Because he possesses both those fundamental qualities of true scholarship which have persevered through all ages and the most progressive ideas which mark advancement in our own century; and because he has been a constant source of inspiration to the students and a real stimulus to the educational progress of our college, we dedicate the Silhouette of 1936 to Mr. Philip Davidson, Professor of history.

Here at Agnes Scott where we feel ourselves part of an institution which is outstanding in academic leadership, it is especially fitting that we link ourselves with great movements of the past. Constantly pressing forward toward an ever heightening ideal, we come into a realization of our place in that long chain of advancements which have been the signposts of educational progress throughout successive ages.

Medieval times, especially, marked the end of that dark period in educational history from which we date a new era in scholastic development. In this book, we try to indicate the signal progress which has been made in education since the Middle Ages.

College

monasteries were the acknowledged seats of learning in the Middle Ages. Most of the medieval culture was found behind the conservative walls of the Church, and the greatest teachers of the time were monks.

Life within these isolated communities was one of simplicity and routine; but the contribution of the monks to the preservation of learning in the copying of ancient manuscripts was of great future significance.

This air view of AGNES SCOTT taken in the summer of 1935 shows the site of the new library building in the foreground, and the two new roads leading into the campus from College Avenue and South Candler.

BUTTRICK HALL, completed in 1930, is one of the latest additions to the college plant. This beautiful four-story building contains the administrative offices, classrooms, the book store, post office, and college bank.

MAIN HALL is the headquarters for social activities on the campus, containing reception rooms, parlors, and the Dean's office. It is also used as a dormitory, mainly for the Sophomores.

INMAN HALL, given to the college by Mr. Samuel Inman in memory of his wife, is one of the four large dormitories on the campus. This building is especially popular with the Freshmen.

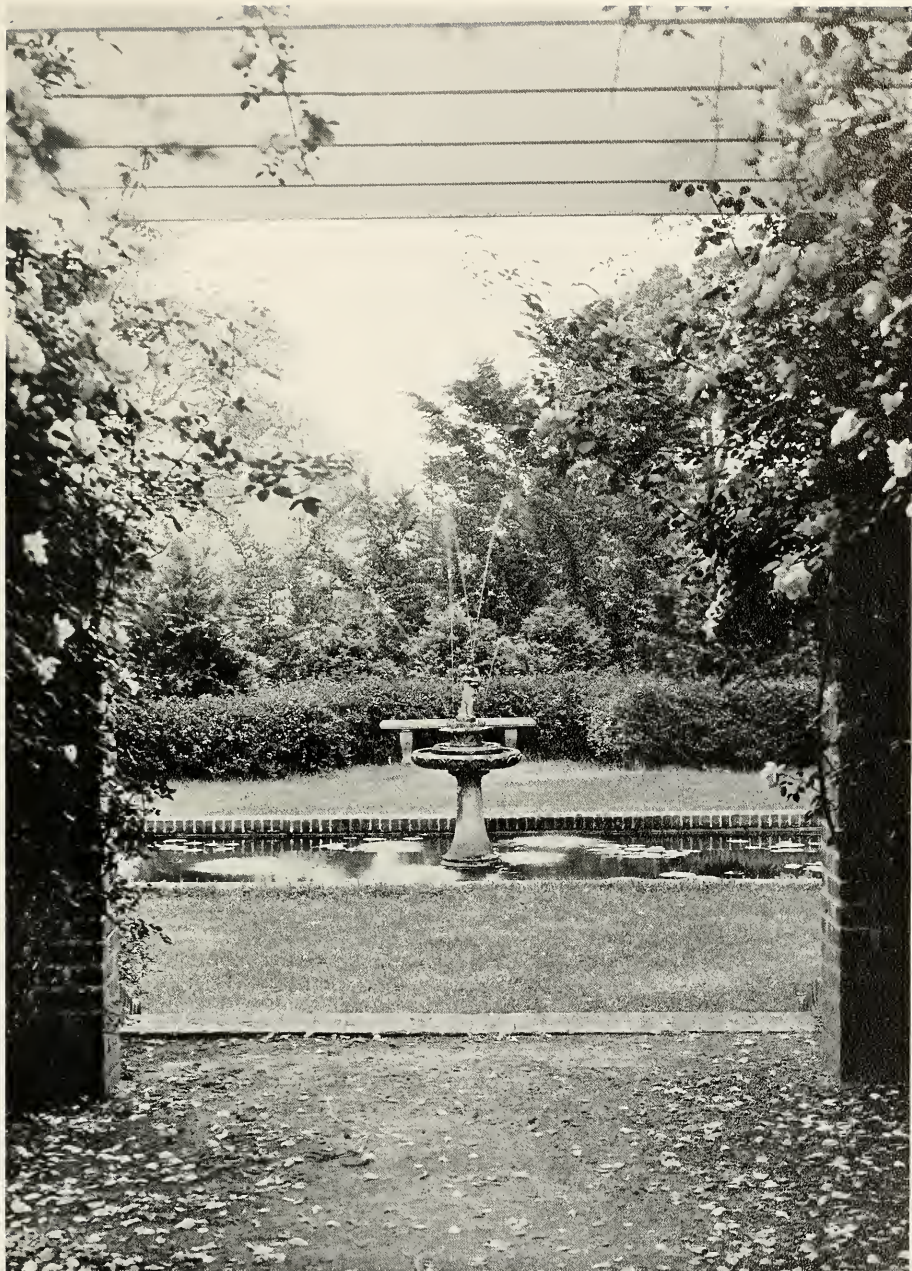

The CARNEGIE LIBRARY building, one of the busiest centers on the campus, is to be replaced next year with the new library building. It will be remodeled so as to provide facilities for student activities.

*The graceful COLONNADE opening on the quadrangle connects Main Hall with the upperclassmen dormitory.

The lovely fountain in the ALUMNAE GARDEN was donated by the class of '31 and the beautiful rose arbor leading to it by the Charlotte and Atlanta alumnae of '34.

JAMES ROSS MCCAIN
President

A summary of Dr. McCain's characteristics by a member of the Administration expresses the sentiment of the whole college: "Absolute sincerity which is universally impressed upon all with whom he comes in contact; a Christian faith which is an inspiration to all and which inspires confidence and admiration even in those who have no religion; a devotion to the college which puts it first in his interests and leads to great sacrifices for the institution; an interest in the individual students and faculty members, ready at all times to see them; a deep interest in the financial affairs of the individual students in the present hard times and effort to secure funds for those who need them; carefulness in forming judgments and reaching decisions, impartiality and fairness in listening to all views." Dr. McCain had the unusual honor to be elected President of the American Association of Universities and Colleges this year.

As Dean of Agnes Scott College, Miss Hopkins has watched the growth of the institution and has guarded the welfare of its students for many years. In addition to her important position as a member of the Administration and as general adviser for all the girls, Miss Hopkins is to be given much credit for her skillful management in the placing of roommates and for the time and effort that she puts into the arrangement of examination schedules and other such difficult routine work.

As a sympathetic listener and friend, she is loved by all the students and alumnae. Her quiet dignity and charm, her culture and learning make her stand as a symbol for what Agnes Scott means to the outside world.

MISS NANNETTE HOPKINS

Members of the Administration

The duty of Mr. STUKES, Registrar, is to supervise the admittance, registration, and classification of students. The jolly personality and friendly interest of Mr. Stukes endear him to all students, and especially to the Seniors, who find his advice extremely valuable in making plans for the future.

MR. TART, Treasurer, is efficiency itself. He handles all financial affairs of the college skillfully, and he is noted for his lightning rapidity in his work in the student bank in Buttrick.

The business manager of the college is MR. CUNNINGHAM. It is he who apportions funds to the different needs of the college and pays its employees. He also oversees all the physical equipment of the campus, and is known for the special love he bears for its grounds.

