LEADING LADIES

SENIOR

MARTHA LIN MANLY

Senior President
Dalton, Georgia

Whether she be shouting lustily through a megaphone, conducting a heated political campaign as Mayor of Rebekah Scott Town, or ably piloting the Senior Class through a varied and checkered career, "Theta" is right there, with an entirely Martha-Lin-ish mixture of sincerity, practicality and foolishness.

ELIZABETH BLALOCK

Senior Secretary-Treasurer
Jonesboro, Georgia

Certainly we agree with Poe about the "tragedy" of fire bells when they call us out in the dead of night for drills, and we might be prone to vent our hatred on the fire chief. But since she is Liz, by morning we have forgiven her enough to be honestly proud of her athletic prowess or to ask—and take—her advice on the intricate details of our Senior caps and gowns and rings.

JOSEPHINE DOUGLASS
Senior Vice-President
Murfreesboro, Tennessee

Just to show the world at large that a college education does not necessarily imply "specs" and furrowed brow and stooped shoulders and superciliousness, the Class of '25 presents unto you Jo—Jo the fair, Jo the lovable, Jo the feature maid of Agnes Scott.

FRANCES ALSTON
Atlanta, Georgia

For three years Frances was so absorbed in cleverly steering her course away from all such annoying trifles as French papers, English themes, history notes and lab. that she failed to sight danger ahead, and thus sailed headlong into ten hours of gym her Senior year. Yet not even this sudden athletic outburst could dampen her continual good spirits.

FRANCES BITZER

Leland, Mississippi

"Bit" and busy strangely begin with the same letter, but she is never too hurried with her various activities—which include even leading the Wednesday night gym dances—to stop and lend a listening ear or give some motherly advice to her loving human brood.

MARY BESS BOWDOIN

Adairsville, Georgia

Though only five feet two, she has managed to master all the history offered, go to the infirmary at intervals and have dinner dates. We "bow down" to her,—but only figuratively, out of consideration for our backs. If she weren't quite so tiny, now

MARY ELIZABETH BREEDLOVE
Valdosta, Georgia

Mary has gaily flitted her way through college to the envy of many of us who found Agnes Scott a greater problem. When she leaves its august portals, may the stronger sex look to their laurels, for few are they who can withstand her glances!

MARY PHLEGAR BROWN
Hendersonville, North Carolina

"Mary Angel" unhesitatingly and uncomplainingly shares anything she possesses with us—be it time, talents, clothes or what-not. And who but an "angel" could lead the A. S. C. choir in such ethereal music?

IDELLE BRYANT

Fort Valley, Georgia

The strangers who at times have mistaken Idelle for a Freshman must surely have judged only by appearance or by the impulsive generosity of her nature. Certainly they did not see her cherished Biology notebook; for such masterpieces as her drawings could only be the results of long training and great wisdom.

LOUISE RYMAN BUCHANAN

Nashville, Tennessee

The engaging boyishness of "Bobs" + the dignity and seriousness of a President of Hoasc + the inimitable magnetism of—well, just Lou herself— = ? It takes no higher Math. to give the answer, for there is but one—it's Lou Buchanan.

LUCILLE CALDWELL
LaGrange, Georgia

Not content with taking all of the different courses in the Biology Department, Sine has even ventured into the important realm of music, loyally attending every Tuesday night sing, in the futile hope of learning to carry a tune.

MARY PALMER CALDWELL
Atlanta, Georgia

The only difficulty which Mary Palmer has ever encountered in a career made very busy by tennis championships, a few majors or so, K. U. B., street-cars and Black-friars is the weighty decision between O.-and-O., and O.-and-O.-B.-F.

CATHERINE CARRIER

Asheville, North Carolina

The Queen of Hearts who made the tarts has a formidable rival in Catherine when she drops those delicious balls of chocolate fudge from her mighty spoon. And we would warn her of those Knaves of Hearts who would steal those balls, lest a certain one capture her heart. It seems rather disrespectful to the cloth to call him a Knave, however.

ELIZABETH CHEATHAM

Atlanta, Georgia

For three years we had marvelled at the skill with which Elizabeth wielded her pen; but not till the advent of Mr. Dubose Hayward did we fully realize what a genius we had in our midst. Some day we expect to find a write-up of "Miss Cheatham's first volume of verse" in the New York Times Book Section, and then we'll "solve that Christmas problem" by sending copies to all our A. S. C. friends.

BRYTE DANIEL

Clinton, South Carolina

We can scarcely blame the ivories of the piano for responding so whole-heartedly to Bryte's merest touch, when a glance from her eye is enough to bring the most of us—and certain of the supposedly more intrepid sex as well—to her feet at once.

AGATHA DEAVER

Brevard, North Carolina

The traffic jams of Atlanta worry Agatha no more than would a few vehicles on a country road. Her efficiency climaxes in the fact that she can always be counted upon to keep an appointment exactly on the dot, and that she often reports to class ten minutes before the bell! She is hurried but never flurried—a rare achievement at Agnes Scott.

RUTH ERNESTINE DRANE

Columbus, Georgia

"Hark, hark, the Lark!" One can tell Ruth not only by her winning smile, but also by her even more winning voice. She has another rare quality, for she is among those who are willing to take the bushel measure off of their candles and let the rest of the world enjoy their talents.

ARAMINTA EDWARDS

Atlanta, Georgia

Time can be measured by Araminta's innumerable trips home. The one weekend which she spent at Agnes Scott has become proverbial, for it actually took the lure of the Davidson Glee Club to bring about such an unusual event.

ISABEL FERGUSON

Waynesville, North Carolina

Izzie competes for dramatic cups at Chicago and combats the fire of the Newcomb and Randolph-Macon debating teams with an effortless ease, worthy of Patrick Henry himself, and still she has had energy enough to s-h-h-h-h Rebekah Scott lustily every night when the quarter-of-ten riot breaks forth.

WALKER FLETCHER

Jackson, Tennessee

When Walker comes around, we can see the humor of a rainy, drizzly Monday, the wit of no mail, and the funny side of four tests on a stretch. But there is a great deal of sensible solidness beneath this continual humor. Her outstanding loyalty makes her a wonderfully true friend and she is never too busy to advise, never too tired to assist.

SARA FULLBRIGHT

Atlanta, Georgia

Even though, in great love of antiquity, she was usually to be found entranced by Greek odes and Latin dialogues, nevertheless Sara daily found time to emerge and participate in that most modern form of amusement—the tea room.

LEILA FRANCES GARDNER

Dccatur, Georgia

The all-embracing sympathy of Frances would like to mother all the unfortunates in the world, we know. It is well that the world is a rather large one, after all, because otherwise we fear the supply would give out before Frances' zeal could be satisfied.

LUCILE GAUSE
Stockton, Alabama

Blue and Gold are Lucile's colors—not only because they are also Auburn's, but because they stand for sincerity and warmth as well.

ALICE CAROLYN GREENLEE
Decatur, Georgia

The day students—among whom Alice holds an important place—are not the only ones acquainted with the fact that she has many friends everywhere,—even in Jacksonville, Florida(!)

ELIZABETH W. GRIFFIN
Anderson, South Carolina

"Lit" interprets those mystic letters "K. U. B." as "Keeps U Busy." We who look on only marvel that it has not kept her too busy to Silhouette and Blackfriar and bridge as well.

RUTH LEANNA GUFFIN
Atlanta, Georgia

Ruth began to make herself famous for her chemical ability when, as a fair Sophomore, she became an undergraduate assistant in Chemistry. Moreover she can break hearts as well as records and test tubes. Her charm rules over friend and task and Florence flask.

LOUISE HANNAH

Thomaston, Georgia

Louise never had any great difficulty in deciding which was more worthy of her time—K. A.'s or a higher education,—but she somehow found time to acquire both.

RUTH ELIZABETH HARRISON

Montezuma, Georgia

Ruth possesses such evident feminine charm that it is difficult to imagine her assuming a masculine role of any description. But in "I Promise" the sheik-like sheen of her hair and the easy grace of her just-a-little-bit-too-broad-shouldered tux caused unforgivable havoc in the hearts of several visiting girls—at least that is what they say.

GERTRUDE CATHERINE HENRY
Jacksonville, Florida

It requires no exceptional endowment of the native mental capacities to forecast a post-graduate career for Henry, since in three years she has managed to marry off two roommates. There is no doubt that she will conduct an extensive matrimonial bureau, unless she should decide to relieve the suspense and marry one of her many suitors.

VERA HICKMAN
Oakland, Florida

Not only is Vera a "jolly good fellow," but she is likewise a shark in Math. and Physics. She literally trips over wires and figures that would make an ordinary person grind and groan. We have noticed another occupation—one that looks rather suspicious—star-gazing.

ANNA MARGARET HINES

Rowland, North Carolina

"Maggie," as her roommate affectionately calls her, came to us only last year, but meanwhile she has found time to rise high in classical circles and in our hearts, and to develop a passion for gym and all thereto pertaining.

SALLIE ELIZABETH HORTON

Tuscaloosa, Alabama

Although she is the littlest member of the Class of '25, yet Sallie does not leave the smallest place in the hearts of her classmates. For this little Alabama girl—yea, Alabama!—has endeared herself to all of us. Here's hoping she may always emerge as happily from "scrapes" as she has during college.

