honor when you go to college.

5. And last, but not least, be humble at all times.

The Gold and Black.

Birmingham-Southern is to be congratulated upon the splendid program which its Junior Music Study Club is offering this year.

Senator Thomas B. Heflin, an alumnus of Birmingham-Southern, addressed the student body last week. He emphasized "the importance of the age in which we are living and the leading role that the college man will have to play in life."

The Davidsonian.

The Debating Council of Davidson has arranged to meet teams of Washington and Lee, and Trinity. There will be another big debate, probably with Mercer or Carolina.

The Council is planning to put a Freshman intercollegiate team in the field for one meet with another Freshman team.

There is an interesting editorial in THE DAVIDSONIAN concerning the refusal of Washington and Lee University to participate in the regular scheduled game with Washington and Jefferson, because the latter insisted upon playing a negro in the varsity line-up. Washington and Lee has won the admiration of every Southerner for taking this stand, even though by ruling of the referee, it cost them a forfeiture. Washington and Jefferson is to be commended for their spirit in declining to accept the Virginia School's forfeiture. They prefer to have the game entered on the pages of football history as a cancelled contest.

What's In a Name?

We notice that the RED AND BLACK has twice called us "AGONISTIC." In grief we exclaim with the old negro mammy, "Dar now! Dey done ruint us name!"

We confess that at first we had only a rather hazy idea as to what we were being called, but on looking the word up in the infallible Mr. Webster's dictionary, we found that it means, "Expressing ignorance." We acknowledge that we can not compare in wisdom with the French publication JE SAIS TOUT, but one thing we do know—our name is AGONISTIC.

We welcome all exchanges.

STUDENT COUNCIL OF Y. W. C. A. MEETS HERE. REPRESENTATIVES OF TEN COLLEGES IN THIS DISTRICT

PRESENT.

Randolph-Macon.

At the same time that the Students' Council for the Southern Division in the Y. W. C. A. was meeting at the Atlanta headquarters, the Students' Council for the same division in the Y. M. C. A. was being held at Emory. The two councils were thus able to hold a joint meeting during the days of the conference.

We, of Agnes Scott, are exceedingly glad that Atlanta is the Southern Headquarters for the Y. W. C. A. and that Agnes Scott is in Atlanta. It is in this way that we can have the pleasure of meeting and entertaining the delegates from the various Southern colleges every year. And we wish them all sorts of success in their work.

Those who as student members of the Students' Southern Divisional Council, elected by all the colleges, met in the recent conference were: Catherine Alston, Randolph-Macon, Chairman; Jennie Milton of Peabody; Josephine Morris, University of Tennessee; Emma McAllister, Spellman Institute; Mary Wilson, Wesleyan College; Douglas Davenport, Mississippi State College for Women; Helen Myers, Davenport College; Zana Novin, Athens College; De Arona McCrory, Talladega Institute; and Victoria Howie, Agnes Scott.

The Y. W. C. A. Secretaries present were: Miss Katharine Lumpkin, Miss Bryson, Miss Fleming and Miss Scurlock.

The alumnae members were: Miss Mary Wallace Kirk, an alumna of Agnes Scott and Mrs. Waddell. The faculty member was Dean Frances Jewell of the University of Kentucky.

ATHLETIC NEWS

OVERWHELMING HOCKEY
VICTORYFOR JUNIORS AND SOPHS OVER THEIR SISTER CLASSES.

The Freshmen played their first hockey game October 13th. Although their opposing team, the Juniors, had had two years' more experience than they, the Freshmen proved not to be as green about the gentle art of hockey playing as they had a right to be. In this opening game the Freshman team showed throughout that they honored the game they were playing. As every true sportsman knows, the team that plays the game straight and hard wins even when it loses. The spectators consisted mainly of Freshmen, everyone of them showing much class spirit by means of yells, cheers, and true support for her team. Therefore, be it resolved: (1) That the Freshmen are not as green as the chlorophyll in the renowned leaves of Biology I. (2) That the Freshmen have quality as well as quantity.

Belle Walker (who was once a Freshman, by the way) shot five of the Junior goals, E. Walker shot one, Jo Scheussler shot one, and E. Thompson shot one.

The Sophomores defeated the Seniors after a stiff fight. There was not much scoring in this game; but, the two goals of the Sophs were shot by the same "Carp."

Total Scores: Juniors, 8; Freshmen, 0; Sophs, 2; Seniors, 0.
Referee: Miss Randolph.

WHAT ABOUT WEEK-ENDS?

How would you like to leave the campus some Saturday afternoon to go to a camp over the week-end? Of course, it would be ideal for about twenty congenial girls and a still more congenial chaperon to go to "OUR" hut, and during their sojourn there, to roast hot-dogs (May Dr. Sweet pardon us), enjoy beautiful scenery, take pictures, divert themselves in general, and to—sh—go swimming in a really vast expanse of water! To use the words of Jack Evans since her review of the "Clinging Vine," wouldn't it be wonderful? This plan launched by the Athletic Association, sounds like a dream to us. How does it sound to you?

NEW RULINGS:

To win A. S. Letters, it is necessary:

1. To make an all-star team, either hockey, baseball, or basketball.
2. To break an intercollegiate record in track.
3. To go on five organized hikes and three individual ones each of the four years, and during the time take one ten-mile hike.
4. To win the tennis championship in singles only—not in doubles.

To win Class Numerals, it is necessary:

1. To play in at least half of four different match games in any sport—basketball, hockey, or baseball.
2. To win a first place in track; or, two second places and a third place.
3. To go on five organized and three individual hikes in one year.
4. To play on the winning team in doubles in tennis.

K. U. B. INITIATIONS.

K. U. B. met Tuesday night, October 17th, for the initiation of new members. Daisy Frances Smith made a talk on the ideals and purposes of K. U. B., which inspired both the old and the new members to make this a successful year. Daisy Frances said that K. U. B. is not merely a club for the purpose of studying journalism and sending news to the papers, but it endeavors through its journalistic work to be of service to Agnes Scott and to uphold the Agnes Scott standards. It helps to give the college news to the students through the Agonistic, and it keeps Agnes Scott in closer touch with the people of Decatur and Atlanta. It is now sending news to the home papers of the students.

The following new members were admitted: Louisa Duls, Marjorie Speake, Mary Palmer Caldwell, Elizabeth Henderson, Margaret Tufts.

cellent mimic, and by his utter realistic mercilessness. Lastly, in this connection, he has superlatively the laugh known as the 'infectious laugh'."

What great men think of Swinnerton's work can be shown by the following expressions of opinion by eminent men. Of "Nocturne", H. G. Wells says: "This is a book that will not die. It is perfect, authentic, alive."

Ada Ward, celebrated English lecturer, says "His novels are considered to be among our best present-day literature. He is known to us as a 'Realist'—that is, he speaks of life as it is—yet does it so beautifully, that his novels can be freely read and always leave a clean taste. He is a member of the English Association, which is one of the highest honors that can be conferred on a literary man in England."

Y. W. C. A. NEWS

We have had a number of talks in chapel recently on what the Y. W. C. A. has done with its money, and it would seem that this alone would be enough to bring the whole college whole heartedly to the support of the budget.

Let us review for a moment a few of the things we have heard in chapel. The Y. W. C. A. sends five hundred dollars to the support of a missionary in Korea. It contributes to the expenses of a girl at Nacoochee. It has the privilege this year of sending delegates to the National Y. W. C. A. Conference, and this will take a great deal of money.

We don't want our college to fall down because of lack of funds, so we are counting on every girl to do her part.

Margaret Hyatt talked last Sunday night on the budget, and the fellowship of giving. It somehow gives us a happy feeling in the bottom of our hearts to think that by a denial on our part we can help further the cause of world fellowship.

In this time when there seems to be so little fellowship between nations, when they jump at the chance to get at each other's throats, it is this feeling of comradeship between students which is going to pull us through.

Don't fail us, girls. We need your co-operation and your money. When you respond it is not only to the call of your own College Y. W. C. A., but to the call of the world.

DAY STUDENT NEWS

Do you all remember those ancient days when you read "This Is the House that Jack Built"? Change that to "Just watch what the day students are still doing", and you will have an up-to-date and true fairy story. Last week all the paper that these who are not "red-headed step-children" (as Dr. McCain emphasized in chapel the other day) was sold and the lucky amount of $13.31 was made. Not content with having a room in Gaines Cottage, the day students are going one step further, and with this money are planning to enclose the porch adjoining that room into a sleeping porch. Very soon these lights of day will be shining on the campus at night, too.

Speaking of society! We have some most attractive belles among the day students from Atlanta. Sponsored by K. U. B., the Sunday society section of one of Atlanta's best known papers will have pictures of five of Agnes Scott's beautiful and clever girls who are from Atlanta. Two of these five come from our ranks, and, needless to say, we are all more than proud of Frances Cooper and Elizabeth Cheatham. We can think of no ones we would rather have as our representatives than these two girls.

The day students had a jolly hike out to Ingleside on Friday, October 12. Frances Alston was in charge—and did they have a good time? Rather! Judging by the glowing accounts of this first hike of the year, it gives promise of many most enjoyable walks. "Tramp, tramp, tramp", the day students are marching, so on the Fridays when hikes are scheduled come out and join them. Come, walk, have a good time—and incidentally have some exercise to put on these fascinating new cards. We may go out Emory-wards some of these fine days!

Vivian Little is still pleading for your budgets. Let's show the Hottentots who live on the campus that we have as much A. S. spirit as they have and in the war-time slogan, "Come Across." Vivian will be mighty glad to get your ten dollars, which is the cost of two hundred Tea Room ice cream cones—and you really don't need them!

Don't forget our meeting every Wednesday after chapel.

SENIORS ARE INVESTED

Elections Held For Feature Section Of "Silhouette"

Ten Girls Will Have Pictures In This Section

Last week the students voted on their choice of girls for the feature section of this year's annual with the following results:

Most beautiful girl—Virginia Burt, first; Josephine Douglass, second.

Most popular Seniors—Victoria Howie, Carrie Scandrett.

Most popular Juniors—Martha Lin Manly, Mary Anne McKinney.

Most popular Sophomores—Sarah Smith, Edith Coleman.

Most popular Freshmen—Nancy Lou Knight, Elizabeth Norfleet.

The editors of the annual tried to select types of girls which would be representative. It was their idea that the girl whose picture the students would like to see in the annual is that one who holds the love and respect of her classmates.

The election was one in which every girl had a chance to vote. Polly Stone, editor of the "Silhouette," announced the results on last Wednesday and the names of the girls who were elected were posted on the bulletin board in Main Building.

Poetry Club Is Entertained By Stone And Brown

Autumn Will Furnish Inspiration For Poems At Next Meeting

The Poetry Club had a delightful meeting on Tuesday night, October 23rd. Polly Stone and Janice Brown, who acted as hostesses, entertained in the very lovely and widely renowned sitting room on second floor Inman.

The budding poets read poems of all kinds and description, from the most ethereal creations to school-girl and nursery rhymes. "The Dogwood and the April Breeze," written by Ellen Walker, was particularly pleasing. Although composed in the dying time of the year, this poem breathed the very spirit of spring.

Miss Laney was surprised that so beautiful a season as the present should have called forth so few poems (indeed, there was only one Fall one read), and she suggested that all the members try to bring an autumn poem to the next meeting. The suggestion was unanimously accepted; so, behold the devotees of the poetry club, for the next two weeks, gazing raptly at flaming maple trees and "October's bright blue skies."

The next meeting of the poetry club will be held on Tuesday night.

The poetry club is doing splendid work this year, and its members are to be congratulated. Many of the selections in this month's "Aurora" were first read in the poetry club, and these show that the poetry club is an organization of which Agnes Scott can justly be proud.

The poetry club is arranging a number of very interesting meetings for this year, and it is hoped that those students who love poetry and who write poetry themselves will become members of the club. No tryouts are held, but anyone who wishes to become a member is invited to do so.

First Issue Of "Aurora" Is Delivered To Students

Tribute To Dr. Armistead Is Fitting

Ever since college opened the Freshmen have been listening to eulogies on the subject of the Aurora. They have heard how good it has always been and how good it would be this year, but they have just discovered what it really is like.

The Aurora came out Wednesday, October 31st. One of its interesting features was that all the stories were written by the new B. O. Z. members. In fact, these stories were their try-outs for membership in that club. Several poems written by members of English XVIII, the class in poetry composition, appeared in this number, and there is a one-act play written by Mary Greene which has attracted much favorable comment. All the contributions are exceptionally well written and very interesting.

The picture of Dr. Armistead has made this issue of the Aurora very dear to the old students and the faculty. It was Dr. Armistead who founded B. O. Z. and who gave it its high literary standards. The club held its meetings at East Lawn and he was considered the patron saint of the organization. It is very fitting that the first issue of the Aurora since his death should carry the picture of the professor who contributed so largely to the development of an interest on the campus in literary creation.

Folio, Literary Club For Freshmen, Elects New Members

Folio tryouts were held last week and six new members were elected. These were: Susan Clayton, Dorothy Chamberlain, Miriam Preston, Mary Shive, Mitchell Moore, and Louise Capen.

These new members are receiving the congratulations of their friends on being chosen as members of this club.

Folio is a literary club, whose members are Freshmen and Sophomores. The purpose is to create an interest in the short story as a literary form and to encourage the writing of short stories among the underclassmen. Membership in Folio is a great honor to a Freshman, for it shows that her work along literary lines is of excellent quality.

The club is sponsored by Mrs. Dieckmann. She was also the originator of the idea of Folio and has been the chief inspiration of the members since the club was begun.

Tryouts were in the form of short stories and the new members were elected by vote of the members.

Mrs. Rankin Entertains

Mrs. W. W. Rankin, Jr., entertained at a tea Thursday afternoon at the Anna Young Alumnae House at Agnes Scott.

The guests were met at the door by Mrs. Sydenstricker. Receiving were Mrs. C. W. Dieckmann, Mrs. W. W. Rankin, Mrs. Plato Durham, of Emory, Miss Nannette Hopkins, Mrs. B. F. Parker and Mrs. J. L. Rankin, of Atlanta.

Ceremony Held November 6, In Chapel

Large Number Of Friends Are Present To See Seniors Don Caps And Gowns

Mr. Holt Makes Address

And now abideth three hallowed memories in a Senior's life—the day she first comes in late to breakfast, the night she uses lights until 2:00 A. M., and—the day she is invested. And the greatest of these is Investiture Day. It is the day when she first officially dons the symbol of her dignity and of her knowledge, the day of all days when she is given her cap and gown.

On Tuesday, November 6, the Class of '24 held its Investiture Day. A sweet and solemn occasion it was, one never to be forgotten by any one of the forty-nine Seniors whose day it was. As Mr. Dieckmann played "Ancient of Days," the Sophomore Sisters, dressed in white, entered and formed an aisle through which, first the faculty, and then the Seniors of Agnes Scott marched to their places. Mr. Holt talked a little while of some of the ideals of Agnes Scott and of what were the responsibilities and privileges of those who had almost completed the course. And then—as each Senior passed by Miss Hopkins, she knelt and on her head was placed her "mortar-board," significant of her distinction and the crowning glory of her college career.

The Alma Mater was sung, the Seniors and their sister class passed on down the aisle, and the moment to which the Class of '24 had looked forward ever since they were Freshmen was but a sacred memory in their hearts.

"Senior Coffee" Entertained In Tea Room

First Meeting On October 28

On Sunday afternoon, October 28, "Senior Coffee" was entertained by Janice Brown and Frances Amis in the Tea Room. This was the first time this year that the Seniors have met together for a social hour on Sunday afternoon. Seventeen Seniors and several guests were present at this time. It is hoped that a greater number of the class will be present at the next meeting, which will be held immediately after dinner on Sunday.

"Senior Coffee" has become a tradition with the graduating class. It was begun about four years ago and has been continued by each succeeding class. A need was felt by the Seniors to know their own classmates better, and this form of entertainment was thought to be a pleasant way of bringing the members of the class together.

The hostesses on last Sunday were Barron Hyatt and Frances Gilliland.

Students Of Girls' High School Visit Agnes Scott

Are Guests Of The College For Lunch

On account of crowded conditions at Girls' High School in Atlanta, the girls are forced to give up their afternoon session to the Junior high school. As a part of their education, the girls are visiting colleges and other points of interest in Atlanta once a week.

On Saturday of last week, a group of thirty girls who are members of the college preparatory department at Girls' High, came to visit Agnes Scott and learn something of her system of education.

The girls who were accompanied by Miss Printup, a member of the Girls' High faculty, were shown about the college by various resident students.

At noon a delicious lunch was served to our visitors in the Inman and Rebekah Scott dining halls. All the girls reported a delightful time and were very much pleased with the general conditions of the college.

The college community would indeed feel itself fortunate if every one of these girls would enroll herself as a freshman here next year.

Organizations Now Write Letters On New Stationery

Many letters are being written on the campus these days, for the various organizations have acquired a plentiful supply of new stationery.

The "Agonistic" stationery is of very business-like appearance, or at least, the staff hopes that it is. The center of the page, at the top, bears the name of the publication in old English letters and grouped on either side of this are the names of the members of the staff. The printing is done in black ink on white paper. The "Agonistic" is also the proud possessor of new assignment slips.

The "Aurora" stationery is much like the "Agonistic's" but the printing is done in dark blue ink and the whole staff is not represented in the letter-head. The "Silhouette" has new stationery also, the gift of Foote and Davies, who are printing the annual this year. The Athletic Association chose purple ink for they wished to have the college colors on their paper.

K. U. B. Discusses Articles

K. U. B. held its regular meeting Tuesday evening, October 30th. After the business, the meeting was spent in discussing best journalistic style and subjects. In order that the members might know what work of this kind other schools are doing, college news from several of the Atlanta papers was read. Other newspaper articles were read and the members discussed the forms which were used. K. U. B. hopes to have with them soon a journalist or lecturer who will speak to them on journalism.

Pi Alpha Phi Subjects For Intercollegiate Debates

Randolph-Macon And Newcomb Submit Subjects

Those who missed the Pi Alpha Phi meeting held in the Mnemosynean Hall last Thursday evening at 7:00 o'clock can rightly be accused of neglecting their opportunities. They not only missed gaining valuable information on the subject of child labor but they also failed to hear a heated and well carried out discussion of the subject.

The debate was Resolved: "That the Federal Constitution should be so amended as to give the Federal government power to legislate concerning child labor, concurrently with the States." Olive Hall and Mary Breedlove upholding the affirmative and Mary Anne McKinney and Emily Spivey, the negative. The judges, Miss Laney, Miss Davis, and Mr. Rankin decided in favor of the affirmative.

Although it may seem a long time before the intercollegiate debate, it is interesting to know that definite work has begun already. Last Tuesday afternoon the Debating Council decided on the two subjects that Agnes Scott would submit as possible intercollegiate (Continued On Page 4, Column 1.)

Rosa Raisa Noted Opera Star Sings In Auditorium

Agnes Scott Students Enjoy First Of A Series Of Concerts

The first concert of the series of the Atlanta Music Club given at the Auditorium-Armory on Tuesday evening was greatly enjoyed by a number of Agnes Scott students. A beautiful program of solos and concerted numbers had been arranged for this concert of Rosa Raisa and Giacoma Rimini. Both these artists are famous for their work in opera, and several of the numbers sung were taken from the great operatic arias. It was much regretted that Rimini was unable to appear.