All campus ills are taken to DR. SWEET, the college physician. She is always ready with steady and sensible aid in her office at the gym and at the infirmary, which she runs with the able help of the nurses, Miss Daugherty and Miss Thomas.

MISS SCANDRETT, the Assistant Dean, is known and loved by every girl at Agnes Scott. Her personal interest in the students, and her wise advice in all their problems, especially of the Freshmen, render her an invaluable asset to the college.

Faculty

MRS. SYDENSTRICKER, Professor of Bible, teaches the majority of the New Testament courses offered in this department, while Mr. Gillespie, Associate Professor, has charge of most of the Old Testament courses. Mrs. Sydenstricker's tremendous enthusiasm for her subject receives further stimulus from her study at Lake Chataqua and frequent trips to the Holy Land.

MR. GILLESPIE has prepared a syllabus which is used by most of his classes, and he is now writing another. In addition to his academic work, he preaches regularly in North Carolina.

Headed by one of the five leading women scientists in the United States, MARY STUART MACDOUGALL, the BIOLOGY department is one of the most interesting though exacting ones on the campus. Last summer Miss MacDougall received a degree from the University of Montpellier in recognition for her research work on the evolution of the protozoa.

MR. WHITAKER, acting Associate Professor, is also doing research for a book on the algae. Since joining the department in 1934, he has added much to the general interest in Botany courses. The department is further assisted by Miss BLANCHE MILLER, Miss HELEN MILLER, who came to us this year from Johns Hopkins, and Miss CAROL GRIFFIN, a graduate of last year.

The courses in the department of CHEMISTRY, under the direction of Mr. HOLT, are divided into lecture and laboratory periods, where the students are trained in observation and application. Mr. Holt is known to all the girls for his patient understanding and the advice so readily given through his position as chairman of the Electives Committee.

Miss GILCHRIST, Associate Professor in charge of the Freshman laboratory work, was one of the three teachers awarded a Phi Delta Kappa key this year for work done at this college before the chapter was installed. Mrs. DAVIS is an able assistant in this department.

The department of ECONOMICS and SOCIOLOGY, headed by Mr. WRIGHT, has grown rapidly during the past few years. The elementary course in Economics was recently offered as a required course interchangeable with History.

MR. RAPER has made the Sociology department one of the most enlivening on the campus. An element of reality is added to his classes through his work in Atlanta with the Southern Inter-Racial Commission and trips taken by his pupils to factories, slums, and last year to Tuskegee. His book, "The Tragedy of Lynching" was published three years ago.

The department of ENGLISH, which is one of the largest on the campus, is headed by Mr. HAYES, who is especially known for his splendid course on Shakespeare and his work in connection with intercollegiate debating. Miss MCKINNEY, who has been with the college for many years, is the other head of this Department.

The excellent teaching of Miss LANEY, Associate Professor, is known also at the Columbia University Summer School. The success of our Lecture Association depends to a great extent upon her wise guidance.

The two Assistant Professors of this department are Miss CHRISTIE, whose special interest is journalism, and Miss PRESTON, widely known for her poems, many of which have appeared in leading magazines. Miss LEYBURN came to us in 1934 from Yale University where she was noted for her brilliant work in Eighteenth Century Literature.

The Spoken English division of this department is headed by Miss GOOCH, who is assisted by Miss VAUGHN.

The department of FRENCH is under the splendid direction of Miss ALEXANDER. Out of her work with the French Club some of the most interesting and varied programs on the campus have been presented. Miss HALE, Associate Professor, is well-liked by the students, especially for the interest she takes in their extra-curricular activities.

Miss PHYTHIAN, who for several summers has been studying at Middlebury College, is planning to study abroad next year. This year Miss CROWE, who left us several years ago to study at the University of Lyons, returned to aid in this department.

From her travels abroad, and especially in Germany, Miss HARN, Professor of the department of GERMAN and SPANISH, brings back much interesting information to enrich the cultural background of her courses. Through her warm hospitality and sympathy, Miss Harn has always been a valuable friend and special adviser of our foreign exchange students.

Miss CILLEY, Associate Professor of Spanish, is active in several Associations of modern language. She has written a textbook of Spanish drama which is now being used in Spain.

Another well-traveled Professor is Miss TORRANCE, head of the GREEK department. She had the unusual opportunity last year during the celebration of the Bi-Millennium of Horace, to go on a traveling study course to the Greek Islands. Miss Torrance is President of the Phi Beta Kappa chapter at Agnes Scott College.

Miss STANSFIELD, Associate Professor, was recently elected to this chapter for her work done at Agnes Scott.

The department of HISTORY, a subject which is one of the most popular majors on the campus, is headed by Mr. DAVIDSON, famed for his unbounded enthusiasm both for his subject and for all things pertaining to Agnes Scott. Mr. Davidson has had an essay published in a book in honor of William E. Dodd and is at present doing research on the propaganda of the American Revolution.

Miss JACKSON'S courses are unusually cultural in that she adds to them her experiences in world-wide travel and her own varied interests. Her contact with the students extends to an ever-widening circle of alumnae, among whom she numbers many correspondents. Miss FLORENCE SMITH, whose courses are noted for their clarity, was promoted this year to an associate professorship.

The Art History division of this department is headed by Miss LEWIS, who not only instructs those students interested in actual drawing and painting, but also is an artist in her own right.

The Professor of the LATIN department, Miss LILLIAN SMITH, affectionately known as Miss "Latin" Smith, was one of the first teachers at Agnes Scott. She is an officer of the Georgia Classical Association and takes an active interest in it.

MISS STANSFIELD, Associate Professor, is an active member of the American Association of University Professors, before whom she has spoken several times. She is Secretary-Treasurer of the Agnes Scott chapter of this organization.

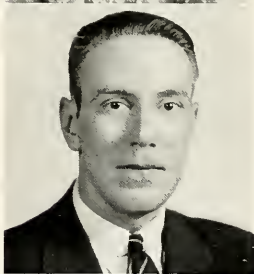

The department of MATHEMATICS is fortunate in having as its Professor Mr. ROBINSON, who is recognized as unusually brilliant in this field. He has invented several systems of rapid calculation which have been published and is a valuable assistant in all financial matters on the campus. Mr. Robinson is President of the Agnes Scott chapter of the American Association of University Professors.

The Assistant Professor of this department, Miss GAYLORD, is called upon constantly for her energetic aid and executive management. Along with Mr. Robinson, she was very active in organizing the Greater Agnes Scott campaign and is always taking part in local projects.

Mr. DIECKMANN, Professor of the department of MUSIC, is a fellow of the American Guild of Organists. Several of his splendid compositions and arrangements have been published. Mr. Dieckmann has reorganized the Agnes Scott String Ensemble into an active and well-trained group.

The excellent work of Mr. JOHNSON, vocal teacher, is well known, not only to the students of Agnes Scott, but to the residents of Atlanta and Decatur through the splendid concerts and operettas of the Glee Club, which is under his direction.

MISS BARTHOLOMEW, teacher of piano, and Mrs. STOKES, teacher of violin, come out from their studios in Atlanta to assist in this department.

MR. CHRISTIAN, Professor of the department of PHYSICS, came to us several years ago with a brilliant record from Harvard. His quiet courtesy and friendly interest have endeared him to all his students. Under his direction, the department has grown rapidly; this year he has added a new course called the History of Science and has changed Astronomy from a technical to a descriptive course. He is continuing his research work in Physics.

MR. STUKES combines with his duties of Registrar the Professorship of one of the most interesting departments of the school, that of PHILOSOPHY and EDUCATION. Informal discussions rather than formal lectures render Mr. Stukes' psychology courses extremely interesting.

MISS DEXTER and MISS OSMWAKE, associate and assistant professors respectively, are continually doing further research in their field. Their progressive methods and scientific experiments make their courses up-to-date and intensely stimulating.