MARGARET LEYBURN HYATT

Norton, Virginia

One might think that Agnes Scott expects Peg to be a millionaire by the training she gives her in the art of handling money. She has been treasurer of both Pi Alpha Phi and the Y. W. C. A., and the latter even went so far as to send her to New York to investigate Wall Street.

MARTHA COBB JACKSON

Decatur, Georgia

Those who have been taking coaching lessons from "Jack" will be surprised if her income tax does not rank with Henry Ford's. Though her attainments in Latin and other scholastic subjects have won her a place on the honor roll, she is not at all one-sided, for her prowess in baseball, hockey and track, have helped the Class of '25 to gain many of its sundry championships.

ROSALIND JANES
Griffin, Georgia

What girl in school does not know of "Tootsie" Janes—of her happy disposition, her letters from Marco, her tricks and pranks? Meanwhile, she has managed to be tactful enough to hide her brains from the rest of us, and only her reports attest to the fact that she is not insignificant in the classroom.

ANNIE BARNES JOHNSON
Decatur, Georgia

We are tempted to call Annie a "Jack-of-all-trades"—including hearts—both because of her versatility and the added significance of the "Jack." The only trouble is that in her case the proverb does not hold true.

RUTH JOHNSTON
Macon, Georgia

Ruth takes everything on the fly—from campus jaunts to her dignified Senior cap. She does all work, talking included, in double-quick time, and thus has many hours left to devote to making herself an authority on the latest shows, the latest fashions and the financial affairs of the Silhouette.

MARY ELIZABETH KEESLER
Charlotte, North Carolina

When not even the hockey balls are proof against her, when even all-star teams open up their ranks to her without a question, how can we poor mortals expect to resist Mary's golden hair and charm?

DOROTHY KEITH

Greenville, South Carolina

To see her tripping the light fantastic in the gym, or serving a feast in 34 Rebekah after lights, who would imagine that every Thursday night the same young lady in a frenzy faces the endless problem of news for the Aggie, or dashes off editorials on the mentality of a college student? Combining charm and journalism is a secret all Dot's own.

EUNICE CLOUD KELL

Pascagoula, Mississippi

Those of us who knew Eunice as a trembling Freshman little guessed that some day she would be the guardian spirit of the "Maniacs"—but we will all agree that she makes a mighty good guardian spirit in spite of her "shoos."

MARGARET LADD

Cheraw, South Carolina

Margaret's strange sixth sense for learning the events of exciting interest on the campus, which supplies her with much material for conversation, is matched only by her zoological knowledge. (She has made a specialty of Campbells and cats.)

FRANCES WILLARD LINCOLN

Marion, Virginia

It would be a hard matter for any one smaller than "Sticks" to possess as many good qualities or do as many things—from captivating the ladies as a man in Blackfriars, to sending a basket-ball in the right direction, and above all, piloting the Y. W. C. A. so that it has meant much to A. S. C. this year in spirit, friendliness, fellowship and service.

VIRTUALLY ABOVE ALL

GEORGIA MAY LITTLE
Atlanta, Georgia

An unforgettably correct butler in the Freshman stunt, a Sophomore Class President who struck terror in every Freshman heart, a haughty Headsman in Sir David Wears a Crown, a venerable Mr. Lawrence in Little Women, the amorous Lysander of Midsummer Night's Dream,—by these roles she gained fame on Agnes Scott's stage, but our abiding love she has won apart from the footlights' glare—as "George" herself.

JOSEPHINE LOUISA MARBUT
Lithonia, Georgia

After trying Wesleyan for a year, Josephine Louisa decided in favor of A. S. C. and Tech., and here, in living up to her biological theories, she has "evolved" into "Jo." Psychology alone rivals her biological interests and when she is far-famed as a psycho-analyst we will claim a share in her glory, for it was by experimenting on us that she got her start.

LARSEN MATTOX
Moultrie, Georgia

We may remember Larsen as gracefully proffering checks to lionized lecturers, tearing up the World Court and the Immigration Bill in Pi Alpha Phi or in various other ways, but never can we forget her as the author of our Junior Play—that all-star cast production and its big First Night. We predict for her an endless succession of masterpieces in an atmosphere of footlights and grease paint.

LILLIAN MIDDLEBROOKS
Starrsville, Georgia

We all envy Lil because she has a good-looking brother in Atlanta who stops by the college on his way to Covington and takes her home for the week-end. The rest of the week, typing papers for Miss Hearon, vocalizing for Mr. Johnson and I G-ing for Miss Randolph, keeps Lil busy, but not too busy to "laugh and stay fat."

FRANCES CAROLYN MOORE

Atlanta, Georgia

When Frances found that Emory was nicer than Mercer, she garnered her Freshman credits from Wesleyan, and came to Agnes Scott. She has become an invaluable member of the study (?) class in the basement of the library; not only for her wonderful class notes, but for her "lovely locks," whose golden glints have proved to be at once the envy and inspiration of all. Yet, with all her scholastic ability, she finds Education "a great problem."

ANNE LeCONTE MCKAY

Macon, Georgia

That she is a member of Blackfriars, that she makes out the programs for Y. W., and that she is an excellent poster artist is generally known. But (sh-h-h-h—this is a deep, dark secret), she is a cousin of Sidney Lanier—and maybe she is waiting to surprise us with "Poems: by Anne McKay."

MARY ANN MCKINNEY

Nacogdoches, Texas

"Mack" has been one of Agnes Scott's headliners, both in the extraordinary breadth of her interests—which include everything from being an exceptionally popular Student Government President to "presenting Wall"—and in the depth of her devotion to her two "sisters."

RUTH WHITING OWEN

Springfield, Massachusetts

Ruth is a little person, quiet and demure, but she wields a wicked racket. In spite of their crushing defeats on the courts, however, her friends all love her for her readiness to help and her sympathy in anything from a "delayed" date to a flunk slip.

CLYDE PASSMORE
Albany, Georgia

Clyde surpasses more than a few of us in her undying good humor and her devotion to the Agonistic. In the latter she is part of both the reportorial and circulatory systems.

MARTHA E. PENNINGTON
Greensboro, Georgia

Not even the slings and arrows of Math. XXXVI or Physics lab. could ruffle Martha's serenity and cheerfulness and general good-will.

EUGENIA PERKINS
Augusta, Georgia

Presenting: "The Four P's." A vivid dramatization. Pep, Photography, Personality and Perkins. Principally and pricelessly Photography.

MARY WALKER PERRY
Russelville, Kentucky

Walkie, for the first time in her college career separated from Mr. and Mrs. Peck, has managed to recover her spirits sufficiently to be one of the gayest and most popular members of the Gaines set.

LUCILLE WOODLEY PHIPPEN

Decatur, Georgia

To help Mrs. Sydenstricker correct our Bible notes may seem a superhuman task to some of us, but Lucille finds in it merely a little exercise as she pursues her serene and steadfast way.

MILDRED MARTHA PITNER

Washington, Georgia

Mildred has been one who has made a better academic record than the majority of us and has still found time for a great many other things, including Blackfriars, Pi Alpha Phi, numerous trips to Atlanta, and many dates.

JULIA FICKLEN POPE

Washington, Georgia

Those who know Julia most intimately will always remember her as the girl who knows more funny songs than any other girl in school. But Julia has other claims to fame: a spirit always willing to help another, and an intellect capable of conquering even the intricacies of Greek.

CATHERINE CARRIER RANDOLPH

Asheville, North Carolina

Catherine combines a beauty, which is not just skin deep, with a variety of interests. Among the latter we have recently noticed a passion for airplanes. Some day we are expecting her to come back and visit us in one.

MARGARET FRANCES ROGERS
Atlanta, Georgia

Dates, dances and the skillful juggling of frat pins rescue Margaret from the sorrows of ennui. At odd times she is wont to rush out to A. S. C., where you may find her reading French in an enviably casual and expert way; or carrying on that patronage of the tea-room which is prominent among her academic activities.

JACQUELINE CAMPBELL ROLSTON
Staunton, Virginia

Jack, a true Virginian from the Valley, has accomplished the remarkable. She attained the dignity of Senior member of Exec. and became a bobbed-haired flapper the same year.

MARIA KIRKLAND ROSE
Charlotte, North Carolina

If ever you want to get anything done quickly and certainly, just ask Maria Rose. The North Carolina Club knew that when they made her their President last year. The Y. W. knew it when they put her on Cabinet Commission. Maybe Miss Davis knows it, too. If she doesn't, why does she give her all the 'rithmetic to do by herself when it takes a whole class to do the reading and 'riting?

FLOY HILDA SADLER
Oakland, Florida

Who would think that Floy, of the Florida drawl and the easy-going grin, could devour term-papers and History notes with such fiendish zeal and dispatch? She is the despair and envy of the less fortunate ones of us who must needs wrestle hours with the tortures while she goes light-heartedly in to the Metropolitan.

EMMIE SAXON
Atlanta, Georgia

Emmie has made her Psych. major of practical value by applying its principles to the problems of daily life. With her gentle, unassuming manner she has found a place in our hearts, and in that of a certain dark-haired individual as well.

JOSEPHINE SCHUESSLER
Columbus, Georgia

Jo is one of the "fastest" girls in school, for she broke an inter-collegiate record in track in 1923. During her Senior year, she managed discussion groups equally as well as hurdles.