Rosa Raisa was born in Bielestock in Russian Poland and advanced under the most discouraging circumstances. A dramatic experience in her early life was her escape from Pogrom, that led to the massacre in Kiev. She studied music with Madame Marchisis and was later engaged for the Chicago Opera Company. Raisa's debut was made at the Theatre Reggio, in Verdi's first opera, "Oberto." Her success in this destined her to be one of the greatest singers of the time. It has been said that she is the greatest opera singer of the day.

Madame Raisa was heard Tuesday evening in a group of Russian songs and a group of modern songs which delighted every one.

The next artist who will appear on this series is Ignace Jan Paderewski, the world's greatest pianist. He will be in Atlanta on the night before Thanksgiving. Many students from Agnes Scott are expected to avail themselves of the opportunity of hearing the great musician, and parties are already being arranged to go to the auditorium on that night.

THE STUDENT AND STUDENT ACTIVITIES.

So much has been written recently on the subject of the place of student activities in the college that it is well-nigh impossible to throw any new light on the matter. The question is, however, one of vital interest in academic circles and one which invites expression of opinion. The problems of inter-collegiate athletics have assumed amazing proportions and have aroused more controversy, pro and con, than perhaps any phase of student life today. In a college for women this annoying question is happily of practically no importance.

The activities which are of major importance in the college for women have this advantage—that they are more or less closely related to scholastic work and are, therefore, less open to criticism than the athletic problem. Work on College newspapers and magazines, membership in dramatic clubs, debating societies, and writers clubs, and participation in the work of the Y. W. C. A. and like organizations, afford valuable experience and present excellent opportunities for the development of independent thinking and mature judgment. No one denies that work of this kind is beneficial to the student. The question, in our opinion, is how much importance should activities assume and how much of the student's time should she devote to "outside work" in comparison with the time spent on the courses included in her schedule.

A familiar refrain sung by students and graduates of our colleges today voices the sentiment that activities in the final reckoning are of greater worth than regular classroom work. This attitude is destructive of the highest ideals of education. The courses outlined in the college curriculum are the legitimate fields of intellectual development for the student. There it is that she should do really constructive thinking. Courses are not taught to be learned mechanically by unreasoning students. We learn that we may live better and more fully. The new facts and new ideas imparted to us should become parts of our very being. They constitute the ground-work on which we are to build a superstructure of alertness, of intellect, of tolerance of attitude, and of fair-mindedness of judgment. Contact with a truly great teacher is an overwhelming advantage in the mental growth of a student; but even if this is lacking, the student's ideal is still an appreciation of learning for its own sake.

Do not mistake us by thinking that we discredit the value of student activities in developing this attitude. But we do say that they are not the legitimate way of accomplishing the aim of education; and they became a real danger when they prevent the student from pursuing the normal method of training which has been deemed best by the most careful and most experienced educators of our time. Every day, however, (we judge by our own college) activities demand more and more of the student's time. She cannot hope to do her best work in the classroom and at the same time take an active part in the opposite side of campus life. A choice must be made; and the loss is great, whatever the decision may be.

A readjustment should take place. The curriculum should be given the place of prime importance; and, next in importance, student activities should be encouraged. But they should not be allowed to over-shadow or in any way to impede scholastic work, which is the student's first interest and which, no matter who denies it, will bring more true happiness and more real strength to the college graduate than participation in any student movement, however worthy it may be.

Student activities, then, in our opinion, have their place in the college; but their position is of secondary importance, inasmuch as they aid the natural development of the student they are justified; but, as soon as they hinder in any way the student's conforming to the normal method of educational training they cease to be justified. In this latter case they become a positive evil and should be discouraged by the college authorities whose wider experience and more mature judgment put them in a position to understand the attendant danger in the student's voluntary rejection of the best which the college has to offer.

SENIORS BECOME LITTLE GIRLS ONCE MORE AND ENTERTAIN STUDENTS ON SATURDAY MORNING.

Curls and Pigtales Adorn Heads of Dignified Seniors.

On Saturday morning the Seniors, observing a custom long practiced at Agnes Scott, laid aside their long skirts and abandoned their dignified coiffures and once more dressed as little girls. Their skirts were knee-length, and their curls or pigtales were decorously tied with pink or blue bows. It was a great pleasure to see dignified young ladies such as Helen Wright, Barron Hyatt, or Frances Amis playing with dolls and skipping gleefully about the campus. At 7:20 the Senior "little girls" as-

Phyllis Roby Has Birthday Party

On Thursday, October 25, a birthday party of an unusual kind was given by Phyllis Roby. In fact, there were two parties. And Gaines cottage was the scene of these happy shin-dings.

In the afternoon Phyllis Roby invited the Freshman inmates of Gaines to come and share with her a typical Virginia box. We say typical, because Virginia is the home of hospitality and this box denoted that quality if ever one did. It contained Virginia ham, fried chicken, beaten biscuit, cakes, candy—and everything good to eat. This bunch enjoyed the contents very, very much—and they one and all wished Phyllis "Happy birthday."

But they were not so greedy that they didn't leave some for the evening festivity. From 9:30 to 10:00 o'clock the first floor back was again a scene of feasting. At this time mostly older girls were present, the heads of all the organizations and a few others, including a few Freshmen. Dick and Mary Ann were guilty of a serious breach of etiquette in administering the traditional birthday whipping. At this time a large white birthday cake with 19 candles was brought out. Wishes, fortunate and prophetic were made.

At both these parties every one had a "grand and glorious time." And ardently wished for Phyllis to have another birthday soon.

Dinner Party In Home Economics Hall

Has it not been said that Agnes Scott girls are high-brow, knowing nothing outside of the realm of books? If so, we wish that all such scoffers at the Higher Education of Women, might have been present with us, at Pochahontas Wight's dinner party in Home Ec. Saturday evening, October 27.

She proved effectively that Agnes Scott girls are domestic as well as learned in the mysteries of Latin and Greek. Perhaps that is one reason for our high percentage of married graduates!

Promptly at 9 the guests arrived. There were four tables in the corners, decorated in true Hallowe'en fashion, with ghostly witch silhouettes, shaded candles and dainty place-cards. Seated at the tables, the sixteen girls were served with a delicious supper, of creamed chicken in crisp patty-shells, hot biscuits, pickles, crackers, olives and Virginia boiled ham, tea with mint and oat-meal cookies.

Conversation, during the dinner, ranged from poetry to fortune-telling, but all were enthusiastic in their praise of the cook. At 10:00 lights flashed and the party broke up with gay good nights. Everyone carried home the memory of a pleasant evening.

sembled in the lobby of Rebekah Scott Hall and forming in a long line advanced into the dining room where they spent a jolly quarter of an hour singing once more the happy songs of the younger days. From Rebekah Scott they transferred themselves to Inman and there repeated the same features of entertainment.

The song which the Seniors sang as they marched was "One Little, Two Little, Three Little Seniors." When they were all in the dining rooms, they rendered the following pleasing selection, accompanying the words with appropriate pantomimic gestures:

"I put my right foot in,
I take my right foot out,
I give my right foot a shake, shake, shake,
And turn myself about."

The left foot, the hands, the head, and finally the whole self were "put in, taken out, and given a shake, shake, shake."

After this song had been duly applauded it was followed by a good morning greeting to "our dear teachers." The children then retired after a very happy time.

ATHLETIC NEWS

Freshmen Swamped by Seniors— Juniors Down Sophs.

The Seniors managed to get the ball over the goal line seven times during the game last Friday, October 26. The Freshmen came out with the little end of the score, which was a little round goose-egg. Throughout, the younger team kept up its fighting courage and showed great strides of improvement. As Calderon, the Spanish poet wrote:

"More

"The battles lost may profit those who lose,

"Than victory advantage those who win."

Even the best of hockey players was once young at the game.

SENIORS AND SOPHS OVERPOWER JUNIORS AND FRESHMEN.

On account of rain, the regular game for the preceding Friday was called off, therefore, on Saturday the 27th of October, the game was called. The Seniors and Juniors played hard and long, the former getting a running start by shooting two goals right after "Play" had been sounded. The Freshmen managed to score against their formidable and ever present enemies, the Sophomores, a fact which puts a feather into their hat.

F. S. C. W. is fortunate in having as its Y. W. Secretary this year Miss Ruth Scandrett, of Cordele, Ga. Miss Scandrett is a graduate of Agnes Scott College, and has had a widely varied field of experience with the Y. W. C. A., having been a delegate to several Y. W. conventions, as well as the President of her own College Y. W. C. A. The summer of 1922 she spent at National Training School in New York; that fall she became industrial secretary of the Atlanta Y. W. C. A.; and the past summer she was a member of the group of students who performed the Industrial Experiment in Chicago. The students of this college are indeed glad to have Miss Scandrett as their secretary.

Giddie Gossip

Dear Giddie:—

It is so cold down here that my tongue chatters all the time (except in classes). You see, the teachers act as radiators and make it exceedingly hot for us.

But anyway we (editorial "we") always manage to get in our fun. Why Grace Boone has the best time of anyone I know. She went home for a wedding last week. But that isn't all. She was in Nunnally's with a tres good looking man Saturday afternoon.

H. Wright is another one of these social butterflies. Ask her how she likes football games and suppers at the Daffodil!

Some people have all the luck. Why, L. Joyner is only a Freshman and the third finger of her left hand is already adorned. It's good some of us have class rings! Oh! speaking of hard luck—Isabel B. has had experience. She was going to the Chi Phi tea dance Saturday, and just because she forgot to register three times she was restricted. Oh, cruel fate!

Giddie, do you know I believe the present day boys are just as thoughtful and sentimental as the boys of old, though everybody might not agree with me. F. Bitzer, the president of the Junior Class, threw down her gauntlet. And a certain gentleman is keeping it next to his beating heart! Sounds like knighthood is in flower again, n'est-ce-pas?

By the way—haven't you always heard that boys don't like Wild girls? Well, now I know it isn't so, 'cause Sue gets phone calls and specials all the time. (I thought this out myself. Don't you think it sounds original?)

What do you think? Some of these Freshmen have the nerve to say they wish they were back in High School. At first I couldn't understand this, but now I do. "There's a reason." Yes, L. Leonard got a regular epistle from her High School principal the other day and R. Massengill got a package from hers this a. m. No wonder they like H. S.

Well, I must stop this gossip in spite of the fact that I have heaps more to say. You are so kind about praising the Agonistic that I wanted to give you some dope on the staff. But it will keep.

As ever,
AGGIE.

Dr. Campbell Morgan At Agnes Scott

During Week of November 18 Will Speak Daily at College.

Dr. Campbell Morgan was welcomed at Agnes Scott on November 18 for a week's visit. In addition to the series of lectures which he is to deliver at the college, he will speak each night at 7 o'clock in the Decatur Presbyterian church and will make two addresses, morning and evening, there on Sunday.

Accompanying Dr. Morgan is his daughter, who will act as his secretary during the week spent in Atlanta. They will stay at the Piedmont hotel, and are bringing a car in which they will go back and forth between Atlanta and Decatur.

The subjects for Dr. Morgan's lectures will not be announced, as he prefers that it not be known before time. But any subject on which he may choose to speak will be enthusiastically welcomed by all the students, especially by those who had the privilege of hearing him last year. He spoke to us then on the four Gospels, taking up the content, general outline, and author of each, in a most interesting manner. Every morning the chapel was filled to overflowing by the students, who were eager for a message from this one of the greatest teachers of our Bible. Many of the girls also took advantage of the opportunity of hearing Dr. Morgan a second time (in the evening) and went to the Decatur church each night.

It is a rare privilege that we have offered here of hearing this great teacher of God's word, and we are very grateful to those of our administration who make possible for us this chance to hear Dr. Morgan for a second time, and it is hoped by all that Dr. Morgan will continue to bring his message each year to the Agnes Scott audience.

The Howard Theatre At Agnes Scott

"Angel Food" and "Main Street" Shown.

That Agnes Scott can boast an "up-and-coming" junior class is self-evident! But this fact has been doubly apparent to all since Saturday night, November 3, when this class brought to the Agnes Scott chapel a splendid Howard program. None of the attractions, which the name Howard implies, were lacking.

There were pictures—all so good, that it would be difficult to say just which was most popular. Perhaps the first, "Angel Food," caught the Agnes Scott fancy most, by reason of its suggestive title, although "Main Street" ran it a close second. The latter lived up to its name, for it showed, indeed, the Main Streets of London, New York, Chicago, Washington, Venice, Yokohama and many other cities.

But the intermission was equally charming. Frances Tennant and Harriet Fearington, dressed as kids in the "romper stage," gave a delightful dance, which the appreciative audience heartily encored.

Also, the Howard orchestra was never in better form. They rendered a brilliant overture. During the intermissions they brightened the chapel with selections from popular songs, complaining in particular of the scarcity of bananas.

Yet another feature was added to this unusual entertainment. The juniors never do things by halves; so they undertook to supply food for the bodies as well as the souls of the movie fans. The sale of peanuts and chocolates ran high, proving that "Miss Agnes" was, indeed, enjoying herself. Deep regret was evident on the faces of the audience at the conclusion of this performance.

The junior class is to be congratulated on this entertainment, unique in its originality and charm!

Miss Heinz Talks In Chapel Monday Night

Leader of Campfire Girls Describes Work.

Monday night at prayers we all received a delightful surprise—especially those of us who have been Campfire Girls and those of us who are interested in that line of work.

Miss Heinz, one of the leaders in the Campfire organization, gave a splendid and most interesting talk on that subject.

She emphasized the things the Campfire organization has done in the past and what it may accomplish in the future with some college girls as leaders. She laid great stress on the part we will be expected to take and made us realize that upon us depends the possibility of future generations of little girls having the privilege of being Campfire Girls and deriving the benefits and pleasures from that organization.

Through this organization, girls are given new social standards. They learn organization, accomplishment and service—this latter especially in the home and among the poor. For everything, big or little, that a Campfire Girl does she receives some sign of recognition—as a bracelet when she has learned to make a fire. And everything has a symbol and meaning. Each girl is allowed to choose a symbolic name for herself and all her Campfire sisters call her by it. Even the fire has its meaning—and every girl must learn and repeat this before she may become a Fire Maker:

Fire Maker's Desire.
"As fuel is brought to the fire
So I purpose to bring
My strength, my ambition,
My heart's desires,
My joys and my sorrows,
To the fire of human kind,
And I will tend,
As my fathers have tended
And my fathers' fathers
Since time began
The fire that is called
The love of man for man
And the love of man for God."

Agnes Scott Sends Representatives To Northern College Women's Intercollegiate Conference

Carrie Scandrett and Mary Anne McKinney Will Be Sent As Delegates From Student Government.

All Agnes Scott is awaiting with interest the conference of the Northern College Women's Inter-Collegiate Association, to be held at Oberlin College, Ohio, from the 21st of November through the 24th.

Those of us who are familiar with the reports brought back from these conferences before will be glad to hear again from this gathering, while those who are new will enjoy the experience of feeling themselves a part of a great association of colleges of the highest rank.

For a number of years Agnes Scott has sent delegates to this conference. It is an association primarily composed of Northern colleges, but any college whose standard is of a certain height may gain membership. Agnes Scott is one of four Southern colleges to have attained this standard.

At this conference the delegates from the various colleges discuss their work during the past year, suggest ideas for improvement, and form new plans for greater efficiency. It is a great honor that Agnes Scott is a member of such a splendid organization, and an honor which we fully appreciate.

The delegate elected this year to accompany the president of Student Government, Carrie Scandrett, to the conference, is Mary Ann McKinney. We are expecting, upon their return, a very interesting account of the work carried on by the conference.

Dr. W. E. Dodd Lectures On Monroe Doctrine

Criticises Our Foreign Policy

Entertained by Miss Hearon in Tea Room.

Agnes Scott had the privilege of hearing on Friday morning a lecture, "The Monroe Doctrine One Hundred Years Later," by Dr. W. E. Dodd. The speaker is one of the foremost scholars of America, and is now Professor of History in the University of Chicago. The college was truly fortunate in having him as a lecturer and owes great thanks to the Lecture Association, under the auspices of which he came to Agnes Scott.

This was not Dr. Dodd's first visit to Agnes Scott, for three years ago he gave a series of lectures in the chapel on the subject of Woodrow Wilson. A large audience, composed of those who had heard him at that time and of those who were eager to listen to a speaker as interesting as he was reported to be, gathered in the chapel at the time of the lecture.

Dr. McCain introduced Dr. Dodd, speaking a few words of welcome to him. Dr. Dodd, in beginning his talk, gave a brief summary of the history of the Monroe Doctrine. It was, he said, with its provisions for protection of the two American continents against the Holy Alliance, a subject fit for the pen of a Mark Twain. Anybody but Americans would have laughed at themselves for accepting it. But, the Doctrine was, at the same time, a bold and important document. It has come to be the corner-stone of American foreign policy. As first interpreted, the Monroe Doctrine was magnanimous in spirit. It aimed at protection of the democracy, self-expression, and self-determination of the American peoples. It is impractical, idealistic, and useful only in that it points to that which cannot be attained. But, in its evolution during the hundred years of its life, it has come to mean a policy of exploitation of the weak by the strong, or even of annexation. It has by interpretation come to mean the right of America to move south.

The general policy of the Monroe Doctrine, said Mr. Dodd, is the same as European imperialistic policies. We Americans condemn other countries for what they do, but we together with the English have been careful to create and to maintain the opinion that our motives are most generous. The German idea, following Darwin, that they were fittest and that they therefore

Calendar For November

Thanksgiving Coming.

November 9. Dr. William E. Dodd, professor of American History at the University of Chicago and one of the leading historians, gave a lecture on "The Monroe Doctrine—A Hundred Years After."

November 10. The Cotillion Club gave a dance for the college community.

November 10. Representatives of Bryn Mawr had luncheon at the Agnes Scott Alumnae Tea Room.

November 13. Dr. Kirk, a noted minister of Baltimore, spoke in the chapel at 10:30. Dr. Kirk is of special interest to Agnes Scott because he married one of Agnes Scott's girls.

November 17. Hoase had reserved this night, and presented stunts representing various organizations on the campus.

November 18-23. Dr. Campbell Morgan will lecture each morning at Agnes Scott and each evening at the Decatur Presbyterian church. Dr. Morgan gave five lectures here last year, and we are looking forward with much pleasure to his coming.

November 22-23. Two Red Cross representatives will conduct some regular gymnasium classes.

November 24. There will be either a performance by the Alabama Glee Club or the Grandmother Party.

November 29. Thanksgiving.

Cotillion Club Gives Beautiful Dance

Program Includes Many Attractive Dances.

On Saturday night, November 10, the local Cotillion Club invited the college community to a dance, given in the Gymnasium building. This, the first dance of the season, was one of the most enjoyable occasions of the fall term. The Gym could hardly be recognized with its elaborate decorations of autumn colors and bright leaves.

The club was fortunate in securing a four-piece orchestra from Atlanta, whose appropriate music delighted everyone.