The LIBRARY, which is one of the centers of campus activity, is supervised by MISS HANLEY, the head librarian. This year the outstanding project of Agnes Scott is the erecting of a new and large library building to fit the needs of the college. Both the librarians and the students are enthusiastic over the planned improvements and enlarged equipment for next year.

Several changes have been made in the library staff this year. MISS MILLER, MISS FOOTE, and MISS HOOTEN have left the department and MISS COLVIN, from William and Mary, and MISS CRISPIN, a 1935 graduate of Agnes Scott, came to take their places.

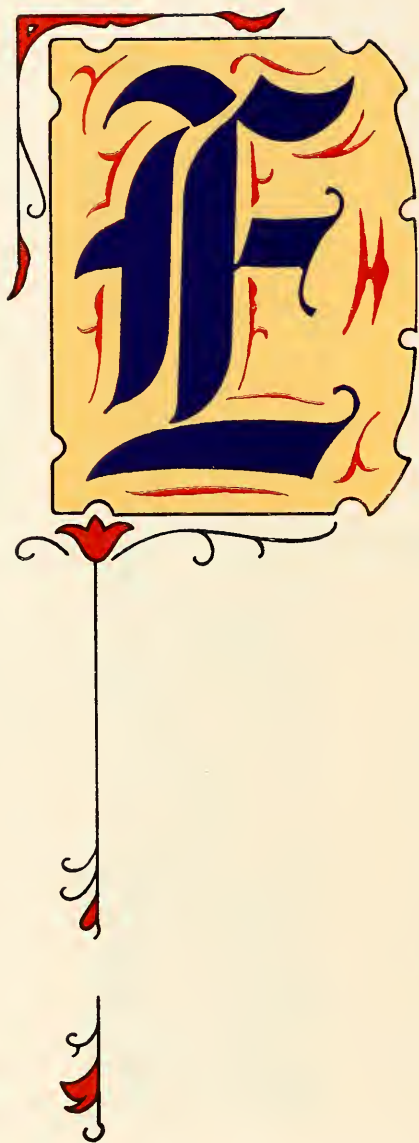

MISS WILBURN, in addition to being in charge of the department of PHYSICAL EDUCATION, took over the hygiene classes this year. Miss Wilburn, who coaches basketball, hockey, and other major sports, is ably assisted by MISS HAYNES, whose particular interest lies in the dancing and riding classes.

MISS DOZIER entered the department last year as an instructor of dancing and as director of May Day. A newcomer to the department this year is MISS MITCHELL, who has taken Miss Ackerman's place in coaching such sports as tennis, swimming, and archery.

Classes

Education during the Middle Ages was divided into two distinct classes: that of the monastery and that of the castle. The former stressed elementary rudiments of learning and rules of conduct; the latter was interested primarily in the principles of chivalry.

The training of the nobility was divided into four periods. The first seven years of an aspirant to knight-hood were spent at home under the supervision of his mother. At the age of seven, he entered some castle as a page, attached to the service of a lady or waiting on the tables. Seven years later, he became a squire in constant personal attendance upon his lord. And, finally, at the age of twenty-one, he was dubbed knight in an impressive ceremony.

Organizations

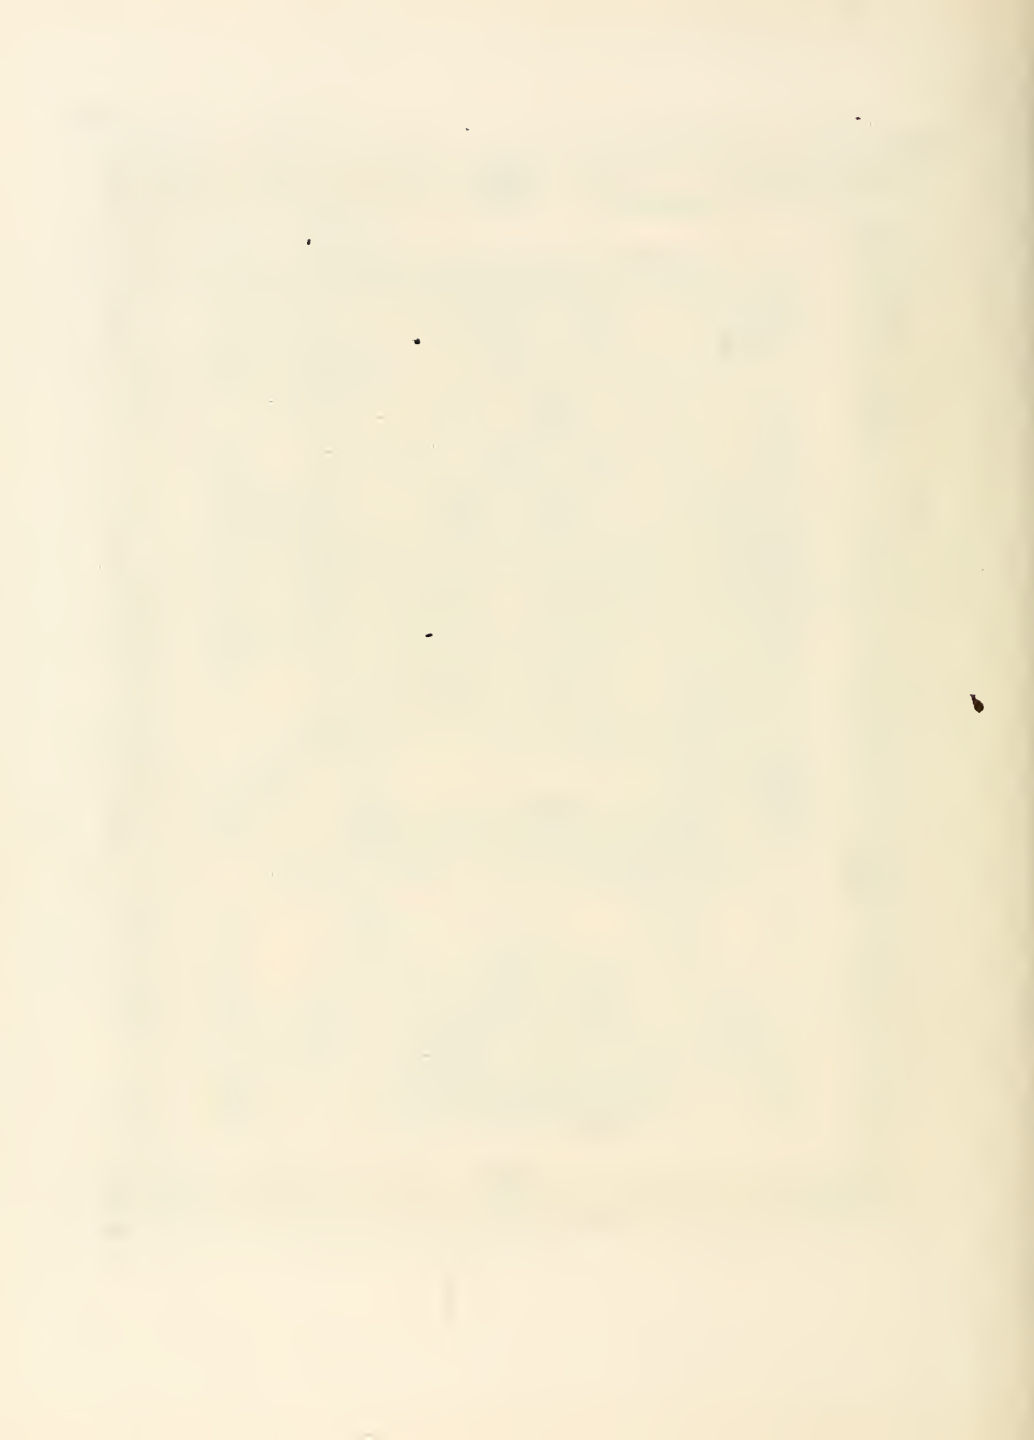

ince the Middle Ages were filled with constant warfare and civil unrest, organizations were indispensable to society.