CAROLYN SMITH

Covington, Georgia

They say that the college is going to establish a chair of "General Business and Property Manager for Publications and Plays" and put Carolyn there for life. The Agonistic has been heard to breathe a sigh of gratitude, for it has been wondering what on earth it would do when Carolyn should abandon the helm.

CHARLOTTE SMITH

Atlanta, Georgia

While the rest of her classmates were borne past her, overcome by the rapid fire of Anglo-Saxon verbs, this Charlotte, the independent and efficient, "went on cutting bread and butter," like the immortal one of Thackeray.

ELLA BLANTON SMITH
Atlanta, Georgia

Perhaps it is with her ever-ready sympathy and interest that Ella has successfully drawn from the hearts and pocket-books of Atlanta's business magnates the wherewithal for the Silhouette.

VIOLA ANNA SMITH
Wauchula, Florida

When one thinks of all the good things brownies do, one will know at once that this "Brownie" is a real one, even if she did outgrow the rest, and even if she does live in the land of orange blossoms instead of fairy land.

MARGERY MAYHEW SPEAKE

Huntsville, Alabama

Our sympathy would make us say a few words in defense of the editor, but stern justice stays our pen. At least, kind reader, let us pass on in tolerant silence.

EMILY ANN SPIVEY

Eatonton, Georgia

Spivey and stars go together—in sweaters as well as in initials. The series includes school-spiritedness, too, but at this point Emily characteristically breaks the alliteration and all records by including in her varied career the gym, good-fellowship and giddy gossip.

SUSIE VALLOTTON STOKES

Savannah, Georgia

We wondered how the Professor had been able for as long as he did to resist leading one of Agnes Scott's "least, but by no means, last" daughters in the path of her ex-roommate. We wish he had refrained a little longer—but we can scarcely blame him!

MARIANNA WALLIS STROUSS

Atlanta, Georgia

The varying aspects of her relations with Agnes Scott accuse her of a fickle nature. She has been a boarder, an absentee at Shorter, a day student, they say. The only answer to the charge is Marianna herself,—our Marianna, with her constant service and quiet serenity.

SARAH TATE
Fairmount, Georgia

Among the rest of us who merely form part of the "madding throng" of ever-increasing bobbed-haired brunettes, Sarah's long flaxen tresses would mark her out as unique even if she had not a definite individuality of character as well.

SUSAN FRANCES TENNENT
Augusta, Georgia

After many petitions to the faculty and consultations with the Advanced Standing Committee, Frances has finally convinced them that knowledge can be obtained elsewhere than at Agnes Scott. Meanwhile, she has convinced us that happiness can only be attained within the protecting walls of her Paradise on earth—Augusta, Georgia.

EUGENIA RUTHERFORD THOMPSON

Birmingham, Alabama

So big is "Eu's" heart that it not only envelops all of Agnes Scott, the Orphans' Home and the Associated Charities, but it even expands to include a nearby university in the warmth of its generous affection.

MARY BELLE WALKER

Augusta, Georgia

To any one but Belle there would be quite a come-down from the handling of six thousand dollars of A. S. C. budget to the first-year-out-of-college salaries that the cold, cold world grudgingly bestows. But since she is her own efficient, dependable, lovable self, we are expecting for her a pay envelope even outweighing the A. S. C. Student Treasury.

ELLEN AXSON WALKER

Summerville, South Carolina

We crave nothing better than to compose a separate eulogy on each of Ellen's evidences of genius—the casual way she flips a basket-ball through a hoop; her poise in chatting with lecturers great and renowned; her charm behind footlights; the dignity she achieves as President of Pi Alpha Phi; the loveliness of the poems she writes; her versatility in B. O. Z., not to mention the way she wears a shiny black shingle bob and uses a certain pair of blue eyes. We could go on, but those who do not know Ellen would never believe us, and those who do would find us quite inadequate. For of course there is no definition of Ellen but—Ellen.

POCAHONTAS WIGHT

Richmond, Virginia

Pocahontas wears the scalps of all the debating teams around proudly on her belt, but this fact does not interrupt the slow and stately grace with which she moves about the campus and with which she has justified her sobriquet.

ELIZABETH LOUISA WOLTZ
Gastonia, North Carolina

After Betsey had been here a year, she decided to stay nearer home, but she liked us so well she had to come back. We are very glad she did, for she has shown a keen interest in everything on the campus—especially in Biology: she makes more "Field"-trips than are required for the class.

MARGARET RUTLEDGE WOOD
Bainbridge, Georgia

"Mag" has managed her half-dozen frat pins with the same skill she has used in meeting all of her weighty responsibilities—such as keeping a dog on third floor Main and weathering the storm of History V.

MARY BEN WRIGHT
Atlanta, Georgia

Footlights and flaming red hair—there you have our Mary Ben. Equally expert in guiding the destinies of Blackfriars, in washing the hands after the method most approved on the Continent, in imparting cheer with that smile and "Hey, there!" of hers, Mary Ben has made for herself an enviable place in the hearts of us all.

EMILY QUINN ZELLARS
Decatur, Georgia

Whether in the capacity of day student or boarder, Emily has always maintained her wit and good humor, even in the face of such obstacles as hockey games and history term papers. She lifts our spirits and always manages to keep hers high.

CHARLES MCCAIN

Decatur, Georgia

Holding the unique position of being the only representative of the sterner sex in this class of 82 has not the least intimidating effect on Charles, who calmly rolls his big blue eyes around and even seems to enjoy his predicament.

Senior Class History

IN the Fall of 1921 the curtain rose on a four-act play that was to be unique. The cast that arrived just in time for the first act was composed of 176 girls, short and tall, blonde, brunette and nondescript, all members of the Class of 1925. They knew neither lines nor cues but they were so very self-confident that the management was momentarily impressed and ordered the play to begin.

The coach was a stern man, but a wise one and he used the device of a play within a play to prove to the cast that their knowledge of stage technique was extremely rudimentary. He allowed them to produce a stunt and "It Might Have Been" a success but for "An Event Which Took Place at the Cap and Merrie Pig-tail." The class's self-esteem was further reduced by its discovery that it could not play hockey, but as its self-confidence decreased its ability increased. After the first three basket-ball games the team was invincible, and when Track day was over the Freshman class had won first place.

The zeal of the cast never flagged. They tried out for every organization on the campus and were inconsolable when they discovered that Hoase and Gamma Tau were not open to them. But consolation for all their woes—past, present and future—came on February 14, 1922, when they discovered that the Juniors were interested in them for more than professional reasons.

The beginning of the second act found the cast in high favor with themselves and the powers that ruled. Only the black cat found their company undesirable and persisted in ignoring their charms and achievements. Thirteen members wore the A. S. that year and the class held the championship in basket-ball, baseball and track. The cast gloried still more in the radiance reflected from their august sister class and enjoyed to the fullest the prestige that attended their position.

Three great sorrows came very close to the Sophomore class in the Spring of 1923: the death of a dearly loved and admired classmate, the death of the president, and the death of the head of the English department.

The curtain rose on the third act to find the cast hunting diligently, not for an honest man, but for Sophomore sisters. The question was not how to find one, but how to choose. The plot had thickened decidedly by this time, and the cast, contrary to all the rules of playwriting, had narrowed down to about half the original number. It was further depleted by the elopement of Rosamonde Neisler who joined the ranks of those who prefer an immediate M.R.S. to an eventual A.B.

The action climbed steadily toward the climax in the second scene of this act. Every incident looked forward either to the Junior-Senior Banquet or to the next and final act. The ever-to-be-remembered February 14 rolled around and was celebrated by the sending of Valentines which bore a much more thrilling message than the usual one. In athletics the Juniors held their own, triumphing once more in basket-ball and track. The energy expended in selling chocolate and peanuts and in producing Larsen's play was amply rewarded by the success of the Junior-Senior Banquet, and the curtain fell upon a joyful scene, the terrace of East Lake Club with a full moon rising over the water.

The last act started briskly with a long-hoped-for triumph. The Class of '27, the sister class of the players, won the black cat. That excitement was quickly followed by the one of selecting rings and invitations, and finally by the to-be-compared-with-no-other thrill of Investiture, when they were assured that the right to don cap and gown was really theirs. The romantic element of the play again came to the fore, when Susie Stokes followed in the footsteps of her roommate and left a Georgia campus to keep house on a North Carolina faculty row.

This act saw the ground broken for the new gymnasium, and the cast rejoiced with the audience but it was also saddened a little to know that it could not swim in the new pool nor perform on its stage except in the capacity of visiting alumnae.

In the second scene, to the continuous pleasures of Senior coffee, camping trips to Stone Mountain, and the exercise of Senior privileges, was added such notable occasions as the 22d of February when the Seniors put off the dignity of cap and gown for the dignity of wigs and hoop skirts. The climax came at the end of the play when the cast, seasoned players now, assembled one and all on the stage for a grand finale.

For some it has been a short play, for some long; some call it a comedy and others would class it with the tragedies. But the cast agrees on this at least, that it hopes that the audience has enjoyed watching as it has enjoyed playing, and that it will demand many curtain calls in the years to come.

GEORGIA MAY LITTLE,

Class Historian.