The program opened with a grand march, led by Josephine Douglas, president of the club. Posters then announced that the Seldoms were presenting Miss Irene Castle. This part was cleverly impersonated by Jean Dumas.

Four dances, each representing one of the classes, followed. This presentation, given by Jeanie Perkins, Harriet Fearington and Dell Bernhardt, was clever in every detail, and revealed much training and talent.

The last number was a nightmare dance, successfully interpreted by Dell Bernhardt and Margaret Powell.

At the conclusion of the dance, everyone stayed for a social chat and drank punch which was served by Cotillion Club members.

by their superior power had the right to expand was really to be excused in some measure. Germany is overcrowded, and the people have no place of outlet. The Americans and English both have enough land to support many more inhabitants, but they are always the ones to annex more territory. The Germans were only following a policy similar to that of the Monroe Doctrine when they tried to exploit the Near East; and the French policy of taking possession of the land on the Rhine is very like our foreign policy today.

The Second Series Of Blackfriar Plays Will Be Given In Agnes Scott Chapel On December 1

"The Rescue", "The Wonder Hat", "Fourteen", Will Be Presented to Students At That Time.

On December the first Blackfriars is to present to the college community the second series of three short plays. These plays have been carefully selected with the hope of giving each person what she likes best along dramatic lines.

"The Rescue," a serious play containing a note of tragedy, has wonderful possibilities for action and acting. Deep sympathy is awakened for the pretty distraught girl, surrounded by watching neighbors, and doomed to insanity by inheritance. Just as she is on the verge of the disease, she is saved from herself by a falsehood concerning her parentage.

"The Wonder Hat" will especially please those who like the fanciful. In a gay land of make-believe, the joys and caprices of Columbine and Ponchinello will be followed.

He who likes to laugh will have just cause when he sees "Fourteen." No, not the age fourteen—but fourteen guests, invited to a dinner party. A blizzard outside and the telephone inside keep the poor hostess in an uncertain state of mind as to whether she is to have any guests to her dinner. In the end numbers of the original as well as "the last minute" guests appear.

Though the casts have not been definitely chosen yet, judging from former plays presented by Blackfriars, we may feel sure that these plays will be thoroughly enjoyed by everyone.

Dorothea Chambers Speaks In Chapel

Y. W. C. A. Secretary From Constantinople Talks Interestingly.

On Wednesday morning, in the chapel, Miss Dorothea Chambers, who has just returned from Constantinople, gave a very delightful talk on her Y. W. C. A. work in the East. She is a graduate of Bryn Mawr, and has been in this work for three years; one year was spent in Silicia and the other two in Constantinople.

Miss Chambers threw an entirely new light upon conditions in Turkey, showing the brighter side of the dark clouds that hover over that country. There are two things which are drawing her back into the work, she says: One is Constantinople, and the other the women of Silicia. Those women and the women of Turkey are to be thought of no longer as "advertisements for Fatima cigarettes," but as women who have climbed out of the seclusion enforced upon them by Mahomet and have taken their rightful place in their nation's affairs. Many are even wage-earners. Polygamy is now very rare, chiefly because of economic reasons.

The Y. W. C. A. service center in Stamboul is doing much to unite Greek, Armenian and Turkish girls, strange as it may seem, in a spirit of fellowship. One Turkish woman who is doing much to help the girls and women of her nation is Halidahalum, a noted feminist, a graduate of Constantinople College, who fought as a soldier with the Nationalist troops, and has thus become a general heroine.

Miss Chambers believes that Turkey is on the threshold of a splendid future which will weld together the different races, and that the Y. W. C. A. will play a great part in the process.

Perhaps the student body has never heard a more beautiful bit of description than Miss Chambers gave of her landing at Constantinople; and thus, from every standpoint, her talk was most delightful and profitable.

Alumnae Defeated By Varsity Team

Game An Exciting Athletic Event.

Hi! Rah! Whoop-ety Hee!
What's the matter with A. S. C.?
She's all right!
Who's all right?
A. S. C.!

This was the way the famous hockey game, played Friday, November 2, was begun. For the Varsity team, in their famous vari-colored hockey skirts, snake-danced onto the athletic field, shouting this happy war song. They were greeted with enthusiasm by the side-lines, which were well filled. But there was, if possible, more cheering when the Alumnae team

" * * * * Deceit and glum,
And all on the bum,"
* * * * *
"Limping some,
And toothless of gum,"
and not "what they used to be," came running on the field of contest.

Though they may not be what they used to be, the Alumnae are certainly not to be slighted. For a more splendid fight was never put up by a team, handicapped in the lack of practice. And everyone present realized how good they were. Lib Hoke, of old—now Miss Elizabeth Hoke—and Mary Goodrich played the part of stars quite nobly.

That this was a game to be handed down in the annals of Agnes Scott was attested by the fact that such an enthusiastic crowd gathered to see it. Dr. McCain, Mr. Cunningham, parents of students, and the student body were present. We have no doubt that the power house even was deserted in this time of excitement. Cheers from first one division of the spectators and then the other followed

(From the "Goucher College Weekly.")

"We have become frankly weary of the oft reiterated phrase 'the more you put into it the more you'll get out,' but once again trite as it is, it serves its purpose, and in no place is it more applicable than right here at college. We spend the most formative years of our lives at college and for the most part college tends to bring out the best that is in us. It can't develop us at all if we are not willing to co-operate in bringing about our own development, and one of the first and most essential things college teaches us is co-operation. A large percentage of us come to college for a broader outlook, and a more cultural standard from which to view life. But, once having proclaimed our object in coming, we seem to drop the matter and pay no more attention to it. A tolerant viewpoint, and an appreciation of fine things can't be hurled at us while we stand inanimate. We owe it to ourselves to make an effort to grasp the big things of life as they run fleetly by. College does more to help us develop along cultural lines than any other institution today and yet most of us let life rush by us without even feebly stretching out to seize some of the things in our way.

"There is the little matter of collateral reading. Most of us will acknowledge that reading plays a tremendous part in influencing our lives. We read good books and are often ashamed to admit it for fear of being considered a high-brow. That in itself is not only a wrong but a ridiculous and childish attitude to take. But, nevertheless, it is true and it is only one of the ways by which we stunt our mental growth. And, to go back to outside reading, some of us have discovered that it isn't all drudgery and that we honestly do enjoy most of the books that are assigned. But we are not honest enough to admit it to ourselves most of the time and would die rather than admit to our classmates that we enjoyed our reading. The dread of being called a grind has so permeated our consciousness that our actions are largely governed by it. But in order to emerge from college really cultured we should not only read but should enjoy it. The taboo put upon enjoyment of work is one of the most savage and least cultural things in college and we and not the college are to blame for it.

"If college can teach us to be tolerant of knowledge honestly got and honestly enjoyed it will have broadened our outlook tremendously. But college is impotent if we are inert and disinterested. The responsibility for our own development lies with us."

DR. W. E. DODD LECTURES ON MONROE DOCTRINE.

An important development in the history of the Doctrine is the change of attitude of South American countries toward the United States. "The Great American Hog" is an ever present fear in those countries which once regarded us as their natural protectors. The ablest group of international lawyers in the world has arisen in South America in order to interpret the Monroe Doctrine. Canada, too, is unfriendly to and suspicious of our foreign policy. One of the chief reasons why we did not enter the League was that, by doing so, we would have to expose our foreign policy to other nations. We would have to renounce the Monroe Doctrine and further annexations, for other nations would not vote for additions of territory.

Mr. Dodd discussed the "Monroe Doctrine of the East," and told of Japan's desire to set up protectorates over Manchuria and Korea. Japan's abandoning her plans puts us in the position of letting the heathen show up the path of justice and generosity.

Mr. Dodd's conclusions were that the United States should no longer base its foreign policy on the Monroe Doctrine and, further, that no nation should have a foreign policy which cannot be subjected to the free discussion of other nations.

In closing, Mr. Dodd spoke of Wilson, of whom he is a warm admirer. He said that the former President was the only man at the Peace Table who wished the nations to abandon the principles of the Monroe Doctrine. "We can never have international good feeling until every nation is willing to see itself in the light of history, to correct its faults, and to subject its affairs to world criticism," said Mr. Dodd.

After the lecture Mr. Dodd was entertained at lunch by Miss Cleo Hearon, head of the history department at Agnes Scott. The history majors and the members of the Lecture Association were invited to have coffee in the tea room with Mr. Dodd at 2 o'clock.

LOCALS

Miss Elizabeth Gregory spent last week-end in Vienna, where she was called on account of the slight illness of her father. Her return with a suitcase full of dainty morsels was hailed with delight by many.

Misses Martha Johnston and Sallie Abernathy were joint hostesses at a tea, in their lovely room on first floor. Delicious lemonade and chocolate cake were served. The guests included Misses Helen Clark Martin, Louise Hendricks, Mary Jervis, Gwynne Cannon, Mary Weems, Louise Leonard, Barron Hyatt, Pauline McCleod, Georgia Mae Burns, Mary Forbis and May Reese.

The dotting parents, as well as fond sisters and brothers, of many of the Inman seniors thronged Agnes Scott on Tuesday, for the purpose of witnessing Investiture. Among these were Mrs. Stone, Mrs. Gilliland, Mr. and Mrs. McDow, Miss Dorothy Speake, Mrs. Howie, Mr. and Mrs. McMurray, Mr. Al G. Smith, Mrs. Greene.

The Senior and Sophomore Sisters held quite important meetings in the tea room the first part of the week, whose purpose it was to offer an opportunity to present the rings. This was done very cleverly in some instances; at one time the ring was found on the stem of a lollypop; at another, on the stem of a chrysanthemum laid by each place.

Miss Mary Berkman of Macon was the attractive guest of Frances Buchanan for a few days.

Miss Margaret Gholston and Miss Emily Jones entertained with a lovely Hallowe'en party in honor of Miss Gholston's birthday. The guests' fortunes were told by a very mysterious, ghostly character, after which ghost stories were enjoyed (with the permission of the House President) until quarter of ten. At that late hour a delicious salad course was served. Those enjoying this affair were Misses Frances Craighead, Katherine Johnston, Margaret McDow, Reba Bayless, Martha Childress, Josephine Bridgeman, Martha Chapin, Agatha Deavor, and Frances Buchanan.

Miss Joyce Henderson, who attended Agnes Scott in 1912, was the guest of Miss Melissa Smith the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Buchanan spent the past week-end in Atlanta with their daughter, Frances.

Mrs. J. W. Cowan of Conyers visited her daughter, Sarah Will, last Friday.

Mrs. W. R. Joiner of Albany has made a visit to her daughter, Leila.

Miss Julia Abbot of Louisville, Ga., an old Agnes Scott girl, spent Wednesday and Thursday with Jessica Wright.

Mr. and Mrs. M. M. McCall of Opelika, Ala., recently came to see their daughter, Caroline McCall.

Mary Freeman and Sarah Will Cowan were visitors to Mr. and Mrs. L. O. Freeman in College Park during the week-end.

Mrs. Gordon Chason of Bainbridge spent Sunday and Monday with her daughter, Cornelia Chason.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Moore, on their way from New York to Savannah, stopped over to see their sister, Miss Cephise Cartwright, Saturday and Sunday.

Mary Davis and Margaret Edmondson spent last week-end with their parents in LaGrange.

Margaret Prowell was the guest of Ruth Harrison and Tootsie Janes for a few days last week.

Among the parents and relatives of the seniors who were at the college for Investiture were: Mrs. Mann and Miss Augusta Mann; Mrs. Griffin, the guest of Margaret Griffin; and Mrs. Powell, the guest of Margaret Powell.

Dorothy Keith spent several days last week at her home in Greenville, S. C.

ALUMNAE DEFEATED BY VARSITY TEAM.

The Varsity team who played is only a temporary team. It may be changed. But however that may be, we think this one mighty good. For the score ended five to nothing (5-0) in favor of the Varsity. The line-up was:

ALUMNAE.	VARSAITY.
Hilda McConnell c.f.	M. Keesler
M. Knight r.i.	Henry
Ware r.w.	Walker
Wyatt l.t.	McAlpine
Bland l.w.	Schuessler

AGNES SCOTT SENDS DELEGATES TO STUDENT VOLUNTEER CONVENTION IN INDIANAPOLIS

December 29 to January 1 Are Dates of Meeting.

Of interest, not only to the Student Volunteers, but also to the whole student body is the ninth International Convention of the Student Volunteer Movement which is to be held at Indianapolis, Dec. 29 1923 to Jan. 1, 1924, and to which Agnes Scott will send five delegates.

The Agnes Scott students who will attend are Victoria Howie, Harriet Fearrington, Frances Lincoln, Dell Bernhardt and Lillian McAlpine. Mrs. Sydenstricker will chaperone the party.

This convention which meets every four years is held under the auspices of the Student Volunteer Movement with the co-operation of the Student Departments of the Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A., and the foreign mission boards of Canada and the United States.

In view of the number wishing to attend this convention, it has been necessary to limit the number coming from each college. The quota that has been given to Agnes Scott is five representatives from the student body and one from the Faculty. These representatives will be selected by the Y. W. C. A., which pays part of their expenses.

Since we are to have our own Student Representatives there it will be interesting to note the purpose of the convention and some of the things which it expects to discuss. The purpose of the convention as summarized by the committee on arrangements is as follows: To realize the critical needs and possibilities of the situation in the world today and to consider the responsibility of the Christian students of the United States and Canada in the light of this situation. To consider Christ and His way of life as the hope of all the world. To present the foreign missionary enterprise in the light of its achievements and possibilities as an indispensable means of bringing the power of Christ to bear upon the world's needs. The convention being International, there will be addresses by speakers from both Europe and Asia, also by missionary leaders. There are four main discussion courses that have been suggested: International Problems and the Christian Way of Life; Racial Relations and the Christian Ideal; Youth and Renaissance Movements; Economic Problems and the Christian Ideal.

We should be especially concerned in this convention since it is the only one of its kind that will meet during the present student generation and if it is going to be as wonderful as all the Student Volunteers lead us to believe, we will await with much interest the report of our representatives.

Hoke r.f. Scandrett

After the game was completed every one expressed the hope that there would be another such game soon.

The Florida Flambeau.

"Florida young women are more religiously inclined than the young men of the state. This is indicated in comparing the religious census of the student bodies at the State College for Women with that of the University of Florida." The percentage of young women church members is 88, while that of the men is 74.

Alumnae News

More marriages! And who NEXT? Such are our thoughts when we read in the paper or hear from friends so often that Miss So and So, of Agnes Scott, is to wed Mr. "Cute-y". Indeed, our college seems to be well holding up its reputation for having more married graduates, proportionately, than other like institutions. We are glad to announce the following recent nuptials: Miss Sarah McCurdy, '21, to Mr. J. R. Evans, of New Orleans, La.

Miss Lucile Smith, '21, to Mr. Charles Eric Berkey, of Dayton, Fla. Miss Clifford Virginia Holtzclaw, '20, to Mr. James Blakesly, of Clarksville, Va.

Miss Margaret Sanders, '20, to Mr. George Bellingherath.

Miss Elizabeth Pruder, '19, to Mr. Joseph Fagan, of Atlanta.

Miss Helen Brown, '14, to Mr. Lesley Neighbors Webb, of Chattanooga, Tenn.

Miss Virginia Scott, '17, announces her engagement to Mr. Pegues, of Decatur.

Miss Frances Formby, Exp., '25, is attending the University of Alabama this year.

SENIORS ENTERTAIN SOPHOMORE SISTERS AT TEA ROOM

Could there have been a more perfect ending to Tuesday, the day of Investiture, than the party which some of the Seniors gave to their Sophomore Sisters in the Tea Room? Surely not, for it was a party that will mean another golden memory of Agnes Scott. One especially nice part about this party was that there were two mothers there; for at one end of the long table was Mrs. Gilliland, and at the other end was Mrs. Greene with the Seniors and Sophomore Sisters on each side.

The table was beautiful, decorated with yellow candles, and a basket of yellow and white chrysanthemums in the center. Beside the place of each Sophomore Sisters was a small chrysanthemum on which was slipped the ring of her Senior Sister.

The guests were: Mrs. Greene, Mrs. Gilliland, Mary Greene, Nan Lingle, Victoria Howie, Harriet Fearrington, Polly Stone, Mary Dudley Brown, Frances Amis, Sara Slaughter, Barron Hyatt, Sterling Johnson, Janice Brown, Ellen Fain, Frances Gilliland, and Margaret Tufts.

PARTY FOR FRANCES GILLILAND

Monday, November fifth, was Frances Gilliland's birthday, and Mrs. Gilliland, who was here for Investiture, gave a lovely party in her honor. It took place in the Silhouette Tea Room, that spot sacred to Agnes Scott festivities. The decorations were roses, and very beautiful the table looked, with its center-piece of large pink roses, and the place cards with their tiny pink roses.

The guests were: Mrs. Greene, who was also present for Investiture; Mary Greene, Victoria Howie, Janice Brown, Frances Amis, Polly Stone and Barron Hyatt.

Poor Company.

"Yes, Your Honor, he neglected me shamefully. Why, he never was at home."

"And I suppose you had to spend your evenings all by yourself?"

"W—w—well, I had two goldfish."
—Tit Bits.

Giddie Gossip

Dearest Giddie:
 Do you really want to know about the Agonistic staff? Well—now wonder what kind of girl you imagine the editor to be—smart and wise? No; guess again. She's Greene—and she isn't a Freshman, either, so there's no excuse.
 As for the assistant editor, it is really embarrassing to tell about her. Stop, look, and listen, but don't get shocked—when I tell you she is a Keith girl!
 I believe I've already told you about F. Lipscomb, M. P. Caldwell and C. Smith. So we'll leave them out this time, though it is tragic to deprive them of more publicity.
 You wouldn't think of a joke editor as one of those serious kind, would you? But Araminta is just as serious-minded and cultured as any girl in school. In fact, she says she has an awful time trying to hide her culture when she is doing her best to vamp some feather headed tea hound. Anyway, she must succeed in doing it, 'cause she has acquired quite a string.
 You won't want to know but one thing about L. Buchanan. When she was in a stunt her freshman year, a boy saw her and fell at first sight. That's the kind of a girl she is!
 Then there is Louisa Duls—our Alumnae editor. She has the most sarcastic last name I ever heard.
 And here I am about to forget our Y. W. C. A. editor. Well—I'm not going to tell you about all of Eugenia's beaux, 'cause you might show this letter to "John" and he would think Eugenia wasn't true to him.
 Oh, yes! I have another shock for you. We have a Mann for assistant business manager. Mr. White generally has a hostile attitude toward cats and men, but Mary can get by with lots of things that nobody else can.
 And last, but not least, are our circulation managers, M. Dobbs and L. Hendrix. M. won't tell me a thing about her affairs, 'cause she is so absorbed with her bobbed hair. But we know all about L. Hendrix. Some of the girls think she spends her time giving fire drills. However, there's one thing certain—she knows how to get Sigma Nu pins!
 Giddie, I'm aching to tell you about L. Scobey and C. McLauren. But if you drink in all this staff gossip you'll be doing well.
 Yours truly, truly yours,
 AGGIE.