The two greatest systems back of nearly all phases of civilization were feudalism and the Church. Each of these was divided into various groups, such as the divisions inside the monastery into choristers, illuminators, and the like.

These two organizations were often united in military-religious orders, and in these, as in closely-knit communities to-day, discipline played a large part.

The annual yearbook is one of the most enjoyable features of college life on any campus. Here at Agnes Scott one need only to regard the girls' faces, around May 15, eagerly poring over the SILHOUETTE to see how true this is at our college.

Not only do we try to give a faithful portrayal of a year's happenings on our campus, but we strive also to produce a book that will be counted among our dearest treasures as alumnae.

At a convention of the National Scholastic Press Association attended by some of us in the fall at Chicago, we were inspired with many new ideas which have been put into practice in this annual and which we hope will not prove displeasing to our readers.

An attempt was made to give the students more hand in the SILHOUETTE, by sponsoring such things as popular voting for the beauty section and a snapshot contest.

Each member of the staff was given full responsibility for her specific section of the annual. This, we feel, has been admirably accomplished, and we wish to give special credit to the beautiful art work of our student art editor, and to the additional and experimental work done this year by the kodak editors.

Students look forward every year to the four issues of the Aurora, the college literary quarterly. This magazine is unique in that it is the only publication on the campus which is made up entirely of the literary efforts of the students. In the early days it was a year-book, but when the SILHOUETTE came into being as the college annual, it was changed to a purely literary publication.

This year, in addition to the usual type of material submitted to the Aurora—poetry, short stories, formal and informal essays—articles on current topics were accepted.

Contributions from the Freshmen were especially encouraged, and a section called Salamagundi was devoted entirely to their essays. Prizes were offered at the end of the year for the best poem, short story, and non-fiction article.

The system of elections for Aurora was changed this year, along with the Aggie, to one in which the vote of the editor and of the staff were given more prestige.

When Wednesday rolls around, watch Agnes Scott girls make a dash to their mail boxes for the Aggie. Then you will know what a vital part this weekly paper plays in their lives.

An attempt has always been made to have the Agonistic the melting pot of student opinion, but this year its particular policy has been to sponsor an active movement towards International Peace through editorials, a Peace Ballot, and a special Armistice Day program in chapel.

The annual Agonistic class contest was won this year by the Sophomores. The cup was awarded in April to their editor, Hortense Jones, and business manager, Frances Robinson. For the first time in nine years all four classes won recognition. The Freshman and Junior editions tied for second place, and the Senior edition won third place.

The class editions were judged on four points: news, features, editorials and departments, and general make-up. This year's judges were: Miss Ina Berquist, editor of the Radcliffe News, Cambridge, Mass.; Mr. Roger Chase, editor of the Columbia Spectator, New York City; Miss Winifred Mallon of the New York Times; Mr. Henry B. Fox, editor of The Leon County News and The Buffalo Press, Centerville, Texas; and Professor Henry Robinson of the mathematics department of Agnes Scott.

Everybody sits up and takes notice when the tube rings on Monday night. "Exec" is meeting, and let her who has erred beware! This side of Student Government is familiar to every student, but its duties are still broader and more varied.

This year, Student Government has put its sanction on the peace movement at Agnes Scott; it has stimulated progressive thought in Open Forum held once a month in chapel; it has made possible many beneficial changes on the campus, such as extension of unchaperoned dates for upperclassmen; and it has been considering a revision of its organization which would separate the judicial branch from the executive.

Vesper services followed by discussion groups on Sunday night, Freshman hobby groups, Christmas candle services, a party for the county children, and open house every Sunday afternoon in the attractive Y. W. cabinet room, are only a few of the phases of the work of this year's Y. W.

Agnes Scott is justly proud of the reputation that it has received for its spiritual atmosphere, for which this organization is largely responsible. Y. W.'s influence extends also to the world outside our own campus—in such projects as supporting the Agnes Scott missionary in Korea, Miss Emily Winn, and sending student delegates to religious conferences.

"Vim, vigor, and vitality" are contributed to the campus health by this organization. In addition to the games, health contests, and supper hikes sponsored by A. A. this year, many new plans were adopted by the board. For the first time, conscious effort was made to promote a club system, which enables each girl to choose the one sport which interests her most and to perfect herself in that field.

Another new feature this year has been mixed recreation, in which Agnes Scott has competed with boys from neighboring colleges in such sports as tennis and golf.

Service is the keynote of Mortar Board, although there are three requirements for membership: scholarship, leadership, and service. The Agnes Scott chapter, originally known as Hease, became a member of the national honorary society of senior college women in 1916.

Although most of its projects are carried on in secret, many of Mortar Board's activities crop out into view at times. Some of the services of the 1936 chapter which have been enthusiastically approved by the student body are the parties "with men" given for the Sophomores and Freshmen and the refurbishing of the date parlors in Main.

The Beta of Georgia chapter of Phi Beta Kappa was installed at Agnes Scott in 1926. Seniors who have combined a high scholastic record with distinction in other college activities are eligible for membership. The chapter may also elect those members of Gamma Tau Alpha (Agnes Scott's former local honor society) who have graduated at least fifteen years ago, and have reflected credit to the college.

Among the latter elected this year were Miss Sarah Fulton, of the faculty of Girls' High School of Atlanta; Mrs. Donald Roberts, of Shanghai, China, the author of "Western Travelling to China," and the first American woman to receive a degree from a Chinese university; Mrs. W. R. Cate, Mrs. Leon L. Noble; and of our own faculty, Misses Janet Preston, Martha Stansfield, and Philippa Gilchrist. The college already numbers sixteen members of Phi Beta in its faculty.

Intellectual stimulation and contacts with noteworthy people are two direct results of the Agnes Scott Lecture Association. This organization is to be greatly commended for bringing to Agnes Scott men and women of note in the fields of science, literature, history, and public affairs. In past years these have included such people as Richard Halliburton, Joseph Auslander, Louis Untermeyer, and Edna St. Vincent Millay.

Not only Agnes Scott students, but residents of Atlanta and Decatur were grateful to the Association for presenting such delightful speakers this year as Robert Frost, Thornton Wilder, and Sir Arthur Willert.

Don't let anyone tell you that May Day Committee does not have work to do! Unknown to many, this organization functions all year beginning with selection of the scenario, planning the dances and costumes, selecting the Queen's court, and finally presenting the glorious climax on the first Saturday in May. This event is so popular that every year people come from miles around to see it.

This year's selection, a gay and colorful gypsy pageant entitled "Down in English Lane," was written by Anne Thompson and Charline Fleece.

This honorary society founded in December of this year has as its purpose the promotion of a finer type of journalism. It will be awarded yearly to no more than eight members of the editorial, reporter, and business staffs of the Agonistic, chosen for their outstanding work, their service to the paper, and their loyalty to the ideals for which it stands.

The founders of the Agonistic Key hope that, with the added incentive of Agonistic Key, the Agonistic may grow to be the center of campus life at Agnes Scott, and may become a powerful, fearless, honest voice of the students.

The duty of the student recorder is to check up on the positions held by students and to make certain that the points corresponding to each office do not exceed the limits of each class. In addition to being automatically Chairman of the Presidents' Council, this office was voted at the end of the year to be synonymous with that of Senior Representative on Exec.

Orchids to the student treasurers for performing a very tedious and monotonous job! Their task is to collect budget money from the students and to apportion it to the campus organizations which receive aid from that source.

The Fire Chief's authority to ring the fire bell at any moment she chooses, is much envied by all the students. Her more serious duty is that of supervising fire drills.

The day student officials represent one of the largest groups on the campus. The president is an automatic member of Exec.