Last Will and Testament of the Senior Class

STATE OF GEORGIA,
DEKALB COUNTY.

WE, the Class of 1925, making no rash claims, but believing ourselves to be of relatively sound and adequate mind, although dented and crinkled and frayed at the edges, on account of the struggles of the past four years, do hereby declare this to be our Last Will and Testament.

Item I. We do hereby declare all previous documents, wills, statements, claims, papers, testimonials, etc., null and void.

Item II. We, the Senior class, do bequeath to the Class of '26 the following privileges and everything they entail:

1. Attending meals at the time most suited to their convenience.
2. Using lights after the younger and less mature students have retired.
3. Our seats in chapel, and the first stanzas on which we pass out.
4. The wearing of caps and gowns, and so-called accompanying dignity.

Item III. I, Frances Alston, do bequeath my regular attendance at classes and my punctuality to Nancy Lou Knight.

Item IV. We, Frances Bitzer, Isabel Ferguson and Eunice Kell, do hand down our nocturnal perpetual motion machine—the “shooer”—to future house presidents. Only take out a patent for it, and you will become famous.

Item V. I, Idelle Bryant, do will my boisterous, self-assertive nature to Josephine Houston.

Item VI. I, Mary Bess Bowdoin, do leave my athletic prowess on the hockey field to Edith Richards.

Item VII. I, Elizabeth Blalock, do will my double shuffle to Martha Childress and Sarah Slaughter, realizing that there is enough for you both.

Item VIII. I, Mary Breedlove, do will the date space I paid for as a Freshman to Margaret Gunn and Jennie Dell Simms, and the upkeep of the phone pad to Helen Farmer. Both are good investments.

Item IX. I, Mary P. Brown, do leave my leadership on the dance floor to Evelyn Kennedy, and the Y. W. musical programs to Frisky Cooper.

Item X. We, Walker Fletcher and Louise Buchanan, do leave our affection for Mr. Toots Green and John Wesley Weeks, respectively, to Dora Ferrell and Cepheise Cartwright.

Item XI. I, Lucille Caldwell, do will my total indifference to Carrie Graham.

Item XII. We, Mary Palmer Caldwell and Sarah Tate, do leave to Margaret Neel our neatness of coiffure. Both doses at once may prove more effective.

Item XIII. I, Elizabeth Cheatham, do leave my habitual Buster Brown collars to Jo Walker, and my pull with the faculty in general to Virginia Peeler.

Item XIV. I, Bryte Daniel, do most willingly leave to Eloise Harris, Eleanor Bennett, or anyone who wants it, my accommodating playing in the gym, on the occasion of Monday and Wednesday nights.

Item XV. I, Agatha Deaver, do leave my immaculate marcelled hair to Jo Bridgman, hoping that she will preserve it as well as I have.

Item XVI. I, Josephine Douglass, leave my bids to all fraternity dances to Betty Little, knowing that she is in sad need of same.

Item XVII. I, Araminta Edwards, do will to future summer school students my popularity at Cornell University, my serious-mindedness to Margaret Gholston, and my best record, "Insufficient Sweetie," to Evelyn Sprinkle.

Item XVIII. I, Ruth Drane, do leave to Catherine Mock my expressive eyebrows and facial expressions during choral singing.

Item XIX. I, Sarah Fullbright, do leave my mathematical mind to Nellie Richardson, and to Ellen Douglass Leyburn my rather speedy speech.

Item XX. I, Frances Gardner, do leave my seat in the front row of the choir to Marcia Green, and my sunny smile to Allene Ramage.

Item XXI. I, Lucille Gause, do will my violent temper to Mary Ella Hammond, with the sincere wish that she may control it better than I have.

Item XXII. I, Alice Greenlee, do bequeath my hair to Louisa Duls, earnestly hoping that some of the brilliance manifested on the outside may osmore to the inside.

Item XXIII. I, Elizabeth Griffin, do will my French accent and "Polly-voing" to Blanche Carson Berry.

Item XXIV. I, Ruth Guffin, do hand down my weak mind, especially along chemical lines, to Grace Augusta Ogden.

Item XXV. We, Ruth Harrison and Rosalind Janes, do will our midnight oil can to Ellen Fain. The supply is running low, though, and will need refilling pretty soon. May it serve you well, as it did us.

Item XXVI. I, Louise Hannah, do hand down to Edith Gilchrist, my "specs," and to Lucia Nimmons my permanent wave.

Item XXVII. I, Gertrude Henry, having in the course of three years married off two roommates, do hereby renounce all claims or weaknesses I may have had toward matrimony, and do bequeath to Leila Bell my intention of forever remaining single.

Item XXVIII. I, Vera Hickman, do leave my artistic temperament to Leone Bowers, and to Ethel Littlefield my all-roundness.

Item XXIX. I, Margaret Hines, do will my place in the minuet to Susan Rose.

Item XXX. We, Sallie Horton and Elizabeth Shaw, having worn them out, do will our humorous and sun-dry wads of chewing gum to Reba Bayless and Middy Morrow.

Item XXXI. I, Margaret Hyatt, do will my unprecedented frankness to Helen Bates, and my laugh to Mary Knox.

Item XXXII. I, Annie Johnson, do leave to any and all Psychology students my younger brother. Examples to suit any cases arising in this course may be secured here.

Item XXXIII. I, Ruth Johnston, do will to Margaret Tufts my efficiency and my speedy speech.

Item XXXIV. I, Mary Keesler, do leave my voice and accompanying blush to Hazel Huff and Emilie Ehrlich.

Item XXXV. I, Dorothy Keith, having found that I have no further need of it, do will my legal mind to all History majors, and Jo North in particular, knowing that it will be of use, not only in History classes, but also at all teas and social functions given by that department.

Item XXXVI. I, Margaret Ladd, do leave my ability to put things over on exec. together with all my "inside dope" to Virginia Grimes.

Item XXXVII. I, Frances Lincoln, do leave my ability to jump center to Grace McLaurin. To Edythe Carpenter, my promptness at meals, and my appropriate name of "Sticks" to Rachel Henderlite, b'gorry!

Item XXXVIII. I, Georgia May Little, do leave my mannish role in Blackfriar plays to Mary Freeman.

Item XXXIX. I, Martha Lin Manly, do leave my morose temperament and snobbishness to Sarah Smith.

Item XL. I, Josephine Marbut, do leave my boomerang voice to the student body and to Eleanor Berger, in particular, to be used on such occasions as the Intercollegiate Debate and Freshman-Sophomore Stunt Night.

Item XLI. I, Larsen Mattox, leave my capacity for the daily theme eye to all future Freshmen and my production of Broadway plays to Florence Perkins.

Item XLII. I, Lillian Middlebrooks, do leave to Dorothy Owen all those qualities which fit me for roles from the part of William to Patrick Henry.

Item XLIII. I, Frances Moore, do bequeath my love of Chemistry V and VI to Olivia Swann.

Item XLIV. I, Anne McK y, do leave my short and accommodating name to Mary Virginia Elizabeth Frances Louise Lucy Richie Riviere.