Day Student News

"Lives of great men all remind us We may make our lives sublime, And, departing, leave behind us Footprints on the sands of time."
 Last week when the alumnae hockey team, "all decrepit and glum," came to battle against the athletically inclined undergraduates, did we notice those who were once day students on that mighty graduate team? Well ought we to be proud of Mary Goodrich and Ethel Ware, who in a not so far gone past were also off campus Hottentots. The way they showed that one doesn't necessarily lose all one's vim, vigor and vitality even after gaining a much coveted document, was ably demonstrated—not on the "sands of time" perhaps, but in this case on the proverbial mud of the athletic field. We are proud to claim each ex-member of the day student clan as "one of us"—and we hope they will come back often to see us.
 Something new for all you who are your own chauffeuse to Agnes Scott; Daisy Frances says you may park your car back of the library. That is a choice spot for study—in the shadow of that hall of learning and also overlooking the tennis court where there are so many interesting faculty matches played. Only—let not your kindness of heart get the best of you—don't leave your cars parked there after 6 p. m., when certain charming brunettes from Rebekah might be looking for date space!

Y. W. C. A. NEWS

Girls Selected to Go to Indianapolis. they are not asking for services; they are asking for something that it is possible for all Christians to give—our prayers. When we think of those students in other countries, young people like us who are struggling for an education, struggling against odds almost too great for them; when we think of this world struggling for peace and prosperity, our hearts go out with a yearning to help. Now is our time. Even after the week of prayer has been completed at Agnes Scott, let us not forget those suffering people and let us have prayers for them firmly established in our hearts.
 Our Y. W. C. A. does many fine and splendid things; and, in order to keep them up by the best methods, we have to keep in constant contact with other Christian organizations of the country. So we have selected five girls to attend the National Student Volunteer Conference which is to be held at Indianapolis the last four days of Christmas holidays.
 These girls were selected with the view of representing all the girls in college. There are two representing the senior class: Vic Howie and Dell Bernhardt; one representing the Student Volunteers, Lillian McAlpine, and one from the junior and sophomore classes, respectively, Frances Lincoln and Harriet Fearington.
 We are expecting these girls to bring us a message from the conference vital to each girl here, and are looking forward to the time when the conference comes.
 The week of November 11th was a national week of prayer, and, of course, according to our custom, we observed it in our own college.
 People are not asking for money,

Aggie's Funny Bone

"We're beaten to the earth? Well, well, what's that?
Come up with a smiling face;
It's nothing against us to fall down flat,
But to lie there, that's disgrace."
—The Panther.

A girl was asked to explain why men never kiss each other, while some women do. She replied:
"Men have something better to kiss; women haven't."
—The Flambeau.

Friendly Advice.

Sweet Young Thing: "What kind of a husband would you advise me to look out for?"

Married Woman Friend: "You let husbands alone, my dear, or you'll get in trouble. You look out for a single man."
—Two Bells.

No Brains.

A well-dressed chorus girl entered a bank and presented a check to the teller.

The teller passed the check back and said:

"Madame, you will have to endorse this check."

The chorus girl took the check and wrote on the back of it: "I heartily endorse this check."
—The Petrel.

Freshman: "What's that ladder out our window for?"

"Why, that's the fire escape."

Freshman: "Well, I wondered what made it so cold in here last night."

Fresh: "I love the good, the true, the beautiful, the innocent—"

She: "This is so sudden, but I think papa will consent."
—Technique.

Women's faults are many;
Men have only two—
Everything they say, and Everything they do!

Help! Help!

Queen of Spain—Moi gracia! The baby has a stomach ache!

Why the Editor Fleed.

The bolt of lightning came down between Mrs. Corney and her sister, and ripped off a good deal of plaster.—
From an account of a storm in The Hudson (N. Y.) Evening Star.

Proctor (at door of freshman in room with a senior light): "Lights out."

Freshman (sympathizingly): "What a perfect shame. Nothing wrong with mine."
—The Flambeau.

His Secret Dread.

"Why do you jump at the sound of a motor-car?"

"Well, some time ago my chauffeur eloped with my wife, and every time I hear a horn I think he is bringing her back."
—The Passing Show (London.)

Jack: "Ever study a blotter?"

Shaw: "No, foolish."

Jack: "Very absorbing thing."

Duke: "I shall honor you by proposing to you."

American Girl: "Oh, I was just about to make a proposal myself."

Duke: "Why, ah, really?"

Girl: "Yes, that it's about time you were leaving."
—Virginia Reel.

Wife: "Do you know what day it is? It is twenty-five years ago today since we became engaged!"

Absent-Minded Professor: "Twenty-five years! Why didn't you remind me before? It's high time we got married."
—Kasper.

Not Guilty.

X: "Did you take a bath?"

Y: "No. Is there one missing?"
—London Answers.

Almost Dishonest of Him.

Burglar (surprised by householder): "Well, if that ain't the limit! What d'yer mean by writing on your door: 'Out of Town Till Monday?'" —London Mail.

Advice to the Students.

Early to bed and early to rise,
Love all the teachers and tell them no lies.

Study your lessons that you may be wise,
And buy from the firms that advertise.

He: "But couldn't you learn to love me?"

She: "Dear boy, I really haven't the time—I'm already studying French and learning golf and swimming."
—London Opinion.

Queen's Blues.

Exchanges In the Library.

For the benefit of those who wish to keep posted on the activities of other colleges, the above exchanges and others will be placed in the library. Miss White or her assistants can tell you where to find them.

Queen's Blues.

The Y. W. C. A. of Queen's College used the week from October 10th thru the 16th, to emphasize to the students the importance of obeying the rules for good health. Miss Gurney, the head nurse of the Charlotte Sanitarium, made a very instructive talk on the subject. She said that the four essential elements which make the four walls of the "Temple of the Soul" are:

1. Self-control.
2. Self-respect.
3. Self-reliance.
4. Self-poise.

The materials of which the floor is made are honesty, sincerity, loyalty and courage.

The Ring-Tum Phi.

One hundred and twenty-four students of Washington and Lee have applied for their degrees. Applicants for Bachelor of Arts number 36; applicants in the School of Commerce, 40; in Law, 37.

We commend the students of the University upon their splendid dance resolutions, and recommend that others "go and do likewise."

The Emory Wheel.

The University Debate Council has officially accepted challenges to debate from the University of North Carolina and Wofford College.

"It is a bit unusual for Emory to engage in inter-collegiate debates in this quarter, our debating calendar usually beginning with the second semester. It was only in view of the urgency of the challenges—and the belief of the debate councils that Emory would be able to put a worthy team in the field on such short notice that the challenges were accepted.

The orchestra of Emory is expected to have a year of unprecedented success. There are now 30 pieces directed by Dr. M. H. Dewey. Selections such as Mendelssohn's "Mid-Summer Night's Dream," Grieg's "Peer Gynt," the overture to "Mignon," and Schubert's "Symphony" are being practiced most carefully.

There will be regular Sunday afternoon concerts in the chapel.

The staff of The Wheel is to be congratulated upon the splendid arrangement and organization of the items of the paper.

Grandmothers Entertain Freshmen At Pleasant Party

"Grandmother" Sydenstricker Tells Charming Stories.

Many Attractive Costumes Are Worn By Both Grandmothers and Grandchildren.

One of the most delightful entertainments of the college year was the Grandmothers' party which was given in the gymnasium on Saturday night, November 23. On this occasion the Seniors and Juniors invited their Freshman grandchildren to enjoy an evening of games and story-telling.

The gymnasium was appropriately decorated for the party. At one end was grandmothers' sitting-room, with a wealth of easy chairs and soft cushions and, best of all, a big, open fireplace. The remainder of the room was devoted to dancing.

The hostesses, as became their title of "grandmothers", were dressed as charming old ladies. Black dresses, dainty aprons and beautiful white hair completely transformed the youth of the Seniors and Juniors into dignified old age. The Freshmen, also, showed signs of change. But, in their case, time had turned backwards, and had brought knee dresses, socks, and long curls to the grandchildren. The costumes were very attractive and the scene in the gymnasium was a pretty one.

A great treat was given the youngsters when "Grandmother" Sydenstricker consented to tell some of the stories which are much enjoyed by little girls and boys. Other entertaining numbers on the program were the dance of Harriet Farrington and Mary Freeman and Frances Gilliland's songs. The two former were dressed in blue-checked gingham—one dancer being a little girl and the other a little boy. They gave a charming dance, based on the old game of "jump-rope."

Refreshments of cakes, apples, candies and punch were served during the evening.

Dancing was enjoyed until ten o'clock, when the grandmothers hurried their charges home to bed.

This party was one of the most enjoyable social events which has taken place at the college this year. It was sponsored by Hoasc, and the thanks of the Freshman, Junior, and Senior classes are due to that organization for a very pleasant evening.

Miss Gooch Reads Drinkwater's "Robert E. Lee" At Blackfriars Meeting

At the last meeting of Blackfriars, held Friday afternoon, November 16, Miss Frances K. Gooch, head of the expression department at Agnes Scott, read John Drinkwater's "Robert E. Lee." This play naturally has a special interest for Southerners. Robert E. Lee as John Drinkwater has characterized him, is a man in whom is blended those qualities which most inspire love and admiration. He is the supreme type of the Southern gentleman.

Miss Gooch has made a thorough study of the historical characters who are portrayed in the play, and her reading was exceptionally well done. She is to read Mr. Drinkwater's play before the Drama League in Atlanta soon and kindly gave Blackfriars the opportunity of hearing her first. Besides the regular members who were present several guests heard Miss Gooch's reading.

Miss Emma Jones To Be Married In December

Member of Hoasc and Gamma Tau Receives Good Wishes of Students.

"Hear the mellow wedding bells, Golden bells!

"What a world of happiness their harmony foretells!"

Like the Nutbrowne Maide of our English XI days, Miss Emma Legg Jones, Agnes Scott graduate, '18, of Decatur, has made to a modern "erleson" that age-old, new declaration, "In my mynde of all mankynde I love but you alone." The fortunate knight in this case is Mr. Harwell Fitzhugh Smith, of Montgomery, Ala.

Amid an atmosphere of orange blossom and white satin, the happy event will take place on the proverbial Wednesday evening, December 12th at 8 o'clock in the First Presbyterian Church of Decatur. Rev. J. G. Patton, of Atlanta, brother-in-law of the bride, and Dr. D. P. McGeachy, of Decatur Presbyterian Church, are to officiate at the ceremony. Mr. Christian W. Dieckmann will play the wedding strains, and Mrs. Lewis H. Johnson will sing. Miss Lucy Durr, Agnes Scott graduate of '19, Montgomery, Ala., has been chosen as maid of honor, and Mr. John Durr, of Montgomery, as best man. The ushers of the occasion are Mr. Ray Jones, brother of the bride; Mr. Harris Long, of Tennessee; Mr. Fitzhugh McClain, also of Tennessee; and Mr. Wallace Malone, of Alabama. Adding much to the bridal party, will be Miss Katherine Patton, flower girl, and Master William McGuire, ring bearer, most attractive little niece and nephew, respectively of the bride.

The bride and groom are to make their home in Montgomery, Ala.

Miss Emma Jones is well known to us as the late most efficient secretary of our Alumnae House. She graduated from Agnes Scott in 1918, as has been mentioned above, and is a member of both Gamma Tau Alpha and Hoasc. By her charming personality and unwearied devotion to her Alma Mater, she has brought all Agnes Scott into the wide circle of her friendship. We most sincerely wish her a long and prosperous voyage on the pleasant sea of matrimony.

Mr. and Mrs. Holt Give Pleasant Party For Chemistry Majors

Being a major in chemistry does not always mean a life of formulas, strange smelling mixtures and hours of lab. To the Junior and Senior chemistry majors last Friday evening it meant a delightful party given by Mr. and Mrs. Holt at their home in Decatur. Mr. and Mrs. Holt charmingly entertained the guests, and Miss Phillippa Gilchrist and Miss Mary Wilson, of Decatur, served the dainty refreshments of ice cream, cake, coffee and mints. The guests were: Misses Barron Hyatt, Augusta Thomas, Ruth Guffin, Frances Moore, Emmie Ficklen, Emily Spivey, Marguerite Dobbs, Dick Scandrett, Beulah Davidson, Elizabeth Blalock, Mary Brown, Katie Frank Gilchrist, Margaret Powell, Gertrude Greene, Augusta Skeen, Mary Wilson, Philippa Gilchrist.

Dr. Campbell Morgan At Agnes Scott

Noted Bible Student Makes Addresses in Chapel.

Words of Christ Form Themes For His Talks.

To be able to attend one of Campbell Morgan's lectures just once is a great privilege. To have him with us for five whole days is a greater privilege still. Through the efforts of the Y. W. C. A., backed by the student body, this was the experience of Agnes Scott for the week beginning November 19. Every morning from 10:40-11:40, Dr. Morgan spoke in the chapel, and every night at 7:30 in the Decatur Presbyterian Church. By means of the co-operation of the faculty and officers, the girls were enabled to hear both of these lectures each day.

The morning services at Agnes Scott differed from those Dr. Morgan conducted last year in that they were more purely devotional. The theme for the week was "The Words of Jesus." Such well-known words as, "Follow Me!"; "Come unto Me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest" were considered and whole new wealths of meaning opened up to us.

We had experienced the power of Dr. Morgan last year, and our anticipations of this year's services, heightened for that reason, were fully realized. Dr. Morgan drew us very, very close to spiritual things. He gave us to drink from the eternal springs and left us spiritually quickened and refreshed.

The hearts of Agnes Scott girls are very grateful to the Y. W. C. A. and to Agnes Scott for making his coming possible, and are hoping very hard that they will again have such an opportunity.

Hoasc Stunts Are Given Before Student Body Saturday Night

Hoasc stunt night, always a gala event at Agnes Scott, took place Saturday night, November 17. Thirteen stunts, each representing one of the college activities, were presented. Each stunt was sponsored by one of the members of the Hoasc society, each of whom gave an appropriate little talk in rhyme before the beginning of her stunt.

On one corner of the stage there stood a stately grandfather's clock with bold face. Twelve of the stunts represented the hours on the clock; the thirteenth represented the hands of the clock. As each sponsor finished the introductory words of her stunt she pinned her respective hour on the face of the clock.

The originality and clever wit which pervaded the whole performance rendered the evening so enjoyable that it will long be remembered by every Agnes Scotter. The stunts were under the able supervision of Miss Gooch.

Following are each of the college activities represented and its corresponding sponsor:

Student Government, Carrie Scandrett; Athletic Association, Nancy Evans; Y. W. C. A., Victoria Howie; Publications, Polly Stone; Lecture Association, Janice Brown; Literary Clubs, Mary Greene; Day Students, Beulah Davidson; Course Clubs, Emmie Ficklin; Cotillion Club, Weenona Peck; Orchestra, Barron Hyatt; Glee Club, Frances Gilliland; Blackfriars, Frances Amis; Pi Alpha Phi, Daisy Frances Smith.

Complete Program Of Lecture Association For This Year

Farrar And Paderewski In Atlanta Next Week

Agnes Scott Students Hear Noted Singer and Pianist At Auditorium.

One of the many advantages which Agnes Scott girls enjoy from their proximity to Atlanta is the privilege of hearing world-famous men and women, performing in Atlanta. Such an opportunity came last week in the two concerts given in Atlanta on Wednesday and Friday evenings, respectively, the first, by Paderewski, the second, by Farrar.

The Atlanta Music Club presented, in its civic concert series, the world-famous pianist and composer, Paderewski, on Wednesday evening, November 28th, in the city auditorium.

To introduce the Polish pianist and composer, Ignace Jan Paderewski, is almost an insult to the intelligence of an audience, so wide-spread is his fame. Popular opinion crowns Paderewski as the master of all living pianists. He made his formal debut in the musical world at Vienna, 1887, and met with great success. In 1890, the power of his magic turned London into a frenzy; and the following year, he made his first tour of America, and was "phenomenally successful." In 1900 Paderewski established a prize awarded triennially, for encouraging American composers. He is himself the author of many musical compositions, the most famous being his "Minuet."

Although Paderewski completed a tour of America just last year, he will undoubtedly be again received with "unbounded enthusiasm," for, as has been said, he is "as eternally great as he is eternally young."

Paderewski's program included selections from Bach, Mozart, Brahms, and Beethoven; and one of the most enjoyable parts of his program was a group of Chopin numbers. Included in the encores were Liszt's "Hungarian Rhapsody, No. 2," and the famous "Minuet."

Geraldine Farrar was presented on Friday evening, November 30th, at the auditorium.

Farrar is one of the foremost American sopranos of the day. She made her debut as a dramatic soprano in the character of Marguerite, of Gounod's "Faust," presented at Berlin, 1901. Her success was almost sensational. Later, she joined herself to the Metropolitan Opera Company of New York, where her beautiful voice long charmed huge audiences. Though Farrar is no longer connected with opera, her name still holds a revered place in the list of noted American singers.

Three Blackfriars Plays Will Be Presented On December 1

Three Blackfriars plays are to be given on the first Saturday night after Thanksgiving, December 1st. The first, described as highly fanciful, is called "The Wonder Hat" and has the following cast:

Pierrot—Isabelle Furgeson.
Harlequin—Mary Ann McKinney.
Columbine—Catherine Graeber.
Margot—Louisa Duls.
Punchinello—Polly Stone.

The second, "The Rescue" is of a more serious nature, and has only three characters:

The aunt, Miss Elvia Warden—F. Amis.
The nurse, Kate—Polly Stone.
Anna Warden—Mary B. Wright.

The third, called "Fourteen," is high farce. The main part of this is played by Mary Palmer Calwell.

"The Wonder Hat" and "Fourteen" are said to be very unique and funny, especially "The Wonder Hat," which is said to have a very unexpected and clever ending.

Six Lecturers to be Brought to Agnes Scott This Year.

Mrs. Blair, Swinnerton, Heyward, Judge Allen, and Dr. Ames Included on Program.

The Lecture Association is one of the most valuable organizations on the campus of Agnes Scott College. It was founded in the year 1920, for the purpose of bringing to the college the foremost lecturers of the day; and has been most successful, presenting on its programs such famous persons as Hamilton Holt, Amy Lowell, Vachel Lindsey, Frank Lane, and John Powell.

Dr. William E. Dodd, Professor of American History at the University of Chicago, opened the season for this year by a most interesting address on the "Monroe Doctrine—A Hundred Years After," delivered in the college chapel on November 9th. The remaining program offered for 1923-1924, so far as arranged is as follows:

Mrs. Emily Newell Blair, Vice-Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, was scheduled to appear last Monday, but, being unable to fill her engagement, she will come to Agnes Scott later in the season. Mrs. Blair, as the "Century Magazine" for August states, "is fast becoming to have nationally the name she has in Missouri (her native state), that of being not only an engaging woman, but a good hand at understanding the tedious mechanical details of organizing voters, not just to cheer and feel, but to put on their hat, though it be a rainy day, and put an X beside the proper candidate."

Early in December—Mr. Frank Swinnerton, celebrated English novelist, critic, and lecturer. He has been called "one of the ablest of the younger English novelists," and his novels rank among the best literary productions of the day, among them being "Nocturne," "Young Felix," and "Shops and Houses." Mr. H. G. Wells' criticism of "Nocturne" is: "This is a book that will not die. It is perfect, authentic, alive."