The college dramatic club claims the distinction of being the oldest one on the campus. Organized in 1915 under the leadership of Miss Gooch, it offers an opportunity to girls interested in dramatics to study acting and to take part in plays.

In addition to the big plays presented by Blackfriars every year before the general public, small plays under the direction of a member are given before the club every other week. This year sketches of plays of all ages from ancient times to modern have been presented and studied by the club.

"Heah, Heah!" With much table-pounding the Cambridge debate in November opened the brilliant activity of the debating club this year. The season closed with the traditional Triangular debate in the Spring with Sophie Newcomb and Randolph Macon, with Agnes Scott represented at Newcomb by Edith Merlin and at home by Brooks Spivey and Mary Lillian Fairly. Both questions were on the Supreme Court.

This year Pi Alpha Phi adopted a new policy of allowing Mr. Hayes to act as critical judge after each debate. The club also made an effort to co-operate more closely with affiliated organizations as N. S. F. A. and Current History Forum.

Cotillion Club is the only club on the campus which is strictly social. Members are selected for their ability in dancing, poise, grace, appearance, and posture.

Members are entertained with a tea dance every two weeks. Cotillion also sponsors several big dances for the college at the first of school, and on Thanksgiving and Founders' day. This year the members helped entertain high school seniors who visited the campus several times during the year.

In an impressive chapel ceremony this year, the real meaning of this club was first made clear to the students in general. This society, founded by Agnes Scott in 1933, is the first woman's scientific sorority in the United States. Members are elected on the basis of high scholarship in the fields of biology, chemistry, physics, and mathematics.

Well-informed scientists, such as Mr. Moblen of Georgia Tech, and Dr. Krack of Emory, were chosen to speak to the club.

This year for the first time a key was awarded Carol Griffin, a graduate of '35, for outstanding work and scientific promise.

Eta Sigma Phi is a national honorary Greek Letter Society of undergraduate students, selected on the basis of a high average in Latin or Greek. The purpose of the club is to stimulate interest in the study of the classics and to increase the knowledge of the members in that language. Emphasis was laid this year on the study of archeology.

A distinguished visitor to the club in February was Dean Miller from the University of Missouri. A banquet was given in the same month, with Mr. Hayes as speaker.

Charles Dickens' pen-name "Boz," furnished the name for this press-writing club when it was founded in 1916. Members read their short stories or essays at the meetings of the club and profit from the mutual discussion and constructive criticism from other members.

This year for the first time the meetings have been held at night and considerably lengthened so that more time can be allotted to discussion.

Poetry Club encourages creative writing of verse on the campus. Members must not only be able to write verse; they must continue to do so. At the meetings which are often held at the homes of the faculty advisors, Miss Preston and Miss Laney, their poems are read and criticized. Each author however is not required to read her own work.

One of the members of this club, Mildred Clark, has twice received recognition at the monthly Poetry Forum of the Atlanta Writers' Club. She received there a prize for her poem, "Country Girl."

This miniature "art colony" composed of those students interested or talented in art really has a lot of fun. Their meetings are usually held once a month in the members' rooms and talks are given on some topic concerning art.

This year's particular project has been making marionettes and sewing costumes for them. Although no show was given, the club hopes that the puppets will be used by next year's members.

This club is purely social and to some extent "hereditary," as the members are made up of those girls whose mothers attended Agnes Scott. At the four meetings this year, the small group got together most informally to talk and to indulge in a favorite campus pastime—knitting.

On December 3rd, Granddaughters' Club entertained its members and their dates at a banquet in the alumnae Tea House.

Since its organization in 1922, Le Cercle Francais has had as its purpose the stimulation of interest in French life. This year special stress was placed on modern French verse and songs, and a choral group was organized to lead the singing of these.

As formerly, several plays were presented before the college community and the Alliance Francaise of Atlanta. Chief among these were La Maison de Cumi, Conte de Noel, and Le Malade Imaginaire.

The German Club with the skillful help of Miss Harn has presented many interesting and colorful programs this year. German pageants and German songs added to the general theme of literature and travel in Germany.

Lucie Hess, the German exchange student, who ranked first among the speakers at the club this year, loaned her manger scene brought over from Germany for the beautiful Christmas pageant given by the club.

The charming custom of singing carols in foreign languages along with the French and Spanish clubs the night before Christmas holidays was continued this year.

The Glee Club, under the skillful direction of Mr. Johnson, is responsible for many of the most enjoyable features of the year. Xmas Carol programs, chapel choruses, and the Operetta are some of these.

The Special Chorus has been especially active this year. They have sung at various clubs and churches in Decatur and Atlanta, specializing in light and fanciful music.

Dinners on Wednesday nights have been especially enjoyable this year due to the lovely music rendered by our faithful orchestra.

These girls have also participated in the concerts given by the string ensemble. This musical organization is under the direction of Mr. Dieckmann and includes among its members: Alice Reins, Mildred Harding, Margaret Watson, Mr. Robinson, and Mr. Christian, violinists; Nell Chamlee and Mary Belle Kruger, cellists; and Jean Kirkpatrick and Nell Hemphill, pianists.

Athletics

Physical development was the keynote of chivalric training, as medieval times called for able-bodied warriors and skilled fighters.

Jousting was a universal sport, and tournaments were held in every land. Fencing, archery, wrestling, and boxing were held in general favor also. And even the women indulged in the popular pastime of falconry.

At the beginning of the hockey season Helen Handte, hockey manager, Ann Coffee, president of A. A., with two class managers and Miss Mitchell attended a hockey conference at Woman's College, Montevallo, Alabama, where they studied fine points of the game and learned refereeing technique.

Although the season ended early due to the encroachments of the new library on the field, fine weather and large crowds made the games unusually interesting. The Seniors won the largest number of the eight games and received the banner. The season was closed in fine style with a game between the varsity and subvarsity. The teams were evenly matched and the game hard fought, but the subvarsity finally made the winning goal and won, 1-0.

The basketball season lasted from December to the early part of March with half of the games played in the afternoon and half at night. The Senior and Junior teams were the most outstanding and tied for the banner. Every game they played was exciting. There was so much interest in basketball and so many people came to play this year that an extra game was played between Freshmen and Sophomores who were not on the regular teams. At the end of the season the proverbial Brown Jug contest was held between dormitories, day students, and faculty. The faculty team defied student competition and won the Jug.

The Senior basketball team has always been outstanding and this year proved no exception. They placed three members on varsity and two on subvarsity. While they have a number of individually good players, their effective teamwork is a greater reason for their success.

The Junior team improved rapidly during the season and successfully threatened the Seniors. Their guards showed their versatility by playing forward equally well. Two varsity and three subvarsity players are Juniors.

On November 26, at 8:00 P. M. the swimming club presented a beautiful water pageant, ANTHONY AND CLEOPATRA. Cleopatra, played by Margaret Morrison, was seen floating on her barge on the Nile as Anthony, played by Helen Handte, arrived with his legion. Cleopatra's maids entertain them with exhibition diving and swimming until the Roman army carries Anthony away. As Cleopatra is left alone, a water serpent, played by Ellen McCallie, enchants her as the barge floats on.

The water pageant is always delightfully given and greatly enjoyed.

For several years Agnes Scott has been developing the club system in athletics. Some of these which have grown steadily and become very popular are Swimming, Tennis, Outing, and Dance clubs. They provide for informal participation in these activities and often carry out specific projects.

Swimming Club participated in the water pageant last fall.

Tennis Club conducted a singles and doubles tournament.

Outing Club had many delightful hikes and picnics, including an early morning excursion to the Waffle Shop in Atlanta.

This winter Dance Club sponsored a Dance Recital. Spanish tangos, Hungarian folk dances, and tap dances, as well as Chopin waltzes and Beethoven polkas were presented.