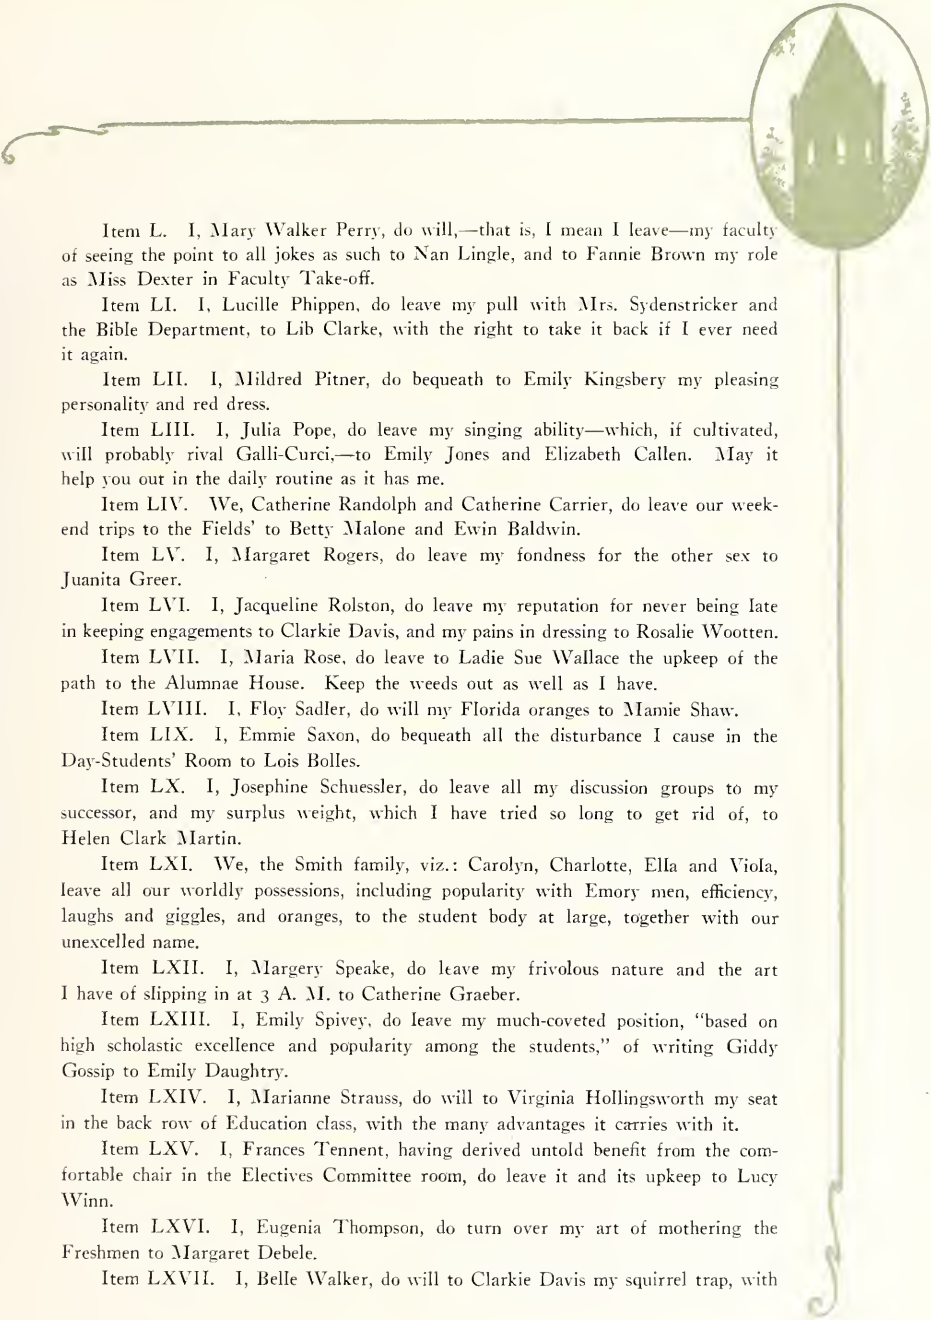

Item XLV. I, Mary Ann McKinney, do leave to Virginia Browning the chair in Miss Hopkins' office, with the hint that it would "sit" better if the bottom were re-cushioned.

Item XLVI. I, Ruth Owen, do leave my shock of hair to Edith Brown and to Marguerite Burnley my tennis racket.

Item XLVII. I, Clyde Passmore, do leave my extreme versatility, especially in Psychology and Education classes, to Margaret Bull.

Item XLVIII. I, Martha Pennington, do leave to Blanche Haslam my interest in the Physics Department, and my sylph-like form to Charlotte Higgs.

Item XLIX. I, Eugenia Perkins, do leave my tireless energy to Mary Martha Lybrook, realizing that she needs it all, otherwise I would leave half of it to Margaret Whittington.

Item L. I, Mary Walker Perry, do will,—that is, I mean I leave—my faculty of seeing the point to all jokes as such to Nan Lingle, and to Fannie Brown my role as Miss Dexter in Faculty Take-off.

Item LI. I, Lucille Phippen, do leave my pull with Mrs. Sydenstricker and the Bible Department, to Lib Clarke, with the right to take it back if I ever need it again.

Item LII. I, Mildred Pitner, do bequeath to Emily Kingsbery my pleasing personality and red dress.

Item LIII. I, Julia Pope, do leave my singing ability—which, if cultivated, will probably rival Galli-Curci,—to Emily Jones and Elizabeth Callen. May it help you out in the daily routine as it has me.

Item LIV. We, Catherine Randolph and Catherine Carrier, do leave our week-end trips to the Fields' to Betty Malone and Ewin Baldwin.

Item LV. I, Margaret Rogers, do leave my fondness for the other sex to Juanita Greer.

Item LVI. I, Jacqueline Rolston, do leave my reputation for never being late in keeping engagements to Clarkie Davis, and my pains in dressing to Rosalie Wootten.

Item LVII. I, Maria Rose, do leave to Ladie Sue Wallace the upkeep of the path to the Alumnae House. Keep the weeds out as well as I have.

Item LVIII. I, Floyd Sadler, do will my Florida oranges to Mamie Shaw.

Item LIX. I, Emmie Saxon, do bequeath all the disturbance I cause in the Day-Students' Room to Lois Bolles.

Item LX. I, Josephine Schuessler, do leave all my discussion groups to my successor, and my surplus weight, which I have tried so long to get rid of, to Helen Clark Martin.

Item LXI. We, the Smith family, viz.: Carolyn, Charlotte, Ella and Viola, leave all our worldly possessions, including popularity with Emory men, efficiency, laughs and giggles, and oranges, to the student body at large, together with our unexcelled name.

Item LXII. I, Margery Speake, do leave my frivolous nature and the art I have of slipping in at 3 A. M. to Catherine Graeber.

Item LXIII. I, Emily Spivey, do leave my much-coveted position, "based on high scholastic excellence and popularity among the students," of writing Giddy Gossip to Emily Daughtry.

Item LXIV. I, Marianne Strauss, do will to Virginia Hollingsworth my seat in the back row of Education class, with the many advantages it carries with it.

Item LXV. I, Frances Tennent, having derived untold benefit from the comfortable chair in the Electives Committee room, do leave it and its upkeep to Lucy Winn.

Item LXVI. I, Eugenia Thompson, do turn over my art of mothering the Freshmen to Margaret Debele.

Item LXVII. I, Belle Walker, do will to Clarkie Davis my squirrel trap, with all the flying squirrels caught thereby; my patented basket-ball jump to Ethel Redding; and the change and rest I never got to the next Student Treasurer.

Item LXXVIII. I, Ellen Walker, do will my accommodating verse-making, used by every organization on the campus, to Helen Lewis.

Item LXXIX. I, Pocahontas Wight, do will my debating card box to Kathrine Pitman; my contacts with famous artists to Louise Bennett; and my name, "Poky," to anyone it fits.

Item LXX. I, Mary Ben Wright, do will everything I had handed down to me by Frances Amis, including Miss Gooch, to the next Blackfriars President, and to Sterling Johnson my hair and iron constitution.

Item LXXI. I, Elizabeth Woltz, do bequeath my theories that unite work and play to Edythe Coleman, and my sunny smile to Mary Heath.

Item LXXII. I, Margaret Wood, do will all my frat pins to Mellie Zellars and Elizabeth Lynn, as I have no further use for same (i. e., frat pins).

Item LXXIII. I, Emily Zellars, do leave to Carolina McCall my reputation as Class Joker, and hope that she will get as much pleasure from her jokes as I did.

This document was signed, sealed and delivered by the Class of 1925, this 25th day of May.

EMILY SPIVEY,
Testator.

Senior Class Prophecy

Cairo, Egypt,

May 27, 1935.

It has been many days since I have had anything as wonderful to relate to my diary as my experience yesterday. I haven't encountered such a thrill, even in my travels, for a long time but I must hasten to set it down in black and white while it is still fresh in my memory. It happened in this wise:

Yesterday I was crawling about on the nose of the pyramid of Cheops II, when, lo and behold! whom should I meet coming around the other nostril but Martha Lin Manly! At the same instant she saw me and we rushed into each other's arms.

"Martha Lin!" I shrieked joyfully, "what are you doing here?"

Martha Lin pulled her small, black, white veiled hat farther down over her face, adjusted various and sundry boxes strapped on her back and gave me a long, astonished stare through her spectacles.

"Why I," she proclaimed proudly, "am an archeologist."

"What?" I cried, "whatever put that idea into your head?"

"Oh, don't you remember that cute little exploring hat I had in my Senior year?" she asked with a disgusted air. "You all told me it was so becoming, I thought it would be wise to accept a position where I could wear it all the time."

"Are you archeologing now?" I inquired, respectfully.

"Oh, yes," she answered, "but I can always stop my labors to talk to an old friend. Why, do you realize that this is our anniversary? The 20th of May! Ten years ago we got those skins we loved to touch!"

"I've entirely lost connection with the dear old class," I sighed, "have you?"

"Why certainly not," said Theta, "even through my troubles with King Tut I've kept up with every single one of them. I have my book here," she unstrapped a box from her shoulder and pulled forth a fat volume completely filled with newspaper clippings, "I always keep it up to date, too," she went on, "it's a habit I learned long ago taking Mrs. Sydenstricker's Bible notes."

She perched insecurely on Cheops' ear and began to re

New York,

June 30, 1930.

The Harvard Prize Play of the year was written by Miss Larsen Mattox. The play, a thrilling melodrama, is somewhat ruined, critics think, by a superfluous amount of sentimentality, due probably to the young playwright's recent engagement to Mr. Edgar Guest, Jr. The production carried an all-star cast, the leading characters being interpreted amazingly well. Miss Georgia May Little played the role of the little wife; Miss Mary Ben Wright, the chief cook; Miss Frances Bitzer, the Hindu governess; and Miss Isabel Ferguson, the Other Woman.

Possum Corner, Idaho,

April 2, 1927.

The sumptuous new schoolhouse was almost completely demolished by fire yesterday. Fortunately the precious infants were snatched from the flames to safety, due entirely to the heroism of Miss Margaret Ladd, Miss Ruth Johnston and Miss Maria Rose, three of the attractive and blooming young instructors of the youth of our little city.

Charlotte, N. C.,

October 12, 1928.