Mr. Swinnerton is a critic of very high standing, being a contributor to the Manchester Guardian, the most famous newspaper of Europe.

As a speaker he has unusual charm, due to his own personality, his vast knowledge of modern literature, both English and American, and his wealth of anecdotes, coupled with a rare power. (Continued On Page 2, Column 5.)

Miss Bland Entertains In Honor Of Miss Sarah Keesler Of Charlotte

If you had ventured into Gaines Cottage Sunday night, November 18th, and paused an instant before Miss Bland's room, you would have been completely consumed with curiosity and envy to hear soft ripples of laughter and such words as these, issuing from behind closed doors: "Look, it's poppin' fine now"; "S'truth, Mary Anne; your education is sadly neglected until you see Charlotte"; "I adore burnt marshmallows, don't you?"

All of this means that Miss Margaret Bland was entertaining the Charlotte girls and a few of their friends at a most delightful social gathering, held in honor of Miss Sarah Keesler, of Charlotte, who was visiting her sister, Mary. An enjoyable hour was spent in chattering about school and home-town news, and in popping pop-corn and toasting marshmallows over wonderful, glowing coals. The hostess also passed around apples and grapes and delicious Yankee bread.

Those enjoying Miss Bland's hospitality were Misses Sarah Keesler, Mary Keesler, Maria Rose and Louisa Duls, all of Charlotte; and Misses Mary Anne McKinney, Emily Guille and Margaret McDow.

INTERCOLLEGIATE DEBATING.

A practice of which we much approve is that of intercollegiate debating. There is evidently a great interest in this form of contest among the students of our colleges, for practically half of the Agonistic's exchanges publish accounts of participation in intercollegiate debates. For several years Agnes Scott has been a member of a triangular debating society to which Newcomb and Randolph-Macon Colleges also belong. The debates have always been of a high order of excellence and have been of great benefit in bringing these three leading Southern Colleges into contact with each other.

It seems to us that debating is a form of intercollegiate activity more nearly suited to the needs of both institutions and students than any which has yet been developed. It has a great advantage over athletics in that the student is called upon to make use of his intellectual ability, and his college training. We feel that we may say with truth that some of our foremost college athletes are decidedly below the average as students; and at least we are justified in our opinion that the attitude of many athletes falls far short of being scholarly. It is not impossible for an athlete to be a good student, but everybody who knows anything about intercollegiate athletics realizes that the student who is or hopes to be a member of a team is, as a general rule, interested primarily in track, football, baseball, basket ball, and secondarily in scholarship. Few colleges enforce rigidly their rules which require at least passing grades before a student can participate in intercollegiate athletics. From these facts, it is easy to see that the athlete is not necessarily a representative student.

Debaters are students of a high order in almost every case. At least they are average students or they would not be able with any degree of success to state and to uphold arguments which are challenged by students who are intellectually superior. The debater is called upon to use not only his native ability, but also he shows by the lucidity of his thought and the force of his expression the benefits of his training in college. The debater, we think, is a representative student.

Perhaps some will disagree with us on this point, stating that, where the athlete may be too little occupied with academic work, the debater may be a book-worm—and a person totally outside the spirit of college life. This is not true. Intercollegiate debating is as much a part of college activities as any kind of athletic contest, and the student who interests himself in debating is doing as much for his college as any other student. We think he is doing more, for he is representing his college in something closely related to the real work and the true spirit of his Alma Mater.

We hope to see the day when such intercollegiate activities as debating will hold at least as popular and as honored a place among students as athletic contests.

REPRESENTATIVE OF WHITE'S STUDIOS AT AGNES SCOTT.

There will be a representative of White's Studios of New York at Agnes Scott during the first week of December. He will take pictures of those girls who wish to have their photographs before Christmas. Later he will return and complete his work in taking pictures for the Annual.

About a hundred girls have signed up to have pictures made at this time. All those who have not made arrangements may do so by consulting Eugenia Perkins, the photographic editor of the "Silhouette."

CABINET OF Y. W. C. A. ENTERTAINS DR. MORGAN AT DELIGHTFUL PARTY IN TEA ROOM.

Last Tuesday evening, November 20, the cabinet of the Y. W. C. A. entertained at a supper party in honor of Dr. Campbell Morgan, who has been giving a series of lectures at Agnes Scott. The guests were invited to the private dining room of the tea room at half-past nine o'clock. The table there was beautifully decorated with red candles and poinsettias.

MISS DAVIS WINS A PRIZE.

With the infirmary filled with scarlet fever, measles, diphtheria, Dr. Sweet still found that she had not enough to keep her busy and offered a prize for the first case of mumps. This was won by Miss Jean Davis, head of the Economics department when, on Thanksgiving night, she showed signs of having this disease. Miss Davis' condition is not serious, her friends will be glad to know. All Agnes Scott hopes that she will soon be well.

A delightful supper was served, after which the guests enjoyed an hour's conversation with the great Bible student.

Mrs. Campbell Morgan and Miss Morgan were also present at this entertainment. They have made many Agnes Scott friends during the week.

The guests were: Dr. and Mrs. Morgan, Miss Morgan, Victoria Howie, Frances Gilliland, Emmie Ficklin, Frances Amis, Margaret Powell, Frances Lincoln.

Dr. Morgan was entertained by the Faculty on Thursday afternoon in the parlor of the tea room.

LOCALS

Sue Marie Wills has returned to her home in Natchez, Miss.

Dina Thornton and Sarah Will Cowan were the week-end guests of Miss Mary Freeman at her home in College Park.

Mrs. E. D. McDonald, of Atlanta, spent Sunday with her daughter, Ruth McDonald.

The many friends of Margaret Wood, who is confined in the infirmary with scarlet fever, will be glad to know that she is improving.

Adelaide McDonald has gone to Washington, D. C., on account of the illness of her mother. She has the sympathy of her many friends.

So many things have happened in Rebekah this week that it's hard to know just where to begin.

Katherine Cannaday is so popular that all the girls on third floor are green with jealousy. You know she was sponsor at the Tech-Kentucky game the other day and her picture has been in the paper about six times.

Emily Zellars is about to rival her though, because she was sponsor of the "Patillion"—so the report goes—at Emory.

And guess what! Nonie has a new nephew—Larry, Jr. Last week-end she went to see him and she hasn't talked about a thing else since she's been back. She says his hair is black but she knows it's a mistake and will some day be red.

While Nonie was away a beautiful apartment sprang up overnight—the Community Club. Everybody made contributions of either pillows, magazines, books, rugs and even chairs and tables. There's a lovely couch right in front of the window which looks out on one of the most delightful of snow scenes. The Club extends invitations to everybody on the campus to come and enjoy its peaceful and uplifting atmosphere.

Margaret Powell had a birthday party the other night, and every single person who was there said she had never eaten as much or had such a good time—wonder how many candles were on the cake!

That wasn't the only birthday party though! Isabel Clarke and Juanita Grier had birthdays Monday and so, after an awful Chemistry V test—they had a party for all the class which was a grand substitution for Lab. They served the grandest ice cream and crackers—even though one of Miss Bishop's plates did get broken—that anyone could imagine. After refreshments Isabel said, "Now everybody get out your pencils and papers again because I'm going to give you a guessing contest." Elizabeth Blacklock was sitting just behind Isabel, and she likes chemistry pretty well except Chem. V. tests—so she said (not meaning Mr. Holt should hear it), "I've just finished one guessing contest." Mr. Holt heard it and poor Liz blushed but she'll probably never say anything like that again—party or no party.

Dick Scandrett and Mary Ann McKinney have gone on a trip to Oberlin College, Ohio, where a student government conference is to be held.

And did you know that there was a league forming in Rebekah which has for its purpose helping students to save their money? The policy they advocate is "Don't spend money on shows in Atlanta when we have home

MARGARET McDOW GIVES PARTY IN HONOR OF GRACE AUGUSTA OGDEN.

On last Tuesday night Margaret McDow entertained a few of her friends at a delightful party given in her room on third floor, Inman. The table was beautifully decorated with lace table mats and with a centerpiece of narcissus blooms. Places were laid for ten people, and the following girls were present: Katherine Johnson, Frances McColgan, Frances Craighead, Louise Leonard, Mary Forbis, Grace Augusta Ogdén, Emily Jones, Martha Chapin, and Mary Greene.

This party was given as a compliment to Grace Augusta Ogdén, who is Margaret's Sophomore sister. The occasion was a very pleasant one and was much enjoyed by those who were present.

Delightful refreshments of chicken, sandwiches, cranberries, pickles, cookies, and ice cream were served.

Athletic News

MRS. DEUBIG DEMONSTRATES AND LECTURES ON LIFE-SAVING.

(By Harriette Haynes.)

On Thursday, Nov. 22, and Friday, Nov. 23, in the afternoon, Mrs. Cecelia P. Deubig, National Field Representative, Woman's Life Saving Corps, American Red Cross, was with us at Agnes Scott. She is the first woman to do life-saving service work in the field for the American Red Cross, and she can demonstrate on land and in water the strokes for life-saving, or the evolution of swimming from the days of primitive men and women who lived in caves.

Mrs. Deubig knows that women have a distinct place in the life-saving field and is giving us all the chance to learn more about it. Along with her work she gives many amusing swimming anecdotes and is very attractive and clever besides her other accomplishments.

Our pool here is, of course, very inadequate, but we can come to see and hear her and try out part of the things she shows us and be more ready for summer swimming and for our new pool!

Watch the Athletic Bulletin Board for the exact times that she will be here. Be on hand and don't miss a trick!

SENIORS WIN HOCKEY CHAMPIONSHIP.

Some people may say the Seniors are old and decrepit. Don't believe it! They have out-played all other classes in hockey; the Juniors coming next, the Sophs next, and the Freshmen next—just the regular academic lineup. Here's to you, Seniors. We bow before you with even more reverence than ever.

How they stand:

	Won	Lost
Seniors	4	0
Juniors	3	1
Sophs	1	3
Freshmen	0	4

ZE WHAT YOU CALL 'EM ORCHESTRA A BIG SUCCESS.

The Athletic Association is duly proud of the orchestra that has been put out this year. Many players are new to the orchestra, but have proved themselves a blessing rather than a blight.

Under the capable baton of the Hindu conductor, Keenie Berman, the orchestra presented a most interesting stunt among the many sponsored by Hoase last Saturday night. "Ze What You Call 'Em Orchestra" delighted its musical audience by reading minds with unflinching accuracy. As each member of the audience concentrated on his talent in our midst. Come to see Walker Fletcher and Genie Dumas in the stunning pantomime which they have been so generously giving f-r-ee!"

Everybody will enjoy it.

A number of girls in Rebekah Scott are on the sick list this week. Georgia May Little and Grace Carr are both down at the infirmary with scarlet fever, and Ella is afraid she is going to take it any minute.

Martha Lin is still in the infirmary with tonsillitis but is much better.

We regret these illnesses very much and hope to have all the sick ones back in our midst very soon.

NORFLEET IS NEW FRESHMAN PRESIDENT.

The Freshman class has a new president, Elizabeth Norfleet. She was vice-president of the class up to the time of the resignation of the former president. Elizabeth is a wonderful girl, and we are all proud to have her as Freshman leader. She has real charm and a very winning manner, and these qualities plus her natural ability make her well suited for leadership. We feel sure that, under her guidance, the Freshman class will have a wonderfully successful year.

COMPLETE PROGRAM OF LECTURE ASSOCIATION FOR THIS YEAR.

er of mimicking.

February—Mr. Dubose Heyward, one of the foremost Southern poets of the day. Mr. Heyward's poem, "Gamblers All," won first prize offered by Contemporary Verse for 1921. He has contributed to the Atlantic Monthly, North American Review, London Mercury, Poetry—A Magazine of Verse, and many other magazines; and his work can be found in Braithwaite's Anthologies for 1921-1922, The New Poetry, Contemporary Verse Anthology, and Petersburg Anthology. In collaboration with Mr. Hervey Allen, Mr. Heyward has just published a delightful volume of Southern poems, entitled, "Carolina Chansons." He will lecture on some phase of modern poetry.

March 15—Justice Florence E. Allen, associate justice of the Ohio Supreme Court. Justice Allen is the only woman in America who has achieved the Supreme bench. Before her election to the Supreme Court, she was serving as judge of the Court of Common Pleas, Cleveland, being the first woman to sit in a court of general jurisdiction, and "the first woman in the world to preside in first degree murder cases."

In the Spring—Dr. Joseph Ames, of Johns Hopkins, the Vice-Chairman of the Republican National Committee, and some French speaker, it is hoped.

The Lecture Association, to whom the entire credit is due for the above splendid program, is composed of a member of each class, a member of K. U. B., the Journalistic Club, a representative from the Agonistic, the college paper; the president of Hoase, an honor society; and ex-officio members. The Association is under the efficient direction of Miss Cleo Hearon, professor of History at Agnes Scott College.

The officers are: Dell Bernhardt, President; Mary Keesler, Secretary; Cora Morton, Treasurer; Leone Bowers, Chairman of Bulletin Board Committee.

Giddie Gossip

Aggie's Funny Bone

Dearest Giddie:
Everybody is quite excited over our two cases of scarlet fever. But the Freshmen think that C. S. (Christmas Spirit) is still worse. Mary Hedrick heard that lots of A. S. girls had C. S., so she went down to ask Dr. Sweet for a preventative. Wish there was such a thing, 'cause four weeks is a mighty long time for such a deadly disease to last.

Well, these Agnes Scott girls do have some of the strangest affairs! D. Ferrell (you've heard me speak of her) has a secret lover. We call him "The Mystery Man" because he does so many mysterious things. Why, almost every day she gets a box of candy or something else and has no idea who the man is. Now isn't that the quintessence of romance!

Guess you've seen in our annual a picture of Polly Stone, A. S.'s most original girl, and I just want to say that Polly won't put up with a mere man like the rest of us crave. No! She has to be original and get a new brand. Polly's man hasn't seen her since she was six years old because he lives in Idaho, but he still writes to her. And instead of mentioning the fact that he went to a big dance or has just come in from a swimming party, he says he has just finished pitching the hay. Now, can you beat that?

But I haven't told you half the news. L. Bowers always comes to Christian Endeavor with the cutest boy, and makes us feel awful 'cause we don't ever even happen to sit by one. Then there's Catherine Carrier. Saturday night seems to always mean a date and a good time for her.

Now, Giddie, I just can't resist telling you a little alumnae news, for it really is quite interesting. Did you know that Dorothy Luten married the 18th of October? Then her brother married Mary Kelley and Mary K.'s brother married Eula Russel. Moral—Meet your friend's brothers if you don't want to be an O. M.

By the way, did I ever tell you about M. Guerrant? She is one of those popular Freshmen. M. says she doesn't know anybody in Atlanta and can't have a good time. However, she had two perfectly good dates on Hoasc stunt night and she went to the Emory Glee Club at Oxford last Saturday. I fear Mary's work would suffer if she did know somebody (!)?

Good-bye for this time and don't forget

AGGIE.

Soph: "Because people would think you are a darn fool if you go around with them shut."

BREAKING THE NEWS.

A Scotchman woke up one morning to find that in the night his wife had passed away. He leaped from his bed and ran horror-stricken into the hall. "Mary," he called down-stairs to the general servant in the kitchen, "come to the foot of the stairs, quick!"
"Yes, yes," she cried, "What is it?"

What is it?"
"Boil only one egg for breakfast this morning!" he said.
—Bison.

"So your movie theatre failed. How did that happen?"

"Well, I put a sign up over the entrance last summer, "The Coolest Place in Town," and I forgot to take the darn thing down."

A MODERN SHYLOCK.

Stern Landlady: "You haven't paid your rent for this room during the past month."

Law Student: "No? Well, I suppose you'll hold me to your agreement."

Landlady: "Agreement! What agreement did we make?"

Law Student: "Why, when I rented this room you said that I must pay in advance or not at all!"

—Punch Bowl.

Sending a man a sentimental note just after he has spent the evening with you, has just about the same thrilling effect as offering him a sandwich, immediately after dinner.

A girl's heart is like her dressing-table—crowded with tenderly cherished little souvenirs of love; a man's like his pipe, is carefully cleaned and emptied after each flame has gone out.

Recent Bride: "You n-never seem to t-take any interest in anything I ever do."

Her Husband: "Don't be unreasonable, my dear, I laid awake all last night wondering what you put in that last cake you made."

Alumnae News

Miss Emily Guille, '23, of Athens, Tenn., has recently paid a short visit to Agnes Scott, staying with Misses Mary Anne McKinney, Maria Rose and Mary Keesler.

Miss Jane Harwell Rutland, '17, is temporarily filling the place vacated by Miss Emma Jones, as secretary of the Alumnae House.

Miss Ruth Sanders, '23, is paying a visit to her sister, Miss Elizabeth Sanders, who is a Freshman at Agnes Scott. Upon leaving her home in Arkansas, Ruth visited her sister Margaret, Agnes Scott alumna of '20, who is teaching at Sullins College, Bristol, Tenn.; from there she went to Hendersonville, N. C., and has now come to A. S. C., expecting to stay for a week or so.

The Emory Wheel.

A member of the Cosmopolitan Club, in the name of the foreign students, has, in a very friendly spirit, corrected some statements of a recent editorial. He writes an interesting letter to The Wheel in which he states that the "handicaps" to a foreign student, which were spoken of, are, on the other hand, opportunities; and that no one can obtain "the highest good" from a university training unless he "scraps for it." We haven't time to say as much about it as we would like to, and so we recommend all our readers to look up the article itself.

Day Student News

Anyone who saw the Day Students' Stunt Saturday night might certainly envy their convivial times on the Decatur car, even though Monday mornings do roll around a little faster than Saturdays, and sometimes one comes desperately near to being late to an eight o'clock!

Many of the day students have various interesting ideas on the philosophy of life. One of our brilliant members remarked to a friend personally interested in her career that she did not care to have a degree after her name. It all sounds extremely interesting—and we hope we'll cut the ring in the cake.

Not too many brains again! Margaret Rogers (who incidentally is the most fascinating street car conductor we have ever seen) told someone that she did not know what a doctor's thesis was. The someone gathered her courage in one hand and her wits in the other and defiantly answered, "Yes, I do, too. It's the placard a doctor puts on a house saying there is scarlet fever there." Not scarlet fever, that's more like brain fever we should think.

One of us who went to California this summer (no, not the editor) moaned that although she hated to, she simply had to tear herself away. Anita Minter gave her a piercing look and walked away with the remark, "Well you look all right now." She also walked away with the applause.

Trust Frances Allston to give a good time. Everyone who went on the

Davidson Glee Club Is Much Enjoyed

Solos, Quartet, Orchestras Are Pleasing to Agnes Scott Girls

The Davidson College Glee Club, under the able direction of Mrs. Coral Hayner Baker, one of the most prominent musicians of the South, appeared in concert at Agnes Scott, under the auspices of the Agnes Scott Glee Club on December 8, 1923.