The clubs have been very successful and are steadily increasing in popularity.

The athletic program is well-rounded and provides an opportunity for every girl in school to take part in some activity in which she is particularly interested.

She is encouraged to take team sports, such as hockey or basketball, as well as the more social sports, tennis, golf, swimming, and horse-back riding.

The school year is divided into three seasons for athletics. In the fall, hockey, swimming, archery, golf, tennis, and dancing are offered.

During the winter, basketball replaces the outdoor sports, and in the spring, a student may participate in May Day as well as in most of the other activities.

Play days, tennis tournaments, swimming meets, intramural games, and horse shows add to the variety and give unusual advantages to the girl who is athletically inclined.

Features

WOMEN were held in high honor during the Middle Ages, although they served chiefly as an ornament to society, gracing the banquet halls with their beauty.

Their scanty education included a little reading and writing, poetry, and some French and Latin. Their most important instruction, however, was in housekeeping and needlework, and most of their time was spent sewing, knitting and embroidering beautiful tapestries.

This year for the first time the students were allowed to vote on the beauty section. Out of fifty girls voted upon, the twenty-four receiving the most votes from the students and annual staff were sent to McClelland Barclay, artist, for the final choice. Out of these, he chose eight whom he considered the most beautiful. Be sure to read his individual comments on these eight girls.

Oct. 30/1935

Dear Miss Miller:

First of all permit me to rave about the attractiveness, charm, and beauty of your group. I don't even - I must hand it to you southern girls - you've got what it takes. Really they are a lovely crowd. It's a shame that I can't see them in color. Sometimes black and white is an injustice to a gorgeous real-hair or golden-haired - however all I can do is accept the black & white value. I hope I am fair. This is as attractive group as I have ever received from a college taken as a whole.

My planing is this -

1. Susan Bryan - she could make good any day as an artist and photographer made in May, and would be pleased to meet the class.
2. Francis Wilson - she is my love of all the girls I would like to know her most of all. She is top for charm and personality to me.
3. Naomi Cooper - a type I would love to have as a sister -
4. Helen Haulte - "Lindy" -
5. Helene Shortley - "Smoot" - very cute type
6. Lucille Dehman - a grand gal to know a good sport -
7. Mary Gilmore - One picture above the top row -
8. Jean Perry Adams - Cute

I have no one model nor have I a photo of any who pose for me - Mine is enclosed, Use it to start the fire on a chilly morning - I don't want to refund your gas when request with my kind regards to all -

Sincerely yours,
Melland Barclay

Campus Life

School opens and the FRESHMEN arrive,

to be welcomed by:

a Tacky Party given by the Sophs,

teas and lawn parties, galore

2 new exchange students, Marcelle and Lucie greeted by Lillian (in center)

Ratting!,

and still more parties,

handbook lessons from the Sponsors

and again ratting, (of a gentle sort).

Isn't it great?

And almost immediately,
the STUNT follows—
on October 19—

And in spite of all that

Miss Hopkinsky (Myl Chafin),

the Pied Piper
(Margaret Morrison),

and Rasputin
(Anne Taylor)

can do to get the CAT
for the Soph(iettes),
in "Disputin' Rasputin"

the Freshmen win for the first time in 5 years with their clever stunt, "Agnes in Scott-land,"

and the Freshman chairman, Anna Margaret Riepma, proudly receives the Black Cat from the Sophomore chairman, Ann Worthy Johnson,

while the Junior Bunny (Anne Pur-nell) tells Agnes (Mary Pen-nell Simonton) just how it was done!

In the meantime,
DORMITORY LIFE
begins again with its

phone duty,

studying,

floor parties,

bathroom brigades,

bull sessions,

"posing"

loafing

day-dreaming

night-dreaming

and at last, a phone call!

(What! You two again?)

and of all things,
a midnite fire alarm!

Soon the MALE INTEREST
revives full force,
and the fight is on—between:

Scat and Peter

Rachel and one of her swains

Phinney and Eustace

Miscellany

Rosa, any Monday morning

Nancy and Martha and escorts

and that famous twosome again.

Mary Vines
with two admirers!

Meriel & Howard

Emily & Marion
with two Dental Collegiates
and

Mary Margaret & Sid
in the beeches.

And Susan returning from a week-end.

And in the midst of all this,

down where the new road cuts across to Candler St.

and

the hockey field used to be,

surveyors begin to take stock,

foundations are laid,

mules and men go to work,

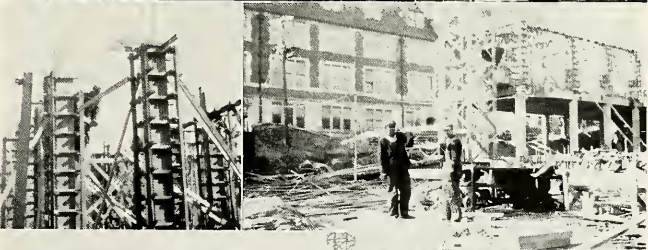

and the

skeleton of the NEW LIBRARY
rises skyward!

Gradually the building progresses,

until

one day it snows,

and work is momentarily delayed
by the worst ice and sleet storm seen in Decatur and Atlanta for years.

And then comes the Seniors' big moment!

In gingham and rompers they play for the last time at LITTLE GIRLS on November 1st.

with all sorts of toys from horsies to Mickey mice,

and of course, they fight

(Oh-Oh, how did a grown-up get in here?)

then kiss and make up,

and then after all sorts of pranks

and more fights,

they at last settle down for a quiet wade in the fish pool.

And the day following is INVESTITURE!

Headed by their sister class
in white and their mascot,

and led by the traditional pair,
Mr. Stukes and Miss Alexander, they await their turn for that impressive ceremony

of being capped
by Miss Hopkins,

and full-fledged Seniors
at last,

listen to Miss Scandrett's address in chapel.

AT WORK,

the students—

go to an observatory lab,

stop for a meal.

return to Dr. Robinson's
math class,

buy a new book at
the bookstore,

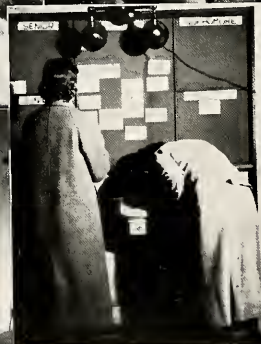

go back to class,

run over to have their Annual picture taken by Mr. Elliott, land in the infirmary,

attend chapel,
and

study, study, STUDY,

at their old hang-out,
the library,

stopping just a minute to read the bulletin board.

A SNAPSHOT CONTEST

was sponsored by the SILHOUETTE this year to encourage more amateur photography.

Although more entries were expected, some of the results were very interesting.

Pictures were judged on the basis of clarity, originality, and campus adaptation.

The first prize of $3 was won by Mickey McKee's picture of Ad in the bathroom (right middle).

Second prize was split ($1.50 each) between Winifred Kellersberger's picture of a typical study (left middle), and Elsie West's picture (just above Ad) of somebody's rather crowded bedroom.

The rest of the pictures on this page are runners-up in the contest. Members of the SILHOUETTE Staff were not eligible for the prize.

And then FOUNDER'S DAY
on February 22

with Betsy Ross
(Mary Hull)
surrounded by colonial admirers

Benjamin Franklin
(Helen Handte)
declaiming to George & Martha

once more the strains
of the minuet

George (Lib Forman)
and Martha (Augusta King)

and farther on down

Dan Boone (Lily Weeks)
with Paul Revere
(Ad Stevens)

And, in addition, three elements common to all our social events
at the college:

a banquet,

a reception,

and a

"manless" dance.

BLACKFRIAR PLAYS

are always enjoyed.

"Mr. Pim Passes By"

by A. A. Milne was a story of the problem of Olivia Marden (Myrl Chafin) with her husband (Edgar Neely), and the complicated love affair of his niece (Kitty Printup) with a young poet (Luther Carroll). Mr. Pim (Tom Wesley) unwittingly straightens out the tangled situation.