Mrs. Keesler left to-day for New York to meet her daughter, Mary, the Duchess de Martini, who has sailed from Spain on the S. S. Adriatic. The duchess will bring with her, as guests, Countess Fatirissime and Princess Jardleno, formerly Miss Mary Ann McKinney and Miss Mary Palmer Caldwell. These ladies were all married abroad the summer after their graduation from college, and have lived there ever since.

Arrests of the day:

Miss Idelle Bryant, Miss Ruth Owen, Miss Agatha Deaver, Miss Lucile Gause, for disturbing the peace.

Atlanta, Ga.,

August 10, 1929.

We announce with pride that Miss Elizabeth Cheatlam has won the Nobel Prize for her epic entitled, "It's Great to be a Georgian," and Miss Frances Alston, another literary light of our city, for her essay on "How to Study."

Milledgeville, Ga.
March 20, 1930.

News of the Asylum: Recent inmates added to our happy number, Miss Genie Perkins, laboring under the delusion that her picture is continually being taken, and Miss Carolyn Smith, who begs pitifully and ceaselessly, "Please read me! I'm a little advertisement!" The most desperate and heart-rending case, however, is that of Miss Margery Speake. She was engaged to a Phi Beta Kappa who spurned her when he discovered that she was a moron, and the shock of being found out turned her nutty!

New York,
April 23, 1932.

Two excellent examples of the new futuristic art have received honorable places in the Academy. The artists are Miss Lillian Middlebrooks and Miss Martha Pennington, habituées of Greenwich Village, who, since their college days, have been leading rather a questionable Bohemian life there.

Paris, France,
June 2, 1928.

Two remarkable athletes scored many points for the U. S. in the international matches yesterday. Miss Margaret Rogers successfully cleared the bar at thirty feet, and Miss Mary Walker Perry won the one hundred-yard dash, her time being forty and two-nineteenth seconds. The success of both these exceptional young women is due to the fact that they applied themselves so diligently to their Physical Education courses while in college.

Murfreesboro, Tenn.,

Lady Argyle, formerly Miss Josephine Douglas of this city, is visiting her parents for a short while before sailing for Monte Carlo where she will procure her fifth divorce.

Pekin, China,
January 10, 1930.

The little Chinese are being converted with amazing rapidity in one of the largest mission schools. The credit for this miracle must be given to Miss Frances Gardner, the head of the school. She edits weekly a paper called "Sunbeams Scattered," for the little heathens' enjoyment. She is assisted by Miss Charlotte Smith and Miss Lucile Phippen who instruct in esthetic dancing and needle work.

Grantville, Ga.,
January 15, 1926.

Miss Emily Zellars, charming young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Zellars made her bow to society last night at one of the most brilliant balls of the Grantville social season.

San Francisco, Calif.,
July 25, 1928.

A new detective agency, which promises to be very successful, has just been opened. Its founder is Miss Frances Tennent, playfully called "Sherlock Holmes, the Feminine," her assistant being Miss Clyde Passmore. The former amateur experiences of both these young ladies will no doubt be of invaluable aid to them in their future sleuthing.

Yazoo City, Miss.,
February 7, 1929.

Keith's Vaudeville announces coming attractions: (1) Miss Ruth Harrison and Miss Walker Fletcher, The Irresistible Impersonators. The team does some wonderful work in their clever skit entitled: "Its R-A-I-N-I-N-G, Raining, So I'm Mindin' My Business." (2) Also Miss Eunice Kell in her fascinating act, "Janey the Jazz Jigger—Pick Up the Bones." (3) Miss Bryte Daniel who plays her original compositions, her favorite being: "It Tickle Me for My Man to Have a Moustache."

Two Bells,
May 10, 1929.

Editor of Two Bells,
Dear Sir:

I wish to say that I was particularly struck the other day by the intelligence of Conductor Marian Strauss and Motorman Frances Moore of the Decatur Car Line. I was going to visit my fifteenth cousin once removed at Agnes Scott College, and they were able to put me off at my correct destination.

Yours very truly,

The Académie Italienne has just awarded the brass cross of the Republic to Miss Eugenia Thompson, Miss Mary Breedlove and Miss Emily Spivey, M.A., Ph.D., LL.D., respectively, for translating some of the ancient Roman tombs. These inscriptions have remained a mystery for many years, and the feat could not have been accomplished by any one not possessing a deep, thorough, and far-reaching understanding of the Latin tongue.

Asheville, N. C.

September 20, 1931.

A double marriage of much interest solemnized yesterday was that of Miss Catherine Randolph and Miss Catherine Carrier who wedded twin brothers, the Messrs. Duplex. Miss Ruth Drane, a noted concert singer, rendered "Oh Promise Me" twice (for the benefit of both couples). Miss Elizabeth Woltz and Miss Mildred Pitner, school friends of the brides and noted modistes of this city, were maids of honor.

New York,

February 10, 1928.

In the contest which recently took place, the three young ladies judged the most charming musical comedy maidens were: Miss Araminta Edwards, who dances her way gaily through "She Laughed and Laughed," Miss Rosalind James, the Follies Finest Flinger, and Miss Louise Hannah, who, with her musical voice adds greatly to the leading role in "It's June Night, So Let Me Call You Sweetheart."

Atlanta, Ga.,

October 13, 1931.

It is to be hoped that as many as possible will hear the joint lecture to be given tomorrow night at the Auditorium by Miss Alice Greenlee and Miss Annie Johnson. These two ladies uphold the theories of the School of Prominent Personality. Their lecture will be: "Why be retiring? Success comes with expression."

Jerusalem, Judea,

August 16, 1923.

The National Society for preserving Biblical relics is much interested in the work of Miss Sallie Horton who has just arrived. She is making a careful and valuable examination of points of interest all through the Holy Land while writing her thesis: "Flint and Edersheim made me what I am to-day."

Publication of Committee of

National Finance,

June 4, 1928.

Do your tact, courage and intelligence desert you in collecting your debts? Do you quail before your creditors? Let us undertake that delicate matter for you. Simple persuasion used at first, then force if necessary. Four-year college course with specialization in that line. We guarantee success. Apply: M. Hyatt, E. Smith, E. Blalock, B. Walker, Inc.—Adv.

Decatur, Ga.,

April 8, 1932.

Mrs. Sarah Fullbright Bennett and Mrs. Martha Jackson Bennett are visiting their old friend, Miss Smith, at Agnes Scott College, through whom they met their husbands, grandsons of Prof. Bennett. Both ladies are recently bereaved, their worsor halves having been carried off by acute attacks of ablative absolutes.

The Congressional Record,

May 26, 1928.

It was unanimously decided that Sen. Pocahontas Wight be allowed to place in the Record her soul-stirring speech, "Give Me Restriction of Immigration, or Give Me Morphine." A rising vote of thanks was then extended to Miss Dorothy Keith for her notable work on "Whv Most Southern Europeans Migrating to the U. S. Have Two Feet."

Publication of the Ga. R. R.

and Power Co.,

November 15, 1925.

The Company wishes to announce to its patrons that three exceptional young artists have just been employed, who will, in the future, paint all the cards beautifying the interiors of the street cars. They have been working ceaselessly and diligently for the past four years in poster technique and we feel sure that they are well qualified for their present positions. They are Miss Mary Bess Bowdoin, Miss Anne McKay and Miss Lucile Caldwell.

Charlottesville, Va.

April 20, 1927.

A tragic contest occurred at the University of Virginia to-day when two young students, Miss Emmie Saxon and Miss Julia Pope, who should have received their M.A. degrees in May, were shipped on the charge of attending bootleg dances, while Miss Margaret Hines, who formerly attended the same college with them, and a profound student since her kindergarten days, received, the same day, her degrees of I.O.U., S.O.S. and R.S.V.P.

Atlanta, Ga.,

June 2, 1930.

The Gateway of the South is proud to hold within its limits two inventors of world-wide fame who have perfected the vest pocket aeroplane. In an interview yesterday the two young geniuses stated that eight o'clock classes at Agnes Scott College gave them their first impetus in that direction. They are Miss Josephine Marbut and Miss Ruth Guffin.

The Agonistic,

September 15, 1925.

Mr. Johnson's studio has just been completely rebuilt with sound-proof walls, donated by Miss Vera Hickman, Miss Gertrude Henry, Miss Mary P. Brown and Miss Viola Smith in grateful memory of their many happy hours spent there and in hopes that the inmates of Rebekah may be spared the future happy hours of others.

Dublin, Ireland,

August 4, 1927.

Castle Kilkenny has just been purchased by Miss Louise Buchanan, a young American. Her blue Irish eyes needed just such an environment in which to thrive. Her engagement to Donald Adair, noted supporter of the Home Rule Party, is rumored.

Mr. Tart's Books,

September 30, 1925.

Twenty-five dollars and forty-three and four-twenty-thirds cents for repairing chairs in English room worn out during the last session by Miss Elizabeth Griffin and Miss Margaret Wood. Have written to young ladies in question to make up deficit but if no response is forthcoming soon, I fear I shall have to sue them. P. S.—Have changed my mind. Dr. McCain says case may be expensive.

Bulletin Johns Hopkins Hospital,

October 2, 1925.

Serious cases of recent college graduates: Miss Floy Sadler affected with nervous twitching of hands caused by incessant dealing of cards for four years. Miss Sarah Tate—eyes twice the normal size through reading of Snappy Stories, Cosmopolitan and Red Book. Disease contracted at same time as that formerly discussed.