The Davidson Club has attracted widespread attention in North Carolina this season, and is proclaimed as one of the best college musical organizations in Dixie. Mrs. Baker, a former student and teacher of New York and foreign conservatories, has been in charge of the collegiate musicians since early fall and she has perfected an organization that will attract attention wherever it goes.

In addition to the regular choruses and the customary solo numbers, the Davidsonians presented a variety of instrumental numbers. Three complete and distinct orchestras are included in the personnel of the club. An eleven piece symphony orchestra, a six piece jazz orchestra, and a four piece string orchestra are proving a valuable asset to the organization. They are scoring hits and gaining recognition wherever they go.

The Wildcat Quartet was one of the headline attractions of the varied program presented by the representatives of Davidson. The four members of the quartet are a cosmopolitan group representing four states—North Carolina, Georgia, Florida and Mississippi. Their repertoire includes a number of folk songs and lullabies that never grow old, as well as the popular songs of the day.

The Davidson Glee Club, managed by C. V. Brown, of Chattanooga, Tenn., and led by W. Ted Jones, of Miami, Fla., is touring the two Carolinas and Georgia.

Davidson, N. C., .....—The itinerary of the fall tour of the Davidson College Glee Club has been announced by C. V. Brown, manager of the club. The Davidson College musicians have been in training for the past three months, under the direction of Mrs. Coral Hayner Baker, musician of note from New York and foreign conservatories, who is now located in Charlotte, N. C. The press of North Carolina gives the Davidson Club credit for having one of the best musical clubs in the South, a special tribute being paid to the range of the program and to the high tone with which every selection is presented.

The fall tour will begin December 4th. The first performance will be given in Spartanburg, S. C. The club will then play in Greenville, S. C.; Gainesville, Ga. (Brenau College); Decatur, Ga. (Agnes Scott College); Rome, Ga., and Gastonia, N. C.

Plans are being made for a tour of South Georgia and Florida during the Christmas holidays. This trip will carry the North Carolinians as far south as sunny Miami.

The Davidson Glee Club, which appeared in concert here December 8, is recognized as one of the leading college musical organizations of the South. Under the direction of Mrs. Coral Hayner Baker, prominent leader in the musical circles of the state, the Davidson Glee Club chorus has developed into an entertaining organization.

The troupe is composed of twenty-five singers, as follows:

First Tenors—Watt McCain, Lexington, Miss.; C. V. Brown, Chattanooga, Tenn.; W. A. McClain, Sweetwater, Tenn.; B. T. Crayton, Charlotte, N. C.; F. R. Hudson, Chattanooga, Tenn.

Second Tenors—O. J. Allison, Winston-Salem, N. C.; J. S. McRae, Maxton, N. C.; J. W. Simpson, Greensboro, N. C.; W. N. Crane, Savannah, Ga.; F. (Continued on Page 2, Column 5.)

Mr. Guy Hurlburt Speaks Tuesday In Chapel On "Needs of Students In Europe"

Contribution Made to Student Friendship Fund

On Tuesday morning the student body had the great pleasure and privilege of hearing a very interesting talk by Mr. Guy Hurlburt on "Needs of Students in Europe." The talk was a most impressive one, since it gave us a new vision of the needs and handicaps of our fellow students in the far East. One of the most surprising considerations was the great values which a small amount of money can secure for our foreign friends. The mere amount of five dollars will furnish daily food for a hundred students for over a month, buy two pairs of shoes, one suit of clothes, forty scientific text books, pay a Russian professor's salary for two months, or one year's tuition for two students.

At this time each Agnes Scott girl was asked to subscribe to the Student Friendship Fund Campaign. As we have already entered into the Christmas spirit of giving, we felt that there would be no other way in which we could show unselfishness and self-denial better than to give our hearty response to this cause. The goal for Agnes Scott was five hundred dollars. In order to raise this amount each girl was asked to give only two dollars, which amount will feed over forty students for a month.

When we stopped to think of our own Agnes Scott and how blessed we are within her walls, and then contrast our good fortune with the meager and pitiful conditions of the schools of the far East, each one of us was only too glad to respond with the true Agnes Scott spirit—the smiling spirit.

The campaign was sponsored by Hoase, and under its auspices the amount of (?) was raised.

Mrs. Dieckmann Entertains Folio At Initiation Meeting

New Members Attend First Meeting

On Friday, November 30th, Folio members assembled on Main steps and "hiked" to Mrs. Dieckmann's home in Decatur. Here they were met by Mrs. Dieckmann and ushered into that cheery, homey living room of hers that is so dear to the hearts of all Folio and ex-Folio members.

This was the first meeting since the initiation, at which five new members—Susan Clayton, Mitchel Moore, Mary Shive, Louise Capen and Miriam Preston—had been admitted to the club. These five were present in full force, and greatly enjoyed the initiation of the sixth new member, Dorothy Chamberlain, who had been unable to be present at the first initiation. This fascinating ceremony was so lengthy that, by the time Dorothy was fully "in," time limit was found to be fast approaching. So only one story was read and discussed.

Afterward, everyone drew her chair a little bit closer to the sparkling, crackling fire, and reveled in such nuts and ginger cookies and juicy winesaps as no one but Mrs. Dieckmann can provide. It seemed scarcely a moment 'til it was twenty minutes of five, and we were reluctantly bidding Mrs. Dieckmann farewell and setting out, in the gathering dusk, for Agnes Scott.

Faculty Vanquish Students At Hockey

Score of 11 to 8 Brings Faculty Triumph

The source of this plot was revealed in Chapel Saturday after Thanksgiving when the challenge was given. Nancy Evans, President of the Athletic Association waxed eloquent after the following fashion:

"To our right honorable faculty: "It is with fear and trembling that we challenge you today

"To a decisive hockey game played in the usual way.

"For we realize that B.S.s, M.A.s, and Ph.D.s

"Could vanquish anybody with ready skill and ease;

"But our student team is valiant and hopes that it will score

"Enough to make it interesting, if not a little more;

"So, if you will, on Saturday, at four o'clock, we'll meet you

"And—stranger things have happened—perhaps we'll beat you."

Miss Randolph immediately responded with:

Whereas, Because of the time consuming burden of injecting knowledge and true learning in young and tender minds entrusted to our care, we have been unable to practice this game as a team, and

Whereas, It is difficult for us to snatch a moment from the pursuit of pedagogy for this competition, and

Whereas, We fear lest this pursuit be interfered with by thus endangering life and limb; nevertheless, we, the Faculty Hockey Association of Agnes Scott College do hereby accept the challenge so flattering to our athletic prowess, under the following conditions:

1. That, the game be played in five minute quarters and with long rest periods in between.

2. That, for every member of our team called away at the time of the game to other duties, our opponents will withdraw one of theirs down to the limit of two left on the team.

3. That, contrary to the usual rule of team members not talking during the progress of the game, instruction may be carried on, so we may know what to do next.

4. That, owing to our athletic standing, the handicap of ten points be tendered us by our adversaries.

5. That, owing to the pricelessness of the opportunity of seeing this game, ten cents will be charged at the gate—the profit to be sunk in the new swimming pool.

To this we set our seal and sign on this, the first day of December, one (Continued on Page 2, Column 2.)

K. U. B. Elects Eight New Members

Initiation on Tuesday, Nov. 27

All Biology students have learned that anything that grows is alive, and that unless it is alive it cannot grow. K. U. B., then, is not a dead organization. It is very much alive, for it is growing rapidly in numbers and in work. At one time K. U. B. contributed to only one paper in Atlanta. It now sends weekly news to the three Atlanta papers, the DeKalb New Era, a Savannah paper, besides occasional news to the home papers of the students.

This new work has meant the need of new members, and therefore the second tryouts for K. U. B. were held much earlier than usual. Eight new members were admitted at an initiation meeting last Tuesday, November 27. These new members are: Mary Freeman, Elizabeth Chapman, Olivia Swann, Mary Heath, Mamie Shaw, Sara Shields, Frances Lincoln and Ellen Walker.

Blackfriars Plays Are Great Success

Sherwood Eddy Conducts Great Mass Meeting of Students At Baptist Tabernacle

Agnes Scott Girls Hear Famous Writer With Interest

Sherwood Eddy, world traveler, writer and speaker, has just returned from another long trip around the world, and was in Atlanta last Sunday. His work among students in Asia and Europe took him to twenty-two countries. He is just back from Russia, Germany, the Ruhr, Japan, China and India. From the throbbing centers of Europe and Asia he brings us a vivid story of the political, industrial and social life on those continents today.

Dr. Eddy conducted a series of conferences in Atlanta, beginning with a great mass meeting of students on Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, December 9th. This meeting was held in the Baptist Tabernacle and space was reserved for delegations from colleges and high schools. Admission was free, but by ticket.

Dr. Eddy's greatest work has been done among students the world over. It was the purpose and hope of those in charge of the conferences that every student in Atlanta would have the opportunity to hear this great man.

Sherwood Eddy is now a world figure in Christian leadership. He has dealt with the young people of practically every country of Europe and Asia. He has been especially active in his work with the Young Men's Christian Association. Throughout all his activities he has been characterized by his brilliance, energy, judgment and devotion to his cause.

Dr. Eddy has written a number of most interesting books besides carrying on his regular work of making a study of political, social and industrial problems.

We were most fortunate in having an opportunity to hear this famous man. From Dr. Eddy we had the privilege of learning something of the present world situation from a truer perspective.

Christmas Tree For Children From Associated Charities

Agnes Scott Girls Play Santa Claus

Save up your pennies, girls, for on Saturday afternoon, December 15, you will have the opportunity of playing fairy god-mother to little girls and boys from the Associated Charities of Atlanta. At this time old Santa will visit the gym, where there will be a large Christmas tree for these children. You are to see that your little ward has his share of toys and fruit and candy, and that he has a good time on that afternoon. It is suggested that the little girls are particularly fond of dolls, and that the little boys have an especial predilection for drums.

The Christmas tree is an annual event at Agnes Scott. Just before the holidays each year many little girls and boys, who would not otherwise be visited by Santa Claus, are made happy by the attentions of Agnes Scott girls. The shining countenances of the delighted children are evidence of the pleasure this occasion affords them. Hence, each of you is urged to take a child and to do all you can to make December 15 a day long to be remembered by him. The eager faces and genuine, childish joy of these little ones will inspire a true Christmas spirit, and will make your own Christmas happier.

Three One Act Plays Are Presented in Chapel Last Saturday Night

Blackfriars presented to the college community and a number of friends its second group of one-act plays for the year 1923-'24, on Saturday evening, December 1st, in the college chapel. The plays were exceedingly well chosen, being of such diverse character that one of them, at least was obliged to suit the taste of each spectator. They were, on the whole, unusually well acted, too, and received by the audience with a great deal of enthusiasm. The curtain first rose on "Fourteen," by Alice Gerstenburg; then came the "Rescue," by Rita Smith, and, lastly, "The Wonder Hat," by Hannah Goodman and Ben Hecht.

"Fourteen" was a light, society play, depicting the preparation for a dinner party in the home a New York society leader, Mrs. Pringle, whose "affairs were always successful." Fourteen guests were invited, but at the last minute, many excused themselves for various reasons, leaving now thirteen guests, and now an equally unwieldy number. The late refusal of a handsome young millionaire to accept her invitation, brought especial consternation to the heart of the hostess. She lived through a tormenting half-hour, calling new guests, re-arranging her table, and upbraiding her timid, debutante daughter; until finally all her problems were solved by the arrival of the Prince of Wales and his secretary, to take the place of the "handsome young millionaire." They exactly filled out the original fourteen guests.

Characters in the Play: Mrs. Pringle, a leader in society, Mary Palmer Caldwell; Elaine, her daughter, a debutante, Frances Alston; Dunham, the maid, Mildred Pitner.

Scene—Mrs. Pringle's Dining-room in her home in New York City. Time—Winter, 1920.

The "Rescue" was the first play of a serious nature attempted by Blackfriars this year, and it met with great success. It was the story of a young girl, Anna, whose grandmother, on her father's side, had lost her mind, and whose uncle and aunt, also on her father's side, had committed suicide from fear of doing the same. Anna's father and mother were dead, and she lived with another sister of her father, Miss Elvira Warden. Miss Warden was extremely nervous herself, and continually expected her niece to show traces of hereditary insanity, all the time trying to hide from Anna the fate of her ancestors. Kate, Anna's nurse, divulged the mystery of her ancestors to the girl, and then, to prevent Anna herself from going crazy, told her that she was not the daughter of her supposed father. Anna, believing her nurse, acted on Kate's advice, and went away from home to work where she soon became quite normal.

Popular criticism of the play is this: "Gee, I thought I'd die if Frances Amis didn't quit talking and fidgeting so." This being interpreted, means that the audience actually lived through the fears and horror of the heroine, and experienced the nervousness of the aunt.

Characters of the Play: Miss Elvira Warden, Frances Amis; Anna Warden, her niece, Mary Ben Wright; Kate, Polly Stone.

Scene—Living Room of Warden House.

Time—The Present.

"The Wonder Hat" was a humorous fantasy, centering around a magic slipper which brought all men to the feet of the wearer, and a wonder hat, which made the wearer invisible. Columbine, the heroine, purchased the magic slipper in order to gain Harlequin's love. Harlequin bought the magic hat in order to be near Columbine. (Continued on Page 2, Column 1.)

We are still regretting the unseemly conduct of the audience at the Blackfriars plays which were given on last Saturday night. At this time Rita Creighton Smith's play, "The Rescue," was presented by the dramatic organization; and it is of the attitude toward this play that we speak. The cast was well chosen, and the acting was more finished and convincing than any we have seen on the Agnes Scott stage in many a day. The play was filled with moments of tense dramatic interest, and its theme was one of great seriousness. Yet at almost every move the cast was greeted with a sound of giggling which was always poorly suppressed and which, more often than not, broke into sudden bursts of laughter. We do not speak of the failure of the audience to show at least a degree of common politeness to the players, though we might do so. We simply regret that half the effectiveness of a truly interesting performance was destroyed by the absolute failure of the audience to enter into the spirit of the play and to give to the cast that necessary support which comes from sympathetic listening.

We hate to accuse an Agnes Scott audience of unimaginativeness, but judging from the sad experience of Saturday night, we feel justified in doing so. The Agnes Scott students evidently came to see the members of the Blackfriars act; and, in the characters of the play, they saw only their campus acquaintances "dressed up" in strange garbs. The idea that for the time being the actors had flung aside their every-day identities and were living the lives and experiencing the emotions of Kate, of Anna Warden, and of Miss Elvira Warden seems never to have occurred to the majority of the spectators. The cast of the play acted with the abandon of art; the audience sat waiting for appreciation and understanding to be pounded into its prosaic mind. And in the meantime it thought with a chuckling good humor of the absurdity of a normal Blackfriar's being hounded with the fear of inheriting insanity.

We are told that the effective presentation of a play depends upon a contract between actors and audience. They indulge in a pleasing deceit, which is mutually agreed upon. The actor loses himself in the creation of the playwright and lives in another world; and the audience, forgetting scenery, footlights and grease paint, follows where the actor leads and actually believes in the reality of what it sees. The audience Saturday night refused to meet half-way the cast of "The Rescue" and in so doing, classed itself with the tribe of Peter Bell of whom Wordsworth says:

"A primrose by a river's brim,
A yellow primrose was to him,
And it was nothing more."

BLACKFRIARS PLAYS ARE GREAT SUCCESS.

bine without her knowledge. After many complications, brought on by the power of the magic slipper to draw all men, and the invisibility of Harlequin, Columbine and Harlequin met in the circular park, but each refused to relinquish his charm first. The denouement of the play was left to the fancy of the audience.

Characters of the Play: Harlequin, Mary Anne McKinney; Pierrot, Isabel Ferguson; Punchinello, Polly Stone; Columbine, Catherine Graeber; Margot, Louisa Duls.

Scene—A Park by Moonlight.
Time—Any time.

These three plays will be presented before the Atlanta Drama Club on Tuesday evening, December 11th.

For the success of the plays credit is due, of course, to Miss Gooch, who, despite her other heavy duties, gave much time and thought to the training of the actresses.

Thanksgiving Guests

"Miss Agnes" was besieged with guests Thanksgiving and the following week-end. They included parents, brothers, sisters, girl-friends, and even some members of the male species who are briefly designated on the campus as "dates." Among the mothers visiting their daughters were Mrs. Norfleet, Mrs. Guerrant, Mrs. Marvin, Mrs. McCall, Mrs. Dunaway, Mrs. Davis, Mrs. Harvey, Mrs. Heath, Mrs. Boyd and Mrs. Riviere. There was also an aunt, Miss Lampkin, who was the guest of Louise Plumb, and one grand-mother, Mrs. Irvine, who visited May Erskine Irvine.

Miss Clifford Wilkinson visited Willie White Smith. Miss Martha Crow was the guest of Cleo McLauren. Cora Morton entertained Miss Miriam Smith. Misses Nell Ginn and Alice Knotts spent Thanksgiving with Cora Berman. Frances Langston had as her guest Miss Jean Sheaf. Miss Vivian Frye visited Tootsie Janes. Miss Viena May Murphy came to see Jessica Wright. Miss Lelia Thomkins was the guest of Gladys Lawton. Miss Gladys Rowland visited Lillie Pearl McElwaney. Virginia Burt entertained Miss Capps. Miss Evelyn Scarborough stayed with Clarkie Davis.

Miss Lilybel Hollis with Clarice, Misses Margaret and Tiny Harvey with Louise, Miss Lettie Pope with Julia, Miss Martha Bell with Leila, and Misses Lucile and Ruth Heath with May, are some of the girls who were at the college last week visiting "sis."

Men guests always arouse our interest. Present at Thanksgiving dinner as the guest of Catherine Houston was John McCaa; with Virginia Burt was Messrs. Whittlesey and Ed Jones; Mr. John Aiken was with Eugenia Thompson, her brother with Valerie Foltes, and Mr. Branklin with Emily Jones, and Mr. Sanford with Louise Harvey.

Classical Club Elects Officers

The Classical Club held its first meeting of the year 1923-'24, November 20, in 42 Main. Miss Smith presided and important business matters were taken up. The officers elected were:

President—Miss Helen Wright.
Vice-President—Miss M. P. Caldwell.
Secretary and Treasurer — Miss Mary Stuart.

On the Program Committee are: Miss Helen Lane Comfort, chairman; Miss Frances Myers and Miss Georgia May Little.

The Membership Committee is composed of Miss Dick Scandrett, chairman; Miss Frances Myers and Miss Stirling Johnson.

The faculty members are Misses Smith, Stansfield, Campbell, and Brownlee.

It was decided to limit the membership to those taking higher Latin or Greek, but to allow Latin I students to attend the meetings, which those in charge of the programs promise to make interesting. The meetings are to be held on the third Friday of each month, in one of the society halls, immediately after prayers. The dues are to be fifty cents a year, and the members voted unanimously that refreshments be served at future meetings.

Pi Alpha Phi Debates On Intercollegiate Question

On Thursday night, December 6, one of the phases of the intercollegiate debating questions was presented before the members of Pi Alpha Phi. The question was stated thus: Resolved, That it is to the best interests of the U. S. to enter the World Court." The affirmative was represented by Eugenia Thompson and Olivia Swann; the negative by Emily Johns and Ruth Liggin.