These plays are directed successfully by Miss Gooch and Miss Vaughn. The faithful Blackfriars aid behind the scenes too.

"Bridal Chorus,"

written by an Agnes Scott graduate, Roberta Winters, and presented on March 21, was an amusing tale of the almost disrupted wedding of Mary Jane (Carrie Phinney Latimer), the daughter of Mrs. Perry (Alice McCallie). In spite of the interference of brother J. R. (Luther Carroll) and Georgia (Elizabeth Cousins), the heroine finally marries the groom (Jimmie Jepson), although she has to put up with a "triple" wedding.

The ever-popular Glee Club
OPERA—“Pirates of Penzance”

by Gilbert and Sullivan, directed by Mr. Lewis Johnson, was presented twice this year,

once at school on the 17th of April and then at Emory on the 18th.

The story was that of a young Pirate (Frank Sewell) just out of his indentures who falls in love with one of the forty daughters
(Augusta King) of the Major-General (Dick Smoot).

Complications arise when the Pirate King (Gene Trabor) announces that the hero is really only four years old, as he was born on Leap Year. Everything is straightened out, however, when the Pirate Nurse (Amelia Nickels) explains that Frederick is really noble born.

Though this is really not the place for it, we really couldn't leave out the Junior Banquet, given by the Juniors every year with MEN!

The great event took place this year on March 21.

And then MARDI GRAS is revived by the Seniors on April 4, with the Senior King (Lib Forman) presiding with his Queen (Lavinia Scott) over the features of the evening:

A real Amateur program conducted by Major Bowes (Shirley Christian):

Some of the attractive floats in the float parade.

"Annie Doesn't Live Here Any More" (Y. W.).

"Get Thee Behind Me, Satan" (Current History Forum).

"It's Been So Long" (the Senior Class).

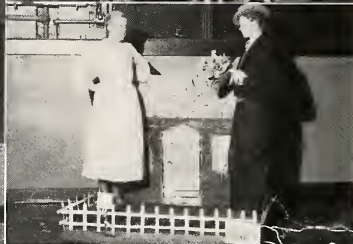

"I'm On a See-Saw" (May Day Committee).

The King's Court, composed of a King and his lady from each class, and the prize-winners:

Float—"Lazy Bones" (the Language Clubs),
Costumes—Mary Wells McNeil and Lena Armstrong,

Amateurs (at top of page) Mary Perry and Anne Taylor.

And another big event sponsored by the Seniors is SENIOR OPERA.

Written by Lulu Ames and her committee and directed by Shirley Christian, the success of this year's production — PHOUGHST — was sensational.

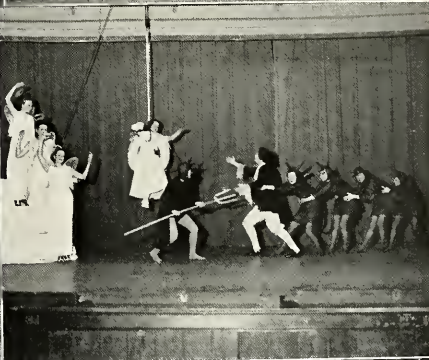

The story followed true to form, but not to Goethe.

Phoughst (Loice Richards) sells his soul to Messytopofleas (Ad Stevens) in return for youth, beauty, and the love of Maggie Reet (Augusta King).

Complications arise with the parallel love affair of Messy and Martyr (Alice McCallie), the kitten—Miss Take—that "Phoughst leaves Maggie with," the insanity of the heroine, and wholesale murder in the second act.

The finale ends with a dramatic flourish — Maggie rising heavenward (via a lifesaver and a pulley) and Phoughst's simultaneous exit to Hell.

Choruses attracting attention were the devil and angel choruses, the Hell-o chorus, the Vanity chorus, the traditional "faculty," and, above, all, the Soldiers' chorus which brought down the house with their professional drill.

And, lastly, MAY DAY—on the first Saturday in May, provides a fitting climax for the year!

This year's scenario—"Down an English Lane" was written by Charline Fleece and Anne Thompson.

The setting in the May Day dell plus a typical covered wagon, fire, and kettle, was perfect for the gypsy atmosphere. There were gypsy maidens, gypsy fire-builders, Russian gypsies—in short, gypsies of all types and descriptions.

Variety was added by the various groups visiting from the village—gallant soldiers, gay peasants, errant daughters come to have their fortunes told, and their irate fathers.

Comedy was supplied by the entrance of the tinker (Jane Blick) and his gawky apprentice (Ad Stevens).

The MAY COURT this year was one of the most gorgeous courts presented here in years.

The girls were extraordinarily beautiful and their brilliantly colored dresses added much to the general effect.

Several soloists took part in May Day. One of these was the Spirit of the Forest (Lois Hart).

These dances were made especially interesting by a plot. The story is that of the love of a gypsy girl (Helen Ford) torn between a gypsy boy (Charline Fleece) and an English soldier (Marie Stalker). The latter wins her love when he decides to become a member of the gypsy band.

Dearest Silly Wett,

*"Since you have saw me
My bitter tears have fell.
So much have I saw and learnt
I cannot never tell.*

*A lot of time have went
Since I have saw your face.
I've saw investitures, new libraries,
Fraternity pins, and Englishmen's debates.*

*Open forums have I heerd
With pleas for waste baskets and the like.
I've read Boece and killed the Turks
And experienced abnormal Psych.*

*V'acation time are almost come
And I can cease to thunk.
So, I'll dry my bitter tears
And won't not feel so punk!"*

Having revealed to you the innermost workings of my imaginative and creative soul, I now with piercing realism will condescend to the prosaic in order to pen you the usual epistle.

Really, Silly, I wish you could have been an innocent onlooker in some of our little campus endeavors this year. I know you would have been amazed on the day of Investiture when Miss Mac "enlivening the line with a soft crimson glow" marched ceremoniously in the academic procession, or when Mr. Raper pompously greeted a member of his class of 65 members who had forgetfully removed her cap and gown, telling her how he had enjoyed her visit to his class and expressing his hope that she had been doing well since graduation.

You really would have been jolly well thrilled pink by the British debaters, deah Cuthie and Jawhn, who met our team at the fray with some subject or other concerning a tour through England, the King's Jubilee, and what kind of black kimono the well-bearded Supreme-Courter will wear.

And after these sons of Britain departed and agitation was going on on the campus, the stitch-in-time section knitted furiously, as did those equally calloused spirits, who watched the gruesome horrors of the guillotine over their potential socks.

And then, somebody pushed another valve down, and you'll never guess what started circulating round and round!—Fraternity pins! Imaginez-vous! Yes, really, all because of a few extra sofa pillows and lamps in the date parlors. Do you really feel that there is a valid argument for the heredity theory? My own candid opinion is that all depends on environment. But, Silly, if you don't have the proper equipment furnished by Mortar Board, try out the finger-antics on your innocent victim—"Rain Raining and Grass Growing," "The Broken Record," or a "Fat Man Under a Cold Shower"—and you'll not only rate a frat pin but, far greater and more transcendent, your intellectual capacities will at last be realized and appreciated.