Publication of Rolls Royce Assn.,

January 30, 1929.

Suggestion of our patrons:

Pres. Rolls Royce Assn.,

Dear Sir:

We would like to suggest that in your next model you allow the speed of the car not to exceed one-sixtieth of a mile an hour. Unless this can be done we fear we shall have to withdraw our support of this motor, since we do not care ever to exceed that speed.

Yours very truly,

J. ROLSTON,

F. LINCOLN.

P. S.—We beg that the proposal of your influential patron, J. Schuessler, that the future rate of speed be fixed at one hundred and fifty miles an hour not be regarded.

* * * * *

Martha Lin drew a long breath and closed the book. As she did so, a fickle breeze (they have 'em like that in Egypt, too), whirled something white above the pyramids and across the desert sands into the Nile where it floated gleefully away.

"What was that?" I cried, "anything important?"

"Oh, no," Theta replied, "I think it was the one about you."

—ELLEN WALKER,
Class Prophet.

“We Shall Remember”

*And so they pass, these vivid years, and we,
Amazed at their swift ending, see
With a quick, broken breath, beloved things
That we have known—imaginings,
Dreams we could not hide,
When youth stood tiptoe, eager-eyed.*

*A little crimson maple in the fall;
Brown leaves that murmur when you tramp them; call
Of golden roads, of campfires and of song;
Spring and jonquils and purple flags along
The paths where silver poplars shine;
Print of a windblown bough of pine,
And pungent needles smooth upon the grass
Where our feet pass;
Ancient trees where squirrels keep
A carnival of quiver, pause and leap—
These we have loved. But the narrow blue
Of library windows at dusk, their hue
Keen as the intense shrill note of a bird—
For this there is no word.*

*We have known laughter, and the graces
Of books and talk and friendship and loved faces,
And more than all, the tower's gaze,
Silent and calm and sure, throughout the days,
Unchanging still in April or November—
O Alma Mater, we shall remember.*

—ELIZABETH CHEATHAM, Class Poet.

Alma Mater

*When far from the reach of thy sheltering arms,
The band of thy daughters shall roam,
Still their hearts shall enshrine thee,
Thou crown of the South,*

*With the memory of youth that has flown,
Dear guide of our youth,
Whose spirit is truth,
The love of our girlhood is thine,
Alma Mater, whose name we revere and adore,
May thy strength and thy power ne'er decline!*

*Agnes Scott, when thy campus and halls rise to mind,
With the bright college scenes from our past,
Our regret is that those years can ne'er return more,
And we sigh that such joys can not last.*

*Wherever they are,
Thy daughters afar,
Shall bow at the sound of thy name.
And with reverence give thanks
For the standard that's thine,
And the noble ideal that's thine aim.*

*And when others beside us thy portals shall throng,
Think of us who have gone on before,
And the lesson that's graven deep into our hearts,
Thou shall grave on ten thousand and more.*

*Fair symbol of light,
The purple and white,
Which in purity adds to thy fame,
Knowledge shall be thy shield—
And thy fair coat-of-arms,
A record without blot or shame.*

All During the Year: Agnes Scott wants a new gym, and goes after it

Athletic Board Brings Circus To A. S. C. Saturday, March 7

Three Ring Circus
Draws Crowd
Proceeds Go To Fund For
New Gymnasium

Every city and village has its annual circus with a big three-ring tent show and numerous side attractions. Even the cultural atmosphere of Agnes Scott College could not overcome this inherent love of clowns and acrobats. Therefore, in order to satisfy the natural desire of the spectators, the A. S. C. Athletic Board, decided to favor the circus with one performance.

The big circus came to the campus, and had to play a real gain parade.

Cotillion Club Gives Spect Dance Mar. 11

Proceeds To Go To
Gymnasium Fund

A spirit dance will be given in the gymnasium by Cotillion Club Thursday, March 11, from 7:00 to 8:00 p. m. The proceeds obtained from the dance will be added to the fund for the new gymnasium, which is now in the process of erection. The whole campus community is invited to come and "banish dull care away."

The posters in Main and in the library to herald this event are most intriguing. Graceful silhouettes, Japanese lanterns, misty rainbow colors—yellow, blue, green, rose, lavender—give promise of airy, fantastic pleasures in store for us. Aside from these delightful suspensions, we are given the more definite pledge of certain entertainment. Katherine Richards and Josephine Huntley are to tango in costume, and Eugene Ozier, famed on the campus and abroad as well for the grace and beauty of her dancing, will charm those present by giving a dance of Old Spain. Music will be furnished by an orchestra composed

Rapid Progress On Gymnasium Fund

Over $5,000 Raised, and Last
$500 Promised

Half of Students Subscribers

The growth of the new Gymnasium-Auditorium building is being evidenced in two ways. All of us have noticed with approval how rapidly the actual work is coming on down on the hockey field. On the side farthest from the library, the wall is already as high as the second story. Progress is being made also in another direction which is just as important, the building up of the swimming pool-auditorium fund.

Miss Randolph announced at Chapel shortly after the holidays the great success with which the campaign was meeting. Since then, the fund has been steadily increasing, as is evidenced by the rise of the red brick line on the diagram in Main Hall. The sum that has been collected plus pledges is now over five thousand dollars.

The contributions have ranged one dime up. Miss Randolph urged that promise of the last red dollars when the rest of the fund has been secured. There are from individuals such the "dime which we took for granted."

Students Reach $1650 Mark Tuesday Afternoon

Wednesday a Holiday

The unexpected always brings an immense thrill and quite often a delightful surprise. The holiday last Wednesday came to the campus, and, with almost a little warning as a spring shower in April, and was as welcome as a cool and pleasant oasis to a weary caravan traveling over the burning wastes of the Sahara. Variety is, indeed, the spice of life!

Whisperings and vague rumors circulated about the campus, and, by supper time on Monday, March 9th, some daring souls were suggesting that a holiday was on the way. The majority, however, knowing that classes as Agnes Scott, like the laws of the Medes and Persians, alter not, remained skeptical. During the meal, a notice was read to the effect that an important announcement would be made in the chapel after prayers. Needless to say, the chapel was crowded, and the air was simply tense with excitement. After prayers, Miss Ran-

Pocahontas Wight Gives Violin Recital

Ruth Harrison and Gene Dozier
On Program

For the benefit of the new gymnasium, Pocahontas Wight gave on Wednesday evening, January 25, a violin concert, assisted by Ruth Harrison, reader; Eugene Dozier, dancer; Larry Ray Dobbins, accompanist; and the Agnes Scott Violin Ensemble. In spite of the disagreeable weather, three was said to have been the largest crowd present that was ever before at a concert at Agnes Scott. From the hearty applause and enthusiastic praise, the program was thoroughly enjoyed by all who were present.

Poky's ability as a violinist was displayed in selections rendered with unique skill and charming grace. She was repeatedly encored and gracious.

Sherwood Forest

By LOUISE BUCHANAN

Ballads of olde tell us how ye beautiful Mayde Marian was won bye bold Robyn Hoode, and that "they lived happily ever afterwarde." One of ye happy incidents of theyre latre lyfe was a Maye Daye in Sherwood Forest given in theyr honour. On thys occasyon, Lytle John, one of Robyn Hoode's most faithfull yemen was at last successful in hys suit for Kate's hande. Howbeit, hys hapynes was complete when Robyn Hoode graunted ye betrothal as a boon.

ORDRE OF EVENTS

Village Maydens, including Kate, go out before sonne-rise, to bathe theyr faces in dew of ye pale pinke hawthorne, to make theyr complexyons lovely.

Ye Goddess of ye Sonne, with her numerous sonne sprites, appears from ye east and proclaims ye dawn of daye.

Wood Nymphs reveal ye beauties of ye forest.

Vari-colored butterflies flutter about.

Ye Maye Queene and Kyng, with ye Gode Friar Tuck, enter.

A Countrie Dance.

Jack in the Green appears.

Three villagers in ye costume of ye Hobby Horse, gallop, kyck and canter, much to ye amusement of ye common people.

The yemen demonstrate theyr skyl in archery.

The Morris Dance.

The Mylk Maydes dance merrily about ye cow.

A Sword Dance.

Lytle John and Kate dance.

A Maye-Pole Dance, including yemen, village maydes and others. The greene top bough of ye Maye-Pole falls to Lytle John. So is he proclaimed ye hero of ye daye. He is in deed lauded with shouts and musyk, and gives ye much cherished top-bough to hys dancing partner, Kate. She accepts hys prize and ye happy pair, followed bye ye cheering crowd, go before ye Maye throne to receive ye approval and blessingys of Robyn Hoode and hys faire Queene.

As ye evening hours approach, ye revellers go, each to hys owne home.

The Campus

First View

Who is that we see strolling along from Main to Home Ec. with such slow and bated pace? Is a slow motion picture being enacted here on our campus? We must see if such is the case. But before our feet can travel nearer the spot, she is gone. We knew Daisy was traveling fast, but we did expect to see more than a mere atmospheric streak! Never mind, in the morning we'll be faster—do you suppose we could catch up with her?