The debate proved interesting, since it is a part of the question which is of most vital importance—either negatively or affirmatively, to us as a college. Let's every one, when possible, help our debaters by our presences.

Thanksgiving Entertainment In Dining Room

Our annual Thanksgiving dinner was given, as usual, in the dining room on November 29. Of course, the holiday was enjoyed by all, even though the elements were not at all favorable to excursions of pleasure, as it poured lustily all day. In spite of this, all of us enjoyed an extra hour's sleep, crawled out in the bleak coldness, and donned our heaviest wraps—whether to go to the game, a show, or something else—say a good Thanksgiving dinner in the middle of the day.

Naturally, the weather grew worse and worse, but by the time we were all back out at school, dressed for dinner, and down in the beautifully decorated dining room, we felt all aglow with anticipation for our treat. Many and numerous were the songs sung—to everything from turkey to faculty—who, meaning faculty, not turkey, made fitting responses.

After dinner we danced, played bridge, and generally enjoyed a free evening and, although we probably lost our only umbrellas in the swim of the trip downtown and got restricted for coming back too late, still all of us enjoyed it thoroughly and would not mind having every Thursday another Thanksgiving.

MR. STUKES GOES TO RICHMOND TO ASSOCIATION OF SOUTHERN COLLEGES.

Mr. Stukes left early Thursday morning to attend the meeting of the Southern Association of College Women and the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, which was held in Richmond, beginning on December 5 and lasting thru December 7. The two associations held their meetings in the same place, one after the other, to save time and expense for those wishing to attend both. As we belong to both associations, Mr Stukes stayed for both meetings.

Miss Hopkins had intended going to Richmond, but on account of illness was unable to do so. The college community was very sorry that Miss Hopkins was not able to represent Agnes Scott at this time.

Day Student News

The gray hue of rainy November days is becoming dispelled by the roseate visions of December and all that this month brings. Just think—in 20,160 hours (which will be even less when you read this, if you do!) we too will be going "back to civilization," perhaps not on the train, but on something that will get us there! And great will be the rejoicing thereof. Anyone can tell from the excited chatter going on in the day student room that "C-S" is infinitely more catching than measles—and far more delightful! The thought of fourteen days of week-end pleasures sends thrills all up and down our "imaginary spine" as Harlequin, of "The Wonder Hat" fame, would say.

And speaking of "The Wonder Hat" makes us think of the other two Blackfriar plays of December 1, in which Frances Alston and Mary Ben Wright so nobly upheld the d. s. claim to histrionic ability. Frances is a born actress—if she can transform herself into such a timid and docile child, and do it to perfection, too! Mary Ben is always interesting, of course (there's always something peculiarly fascinating about anyone with Titian locks), but in "The Rescue" she captivated us even more than ever,

Alumnae News

Thanksgiving Day would lose half its charm if we could not share our turkey with many of our older sisters, the alumnae, who often honor us with visits during the Thanksgiving holidays. The recent holidays brought us quite a number of alumnae guests, among whom were the following: Misses Ruth Sanders, '23; Fanny McCoo, '21; Margaret Bell, '21; Annie White Marshall, '18; Elizabeth Brown, '22; Dorothy Bowron, '23; Nellie Aycock, '20; Lois McClain, '23; Ruth Evans, '22; Elizabeth Ransom, '23; Eunice Legg, and Helen Lewis.

We regret to state that in a recent issue of the "Agonistic" a mistake was made concerning Miss Margaret Sanders, '20, who was said to have married a Mr. Bellingerath. We call your attention to the fact that it is Miss Margaret Shive, also of '20, and not Miss Sanders, who has entered the bonds of wedlock.

and made us forget where we were, so intense and real was the role she assumed, for that one evening. "All the world's a stage"—and some of us are marvelously good players on it. Frances and Mary Ben, we are proud of you!

However, we shine in dramatics, not only on the campus but also in Atlanta. Jo Harvis and Friskey Cooper covered themselves with glory in the Kirmess, given a short while ago. Five years from now, when they re-

Giddie Gossip

Dearest Giddie:

Yes, I didn't catch pneumonia from sitting in the rain at the football game Thanksgiving. Sensible? Why, yes! It is very sensible for boys not to ask girls to go to football games when they know (?) it is going to rain.

And by the way—what do you think one of the Davidson boys wrote K. Johnson the other day? Oh! a letter, of course. But this is what he told her! He said that the faculty had decided that instead of trying to rid the college of the most ignorant students by means of the flunk exit, they are going to purchase and place on the campus several squirrels to rid the campus of these poor nuts! (Miss Laney would say this sentence was ambiguous.) But the point is—why the squirrels on the Agnes Scott campus? $100.00 reward to anyone who can answer this question.

You know, Agnes Scott was some place Thanksgiving night. You can just imagine how good all the girls turn for a vacation from New York, let's hope they come out to Agnes Scott to give a talk on "The all-round education that only Agnes Scott can give."

We know the most thrilling thing about Sarah Fullbright!—but we promised her we wouldn't tell what it was. You will have to ask her. We might even be murdered for saying this much.

looked when so many of them had dates with a "boy from home." M. Gholston looked like a million dollars. She said she didn't want to disappoint X Y Z when he came all the way from Birmingham to see her. But S. Capen says she can wait 'til Xmas to see boys from home. She thinks it much more worth while to make a hit with Emoryites.

Not to change the subject—'cause I could talk about Thanksgiving forever! But I wish my beau (the ideal who is yet to be seen) would decide to go to Spain and give me a parting gift—and then not go. Sounds like a fairy tale, doesn't it? But Montie S. says such things have happened.

Oh! I didn't tell you about P., did I? Yes, he is the greatest living pianist, but his name isn't in the dictionary. So how am I supposed to know how to spell it? Anyway, I've told you about how all the A. S. girls always sit in the balcony. Well—I'll take that back. Elizabeth Cheatham sat in a box and wore a real corsage.

Again—not to change the subject—but "I'm itching to hear from you. That is why I am scratching this letter." AGGLE.

P. S. Do you know Lucile Gauze? One of the boys on the tech team is rushing her and she yelled for Auburn. That is what I call ingratitude!

—or for their little brothers and sisters.

All this, tho', couldn't keep away ne of the most delightful of holidays—Thanksgiving! Nearly everybody went in town, either to the game or a show, Thursday afternoon. Wonder what Dr. Sweet thought about it? And that night—well, after everybody ate so much turkey and good things and had such a good time in the gym afterwards, I'll bet every single girl wishes that Thanksgiving would come more than once a year!

There were loads of former Agnes Scott girls that came back to visit us. Myrtle Murphy was here and Margaret Prowell and Lib Ransom and Dot Bowron and then Hilda came out here, too—and Lib Brown and Alice Whipple.

Oh, yes! and Mary Jarman came, too. She says she's teaching ninety-two little and big boys and girls music. Along with her daily work—and play—comes chaperoning the "younger sets" to "weenie" roasts and parties of all sorts. Imagine it!! Thursday night, from nine-thirty 'til —well, we won't say when, but Nonie had to put an end to the performance, Mary and Frances Bitzer played on the flute and guitar and one by one people from all over third floor—and some on second, too—were drawn into the circle of listeners.

We are glad to see Louise Hannah able to be about again after suffering from a sprained ankle that she got last Saturday while spending the week-end out. She says, tho', that she didn't mind it much. Wonder why? x!

Saturday night there was a very touching scene in Rebekah dining room when the chief mourner and pall-bearers and others closely connected with the deceased brought in the unfortunate corpse of the Varsity hockey team, murdered by an Adequate Adversary (in the form of the Faculty) that afternoon on the hockey team. Our deepest heartfelt sympathies are with the bereaved.

Lucy Oliver, Dorothy Keith, Elizabeth Griffin and Ellen Walker have returned to us once more and words are inadequate to express our joy at seeing them.

The usual bevy of week-end spenders arrived safely Monday morning, and so far we haven't heard of a single girl who is any worse off after spending Thanksgiving and the week-end at home. We certainly are glad, but not half so much as Dr. Sweet.

And we are hoping that George and Grace can soon come out of the infirmary well and sound—'cause we "sho' do" miss them.

Time: Thanksgiving Day at 1 o'clock. Place: Gym—lunch table.

Frank Swinnerton's Lecture Charms Agnes Scott Audience

Personalities of Famous English Authors His Subject

Lecture of Frank Swinnerton at Agnes Scott chapel on Wednesday afternoon at 5 o'clock more than realized even the anticipations of us who have experienced on former occasions the capability of the lecture association in providing us with the most interesting lectures available.

The subject of the lecture in itself was intensely interesting. Mr. Swinnerton sketched the few of the outstanding men of English letters of today, their appearance, their hobbies, their work and their leisure. We learned that Mr. Compton McKenzie is an expert in gramophones besides being a foremost literary man; that Mr. H. G. Wells, besides being able to trace the outlines of the history of the world can trace one's resemblance to a salmon just as unerringly. While we are reading Mr. Swinnerton's own works—and we are certain to read them after hearing the lecture—can we ever forget that, by his own confession he calls his pajamas "Henry"? We will keep the names of Arnold Bennett, Hugh Walpole and John Galsworthy in our hearts as well—as living interesting men, in addition to their position there as authors.

It is, however, just as much because of the style of the lecture as of the subject matter that we will forever after attain such graphic pictures of these lofty names in Britain's Hall of Fame. The informal conversational atmosphere which characterized the whole, the vivid diction, the intimacy and concreteness of the details possible only to one, who, like Mr. Swinnerton, has known the men of whom he talks, personally,—all of these

No Chicken At Sunday Dinner Last Week

Near East Relief Fund Receives Money

At the suggestion of Dr. McCain a vote was taken to decide whether or not the students would be willing to do without part of some meal in order to give the amount that would be thus saved to the Near East Relief Fund. The unanimous vote in favor of this plan showed the desire of the student body to some take part in helping the starving people of the Near East; and, as Lillian McAlpine said, so many of us are trying to reduce that the plan was a great benefit to us also.

On Sunday, December 16th, instead of the regular Sunday dinner, there was a simple but nourishing meal. The dinner had been carefully planned in order to give us the proper number of calories since the usual Sunday chicken was lacking. Some of the girls were even heard to say that they really enjoyed doing without chicken for one Sunday.

The exact amount saved by doing without chicken and by having a nourishing but simple and inexpensive dinner is not yet known. However, it is hoped that the amount will be large enough to mean a great deal to our starving neighbors. The sum, whether large or small, will be given with the true spirit in which the girls denied themselves for the sake of others.

Mathematics Club Holds Meeting

Illustrated Talks On Astronomy Are Given

The Mathematics Club held its regular meeting in the Physics lecture room on Monday evening, December 10th. Miss Howson's Astronomy class had charge of the program and presented some unusually interesting papers on the constellations of the heavens.

One of the interesting bits of information was that the names of the constellations date back to the time when astronomers cared more for personal acquaintance with stars than for scientific classification of them. We could very well understand this fact as we listened to papers being read on Orion, Cassiopeiae, and Persus. The technicalities were first taken up, while Miss Howson illustrated these figures with diagrammed stereopticon slides. The mythological stories connected with the constellations were related, and we had the pleasure of seeing on a larger slide the shapes of the stars as the mythologists saw them.

Stars and poetry are inseparable, as Louise Hendrix pointed out in quoting Tennyson, thus:

"Many nights I saw the Pleiades rising thru the mellow shade, Glitter like a swarm of fireflies tangled in a silver braid."

The constellations were not without their practical value, for Virgil tells us that the farmers were wont to regard the appearance of Libra as an indication for the proper time for sowing grain.

Beautiful White Christmas Service Is Held In Chapel On Sunday Night

The Y. W. White Christmas Service is always lovely, and this year's was no exception. At this service we are all filled with the true spirit of Christmas, pure and white and shining.

On Sunday night, December 16, the girls all went into the chapel to find there a beautiful Christmas tree with each tiny white twig outlined against the dark green background. The chapel was dark except for the light from a tiny white taper bravely shining in each window, as if each must send out a welcoming glow to some lonely heart outside.

The choir filed softly in, all clothed in white, and each girl carrying a shining white candle. As they formed a semi-circle around the tree soft strains of a violin prelude by Miss Pocohontas Wight were heard. The notes of "Silent Night", the silence of the girls, and the white beauty of everything made it easy to go back to that "silent night" when Jesus was born and to feel the deep thrill and wonder of His birth.

Several Christmas carols were sung, among them "First Noel" and "God Rest Ye, Merrie Gentlemen". Frances Gilliland and Lillian McAlpine both sang an appropriate selection. Their songs assure the success of any service since they both have unusually sweet voices, and it was considered especially lucky to have them sing.

The Christmas story, "The First

Faculty Host At Christmas Dinner

The faculty was host to the college community at a lovely Christmas dinner last Friday evening at 6:30. Both the White House and Rebekah Scott dining rooms were beautifully decorated for the occasion with the appropriate and exciting red and green colors of the season. The lights were shaded with red, and long red and green streamers were suspended in loops from the white columns of the dining room. On each table was a shining Christmas tree bedecked with crystal ornaments and lighted with colored candles.

The menu for the dinner contained chicken salad, asparagus on toast, potato chips, hot chocolate, celery, olives, hot rolls, charlotte russe, fruit-cake and mints.

The happiness and excitement usual at Christmas time filled the whole atmosphere at this time, which was a sort of climax to weeks of anticipation. Mrs. Fennell and Mrs. Davies were thanked for their share in making the affair a success by serenades. The faculty in the White House dining room delighted the students by beating them at their own game of singing "Five More Days 'Til Vacation". In reply to "They Say that the Faculty Ain't Got No Pep", the faculty sang "They Say that the Students Ain't Got No Style". The song that brought the most applause was:

"Oh, you wonder why we are so jolly,
We're going home to a house full of holly.
And it won't be long till we see our beau
And stand beneath the mistletoe!"

The traditional singing of the Alma Mater brought to an end a most delightful occasion.

Mr. S.H. Venable Donates Spot For Camp At Stone Mountain

The Athletic Association is very much elated over the prospects for a week-end camp. The other day when President Nancy Evans talked with Mr. Venable, she was all smiles; for this generous man, who, as you know is the owner of Stone Mountain, consented to the setting up of a camp out there for all Agnes Scott girls.

All of the members of the Athletic Board have been particularly active in searching about for a suitable situation for this all famous camp-to-be. And, now, the very spot has been secured. We are told that it is accessible by the bus and also the Stone Mountain car. However, if one should go via the bus, she would be taken almost to the front door of the camp; while if she should go on the Stone Mountain car, she would have a nice two mile hike between her and her cherished goal.

Perhaps, if all goes well, the association can build the camp by spring and have it ready for use then.

Christmas Tree At Agnes Scott

Santa Claus Visits Children From Atlanta

'Twas not "the night before Christmas", nor can we say "not a creature was stirring"; but, nevertheless, old St. Nick visited Agnes Scott last Saturday afternoon. A really, truly, Santa Claus with jingling bells, a pack on his back, and probably some reindeer not far away.

More important, though, than Santa were the hundred and fifty-two little girls and boys who assembled in the gym. What fun they had swinging, playing ball and dropping the handkerchief, and watching anxiously the green curtain behind which they could not have even one peep. But at last Santa himself appeared, and the curtain was drawn back while murmurs of wonder and delight were heard over the room. For there it was, a real Christmas tree with bright candles, shining tinsel and mysterious packages, and under the tree were more packages and baskets of fruit. Santa, with the aid of the Agnes Scott girls, soon unburdened the tree of all but the shining decorations amid a din of horns and drums, and such exclamations, "Oh, my dolly will go to sleep."

After the little folks had been served with ice cream and apples they said good-bye to Santa and their Agnes Scott friends. Their radiant faces told of their happiness and made Christmas twice blessed to those who had a share in giving this happiness.

Two Performances Of Handel's "Messiah" Given By Agnes Scott Choral Society

Agnes Scott is not alone in appreciating the musical talent on her campus. Atlanta joins her in this, as was attested by the large audience present at the recent performance of the "Messiah", in Atlanta.

On December 13 the Agnes Scott Choral Society, augmented by many good voices from Emory, gave a performance of Handel's "Messiah" at the Wesley Memorial Church in Atlanta. The soloists included Miss Margaret Battle, soprano; Miss Strehel Walton, contralto; A. W. Browning, tenor; H. R. Bates, basso, and Mr. Dieckmann, organist. The entire oratorio was given under the direction of Mr. Johnson.

This performance was a notable success, but not more so than was the second rendition of this wonderful oratorio, Sunday afternoon, December 16, in the Agnes Scott Chapel. The solos were unusually good while the choruses fulfilled all expectations. Especially was this true of the Hallelujah chorus, whose mighty melodies caused the very hearts of the audience to thrill with triumphant joy.

The "Messiah" is, perhaps, the finest oratorio ever written. When it is given by well-trained voices under capable direction, as in this case, it is a musical gem. Agnes Scott is glad that the Choral Society introduced the Christmas season for us with this glorious masterpiece, Handel's "Messiah".

Marriage Of Miss Emma Jones To Mr. H. F. Smith Of Montgomery

Ceremony Performed In Decatur Presbyterian Church

"The ring is on my finger,
And the wreath is on my brow;
Satins and jewels grand
Are all at my command,
And I am happy now."

Thus can she, too, sing now—our happy December bride, Miss Emma Legg Jones, Agnes Scott graduate of '18, who was married to Mr. Harwell Fitzhugh Smith, on Wednesday last, December 12th, in the Decatur Presbyterian Church. Rev. Jos. G. Patton, of Atlanta, brother-in-law of the bride, and Dr. D. P. McGeachy, of Decatur Presbyterian Church, officiated, using the Episcopal form of ceremony. Palms and ferns tastefully decorated the church, while the main aisle was a lane of white.

Previous to the appearance of the bridal party Mrs. Lewis H. Johnson rendered a lovely solo, "O Sweet, O Fair, O Beautiful", accompanied by Mr. Christian W. Dieckmann. The ceremony itself was both beautiful and impressive. As the organist played the solemn, sweet tones of Mendelssohn's wedding march, the bridal party came slowly down the aisle: first the maid of honor, Miss Lucy Durr, Agnes Scott graduate, '19, of Montgomery, Ala.; then the bridesmaid, Miss Isabel Randolph; next, the ushers, Mr. Wallace Malone of Alabama, and Mr. Roy Jones, brother of the bride; and lastly, the lovely bride herself, leaning on the arm of her brother, Mr. Claude Jones, who gave her away. She was immediately preceded by her dainty little niece, Katherine Patton, the flower girl, and immediately followed by William McGuire,

Christmas Program At Classical Club

Christmas Carols Are Sung In Latin

Christmas cheer can put a thrill into even a dead language; at least that is the opinion of all those who attended the classical meeting on last Friday night, December 7th.