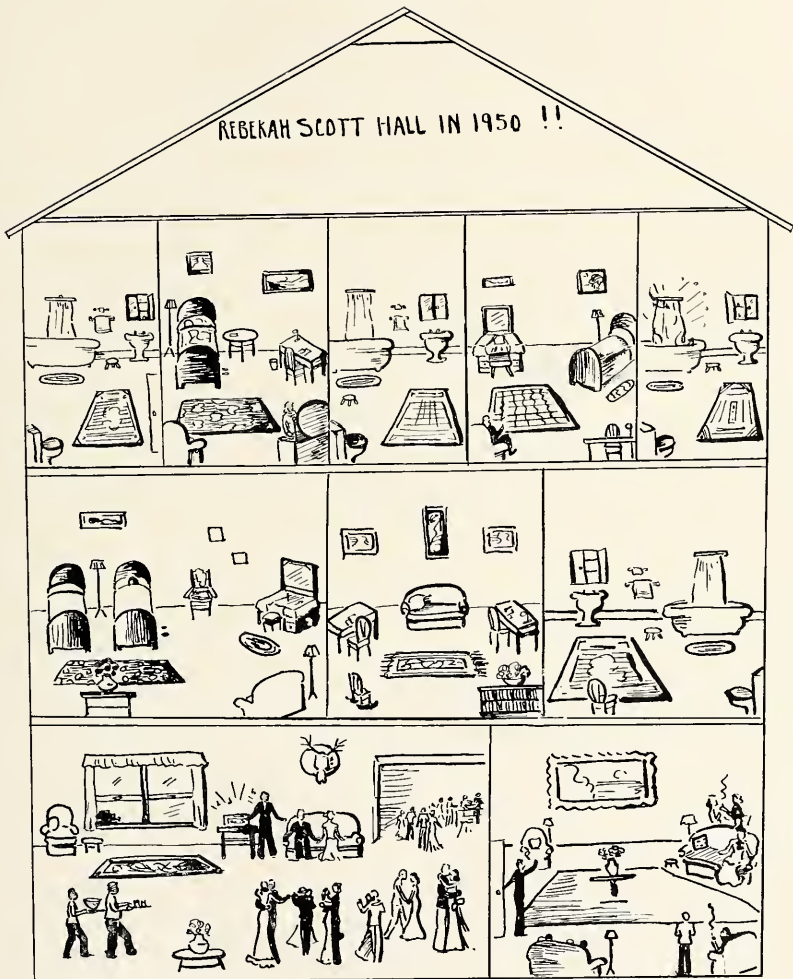

Speaking of intellectual capacities, I am sadly reminded of four little tantalizing items—term papers—so I must away. Tempus how she do fugit!

So farewell, my fine, sweet, fair, fat friend (to use the inimitable phraseology of one of our famed journalists), and remember the old saying of Dr. Davidson—"The only way to have your cake and eat it is to eat it in bed."

Yours in poetry and prose,

NELLIE MARGARET GILROY.

SEPT. 17—Schol opens and Martha Long's trunks arrive addressed to Main 47. Imagine her embarrassment on finding them in the bathroom.

SEPT. 21—Reception Dance. Sore feet, stiff smiles, cute freshmen, hot orchestra.

SEPT. 22—First fire alarm. Phinney tells us always to write down object of our dates.

SEPT. 24—Y. W. skit in chapel. Kitty Cunningham tries to rhyme spaghetti and punch.

SEPT. 30—News of first marriage (?) of year, a run-away-and-meet-you-in-Athens one.

OCT. 3—Italy declares war on Ethiopia and we discuss garbage cans in Open Forum.

OCT. 19—Of all things! The freshmen win the Stunt and the Black Cat.

OCT. 21—Mr. Tart actually gets his car out to take his niece riding.

OCT. 25—Willie Lou Sumrall's date presents her with a real live duck. Something new. . . Say it with feathers!

OCT. 31—First senior engagement ring appears—Ellen Davis's.

NOV. 1—Giggles at Little Girl Day to be followed next day by tears at Investiture.

NOV. 7—Our first lecturer, Robert Frost, charms the audience with his simplicity and friendliness.

NOV. 12—The Cambridge debate. For once the Englishmen stay on the subject and Scat and Edith have to supply the cracks.

NOV. 28—Thanksgiving. Boxes arrive from home and Cora Kay Hutchins has to go to the Infirmary along with most of second floor Inman.

DEC. 2—Sarah B. Jones obeys an impulse to play baseball and knocks out a window in Rebekah.

DEC. 7—Cotillion Club gives a dance in the gym with men—in the orchestra.

DEC. 14—Seniors get starry-eyed at their annual faculty reception.

DEC. 18—Xmas holidays at last! "No more days till vacation, now we go to the station!"

• • •

JAN. 2—We sadly return to find that we almost didn't have to come back so soon, due to the ice storm—no lights—and broken down trees. Worst luck!

JAN. 5—"And the music goes round and round. . ."

JAN. 15—We are still wondering who was the mysterious person collecting statistics for the P. W. A. (Pajama Wearers' Association) and getting such valuable information from the male members of the faculty.

JAN. 21—We struggle through mid-year exams and two weeks of faculty vacation. Someday you'll get to be a teacher and go to Florida, little girl!

JAN. 29—Back to our childhood and snowball fights once more. Who knocked off Miss Latin Smith's hat?

FEB. 1—Another victim of the fishpond. Tense Norton still claims somebody pushed her in.

FEB. 6—Our most spectacular lecturer, Thornton Wilder.

FEB. 8—All Agnes Scott walks around dreamy-eyed after hearing and seeing Nelson Eddy. Helen Jepson might just as well have stayed in N. Y.

FEB. 15, 16, 17, etc. . . Two to four in bed, a regular staff of nurses, extensions of the Infirmary; name it and we'll tell you what to call it, but it sho' got us down.

FEB. 22—Once more the strains of the minuet. . . Founder's Day.

MAR. 5—The Freshmen make time with the boys at the Mortar Board parties. So do the Seniors!

MAR. 13—Triangular debate. And our editor takes a sudden notion to accompany two of the debaters to New Orleans.

MAR. 19—Lula Ames reverts to the good old "log-roll" and the Agonistic adapts a more "democratic" way of electing its editor.

MAR. 21—Flowing evening dresses, corsages, and MEN enhance the Junior Banquet not only in the eyes of that class but of the girls hanging over the banisters to get a good view.

MAR. 26—Spring holidays a welcome breathing-spell, and a chance to see the MOTH (Man of the Hour) once more.

APRIL 4—Mardi Gras is again revived by the seniors, and proves a great success—especially the unexpected talent on the Amateur Hour.

APRIL 10—And the second Senior sporting an engagement ring is—Martha Creshaw.—And what a man!

APRIL 18—The birdies that sing in the spring, tra-la, have nothing on Augusta King. "Pirates of Penzance" makes the Metropolitan Opera look like a burlesque.

APRIL 26—The week-end extended into another holiday for Memorial Day.

MAY 2—Gypsies dancing and music playing while our own beautiful Naomi is crowned Queen of the May. And the night of May Day goes down in history with another hilarious Senior Opera.

MAY 15—The last round-up and the seniors take their last exams.

MAY 25-31—One festivity after another almost wears us out.

JUNE 1—Class Day and our last tearful farewells.

JUNE 2—Graduation . . . and Finis.

What They Wouldn't Say

MISS MILLER: Girls, you can leave your beds unmade just as long as you want to. They're such a bother.

MISS DAUGHERTY: Tell all your boy-friends to come down here and see you when you're sick. I don't want my little girls to get lonesome.

MISS HOPKINS: Be sure and have a good time, dears, and get back by 4 A. M. You can pick up a chaperon on the way out.

MISS JACKSON: I certainly am slipping these days. Can't seem to keep up with what's going on.

MISS HANLEY: Take out all the books you like. If you don't get them back by 8:00 o'clock, it's all right.

MISS MACDOUGALL: I sat up all last night making out an exam for my Genetics Class that was different from last year's.

DR. MCCAIN: Make all the noise you want to in chapel. I love to see young people have a good time.

MISS HISTORY SMITH: You can let the daily assignments slip if you'd like. Just catch up by exams.

MR. ROBINSON: I'm awfully sorry I can't quite add up these figures.

MISS LANEY: Just skim this material. Don't bother about the details.

MISS LATIN SMITH: (Refuses to talk.)