* * * * *

Second View

But soft, let us peruse that herd of girls going directly east across the campus in a body. What can they be doing? We will tag along—and we find—all ten of them go to a small house to be found between Boyd and Lupton; enter without knocking; sit at little tables; eat food, food, and more food; pay the exorbitant price demanded of them at the desk; and walk away contented with themselves—some of them are even smiling. How can they enjoy going around like that in droves (oh! the horrid gregarious nature!), devour such queer things when good, wholesome dinners of sea food or pressed feline await them in the dining room; squander their money, and wreck their appetites—oh, this sight is pitiful to see!

* * * * *

Third View

On our way back from this disillusioning region, we spy a small man running in front of himself, on the way from somewhere (apparently), his chief goal in life at present being the back entrance to Main. It is rather a warm day, but he is securely clad against all climatic vicissitudes in a new gray winter overcoat and hat to match. If he would straighten up or slow up, we might be able to tell who he is; but he is probably safely ensconced in his chair in the book-room before we realize that it is Mr. Tart, the originality of whose framed motto, "Promptness equals godliness!" has made him quite a famous bit of scenery during his college career!

* * * * *

Fourth View

But why, you ask, do all those girls keep going around behind West Lawn and emerging with bed spreads under their arms? Mock them not, for they are the great and mighty ones who stand up in face of all Millerish objects and say that they are on the side of Cleanliness—and who are even strong-willed and wealthy enough to pay the necessary stipend required of all who would belong to this Nobly Neat Club.

Fifth View

You say those who don't go to get spreads all seem to be going in the direction of Science Building carrying suit-cases? Don't be alarmed—they are not leaving us. They are merely some of the dumber ones on our campus who enjoy health so much that when they lose it, they all congregate in yon white house to mourn its departure. They take it so hard that Dr. Sweet is frequently moved to put them to bed and rack her brain thinking of things to amuse them, and get their minds off their losses. And great and wondrous are the things with which she entertains them—sprays, aspirin in nice long capsules, cute little brown C. C.'s (she has an unlimited supply of these), and good cold soup or tea to cool their fevered brows. This is one of the most popular scenes on the campus—running neck to neck for popularity with the aforementioned tea-room. Many are unable to choose between the merits of the two, so are to be seen going directly from the latter to the former—which is all very well, we suppose.

* * * * *

Sixth View

Here comes Margaret Rogers—you wonder why she has such an attachment for gym clothes. Shh—wait until she passes us—for she can't bear to hear people referring to the solemn subject—they do say it makes her wild. But this is how it came about that she wears "her uniform:" the choice of a vocation was weighing so heavily upon her soul one day that she could live, eat and talk nothing else. She was playing basket-ball that afternoon, when the ball rudely hit the end of her finger and broke it (meaning the finger, not the ball). As the finger puffed and puffed up, she was heard to whisper: "Eureka—I have it—I love this injury so henceforth I'll major in gym. Then I can live out in the great open spaces where women are women." The story goes that Margaret rather regrets her decision, but she is of iron will, so still loyally supports gym by going there some twenty hours each week, and by wearing its costume constantly at home and abroad.

* * * * *

Seventh View

By this time the shades of night are falling fast—(probably have already fallen to be exact)—and your emotional gaze around the campus will find expression in our wondrously romantic summer-house. There the roses twine about your hair, the paint beneath your feet is a delicate brown, and the moon peeping up over old Main tower makes you think of—well, another time! The scene is perfectly laid for something enchanting. You hear a bell, but it sounds like a far-away silvery tinkle to your enraptured ear. Then out of the nether void there steps the hero of your dreams—you knew he would come just then. His low masculine voice reverberates: "A quarter to ten"—did some dumb person say "Mr. White?" How very, very trite indeed!

UNIFORM: Cap and bells

(Because the portraits of this class fail to do justice to its beauty, its dignity and its honor, the editor, who has a partiality for the class, wishes to say a word or two concerning its unparalleled history of service and devotion.)

From its Freshman days on, it has never once failed to live up to its class motto. No instance is recorded of a single "falling by the wayside," although there have been many attempts on the part of the committee, Miss Laney, Dr. McCain, Stern Necessity, and the voice of Ambition to swerve them. It is indeed a tribute that they have resisted these enticements and arrived dauntlessly at their goal. (Credit should be given, however, to the untiring and devoted assistance in their endeavors of such institutions as: Atlanta Weather; Examinations; Science Hall; Fourth Floor Main; Soup; I. Doleful Doings

- 9.—Freshman Class is disillusioned on arrival to find that rooms are not appropriately decorated with rugs, curtains, pillows and college pennants, to say nothing of guitars and boxes of candy.
- 10.—On which day, we all, with one accord, rise up and stand in line.
- 13.—The first classes, when our teachers are so sweet that we fear for their health.
- 17.—Behold Margaret Keith mailing a "Special" in the chapel attendance box—forgive her; she is only a child, you know.
- 20.—As we stroll down the receiving line of faculty, at the reception, our motto becomes, as the immortal William has put it: "Let me not burst in ignorance."
- 26.—Freshman-Sophomore Week:
"I could a tale unfold, whose lightest word
Would harrow up thy soul; freeze thy young blood;
Make thy two eyes, like stars, start from their spheres
* * * * *
- And each particular hair to stand on end——"
But I won't!
- 29.—On which day we play our first hockey game of the season and later, from the bluish tint of our skins, begin to realize that darling, we are growing old.

OCTOBER

- 1.—That blessed special which makes us forget all the past month's woes.
- 14.—We would flunk a test or so—everybody's doing it.
- 17.—Lo! we do try out for Folio with a heartrending tragedy of the eternal triangle variety—and in vain!
- 21.—Edna Ackerman engages her seat in Hoasc—paying the necessary deposit of $1.50 to the Sophomores.

NOVEMBER

- 3.—Faculty-Student Hockey game—Miss Hearon caused great discomfort to those standing near her by cheering so loud as to hurt their ears!
- 26.—A box from home, a holiday, and a delicious dinner make life seem almost pleasant, but do not be deceived for:
- 28.—That annual picture! When you see it, you will wonder how he could have made such a dreadful looking picture from such a beautiful subject.

DECEMBER

- 5.—Miss Miller leaves a note: You are greatly to be congratulated on the way in which you keep your room.
- 10.—Emily Kingsberry refuses to stand on edge of rug at Exec. because, as she tells them, she knows they are going to pull it out from under her.
- 18.—We go home—that really isn't so much trouble.

JANUARY

- 7.—Exams. are coming on; our true and only love sends us a post-card, and we contract a violent case of the blues.
- 12.—Exams-cramming—"Though this be madness, yet there's method in it."
- 20.—Many Seniors (taking last year's gym), pass it! Secret—a few even merit it!
- 25.—Eleanor Dunn is helped by a concern in Idaho to become "a fascinating woman." She is very generous with the information awarded her, and offers to give private lessons in "fascinating womanhood" to all who feel that they may thereby be benefited. The lesson on "How to make the most of the picnic," she says is proving the most popular one with our girls!
- 30.—Blackfriar Tryouts, which cause S. Guerry untold merriment, but several of us untold agony.

FEBRUARY

- 4.—Student-Faculty Basket-ball Game—Ruth Pirkle, after being violently knocked out (cause—missing the ball), is heroically revived by Miss Randolph who uses a sweetly smelling pink rose for the purpose.
- 13.—Olivia Swann draws a bulletin board poster portraying two girls dancing—one has red, the other black hair—ahem!
- 19.—Helen Clark Martin begins worrying about, "To be a lady or to be a gentleman next year on George Washington's birthday?" Whether it is better—oh! she's having "a orful" time deciding!
- 25.—Student Volunteers—gentlemen appear in great profusion:
"He is a man, take him for all in all;
I shall not look upon his like again."

MARCH

- 2.—Great excitement in Rebekah—Sarah Tate says she and Ella Smith loyally defended our lives while we slept—but won't tell how. Maybe a burglar broke in—thank you, Sarah and Ella.
- 7.—Mrs. Dieckmann acquires the nickname of Morpheus—as a gift of her Freshman English class.
- 10.—For the first time in our college career, we hear the fire bell in Decatur. Funny how they never have fires, isn't it?
- 20.—During which time the debaters are made to realize by faculty criticisms that they are just a little worse than nothing when it comes to giving debates.

APRIL

- 1.—When we are reminded of what we are the other 364 days of the year.
- 5.—Eugenia Thompson finds a life-sized picture of herself hanging on the trash box in front of Main. None of her friends will claim it—all denying having committed such a dastardly act—but she has her suspicions, poor dear. She says pictures don't just walk to trash cans—oh! life is very bitter.
- 12.—Poky spends several hours on this day trying to decide whether she is glad she wore the blue dress with tan on it one certain morning at Randolph-Macon or whether she would not rather have worn the tan dress with blue on it then, and the other one later. It is a subject worthy of intercollegiate consideration!

* * * * *

Well, there are a lot more sad things happening which I could tell you, but I must run along to a musical comedy.

Educated Senior (explaining to Miss White, why she never brings overnight books back till 10:30): Well, you see the first hour overtime is ten cents, but the second hour is only five cents, so it's really cheaper to keep them out two hours for fifteen cents instead of one hour for ten.

"Where are you going?"

"Chemistry exam."

"Going to take the acid test, eh?"