The Propylean Hall was gay with autumn leaves and Christmas wreaths and tall, red candles. Why, it made one fairly hear sleigh-bells just to see it, and then the program! Everybody sang Christmas carols—"Hark! The Herald Angels Sing", and "Come All Ye Faithful"—in Latin, and it was surprising how familiar they sounded. Mary Palmer Caldwell, Frances Myers, Martha Jackson and Corena Burman read Latinized selections from a Child's Garden of Verses. Janice Brown acted as interpreter, but she really didn't need to, for most everybody caught on all by themselves. Then there were more poems (quite an evening of poetry, wasn't it?)—Latin Mother Goose rhymes, read by Clarkie Davis. "Holy Night" was given as a special number; perhaps that was the loveliest carol of all, but then some of us always did have a special weakness for it, whether in English or Latin.

The surprise of the evening, however, came when a note was received from Old Santa—a note written in Latin. Now, somehow, we had never thought of that jolly old gentleman

We have been sharing here a joyful anticipation of the most wonderful season of the year. There is no happier experience than the moment when the nearness of Christmas time is first realized. We have been thinking and talking about it since September. Then, suddenly and quite by chance, we see a little sprig of holly on the sidewalk—and we know that it's really coming soon. We begin to glow in a quite unashamed and irrepressible manner. We buy a red candle; and, though it's far too early, we place it in our room with a joyous quiver of excitement. We go to the library and conscientiously ask for Division 1, Volume 2, Copy 17 of Schurer and sneak into some quiet corner and feast our souls on "A Christmas Carol" or the "Gift of the Magi". We are silly, and we don't care a bit for the spirit of Christmas is in the very air that we breathe.

In their proper time come the things that best express the many phases of the Yuletide—our first Christmas hymn in chapel, the Christmas tree for Atlanta children, the candle-light at the party in the dining room, the joyous voice of the carollers coming to us out of the darkness, the inspiring music of Handel's "Messiah", and the hushed beauty of the White Service. The spirit of Christmas is a compound of varying emotions, and the events of the past few weeks have touched us in many ways.

We wish you a merry Christmas. We hope that your windows will have holly wreaths in them. We have already enjoyed much of the Christmas season together; and we leave each other with the words of Tiny Tim on our lips, "God bless us every one".

THE JOYS OF TWO CHRISTMASSES.

Agnes Scott students are peculiarly fortunate individuals in many respects that we have no time to mention. But it is at Christmas that they realize how much above the usual portion of man they are blessed. In common with the rest of the world, they have the manifold delights of the Christmas at home with families and friends and Christmas trees and holly and presents and fires and songs that make Christmas the lovely thing it is. In addition to having it, they have the anticipation of having it which is almost as happy a thing.

But it is the Christmas at Agnes Scott that we wish to give thanks for at this juncture. The Christmas dinner is not lacking; the tree is a part of the general joy, for did not the children supplied by the Associated Charities have a glorious time Saturday afternoon? The music, which, after all, is perhaps the most joyful thing in Christmas celebration, has been abundantly present; the Messiah, the Vesper Service at Y. W. C. A. Sunday night, the carols Wednesday morning. What could be nicer than two Christmases?

GOAL FOR RELIEF OF EUROPEAN STUDENTS REACHED.

Through an oversight the "Agonistic" failed to publish in its last issue the amount raised in the Student Friendship Fund Campaign. The goal of five hundred dollars was reached. The Agnes Scott students proved themselves to be generous in gifts to those who are less fortunate than themselves.

The campaign was sponsored by Hoase and Emmie Fichlen was chairman of the committee which did most of the active work of the campaign.

A VISITOR ON THE CAMPUS.

Miss Julia Lake Skinner, a graduate of Agnes Scott, was a welcome visitor at the college last week. She has many friends among the students here who were glad to have her spend even so short a time here. While at Agnes Scott Miss Skinner was vice-president of the Y. W. C. A., and recently she has been attending White's Bible School in New York. She has also been Secretary for Young People's Work in the Presbyterian Church at Knoxville and a Bible Teacher at Montreat.

GRAVEURE IN CONCERT AT AUDITORIUM.

Agnes Scott Students Hear Singer.

The third number of the Civic Concert series was given at the Auditorium, December 11. Mr. Louis Graveure, baritone, appeared in concert. Mr. Graveure has a voice of unusual beauty and richness and gave a program of great beauty. It has been said "That Graveure chooses his program numbers with no idea of exploiting any sensational qualities of voice, but of giving the utmost pleasure to his hearers." This certainly seemed to be his desire at his concert in Atlanta.

His program was composed of four groups of national songs: German, Irish Folk Songs, French, and English and American songs. He was accompanied by Mr. Arpad Sandor, who was exceptionally good as an accompanist. Mr. Sandor also gave a piano solo number during the intermission, which was one of Liszt's most beautiful compositions.

The program was:

- (1) German Songs—
Drei Zigeuner—Liszt.
Auf dem gruenen balkan—Hugo Wolf.
Schoene Wiege Meiner Leiden—Schumann.
Wie Solten Wirgenheim sie halten—Richard Strauss.

- (2) Irish Folk Songs—
Silent, O Moyle.
The Blatherskite.
The Sedges.
The Leprehaun.

- (3) Piano Solo—
Polonaise in E Major—Liszt.

- (4) French Songs—
Les cloches du soir—Franck.
De soir—Debussy.
Mignonne—Chavagnot.
A Toi—Bemberg.

- (5) English and American Songs—
Requiem—Homer.
A Bag of Whistles—Crist.
Mary—Richardson.
Flow Thou Regal, Purple Stream—Samuel Arnold (17th Century).

Some of Mr. Graveure's most beautiful numbers were his encores, among which were: Massenet's "Elegie," Speake's Sylvia" and The Toreador Song from Carmen, and "Tommy Lad."

The concert was enjoyed by a large number from Agnes Scott.

ALUMNAE HOUSE SCENE OF LOVELY WEDDING RECEPTION.

On Wednesday evening the Alumnae House was the scene of a lovely wedding reception following the marriage of Miss Emma Jones to Mr. Harwell Fitzhugh Smith, of Montgomery, Alabama. Immediately after the ceremony the wedding party came to the Alumnae House and, forming a receiving line, greeted the many friends who called during the evening. Besides Mr. and Mrs. Smith there were standing in the parlor, Miss Lucy Durr, of Montgomery, the maid of honor; Miss Isobel Randolph, the bride's maid; Mr. Roy Jones; Mr. Durr, of Montgomery; Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Smith, the mothers of the bride and groom respectively.

The Alumnae House was beautifully decorated for this occasion. In the hall graceful vines hung from the chandelier and were twined among the columns of the stairway. The punch bowl was garlanded with ivy. The parlor and dining room were made beautiful by many bowls of white narcissus blooms. Tall green tapers in silver candle sticks and pale yellow shades on the chandeliers made a soft light throughout the rooms. The table in the dining room was especially artistic in its appointments of silver.

Refreshments of ice cream, shaped as bride's slippers with bright green heels, cake, green and white mints, and parched almonds were served.

After the reception Mr. and Mrs. Smith departed on their wedding trip before going to Montgomery, which they will make their home.

Day Student News

Ruth Guffin always was a timely girl! You may not know it, but it was she who gave that beautiful calendar that is now in the day students' room. No longer do we need to worry about figuring when the next "Aurora" is due, or try to add up the weeks until the Georgia Glee Club will come, all we have to do is run to look at that calendar, which for all its fanciness, is fine for practical purposes, and even has that magic date "19th" encircled in ink for us.

We wonder how anyone could possibly want to leave Atlanta just at Christmas time, but perhaps Martha Carlisle could give specific reasons why Macon may have a few advantages over Atlanta. If anyone even mentions in a casual way, of course, the name of that delightful city, she blushes a very becoming blush, and gets all pepped up. We don't blame her at all, for a little bird told us that Macon had two charming representatives down here about Thanksgiving time, and it was a real time of rejoicing for all concerned. Even the weather could not dampen their spirits.

Joe Anne Cox has a charmed personality, as well as a charming one. We don't know whether she carries a rabbit foot around with her or not, but at any rate the gods of luck were with her one rainy Saturday morning, and did not let any harm come to her even though her car did make a double turn and almost a somersault. Let her tell you the graphic details in her own picturesque way—it's as good as one of Sax Rohmer's most exciting novels.

"Oh here comes Elizabeth Chapman—Oh how in the world do you know? You tell her by her winning smile She has on all the while, She has on all the while."

You also tell her by her literary talents, for she has become a full fledged K. U. B. member, and is starting out on her career as a star reporter. "The pen is mightier than the sword" and we believe Elizabeth will win anything she goes out for.

All of us day students wish all of you just the best Christmas you ever hoped to have. "Till we meet again"—and till you come back to us!

DR. McCAIN EXHIBITS PLANS FOR "GREATER AGNES SCOTT."

On last Thursday Dr. McCain showed to the students, during chapel exercises, the plans which have been made for the "Greater Agnes Scott." He explained something of the ideas of the administration for the carrying on of the work, and he said that it was hoped that a beginning would soon be made. After chapel the pictures of the new buildings were placed in the hall of Main so that they might be examined at close range by the students.

The plans for the new buildings and campus improvements were made by Ralph Adams Cram, America's foremost architect. He has designed buildings for Princeton and Westhampton, besides those for other colleges.

Among the proposed improvements are an administration building, a chapel, an auditorium and student building, a power house, an open air theatre, a gymnasium, a day student building, new dormitories, and a complete renovation of Main Building.

The Gold and Black.

The General Education Board has set aside an endowment fund of $150,000 for Birmingham-Southern. Other gifts this year have been sufficient to endow two new chairs in the college, one, the chair of English Literature, the other, the chair of Physical Education. The "Make It a Million" campaign has been a complete success. We congratulate Birmingham-Southern, and wish her even better fortune.

The Crimson-White.

"The Crimson-White wishes to know the sort of man an Alabama co-ed would marry—whether he would have to have riches, good looks, imbibe an occasional whiskey and soda, or what?" A sort of questionnaire follows as to the characteristics, occupation and social standing of the man a co-ed would choose. We notice that several universities are submitting such questions to their girls, and the answers should be very interesting.

The Salemite.

The students have had the pleasure of hearing Dr. Charles Alphonso Smith, Professor of Literature in the United States Naval Academy, lecture on the subject, "The Most Ominous Statistic that Faces North Carolina Today." Anyone who has read Dr. Smith's "What Can Literature Do For Me?" can realize in a measure how splendid a lecture he gave.

The Davidsonian.

The editor conducts a department called the "Open Forum," for the benefit of those members of the student body, or faculty, who desire to express their opinions on any matter which might arise during the collegiate year." This column is always very interesting and the contributions always worthy of consideration.

The Ward-Belmont Hyphen.

This paper has a department similar to the "Open Forum," called "Speaking to the Student Mind," in which students freely express their honest opinions concerning matters which have been brought to their attention. We consider this an excellent plan to find out what the student body really thinks of conditions in the school.

The Technique.

The Tech Marionettes presented the famous comedy success, "Polly With a Past", at the Atlanta Woman's Club Auditorium Friday night, December 7. The Marionettes have never failed to score a triumph, and they lived up to their splendid reputation this time. And by the way, the pictures of certain members of the cast lent variety to the Technique, besides improving its general appearance.

The Howard Crimson.

The Crimson staff has conceived a very good plan for improving its paper. Each week a class is held in Journalism, especially for the staff members, but others who wish to attend may do so. "It is felt that a better spirit of co-operation and understanding will be gained through these weekly meetings."

Next week the Sophomore class will edit the Crimson. We are looking forward to comparing their issue with the fine Freshman number.

FRANK SWINNERTON'S LECTURE
AUDIENCE.

things gave a charm that was irresistible.

There were some sidelights on Mr. Swinnerton's own works, throughout the lecture that were very interesting. He told of the circumstances under which "Nocturne" was written, the source of inspiration for "Coquette," the autobiographical nature of the material used in "Young Felix," his latest work.

These things were more especially brought out, however, in the "epilogue" of his lecture in which he answered any questions brought up by the audience. Besides the accounts of his own books, during that period he gave personal impressions of Bernard Shaw and A. S. M. Hutchinson, and told his personal conception of the fate of Emmie and Jenny, "Nocturne's" heroines.

The absolute untruth of the theory that all hours are of the same length was proved once and for all from five to six, Wednesday afternoon. Could the time that was spent in so thoroughly delightful a way listening to Mr. Swinnerton, be of the same duration as that spent in—we'll say the laboratory? The clocks say "Yes," but—

Giddie Gossip

Dearest Giddie:

There isn't much use in my writing a letter 'cause I'll soon be home to tell you all this gossip. But some of it just won't even keep a week. So here goes!

You should have been at the Tech Marionette play, about a week ago. Agnes Scott was represented on almost every frat row and E. Coleman and R. McMillan sat in the Sigma Chi box.

As for dances—M. Chapin went to quite a swell one. And it wasn't a B. V. D. (Big Victrola Dance) either. L. Lewis has been to several lately—not that she hasn't been going to them all year!

I've told you a lot about P. Stone, but just can't resist mentioning her again. There is a publisher in Atlanta who has been quite touched by a little poem she wrote called "Goldenrod." So he is going to have some copies printed with holly wreaths around the edge of the folders. Wouldn't it be glorious to be able to express your thoughts in poetry?

And by the way—I mustn't forget about our latest diseases. What would we talk about if some member of our faculty or student body wasn't seized with some malady? It was Miss Dougherty, our nurse, this time. She has appendicitis. Now, that sounds tragic! But if you could see how full of cut flowers, etc., her room is you wouldn't think it was half bad to have appendicitis.

But think of Christmas! I just can't keep my mind off of it. Of course girls are flunking tests daily because they are dreaming of "who I'll be with this time next week." Not that anything of the kind disturbs me in the least, but it seems as if this last week will never pass.

Oh! I was about to forget to tell you about the Davidson Glee Club. There are some certain girls that have had a change of heart since the night it was here. No wonder! You should have seen the good looking boys.

Well, I must end, being as I don't know anything else worth saying.

Yours 'til December 19.

AGGIE.

The Mathematics Club, although only a little over a year old, has thirty-one members and some very enthusiastic officers who are largely responsible for its early success. They are: Cora Morton, President; Maria Rose, Vice-President, and Catherine Carrier, Secretary.

Hem: "That girl over there is sore at me."

Haw: "Why?"

Hem: "I didn't ask her to the dance, and introduced her to a football player, and she must be sore for she hasn't spoken to me since."

MARRIAGE OF MISS EMMA JONES
TO MR. H. F. SMITH, OF MONTGOMERY.

her handsome little nephew, who acted as train-bearer.

The maid of honor and the bridesmaid were most charming in their dresses of orchid, the former wearing georgette and the latter taffeta and silver. Both wore corsages of roses. The bride was exquisitely gowned in white georgette, trimmed with silver and crystal, over white satin. She carried a shower bouquet of Ophelia roses and lilies of the valley.

After the ceremony the bride and groom were given a reception in the Agnes Scott Alumnae House. Mrs. Cragwell, sister of Miss Jones, headed the receiving line.

"Miss Emma Jones" certainly needs no introduction to Agnes Scott. She graduated from here in '18, as stated above, and has ever since claimed a wide circle of friends among us, thanks to her charming personality and untiring loyalty to Alma Mater. As a student she was a member of Gamma Tau Alpha and of Hoasc. Upon graduating she became the secretary of our Alumnae House.

Mr. Smith is associated with a bank of Montgomery, Ala., and to that city the bride and groom have resorted, to "live happy ever afterwards."

MISS EMMA JONES ENTERTAINED AT LOVELY TEA IN ALUMNAE HOUSE.

On Saturday afternoon, December the eighth, the tea room was the scene of one of the loveliest parties ever given there. The occasion was a tea given by Miss Preston and Miss Randolph in honor of Miss Emma Jones, a bride of this week. Miss Jones is one of our Agnes Scott girls. She was secretary of the Alumnae Association up to the time of her marriage, and even though she has not been at Agnes Scott as a student, she has been here in spirit and interest, and has given the girls much assistance in college activities since her graduation.

The guests, including the faculty and a few close friends of the honoree called from 4:30 until 6:00. In the receiving line were Miss Preston, Miss Randolph, Miss Jones and Miss Durr. Miss Preston was gowned in burnt orange velour, Miss Randolph's dress was of white net, Miss Jones wore blue georgette bedaded in bronze, and Miss Durr's costume was of black satin. The house was decorated with bowls of narcissus. On the table were pink and lavender sweet-peas and a doll bridal party in the pastel shades. Pink and white mints, and coffee and sandwiches were served. It was a delightful party, as it should have been for this delightful member of the Agnes Scott Alumnae.

BEAUTIFUL WHITE CHRISTMAS SERVICE IS HELD IN CHAPEL ON SUNDAY NIGHT.

Christmas Tree", was read by Frances Amis. She only gave new evidence of her ability along such lines, for she has shown her talent many times, as President of Blackfriars.

The program was ended with a Christmas hymn, and, as usual, the Y. W.C.A. Benediction. The girls all came away with the feeling that this was the most beautiful service of the year and that the Christmas holidays would be started off in the real Christmas spirit of "Peace on earth, good-will to men."

Miss Mildred Jennings spent Thanksgiving with her parents in Augusta.

There were several guests in Inman for Thanksgiving. Among these were Louise Plumb's aunt and father; Miss Elizabeth Moore, from Shorter College, the guest of Emily Jones; Mr. Leonard, who visited his daughter, Louise, and Miss Sara Johnston, of Macon, who spent the week-end with her sister, Ruth.

Mrs. Henry has returned to her home in Jacksonville after a visit to her daughter, Gertrude.

Mary Guerrant had as her guest for several days her mother.

Miss Christine Lee spent Saturday night with Elizabeth Gregory and Frances Buchanan.

Among those who spent last week-end in Atlanta are Mildred Plunket and Ellen Fain.

On Thanksgiving night a few of the Inman girls enjoyed themselves in a very unique way. Leap-frog, skinning the devil, and other such dangerous games were played in the hall on second floor. The costumes, too, were rather unusual, consisting of either knickers and shirts, or corduroy robes. No severe calamities resulted, though minor bruises were sustained. Those who took part were Misses Mildred Scott, Ruth and Sara Johnston, Edith Richards, Ellen Fain, Grace Augusta Ogden, Aileen Rammage, Edith Richards, Elizabeth Gregory and Frances Buchanan.

Miss Gladys Harbaugh and Miss Peggy Neel spent Sunday in Atlanta as the guest of the former's brother.

The friends of Miss Celia Hirsch, who went to Wesley Memorial Hospital, Tuesday, to have her tonsils removed, will be pleased to learn that she is getting along nicely.

Miss Clyde Passmore was the guest of friends in Decatur, Sunday.

Sunday morning Miss Lillian Middlebrooks' brother stopped for her on his way to Starrsville and took her with him on a pleasant day's visit to her family.

We were glad to see Miss Davis, who has been quarantined in her room since Thanksgiving night, out again Wednesday morning.

Misses Lena Terrel and Rachel Beard, of LaGrange, were the attract-as a Latin scholar. Can't you just imagine him, struggling with irregular conjugations and poring over a Bennet's grammar—all in order to compose a note that would pass muster before A. S. C. Classical Club? Well, anyway, he succeeded, for not even the Latin majors found a faulty construction. "But what did the note say?" you want to know. Oh! that was the best of all. The thoughtful St. Nick had sent Marguerites and punch for his young friends to enjoy. And did they enjoy it? Well, rather.
